LOST OPPORTUNITIES.

(Blue Valley Bulletin)

There is something in connection with the word "Lost" that strikes terror to everybody. The boy amusing himself in the yard, playing ball, throws it into some high weeds and he goes to his mother crying as if his heart would break because it's lost. Hardly a day passes that some woman is not seen in one of the large department stores in the city bathed in tears because she has lost her pocket-book. Ever and anon the metropolitan newspapers issue an extra and in great big head-lines is the announcement, "A Child Lost," and the whole city is aroused with the most intense interest.

The stock man is grieved over the loss of a valuable horse or cow. We read a soul stirring account of a stormy voyage across the ocean and our whole interest centres on the report that a passenger was lost. The whole world is moved with sympathy for the family of orphan children who have lost a mother, and so we might continue to enumerate losses of property by fire, of crops by floods, or storms, or drouth, of whole cities by earthquake, etc. The world appreciates losses of this character and uses every means at its command to prevent their occurrence, but we are led to believe that the seriousness of lost opportunities is not appreciated.

The man or woman who realizes that they have been unfortunate in their marriage relations are forcibly reminded of an opportunity once offered that would have changed the situation.

It is a sad story the man relates, who in the evening of life tells of many opportunities that were presented, but refused, and which might have made his life a success, instead of a failure. All along the commercial pathway of industrial life may be found the wrecks from failure that were brought about through neglected opportunities.

There is no business in which a man's success depends more on his embracing opportunities than dairying, and there is no business where there are so many opportunities presented. Bear in mind that one of the greatest opportunities that comes to the dairman is that of preparing for cheap feed and thereby increasing the profit. Another very important opportunity is that of utilising the skim milk to realize the most out of it by feeding to good stock and at the proper time.

Montreal, June 2.—A man named Calve appeared before the royal commission yesterday and swore that Ald. Proulx asked him for $600 to get a position on the police force. Proulx was then chairman of the police committee.

He told Proulx that it was too much. Proulx replied that "a little here and a little there, and there is not much left for me."

Chief Campeau admitted that he had been offered money to get positions, but that he had always refused and the men who offered it, did not get a job.

A new citizens' committee yesterday applied for permission to be represented by counsel. They claim that the whole truth is not being brought out, but only what is against certain parties.

Americans Attack Police.

Vancouver, B.C., June 2.—E. R. Kinman and F. L. Gartley, two Americans, are in jail without bail, because of a peculiar mix-up with the police yesterday.

They represent a New York syndicate which proposes to erect an amusement park at Deadman's Island. Following Kinman's arrest yesterday he was taken to the police station, and released on $1,000 bail. In company with Gartley he immediately returned to the island and, armed with clubs, attacked the police officers. Constable Kuney was knocked unconscious and Allan, another officer, knocked down before the two New Yorkers were disarmed. Two other arrests of workmen occurred yesterday afternoon.

Hotelman Goes to Jail.

Lindsay, June 2.—James Simpson, proprietor of one of the hotels at Kinmount, a local option village, was yesterday afternoon sentenced by Magistrate Moore to four months in the county jail, at hard labor for selling intoxicating liquors.

The sentence is the first of its kind to be meted out to any local option hotelkeeper in Victoria County.

Simpson has been fined previously, hence the incarceration.

Two spotters, Armenians, visited Kinmount vicinity a month or so ago, employed on Government work, and partook of the proprietor's hospitality and paid for their "wet goods."

Meat Packing Plants for Alberta.

Calgary, June 2.—E. G. Palmer of the committee appointed last July to interview the Minister of Agriculture regarding the establishment of meat killing and packing plants throughout the Canadian west, states that the plan decided upon will necessitate the establishment of plants, purchase of special cold storage cars, and necessary water power, will leave practically $500,000 to credit of capital account.

The main idea is the use of chilling plants, fat cattle of low weight, and the same with the hog industry.

Woman Hangs Herself.

Kingston, June 2.—Mrs. John Porter, aged 54, a married woman, residing a few miles from the city, committed suicide by hanging shortly after 8 o'clock Monday night. The woman had on various occasions shown symptoms of mental weakness. She had three children.

DOCTORS MEET IN ANNUAL CONVENTION

Provincial Doctors Are in Convention in Toronto.

ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT

Dr. Hamilton Makes Plea For More Rigid Enforcement of Vaccination Law and Compares It to Pasteur Inoculation for Rabies—Medical Inspection in Schools Is Very Serious Problem in Province.

Toronto, June 2.—The 29th annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association opened yesterday morning in the medical building of the University of Toronto, with a record attendance of the disciples of Galen and Aesculapius. Up to 5 p.m. 219 had registered their names, and more are expected. It is believerd that fully five per cent. of the doctors present will be women.

The convention will continue to-day and to-morrow. This afternoon the vital question of pure milk will be dealt with by Dr. J. A. Amyot. In the evening the annual dinner will be held at McConkey's. To-morrow afternoon the election of officers will take place and an address will be delivered by Dr. William Osler of Oxford, Eng. The committee on affiliation with the Canadian Medical Association is expected to report at this session.

The feature of yesterday's proceedings was the president's address, delivered at the afternoon session by Dr. H. J. Hamilton of Toronto. He took for his subject, "Preventive Medicine."

DR. H. J. HAMILTON.

"At present compulsory vaccination is a dead letter in the public schools of Toronto," he said.

The state of public opinion in regard to vaccination was compared with that as to inoculation with Pasteur's serum for hydrophobia. No one questioned the latter. One reason for this, he thought, might be that it was use only when there had been exposure to rabies.

Speaking of the preventive of tuberculosis, he said that the efforts to secure for all pure air, pure food and pure water were noteworthy. The Provincial Government were to be congratulated on the appointment of the milk commission. With such an able commission and an equally able and enthusiastic department, he said, "we may expect that before this association meets again much will be accomplished." J. Ross Robertson was commended for his efforts to secure pasteurized milk for children.

Medical inspection of the schools was declared to be one of the pressing questions of the day. The surest way to educate the public was to begin with the rising generation. He hoped the Department of Education would soon see that medical inspection became a fact.

The doctors were exhorted to keep down petty jealousy and strife, to meet each other more frequently, and to credit others with conscientious work.

Kick on Camp Reduction.

London, June 2.—The militia camp is to open here next week and officers connected with the various companies are intensely chagrined over the new orders reducing the number of men to go under canvas, as transportation and other arrangements had been completed for the usual attendance. Company officers, who have had hard work to get their companies up to strength, must now reduce, and they believe many of the enlisted men will quit the regiments for good.

One Dead In Rifle Duel.

Lillooet, B.C., June 2.—News was brought here yesterday morning of a rifle duel on Bridge river, about 70 miles from here, between A. Thivarge, a packer, and a trapper whose name is not learned. Several shots were exchanged before Thivarge was killed. The trapper is reported badly wounded.

Four Thousand Mile Auto Race.

New York, June 2.—Five cars started from this city at 3 p.m. yesterday in the 4,000 mile automobile race from New York for the Seattle Exposition, two Fords, a Shawmut, an Acme, all American makes, and an Itala, of Italian manufacture. They were started from the City Hall by Mayor McClellan.

PROMISE OF THINGS IN BORDEN LIBEL SUIT

Carruthers Is Indicted by Kentville Grand Jury.

MAY ASK CHANGE OF VENUE

Trial of Postmaster Charged With Criminal Libel on Minister of Militia and Defence Is Begun and True Bill Is Returned—Prosecution May Ask to Have the Case Tried Elsewhere.

Kentville, N.S., June 2.—The grand jury yesterday afternoon brought in a "true bill" in the indictment of Walter Carruthers, ex-postmaster of Kentville, for criminal libel in the charge preferred by Sir Frederick W. Borden.

Most people got a genuine surprise when they learned yesterday that an important witness in this case was in their midst, ready to take the stand.

The witness is Mrs. Maria Allison of Ottawa, whose name has figured so prominently in connection with this libel case. She came to Kentville a week ago in obedience to subpoena issued in Halifax.

Another surprise came last night when L. F. A. Chalifour of Fraserville, Que., issued from the train. He is a nephew of Mrs. Allison, and another material witness in the case, who also was subpoenaed by the defence from Halifax.

Chalifour is a cousin of Hesta Chalifour, Mrs. Allison's daughter by a first husband. This daughter at present is residing in Virgina. If these two witnesses get on the stand a story of deep interest is expected to be unfolded.

There are rumors as to what to-day will bring forth. One of these is that the prosecution will seek a change of venue, asking that the trial be removed to another county and that the date be fixed two months hence

Liberals are said to be desirous of having the trial elsewhere than in Sir Frederick's shire town, but the reason why is not stated.

Sir Frederick is not here at the opening of the court.

To the grand jury Mr. Justice Drisdale read from the information on which the warrant was obtained, beginning with this sentence, from one of two letters signed by Maria Allison and published in The Eye-Opener.

"I have been the victim of that ruffian's outrage to myself and family. I cannot get over it. I had the misfortune to take him to board in my house at the beginning of sitting of Parliament, with some other members. Well, he ended by taking my only daughter from home. I nearly died from grief and shame."

"This is a paragraph," the judge said, "alleged to be defamatory and you can hardly say that it is not defamatory."

The next item complained of was also in Mrs. Allison's first letter and the judge read it as follows: "Borden has another woman that he separated from her husband named Dex, she is in the same department as myself."

The judge then brought to the attention of the jury the following paragraph from Mrs. Allison's second letter.

"I went down to Montreal myself and hired the Montreal secret service. Then everything came out. He was keeping her in a boarding-house at 262 Pallice (Pallace) street," which libel the informations puts forth as written in the sense of impuning that the said Sir Fred W. Borden was improperly keeping a daughter of the Maria Allison at a house in Montreal for immoral and discreditable purposes. "These are the allegations," Mr. Justice Drisdale said, "which charge Sir Frederick Borden with immoralities in his private life while he was a public man. They are from first to the end highly libelous charges against any public man. If he handed out the paper containing the statements to anyone, whether asked for or not, it was defamatory libel."

H. H. Wickwire, K. C., and W. E. Roscoe, K.C., are acting for the prosecution, and J. J. Ritchie, K.C., for the defence.

The judge made an impartial address to the grand jury. The jury were to enquire whether Carruthers had handed out the libel which was contained in The Eye-Opener of Calgary to a man or men, or any person.

To Suffer From Headaches Makes Life Miserable.

It takes a person that has had or is subject to headaches to describe the suffering which attends them.

The majority of cases are caused by constipation and dyspepsia. The dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on, purely indicates that there is something the matter with the stomach or bowels. To the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters reaches every part of the system is due its success in relieving and permanently curing headaches. It has proven a specific for the malady in all its forms.

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHES.

Mrs. Allison E. Brown, Summerfield, N.B., writes:—"I have been troubled with Constipation and Headaches for a long time. After trying different doctors to no effect, a friend asked me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I find I am completely cured after taking three bottles. I can highly recommend it to all."

MORE DROWNINGS.

Three Tragedies Are Reported From Various Points.

Ottawa, June 2.—News has been received in the city of the death by drowning at Whitney last week of Norman Connors, aged 24, who came from Kirrie Muir, Scotland, was attempting to paddle a canoe across the river, when it was seen by a boy named Cartwright to capsize. Assistance was speedily secured, but no trace could be found of the unfortunate young man, who was unable to swim. On Sunday, however, his body was recovered during dragging operations.

News comes also that Stanley Ostrom of Alexandria, Ont., was drowned on a N. R. survey north of Biscotasing, yesterday morning, while in a canoe on a rapid.

Arthur Martineau, aged 14, of Hull, was drowned yesterday shortly before noon by falling out of a boat in the middle of the Ottawa river, between the foot of the locks and the Hull shore. The lad was engaged with another young boy in gathering driftwood.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Mr. Alfred Deakin is forming a new Australian Government.

The Alaska-Yukon Exposition at Seattle was opened yesterday.

Regina police are on the trail of "Dutch Henry," a noted outlaw, whose record entitles him to be shot at sight.

A little daughter of Alfred Ball of London, Ont., swallowed a safety pin, and an operation will be necessary to remove it.

Shareholders of the Elgin Loan Co., which failed six years ago, will receive a dividend of 81-3 cents on the dollar.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux will represent the British as well as the Canadian Government at the Champlain Tercentenary at Plattsburgh, N.Y., and Burlington, Vt., in July next.

Sir Conan Doyle has written what he calls a morality play, dealing, he says, with the philosophic theory of life. The play, which is entitled "The Fires of Fate," will be produced on June 15.

Women Heard Burglars.

Brockville, June 2.—Miss Gerow, housekeeper for N. Gaffield, and a servant had an exciting experience at an early hour yesterday morning.

They were alone in the house and burglars effected an entrance through a kitchen window. They had obtained and removed considerable plunder down stairs and were discussing the advisability of paying attention to the upper portion when the conversation was overheard by the servant, who ran screaming to the room of Miss Gerow. The ladies raised the bedroom window and shouted for help. Neighbors responded, too late, however, to catch the visiters, who decamped, leaving their plunder behind.

THE PURITY WARE PROPOSAL LOOKS GOOD TO THE RATEPAYERS OF PETERBOROUGH

Remarkable Vote in Favour of the Measure Was Recorded Yesterday---Only Eighty-four Ratepayers Marked Their Ballots in Opposition to the Scheme---While the By-law Had a Popular Majority of 1155 Votes---Practically No Opposition.

MEASURE WILL BE SUBMITTED TO THE LEGISLATURE.

That the Purity Ware proposition "looks good" to the people of Peterborough, was amply evidenced by the remarkable vote recorded yesterday on the by-law to assist the company in establishing a factory here. Of the 1,328 votes polled only 84 were antagonistic to the measure, thus giving the record breaking majority of 1,155 in favour of the proposition. Technically the by-law was defeated, i.e., the total vote polled in favour of it did not amount to the required three-fifths of the possible vote. However, the vote in favour of the by-law was so large and indicated such an unanimous approval on the part of the ratepayers, that there is no difficulty anticipated in having the measure apprived of by the Legislature at the next session, and this course will in all probability be adopted, although officially no statement has been made to that effect.

There seems to have been practically no opposition to the by-law when it came to a question of marking the ballots. The business men showed their confidence in the proposition by turning out and working heroically to bring out the vote. The aldermen were also on hand and did everything possible to assist in the passing of the by-law. Carriages and automobiles were employed in carrying the rate payers to the polls and the untiring efforts of those supporting the by-law is responsible for the largeness of the vote polled.

The law requires in the case of the present by-law or any similar measure that where there is not a fifth of the total possible vote against the scheme, that three-fifths of the total is sufficient to carry the by-law, and that on the other hand, where there is one-fifth of those qualified to vote against the measure, it requires two-thirds of the total to pass. In yesterday's vote three-fifths would have been sufficient, but the total vote cast for the by-law was not quite that proportion of the total. Roughly speaking it would require about 1,565 votes to pass the by-law, so that some 345 more votes were needed.

In several of the polling sub-divisions the vote was very large as the following will show:

DAYLIGHT BILL IN U.S.

President Taft Approves of the Idea and the People Across the Line May Have to Get Up at 5 O'clock a. m. Next Year.

BILL TO GO THROUGH

Washington, June 2.—Get up at 5 o'clock in the morning!

President Taft likes the idea. If the people of the United States like it, too, he'll issue orders next spring to fix the clocks. The idea is to set them ahead two hours on May 1 and leave them this way until October 1.

E. H. Murdock, a fellow citizen of the president in Cincinnati, won Taft's interest and his organized the National Daylight Association, the purpose of which is to discover whether the American people really want to get up two hours earlier on summer mornings.

"We follow the clock foolishly, in the summer," says Murdock. "The run rises at 4 o'clock, yet we sleep on during the two finest hours of the day. If we push the time ahead two hours, we would all rise at 5 o'clock, though we would call the hour 7. The man who followed this plan would get through work two hours earlier than he does now, say at 3 in the afternoon. This would give him many hours of daylight, for real recreation. He could easily go to the ball games. The games could start at 6 o'clock and run until 8. It would still be daylight at 8 because 8 would be 6, by our time.

"Under the new plan the average person would go to bed about 8 or 9 o'clock.

"Think of the hours of hot confinement the children would escape in school. They would go home at 3 o'clock, but that would be what is now 1 o'clock.

"There would be more time for recreation in daylight. The system would put a new value on parks, playgrounds and breathing places."

Mr. Underwood has shown that, if the whole country adopts the daylight plan, there will be no difficulty in carrying out the system. On the first day of May we would all rise at 5 o'clock in the morning. We would turn our clocks forward to 7. It might be rather a sleepy day, but we would go to bed early and when we awaked at 5 the next morning it would seem as natural as if the hour were really 7 o'clock. And besides that the morning air would be gloriously inspiring.

Mr. Murdock hopes that commercial clubs and business clubs will take up his plan and write to his association in Cincinnati.

CUSTOMERS' RECEIPTS SHOW INCREASE.

A very satisfactory report has been received from the local Customs House for the month of May. The receipts have been $22,807 29, an increase of $10,382.62 over the receipts for May, 1908. This is probably a safe criterion of the business conditions at present, as compared with those of last year and are very promising.

"I WANTED TO BE A MARTYR TO LOVE; I'VE CHANGED MY MIND"

—Anna Militz.

ANNA MILITZ AND DAVID DICKSON.

Anna Louise Militz worked as a servant in the mansion of Chas. Dickson. David Dickson, young and impetuous, the son of the family, fell in love with her. Over and over, he repeated his love pleadings.

"Don't," said Anna. "I cannot marry you. It will mean only unhappiness. I am poor and you are rich. We come from two different worlds."

David still pleaded. Anna began to be pleased. Slowly she let the dream grow that some day she might possibly be mistress of a Dickson mansion. David pleaded with renewed fervour. Anna finally believed that love would work the miracle.

"At last," says Anna, "I said I would be his wife."

David went off to school to study medicine. Anna, her life's dream ever before her, became a student-nurse. It was her only way to make herself equal of David, mentally.

He graduated. So did Anna. She kept waiting for him to mention the wedding.

One day he came to her with a terrible message.

"I want to be released," is what he said, according to Anna.

Anna says that he told her he could marry Mrs. Lycurgus Winchester, a wealthy widow of New York, and that the wedding would help him tremendously in a financial and professional way.

"I told that I would release him if he would sign a statement that we had been engaged," says Anna. "I loved him and I wanted to see him get ahead in the world. I determined to be a martyr to love. I wouldn't have asked even for the latter, if I hadn't heard that he had denied we were ever engaged.

"But I have changed my mind.

"Just about the time the wedding bells were ringing in New York I filed a breach of promise suit for $50,000. I couldn't be a martyr. But I cannot stand this unfair play. Oh how I tried to lift myself out of the depths. And what did I accomplish?

"It isn't the money I want. If I get it I'll be willing to give it to a charitable institution.

ONE YEAR IN CENTRAL PRISON FOR ATTEMPTING BURGLARY

Wm. McCarthy Caught by Night-watchman Finnie While Trying to Enter Store of Mr. A. Laidlaw Early This Morning—Only Came to City Yesterday Evening.

HE PLEADED GUILTY

Wm. McCarthy was sentenced to one year in the Central Prison by Magistrate Bumble, at the Police Court this morning. He pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to break into the store of Mr. Andrew Laidlaw, through the night. He was stopped in his efforts to burglarize the store by Night Watchman Finnie. He had removed the putty from a rear window, and was about to pry it open when the night watchman put in an appearance. McCarthy took flight but did not get far before he was caught. He was brought to the Police Station by Mr. Finnie and placed under arrest.

He stated that he came to town at half-past five yesterday, and that he came from Vancouver. He said that he belonged to Montreal. He took his sentence quite coolly and went down to his cell smiling.

McCarthy is a short, dark-complexioned fellow, and was shabbily dressed.

THE DOCTORS MUST AGREE

Supposed Leper Asks That the Physicians Come to an Unanimous Opinion on His Condition or Else That He be Allowed to Go

A VERY PATHETIC CASE.

(By Gilson Gardner)

Washington, June 2.—"When doctors disagree," says John R. Early, the Washington "leper," who is under imprisonment, "there is some hope for me."

Early has hired a lawyer and he may demand his freedom from quarantine, imposed on him by the health department of Washington.

Dr. L. D. Buckley, a New York specialist of skin diseases, declares that Early is not a leper. He examined him, when the Washington health department wasn't looking. Thereby he made the health department mad.

Early shows no signs of leprosy," says Dr. Buckley. "There was an acute inflammatory condition of the skin, which is present in some persons who have laboured in pulp mills, as Early did."

Dr. Ehlers, a Danish specialist in leprosy, looked Early over and declared that he was a leper.

Now Dr. Woodward, of the health department, says he will keep a more strict watch over Early and not permit other doctors to examine him.

"I won't be satisfied," says Early, "until I get the unanimous decision of many doctors. I know I haven't got the leprosy, and as long as one eminent physician agrees with me, it is wrong to keep me imprisoned."

Early's lawyer is considering the issuance of a habeas corpus action, in order to present to the courts a demand that medical experts get together and freely air their views in regard to Early's condition.

REV. POTTER IN BRANTFORD

Speaks in Opera House at Great Rally to Commence the Local Option Campaign—Reference to His Remarks.

WHAT "EXPOSITOR" SAYS

Rev. J. G. Potter was one of the speakers in Brantford last Sunday at a Temperance Rally in the Grand Opera House of that city. It was the opening of a campaign for local option and from the press reports was largely attended and was marked by stirring enthusiasm. The Brantford Expositor, referring to Rev. Mr. Potter's remarks, reports as follows:

"Very forceful, inspiring and encouraging were the addresses given by Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., of Peterborough, who spoke in the Congregational church in the morning, the mass meeting in the afternoon, and at Zion Presbyterian church in the evening. The campaign for local option is now on in Peterborough, and Mr. Potter gave some pointers for Brantford workers, his address creating a great deal of interest in the large congregations who listened to him. The speaker has strong convictions, and gave many stirring instances of the evils resulting from the traffic, and the power of Christ to redeem men from its bondage.

Backbone, Not Wishbone.

"What we want in our men is backbone, not wishbone," was the cry of Rev. J. G. Potter, Peterborough, in a splendid address. Many citizens, he pointed out, wish for success of the cause, but they don't go out and mark the ballot for it. The law is for the free people, and their will the government is only too willing to carry out. There are two phases to the local option movement. The money is taken by the bar-room, when it should go to the stores of our city. But of more value to a community than mere money, are the homes of the citizens for the bar is responsible for much of the misery in ruined homes. It is for Christian people to decide.

Contracts Let For Providing City's Coal And Ice For Year

The contracts for supplying coal and ice to the city were let last night at a meeting of the Property Committee. Tenders had been called for, 85 tons of coal, fifty for the city building and thirty-five for the fire hall. Six companies answered and their letters were opened at the meeting. The price offered by each was $9.00 a ton. The companies were: Scott & Hogg, Weir & O'Brien, Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company, Ontario Coal Company, R. Wolstenholm, and J. E. A. Fitzgerald. It was moved by Aldermen Duncan and McIntyre, that the purchase of the coal be left with Chairman Bradburn, to be bought from the six dealers equally.

The ice which is used in the cooling of the water at the city fountain was also arranged for. Tenders were received from The Allin Ice Company and Mr. T. Rehill. There was one dollar difference between the two contract prices, the Allin Company's being $69.00 and Mr. Rehill's $70.00. On motion of Aldermen McIntyre and Duncan, the contract was awarded to The Allin Company. The sum last year was $70.00, Mr. Rehill having the contract. The ice will be placed in the fountain boxes daily and the public will doubtless once more appreciate the cold aqua pura when in a short time the thermometer will climb to summer heat as per schedule.

Public Schools To Close For Summer Vacation On June 25th

At the Board of Education regular meeting last evening, it was decided upon motion of Messrs. Hill and Crane, to close the Public Schools of the city on Friday, June 25th, for the summer vacation. It was pointed out that the examinations would then be over and the next week could be employed by the teachers in examining papers. The entarce examinations will take place on Thursday and Friday, June 24th and 25th.

Tender Of Engine And Two Cars Ran Into Creek Near Campbellford

An accident occurred on the G.T.R. last night, near Campbellford. Two freight cars and the tender of the engine jumped the track into a creek about a mile east of the above mentioned town. Fortunately no one was injured and the wreck was all cleared up this morning. The engineer was unable to stop the train, the weeds being so thick along the track and it was thus impossible to avert the accident.

NINE MONTHS OLD BABY SWALLOWS SAFETY PIN

London Infant in a Serious Condition as Result of Trifling Affair.

London, June 2.—Emma Ball, the little nine-months' old daughter of Mr. Alfred Ball, of High street, is in a very critical condition at Victoria Hospital as a result of swallowing a large safety pin at her home this morning. The accident happened in a very simple manner.

An older sister was dressing the child, and let a safety pin fall, and did not notice it. The baby picked it up and put it in its mouth, and at once choked. Everything was done to relieve the child, but it finally swallowed the pin.

Dr. Thompson, of the Wortley road, was called and at once had the baby removed to Victoria Hospital. The X-ray machine was used, and it was found that the pin was lodged in the throat. It will be necessary to cut an opening in the throat and remove the pin that way. This will be attempted at once.

As the child has not been in good health, it is feared that the results o fthe operation may be serious.

Peterborough Man In Possession Of Dead Man's Island, Vancouver

Examiner Special.

Vancouver, June 1.—A fight is on between the city and Theodore Ludgate for the possession of Deadman's Island coal harbour. Ludgate claims a lease from the Dominion Government. The city claims the island as part of Stanley Park.

The island Dock & Warehouse lease, began cutting timber on the island. At 8 o'clock this morning Chief of Police Chamberlain, Acting Mayor Prescott, Park Commissioners Bell Irving, and sixteen policemen appeared on the island and arrested E. L. Kinman, Managing Director of the island company on a charge of feloniously destroying trees and shrubbery in a public park. This is an indictable offence. At the Police Court Kinman was allowed out on bail of $1,000.

This afternoon Kinman, accompanied by William Smart and F. L. Dartley, returned to the island. Their landing was opposed by Police Officer Kurney. Kinman assaulted the officer with a heavy club, knocking him unconscious. Officer Allen was also injured. Kinman and four men were arrested and lodged in the police station.

Insurance Agent Charged With Theft Allowed To Go

Thomas Gilhespy came up for trial this morning on a charge of stealing twelve dollars from the funds of the Union Life Insurance Company, on May the twenty-sixth. He pleaded not guilty. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution, but after hearing the evidence of several witnesses, His Worship dismissed the prisoner with a warning. Several persons insured in the company were called and testified to Gilhespy collecting from them. It was shown that twelve dollars had been collected for which no returns were made, but the prisoner being able to account satisfactorily for the money, the magistrate allowed him to go.

PURITY WARE BY-LAW.

The Purity Ware, Limited, by-law, has been submitted to the judgment of the ratepayers, and the result is an overwhelming popular approval. The number of votes cast for the by-law was 1,155, and against it there were recorded 84 votes, so that if those voting on the by-law 93.33 per cent. or 93 out of every hundred were in favour of having the Purity Ware industry established in Peterborough. The figures do not perhaps indicate the full strength of public opinion in favour of the enterprise, many who were in favour of it were automatically counted against on account of neglecting to cast their votes and many more were absent from the city. Still, technically, the by-law is not approved, the letter of the law requiring a two-third vote on "money-by-laws"—in this case two-fifths, where there is not one-fifth of the total vote recorded against it. This shows that the law recognizes the principle that favourable public sentiment should count in dealing with such by-laws. That there was cast such a strongly preponderating vote in favour of the by-law is not surprising. The great majority of the electorate qualified to vote, recognized that Peterborough's progress depends upon the acquisition of new industries; that this industry is a good one; that the city runs little, or, indeed, no risk, in coming to its assistance in the way provided by the by-law; that whatever the city may advance, will be well repaid, the security being ample and the conditions rigid; and that the adoption of the by-law would secure an important addition to the industrial forces and resources of Peterborough. In view of the strong majority of the recorded vote in favour of the by-law, it is probable that the City Council will consider itself justified in acting on precedent, and give the by-law a third reading, subject to ratification by the Ontario Legislature. This has been done before. It has been recognised that where a proposal is largely in the interest of the municipality, where the people interested are very strongly in its favour, the Legislative body, which enacted the conditions requiring a two-thirds or a three-fifths majority, has the power, if not the duty of giving, by the temporary suspension of a technicality, effect to the undoubted and strongly expressed will of the people.

TARIFF FOLLY.

The United States do well to exclude the Chinese, for the Chinese spirit of a darkened century ago was the wide-open door compared with the narrow trade exclusiveness of our neighbours. When the new tariff-bill gets through with the mutilations the Senate is inflicting upon the Congress measure of tariff "reform," unless serious changes are made by the joint committee, it will be prohibitory on most of the articles which Canada has to sell. Our neighbours profess to want reciprocity with Canada, but their actions show that they do not want to trade with us. Canada is the United States' third best customer among the nations of the world. We buy 167 million dollars worth from our neighbours, and sell them 75 million dollars worth. We are willing to do the fair thing in the way of tariff relations, but we certainly shall not submit to gross imposition. The United States has had one lesson of the futility of bulldozing Canada by the abrogation of reciprocity. Instead of injuring us that action put us upon our mettle, and we have done very well without it. We held our own against Germany's tariff hostility, and though the United States is our most convenient market, if they choose to erect prohibitory trade barriers, we are not going to humiliate ourselves and crawl through them by abjectly unmanly submission. We sell considerable pulp wood to the United States in a form which yields Canada the least measure of profit. But the United States is not the only market for pulp products. They are more anxious to get them than we are to sell them, and in making it difficult to do business with the, our neighbours, in the matter of pulp wood, will be doing us a benefit; they will prevent us from doing what we should avoid, sacrificing our forest resources, which are every year gaining in value, as the similar resources of other countries disappear. The United States is only injuring itself and not hurting Canada. The Globe points out that at no time in her history has Canada so prospered as during the currency of the Dingley tariff. If the Dingley tariff thus indirectly helped us, the new tariff, which out-Dingley's Dingley, should, since it is so much more unreasonable, have a better effect. The proverbs told us that the gods first make mad those whom they would destroy. The Republican party in the United States is riding for a fall. Tariff reform was promised; the height of tariff absurdity is the reply. The people over there are long suffering; they have patiently submitted to paying enhanced prices for the enrichment of the combines. The people are, as a whole, in favour of tariff reform, and they will not always be led by the nose by the combine-buttressed politicians. The party in power will hear from the people with more telling effect than in the last election. Meanwhile Canada will continue steadily plodding ahead, under a rational tariff, which, in the future, as in the past, will help us on to prosperity.

SPARE THE BIRDS

The London Free Press pertinently says:

> Let is be known far and wide that the boy who robs a bird's nest is a foe to his kind. About this time of year the instinct grows acute with opportunity. The birds are nesting, busy to recruit the species. They are doing a good work for humanity. Why interfere with it? The small boy's predacious habit in stealing the eggs should be made a criminal offence, as it is the utmost folly of wantonness.

The appeal of the Free Press is justified. Our bird life is more essential to our existence, a greater protection to national life and comfort and happiness, than seas full of Dreadnoughts. In fact, but for our bird life and its beneficent work in the plan of nature existence would be impossible—we should starve from lack of food. The law of nature, inexplicable as it seems, is that one part of the world lives at the expense of the other. Insect pests, which thrive on the growth of earth, upon our fruits, upon our grains, would increase to the volume of the insect plagues of Egypt were it not that they are a favourite and natural food for our birds. If the insects were allowed to increase without let, they would devour every green thing; not a grain of wheat would mature, not a vegetable ripen in our gardens, not an apple ripen upon the trees, not a berry on the bushes. But they are kept down, devoured by birds. So that the thoughtless youngsters who destroy birds eggs or kill mother birds, are in a sense taking the bread out of their own mouths and the mouths of others. Adults are not all free from fault, for we see grown men—men with beards—more beard than brains—and with guns shooting innocent insectivorous birds, birds that are not fit for food even—birds that are not game except for the small boy. Birds are useful and it is safe to say all of them, even the much abused sparrow, though they may do some damage to fruits and crops, more than pay their board by their destruction of insect life, hostile to vegetation. Besides, the aesthitic value of birds is to be considered. Their tuneful twitter and cheery warbling, their swift, easy and graceful flitting from bough to bough, from spray to spray, gives a blissful diversity to our spring and summer groves and gardens. Now are the small boys the only enemy of bird life. The predatory cat, everlastingly prowling for birds is even worse than the boys; they seem to have a greater fondness for feathers than for rats. It is heart-breaking to the kind-hearted housewife to see the fluffy, awkward, ugly ducklings, the brood of the robins she has fed from her doors, caught in the cruel claws of the cruel cat. Spare the birds by all means, they are our very good friends and protectors.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

With the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific we shall have two great arterial outlets to Canadian trade east and west.

A news paragraph in the Globe states that "hogs are scarce"; yet Toronto is always boasting that its population is increasing.

Civil servants at Ottawa got a "raise"; but their hours have been lengthened. Even Government employees are to be made to work for a living.

The rats of the United States eat 100 million dollars worth of grain yearly. The millionaire making combines and the high tariff maintained in their interests take a hundred times more than the rats from the people.

President Taft is not so flamboyant and spectacular as President Roosevelt was, but he seems to be guided by good, common sense. Taft declares that the army appropriations shall be cut down from 189 millions to 135 millions.

A tinsmith in Toronto, by the breaking of the support of a scaffold, fell three stories and was probably fatally hurt. The support upon which the safety of the scaffold depended was a slat of wood one and one-half inches wide by three three quarters of an inch thick, and it was nailed by only one two-inch wire nail. The scoundrel who constructed such a scaffold, upon which men of families were to trust their lives, should be arrested and severely punished. He is to all intents and purposes a murderer.

BYSTANDER PRAISES KING.

Mr. MacKenzie King is young as a politician, but he has shown decided capacity in dealing with the labour question, and we may look to his appointment with the hope of a carefully devised plan for closing the angry and costly breach between Capital and Labour. Sharing in profits, if it can possibly be brought about, as so good a judge as Mr. Carnegies says confidently that it can, will be the best measure of healing. The labour of the East is now beginning to be brought into competition with ours, and we shall hail anything that looks like a hopeful attempt to meet the danger. Let Mr. MacKenzie King have a fair field and do his best in it.—Bystander in Weekly Sun.

PETERBORO'S BRILLIANT PROSPECTS

There was never in the history of Peterboro a time when prospects were brighter than they are now. The city officials state that there has been double the number of building permits issued already this year more than the best previous year and that the prospects are that this percentage will go up even higher.

Think what it will mean when the new factories begin working, simply this, more families will of necessity, move to the city, employment will be given to others in the city that need it and thus create a demand for homes either to rent or purchase, in either case property is bound to advance more or less in every portion of the city. ¶ People who are contemplating purchasing a house will do well to see J. T. O'Connell's list and get terms. We have a choice selection of properties at moderate prices and easy terms. If you have not time to call during the day, come any evening and we will show you any property on our list. We're always at your service.

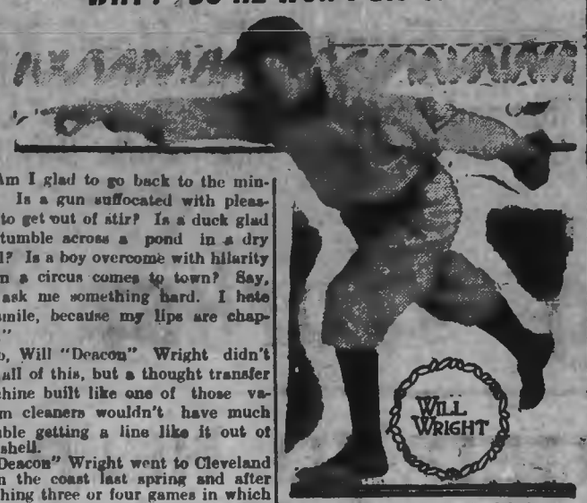
GLAD TO GO TO MINOR LEAGUE
WHY? SO HE WON'T SIT ON BENCH



"Am I glad to go back to the minors? Is a gun suffocated with pleasure to get out of stir? Is a duck glad to stumble across a pond in a dry spell? Is a boy overcome with hilarity when a circus comes to town? Say, bo, ask me something hard. I hate to smile, because my lips are chapped."

No, Will "Deacon" Wright didn't say all of this, but a thought transfer machine built like one of those vacuum cleaners wouldn't have much trouble getting a line like it out of his shell.

"Deacon" Wright went to Cleveland from the coast last spring and after pitching three or four games in which the opposition made four or five hits off of him, he was sold to Toledo, in the American Association, presumably because he was too good for fast company.

Had Wright been given any sort of support he would have won every game but one in which he started, but miserable defensive work and no hitting behind him marked his every appearance and instead of being one of the leaders of the league he was not credited with a victory.

No wonder he is glad to go to Toledo. "I know Armour is a good manager and I will get a chance to work regularly, which is all I ask. I'd rather play in a first-class minor league than decorate a bench in the majors," said Wright.

SATURDAY'S CITY LEAGUE GAMES WILL BE TWO GREAT BATTLES

All Four Teams are Scouring the City for Material and Have Rounded Up All the Players in Sight---Some Gossip of the Clubs.

Don't think for a moment that there won't be some tall doings around Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon, when the new Senior City Baseball League will be in full swing. All the good local ball players will be in action and it looks at this distance like a big afternoon's sport. Each one of the four managers is confident of a victory and all four teams are working out each evening and spending their spare moments in looking up players. Only two of the four teams can win on Saturday, but it is safe to say that the victorious pair will know that they have been in a game.

Arrangements are being made to have the League opened with proper ceremonies. Mayor Rush and other dignities will be invited to perform the opening demonstration, and it is likely that His Worship will pitch the first ball over the plate, or at least as near to the counting station as he can hurl the sphere.

Saturday's double-header will open at 2 o'clock sharp, with the T.A.S. stacking up against the newly formed Park St. Athletic Club, who have rounded together a most formidable aggregation of ball players. The second contest which will follow immediately will bring together the West Ends and the Strathconas, who should have a battle royal, as they are old rivals. Both games will be crammed full of excitement and there is every reason to expect a big crowd of fans and fancies.

By the way, every Saturday will be "skirt" day with the Senior League. Recognizing the desirability of having the ladies at the games, there will be no admission charge for the fair sex who are invited to be present at any and all games of the League. The charge for gentlemen for the double-header will be fifteen cents, while the "kid" will find a five-cent piece an open sesame to all the doings.

The only baseball for Peterborough this season will be found in the City League, so that it looks like a big season for the organization.

The French runner, who won the $10,000 Marathon at Brighton Beach on Monday.

City League Notes

Among the men whom the Park St. team have in their string are Jack, Jimmie and Teddy Pilling, W. Wareham, Jack Mulhall, Steve Davidson, Joe Guerin and George McDonald, all of whom have seen service on many occasions in the Midland League company. In fact, as far as experienced material goes, the south end club seems to have it on the others.

The Strathconas will have the same infield as last year: Heaslip at first, Weatherstone at second, Kendry short stop, and Craig third base.

With Quinlan, Calaghan, Cahill available for pitchers, the twirling staff of the T.A.S. will not need to back up from any of the other League teams.

The Park St. team are ordering new uniforms, but they will not likely be available for Saturday's game.

The City League games will start promptly on time. There is a rule in the constitution that calls for a $5 fine for causing delay.

Riverside Park is rounding into splendid shape and the diamond will be fast for Saturday's games. The grandstand has been painted and everything is in readiness for the opening.

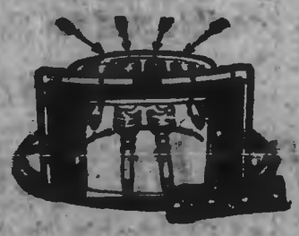
The "Hecla" Furnace



These Grate Bars Mean a Clean Fire and no Coal Wasted.

There are four grate bars in the "Hecla." Each can be shaken separately. When the center of the fire is bright, and the outside dead, simply shake the outside bars. If any part of the fire needs cleaning, that one part may be cleaned without disturbing the live coals or unburnt fuel in any other part of the fire-pot.

"Hecla" Grate Bars are easy to shake, clean the fire without a poker, save coal and make sifting ashes unnecessary.

The "Hecla" also has the famous Fused Joints—that make this furnace absolutely and permanently gas, smoke and dust proof.

WITH THE RUNNERS.

The Durham journal, the Latest, says more regarding Walker, the South African crack's, performances at the Durban A. C. sports on April 24, when he had a try a tthe 180 and 150 yards records:

The 180 yards run was a record attempt, pure and simple. Walker set W. G. Dixon up 12 yards, and beat him anyhow, finishing with great dash in 17 4-5 seconds.

In the 150 yards, Walker won his heat in 14 3-5 seconds from E. C. Sulin, 7 yards, A. F. Logan, 14, won a heat in the same time. The final at 120 yards, looked good for Logan, but, finishing at a tremendous rate, the Olympic crack caught the leaders seven yards from home, and won looking round in 14⅕ seconds.

Finally, in the 220 yards, Walker agai nran in remarkable form, and although shut in at the bend, and considerably hampered, he managed to get on the outside in the straight, and just got up on the post to beat J. P. Davidson, 8 yards, by inches, with W. G. Dixon, 10, third. Time 23⅕ seconds, South African's record.

The world's amateur record for 150 yards is 14 3-5 seconds, by B. J. Wefers in 1897, and for 180 yards, 18 seconds, by Wendell Baker, in 1886, both U. S. A. performances. The world's professional 150 yards time is 14⅕ seconds, by H. Hutchens, Walker's performance tieing this, while ther is no authenticated 180 yards time.

JIM HARRISON HAS STATEMENT

Denies Some Reports That He Says Have Been Circulated in the City Against Him.

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,— Allow me space on your page to refute a few statements that are being made about me just now in connection with last week's walking match. It has been reported around the city that I was paid $25 by Hoagland for taking part in the walk, which I emphatically deny, as I received nothing for the walk. Mr. Hoagland had advanced me twenty-two dollars to pay my way back from Milwaukee, and my hotel bill there. When it came to settling up on Saturday night I was told that my share just equalled the advanced money, and there was nothing coming to me. It has also been stated that I attempted to hold up the walkers, who are putting on the Benefit to-night for one-third of the receipts, which I wish to deny. I am to get nothing out of to-night's benefit at all.

Yours, etc.,

JAMES HARRISON.

SIX EXTRA GIRLS WANTED TO HELP TO SELL

Large Number Of Cheese Boarded At To-day's Meeting

Price Dropped a Half Cent During Past Two Weeks—More Factories Represented and Output Has Greatly Increased.

FEATURES OF THE BIDDING

The following figures are given for the benefit of those interested in the cheese trade. Reference is made only to the second meeting in each year.

June 3rd, 1908—2,643 boxes; highest price 10 15-16 cents.

The regular meeting of the Cheese Board was held this morning with a good attendance of buyers and sellers. The price was one-half cent less than two weeks ago, owing to the slight falling off in the market. The number of cheese boarded was high but had only a slight increase over the number boarded at the corresponding meeting last year. Among the buyers was Mr. W. S. Cook, of Belleville, father of Mr. J. Cook, who has been expelled for three months. It is a number of years Mr. Cook has attended the meetings of the Peterborough Board. He celebrated his return by offering the highest price of the morning.

The president, Mr. J. Coughlin, of Hastings, read a notification to the fact that Mr. J. F. Tilley had been appointed official referee at Montreal, and will settle all disputes regarding the quality of butter and cheese that has been sold.

Keene	120
Warminster	100

The Bidding

Mr. Watkin opened the bidding at 11¾c; Mr. Fitzgerald made it 11⅞, and Mr. Gillespie called 11 7-16; Mr. Cook increased the figure to 11½ cents, and had the choice of the board. The following factories accepted his price: Norwood, Killarney, Maple Leaf, Lang, Shamrock, King Edward and Crown. He also called Westwood, Villiers, Keene and other factories, but they refused.

Mr. Gillespie bid 11 7-16 and called Keene, Central Smith, Westwood, Villiers and Shearer.

Mr. Fitzgerald at 11 7-16 had the next choice taking Warminster, Warsaw, Selwyn, Lakefield, Trewern, and East Emily.

Mr. Gillespie came back with an offer of 11 7-16c, taking Ormonde, Pine Grove, Young's Point, Myrtle, Bensfort, Frazerville and Cavanville.

Cedardale went to Mr. Gillespie at 11 7-16c.

Mr. Cook called Indian River at 11¾c, and Oak Dale at 11 7-16. Mr. Cook after the meeting offered Oak Dale 11¾c. Fleetwood went to Mr. Fitzgerald at 11⅞. The remaining factories, Oak Leaf, North Dummer and Dairy D. were not sold and will be allowed to sell off the Board.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ROBT. FAIR, Chairman.

The report was adopted.

Supervision Committee.

Chairman and members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen—Your Supervision Committee beg to report that at the recent institute of the city teachers a resolution was passed requesting this Board before adopting the Penny Bank system, to permit a committee of teachers to meet a representative of the Board to learn from him the full details of the scheme.

Your committee recognise that to ensure perfect success, it is necessary to have the heartiest co-operation on the part of the teaching staff, and your committee feel that the time of the teacher is fully taken up by the present curriculum, and consider that they should be fully informed of just what work the Board will impose. Your committee would therefore recommend that arrangements be made to secure a visit of one of the bank's officers to give teachers full information and that the matter be dealt with at a future meeting.

Your committee begs leave to report that tenders have been received and opened for the school supplies. As sufficient time has not yet elapsed to permit of checking them over, your committee would ask the Board for authority to award the contract to the lowest tenderer, same to be confirmed at next meeting.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN CRANE, Chairman.

Upon motion of Messrs. Crane and Hill the report was adopted.

Other Business.

An appropriation of ten dollars was voted Mr. D. W. Dumble to be used in fixing up flower beds, around the Collegiate Institute.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR MAY EXCEED FIGURE FOR SAME MONTH LAST YEAR

Peterborough's showing in the matter of building permits still shows an increase over corresponding months last year. The comparison of the two Aprils was very much in favour of the 1909 month, and the months of May likewise show an encouraging surplus. The building permits for May, 1908 amounted to $27,240, and for last month $42,155. This is an increase of about close on to 50 per cent., and compares favourably with the figures that have been compiled this year.

Public Library Likely To Be In Course Of Erection By July 1st

A meeting of the Property Committee was held last night with Alderman Bradburn, chairman, and Aldermen Duncan and McIntyre present. The plans of the new public library were gone over by the committee with the architects, Messrs. Belcher and Blackwell. There were some changes suggested, including a vault which will be built in the basement. Alderman Bradburn stated that the committee was anxious to proceed with the work of erecting the library and asked when the plans and specifications would be complete. The architects promised to have them ready in two weeks in order that tenders be called for, the contract let and the actual work commenced by the first week in July.

The committee considered the plans thoroughly and with the improvements suggested they feel that the city will be provided with a splendid library.

The question of fencing portions of the city's property in the East Ward was introduced by the chairman. There are two lots referred to. On motion of Aldermen Duncan and McIntyre it was decided to have the city engineer estimate the cost of the fencing required and to report back to the committee. The tenders for coal and ice were let and are mentioned in another column.

The Pupils Need Not Worry About The "U" In Exam Papers

Toronto, June 1.—Dr. John Seath's recent edict, as Superintendent of Education in Ontario, calling upon all who use the King's English to put the letter "u" in such words as "favor" and "valor" and "honor," is causing some concern to parents of pupils who are to write examinations.

If the pupil refuses or neglects to use the letter "u" where Dr. Seath thinks it should go, will such omission be counted a nerror, and the paper marked accordingly?

If so, it would mean a mightly low percentage for many pupils who otherwise would stand well.

"If the Department of Education is consistent it must call such ommission an error, and cut down the marks in proportion," sai da leading educationalist to-day.

Dr. Colquhoun, Deputy Minister of Education, aws asked by The Star this morning for a ruling on the point.

"Those parents need not worry. Let them wait for an official announcement on the matter. The ommission of the "u" may be counted against them in the next world, but I don't think it will this."

"If I were an examiner I wouldn't call it an error," he said.

It was stated on good authority that the examiners would not insist on the use of the "u" and, in fact, some of them disagree strongly with Dr. Seath in regard to its value.

KNIFE LIKELY TO KILL SWORD SWALLOWER

Pierce Is About to Undergo His Thirty-first Operation With Perilous Prospects.

New York, June 1.—"Yellow, the Cowboy Wonder, King of Sword Swallowers and Emperor of Glass and Hardware Eaters," has eaten his last keg of nails. He ahs devoured so much window glass that, with apologies to Joe Miller, the reason for the pane in his internal ergoins is transparent.

For the thirty-first time in his career of twenty-eight years as a human ostrich Yellow, who in private life is Albert J. Pierece, faces an operation to remove several pounds of metal junk, ranging from pins to half dollars. This time, unfortunately, surgeons say that he has but one chance in a thousand to surivive.

"I guess it's got me this time," he said. "And I don't want to have the operation. Still, I can't last much longer with this bunch of junk jingling arund in me. It's an even choice, so I guess I'll flip a coin for it and take my chance."

Pierce said that hi stalent for sword swallowing and kindred digestive acrobatics was discovered at the early age of five, when he was found by his cowboy father in their home at Pine Ridge, S. Dak., with half of an old army bayonet down his yound and tender thorax. From that time on Albert's parents kept a close watch on him, but whenever their backs were turned he was sure to seize the opportunity to lunch on somehting unusual, from a button to a chair castor.

When he was ten years old he had practiced so assiduously in private that he got an engagement with the Buffalo Bill show as the youngest sword swallower in the profession. At fifteen he branched out into the still more difficult art of glass eating, with side dishes of tacks, needles, pins, iron washers, coins, nails and knife blades. From that time on began his periodical visits, sometimes only a few months apart, to various hospitals, to have incisions made and the causes of his gastric distuqrbance removed.

Pierce underwent his last operation last August in Montreal. Among the miscellany garnered by the surgeons on that occasion were 200 wire nails. The year before he was operated on in St. Francgis' Hospital, New York, where the collection, including 105 tacks, six opten safety pins, 310 needels, a gandful of glass, and a number of washers and coins, taken on that occasion is still on exhibition.

If Pierce survives the operation he will abandon his trade. He has made an arrangement, he says, with Johns Hospital, whereby he will receive a pension, his body to be turned over to that institution at his death.

WEDDING BELLS

BUTCHER—BAXTER

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Luke's Church this afternoon at a quarter past three, when Miss Libbie Baxter, eldest daughter of Mrs. David Baxter, 536 Stewart street, was united in marriage to Mr. Charles T. Butcher, of this city. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Butcher left on the 4:38 train for Galt, and on their return to Peterborough will reside at 261 McDonnel street.

The marriage of Miss Evangeline Bertha (Eva) Cochrane, youngest daughter of the late Wm. Cochrane, of Port Hope, to Mr. E. W. Howard Bennett, C. P. R. agent at Three Valleys, B. C., and youngest son of the late Henry Bennett, Ashburnham, was quietly solemnized at St. Luke's church this morning, at half past ten, by the rector, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M. A., D. D. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her cousin, Mr. T. B. Maniece, who gave her away, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by the organist, Mr. M. Kilpack. The bride looked very pretty in a travelling suit of taupe with hat to match. She carried white roses. The bride and groom were unattended.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bennett left on the 11.26 C. P. R. train for Ottawa. They will visit in Ottawa, Winnipeg, and Banff before returning to Three Valleys, B. C., where they will in future reside. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett are followed by the best wishes of a host of friends in Peterborough. FATHER RISKED ALL ON BOY'S SUCCESS

Real Hero of Wright Family Triumphs is the Aged Father.

Dayton, Ohio, June 1.—It has become known here for the first time that Bishop Wright, father of the no wfamous Wright brothers, sold land owned by himself in Iowa, in order to raise the money to permit his two sons to make the aroplane experiments that have now attracted the attention of the entire world.

While other people in Dayton were smiling quietly at what appeared the visionary experiments of the two inventors, the father, with his faith in them unshaken, practically staked his all in their behalf.

ARTESIAN WELLS

"Pure Water" Would Like to See Several Sunk in Peterborough.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—In view of the many cases of contagious and infectious diseases, to which the human family is subject would it not be wise on our part to look around for the cause and apply the remedy. It is the opinion of medical men, and conceded by all, that these diseases come from drinking impure water. I have advocated for years the sinking of artesian wells, which have already been tried with the most satisfactory results. The Calcutt Brewing Company have one, and upon submitting the water to analysis, it has been found to be absolutely pure. Once you get below the hard-pan, which is impervious to the surface water, there cannot be any deleterious matter. Other cities have adopted and are adopting this means of procuring pure water for drinking purposes with the most beneficial results. It is inexpensive and can easily be done. Let us turn aside for a while from grafting and bonusing, and see what can be done to promote the health of the city.

Y ours truly,

PURE WATER.

THE "LIGHT" CHARGES

Ex-Mayor Wm. Yelland Complains That Time Rates Are Much Too High.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like to call attention to the manner in which the price for light in this city has been raised during the past few years. I had a contract with the Peterborough Light and Power Company to supply light for my house at $9.00 per year. The Company notified me when my contract was up that the price thereafter for a flat rate per year would be eighteen dollars, just double what I had been paying. I offered them fifteen dollars a year, but they refused to accept. Since then I have had a meter installed, and the light is costing me too much now. Surely something could be done to better regulate the charge for light in this city. We are paying too much for the privilege.

WM. YELLAND.

THEY CAN'T BE HELD DOWN.

During the past two years a great many Peterborough citizens have added to their warmth and comfort by burning Delaware and Hudson Coal, for which the Ontario Coal Company were the local agent.

This company with their usual push, enterprise, and keen appreciation of their many customers' comfort and welfare, have taken another step forward, having secured the local agency for the famous Reading Coal, which is mined by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company. This company, it is claimed does the largest business of mining and shipping of anthracite coal in the United States.

Reading Coal is free from dust, and slate and makes a bright, hot, clear fire. The Ontario Coal Company, Limited, are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in securing such an important agency.

RECITAL WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Pupils of Miss Chiles, in Havelock, Gave a Creditable Performance.

Havelock, June 2.—The piano recital given by the pupils of Miss Charlotte Chiles, in the spacious new parlours of Mrs. J. V. A. Coon on Friday evening last, was one of the most successful of the season and gace ample evidence of the excellent work which is being done by Miss Chiles as a teacher of pianoforte. The programme which was made up of compositions from classical and modern writers was well contrasted and the pupils showed their appreciation of the music in their excellent phrasing tonecolour and musicianly interpretation. Those taking part were Misses G. Brewsted, G. Garratt, E. Hogg, E. McConnell, N. Beatty, M. Coon, B. Lewis, D. Morrison, M. Barrie, V. Black, M. Frost and C. Pollock. Also Messrs. A. Mathison, G. Black, C. Taylor, N. Campbell and B. Phillips.

Miss Chiles was wearing cream silk eoileinne over silk with directoire sash of Duchess satin, and was ably assisted by Mrs. M. H. Swain, who contributed two vocal selections at the conclusion, of which she was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses by Little Miss Ruth Coon.

The delightful programme was very much enjoyed by the eighty parents and friends of the pupils, who were present and was brought to a close by singing "God Save the King."

THE SPRINGVILLE FOOTBALL CLUB

Member Who Was Injured Last Season Was Remembered by His Friends.

Springville, June 1.—The boys have taken to football again, and a large number were out for practice on Saturday evening. Bewdley has sent in a challenge for June 11th, and the boys are going to accept it. They are practising on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings.

All will remember the accident to Bobbe Lockie last year, when he had his leg broken. The boys thought it their duty to show their sympathy by taking up a subscription to help cover the expenses, and presented it to him on Saturday night last. It was appreciated very much. The money was presented by G. Reynolds, Captain of the football team, and the address of the football team, and the address was read by Levern Trew, Secretary, and reads as follows:

Springville, Ont., May 29.

To Comrade Robert Lockie.

Dear Robert,—We have had sympathy with you in your wish to express that sympathy in a tangible way, hence we ask you to accept from us this sum of money, amounting to $18.75, which we hope will be helpful in defraying to some extent the expense in connection therewith.

Signed on behalf of the football team—G. Reynold, Captain; L. Trew, secretary.

Messrs. Smith and Trew, employees on the C. P. R. had a head-on collision Friday morning with their bicycles on a curve west of Cavanville, before either could apply the emergency brake and crashed into each other. Mr. Smith was thrown from the track into the ditch and had his back and leg severely hurt.

BASS FISHING IN STURGEON LAKE

(By W. Hickson in Rod and Gun in Canada.)

Since our trout fishing last season, Bruce has had many glorious visions of the joys in handling the rod and line, while playing the gamey dwellers of our crystal lakes, and he yearned for a few more hours' angling. Hence on June 20th I received the following note from Toronto: "Perhaps I may take the morning train on June 27th for an afternoon's bass fishing at Bobcaygeon. Have a good supply of those big juicy worms ready." The foregoing was the leading though and mandate of Bruce's welcome missive.

Precisely at 11.12 a.m. the train steamed into Bobcaygeon, and Bruce soon appeared on the platform. We echanged the usual salutations, and then came his first question: "Any good fishing?" "Good," was the reply. "Catch any bass yet?" was his next. "Some, on the morning of the 16th," I responded. "What about the 'lunge fishing?" he continued. "Excellent," was my answer. "Let us get off up the lake," was his final decision. I reminded him at once that we had better get on the "outside" of a substantial dinner, as the lake was a hungry place. To this suggestion Bruce readily assented. I may just say that Bruce is a sportsman of good, sound, deliberate judgment.

He is not a particle like another sportsman (or so-called sportsman) whom I once saw. This fellow had procured a guide to row himself, his son of about fourteen, and his daughter of twelve.. Then he walked out of the hotel, with his coat on his arm, to his boat, flung it down on the seat and sat down upon it, and began about as follows: "Say, guide, have you the hale in?" "Is there any lice in that box?" "Where's my trollingy line?" "Here is is," came the reply from his son Jimmy. "Oh, but say! Where is my rod and line?" "This is it, pa," came the gentle answer from his little daughter. "Look-a-here! Where is that landing net of mine?" "Jimmy, you run up to my room for it!" Jimmy is off, and he now starts his daughter, Lena, after Jimmy, to tell him it is not in the room, but in the hall. At this juncture his wife comes to see if they were getting off all right, and he started her to tell Lena it was in the office, and when all three were tired searching for it, some one found it on the verandah, and then he wondered how in the world it ever got there: but nobody could make him wise on that point.

Then he began again: "Say, guide, are those hoars all right?" Do they ever squeak?" But the guide was sitting quietly on his cushioned seat, looking out from under his slouch hat with his dreamy eyes, straight at his interrogator, preserving all the while a golden silence. The only motion he made was to rub the back of his left hand with his right hand, or, so he said: "Well, guide, since it be that you have nothing to say, we'll go." As they were just nicely under way he called out: "Say, where is that coat of mine?" "Jimmy, did you see my coat?" "Lena, did you not see your pa's coat?" "No," came the reply from both. "Hello! Say, guide, stop that boat! I must have my coat!" "Guide, didn't you see my coat?" "Yer sitten on yer coat," came the laconic response from the guide. Then he awnted to know "where were all their eyes" that they had not seen his coat before that. Of course, he never considered but that his body was transparent, and they had a perfect right t osee it at once.

Then when he did get to the "beds" and hooked a beauty, and Jimmy said to him, "Pa, let me help you get that big fellow," he muttered, "Don't you worry! None of you need worry; I'll get him just now!" Then he jumped up in the boat for the first time since he entered it, and nearly tumbled out on his head ,and let the fish run under the boat. Then he called out, "Jimmy, give me that gaff!" "Not the gaff—the landing net!" Then he made a dive with the net into the awter, making about as much noise as a hippopotamus, and just grazed the back of his prine, which darted under the boat, with a slack line, gave a turn or two and was over the side of the boat, and muttered something ti himself which was just as well that nobody should hear, and then broke out, "What on earth were yon doing?" The guide amiled a smile serene all the while. To return to my story.

At 1.30 p.m. Bruce and I arrived at the boathouse, with our two rods, three trolling lines, lunch basket, and a can of "juicy worms." The sun burned a golden yellow high in the heavens; a gentle southwest wind was blowing, which crisped the limpid awters; the air was clear and dry; the day was an ideal one for angling; we shored out outr boat, took our seats and propelled it towards the west for a mile, to an old peir. Here we made a few casts and I landed a four-pound bass and Bruce landed one that we considered diminutive, and so we returned him to his native element.

We moved still farther towards the west to a favorite spot where Bruce and I had angled with great success some ten years ago. As I was steering our craft, I took my bearings, and when we were just as I thought, on the same "old spot," I called to Bruce to drop the anchor quickly.

This he did and my line was out before he could turn to seize his light split bamboo to make a cast. My line did not descend half-way before it was seised and carried away below the clear water: this was the signal that a struggle was on, and a struggle it was, for I had hooked a four-pound bass. After the usual playing I landed my prise, and made five casts in as quick succession as possible and landed five of these gamey fellows, all of about the same size, before Bruce had ha dthe pleasure of playing one on his light rod and reel. It now occurred to Bruce that he was the "headoo," but the "spell" soon broke ,and his line was singing through the awter, his reel screeching, his light rod making semi-circles, first this way, then that way, till his fish rose and he landed him.

We followed the same course for an hou rand a half, baiting, hooking and playing these beauties, till we had landed twenty-two from this one spot. We returned eight of these into the water, where they must play and gamble among their fellows for a few years more, till they die of old age or are taken by some other follower of Izaak Walton. We had fourteen, all about the same size, and would average three pounds each.

Afs our "juicy worms" were exhausted, we weighed anchor and started for Bobcaygeon, where we landed in forty-five minutes. After our arrival we were surrounded by a gang of boys, whose numbers were soon augmented by men, some of whom wished to see if we had not taken more than our legal nuftber. We informed them, however, that we never did that sort of thing, and that we would inform on any one whom we saw taking more than their "count," as we had no respect for the "game hog."

This excellent sport, which would satisfy the most enthusiastic follower of Izaak Walton, was obtained three miles from Bobcaygeon, on Sturgeon Lake, and from the appearance of the millions of fry of bass and maskinonge, there will be unequalled angling in these waters for the next two or three years. The water has been kept to the same level since early spring till the present, in these lakes, and this is one of the great means of preserving our fish. Perhaps there is more destruction to our maskinonge by a drop of a foot or eighteen inches in the awter in May than from all other causes of destruction combined.

May thes gamey fish long continue in goodly numbers, so that when Bruce and like anglers come with their cans of "juicy worms" they may enjoy the sport of kings!

The world this day goes contrary way,
And nothing is odne as it ought;
The bride, they say, is given oway,
The groom is dearly bought.

TO DRIVE OUT ALL THE JAPANESE

Seattle, June 1.—White farmers at the public market have subscribed more than $1,500 to a fund to be used in an attempt to drive all Japanese from the Pike place institution. They have employed lawyers and expect to have their plan of procedure outlined very soon.

"Under the alien law we believe we can keep all aliens from enjoying the privileges of the public market," said Henry Speiker, one of the organizers of the movement. "An alien cannot hold real property in this State, and does not pay either poll or real property tax. This market was built by the money of the taxpayers of Seattle for the benefit of the people. Aliens, who in no way contributed to this market, certainly should not have the right to sell their produce on it in competition with white farmers who are American citizens and are paying taxes to support such institutions.

"This movement has been brewing for more than a year. The farmers have protested, but until recently no plan was broached for an organized fight. Every white farmer on the market has agreed to subscribe $25 or more. Two associations have agreed to spend $500 each in the cause. If we need it, we can raise many times the $1,500 already pledged. The fight will be to a finish once it is formally launched.

"We cannot compete with the Japanese gardeners and make any money. They pay thei rhelp $15 to $17 per month and board. The Japanese help lives on rice and other cheap food. We cannot get men for less than $45 per month, and have to board our men besides. The board of a white laborer costs many times that of a Japanese.

"Our plans are not fully matured. The action of President Roosevelt in the California school trouble last winter shows that any court action will have to be handled carefully. The complaint will be against all aliens, and will not in any way specify the Japanese."

There has been bitter feeling between the white farmers and the Japanese at the market for many months. Stands are awarded each morning, and Japanese and white gardeners have to stand next to each other. The Japanese almost always outnumber the white farmers, and frequently get the choice positions.

Although by this arrangement Japanese gardeners may be on both sides of a white gardener, the latter will not allow the Japanese to cross between his wagon and his sales bench on the sidewalk.

Several big truck associations are back of the movement. The Market Gardeners' Association and the Italian Gardeners' Association have both come out openly for the movement.

" Lever Brothers, Toronto, will send you free a cake of their famous Pinatol toilet soap, if you mention this paper.

WAS HURT IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Horse Returning From Hiawatha Made Trouble a Short Way Out.

Hiawatha, June 3.—A runaway occurred here yesterday in which Mr. John Burns, a Peterborough young man, received a nasty cut over the left eye. He had driven a traveller to the village and was on his way back when the horse became frightened and either from a kick or in some manner the young man received a bad cut, which swelled and needed a doctor's attention.

It is sufficient for some people that they drink anything called tea. Others prefer a standard brand like "Salada," which has a reputation for being good. The latter get more enjoyment out of life. In buying tea for the satisfaction you expect to get from its use, it will pay to purchase "Salada." Avoid anything "just as good." Imitations are invariably of poor quality. 67

RYAN WAS HANGED THIS MORNING AT NORTH BAY

Man Convicted of the Murder of His Brother Sobbed: "I Am Innocent!" As the Black Cap Was Fitted Over His Head---Was Weeping as He Walked to the Scaffold.

Examiner Special (2:45 p.m.)

North Bay, June 3.—Maurice Ryan, found guilty of the murder of his brother, Joseph Frances Ryan, in November, 1907, was hanged this morning in the jail yard here, the drop taking place at 8:50 o'clock. Ryan slept well all night, and Bishop Scollard, who had attended him throughout his imprisonment, had to awaken him when he arrived at the jail at 5:20. Sheriff Varin led the procession to the scaffold, Ryan walking between hangman Radcliffe and the jailer. Ryan was crying as he walked. Bishop Scollard walked a few feet behind, repeating a prayer. As Ryan was placed on the trap and the black cap was about to be put over his head he sobbed and cried bitterly protesting, "I am innocent."

WILD RIOTS ATTEND A STREET CAR STRIKE

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Philadelphia, Pa., June 3.—Wild riots between the police and mobs of sympathizers of the striking trolley men occurred early to-day. At least 200 persons wer injured, fifty so badly that they had to be taken to hospitals. Three policemen and a woman are dying. One of the policemen was shot through the head by a strike sympathizer. Twelve trolley cars were burned in the riots. The large new trolley barn at Kensington and Allegheny avenue was set on fire. Several attempts were made to lynch strike breakers and the police were powerless to cope with the situation.

DELIBERATE ATTEMPT TO WRECK BELLEVILLE TRAIN

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Belleville, Ont., June 3.—A deliberate attempt to wreck the Grand Junction passanger train, which leaves this city every morning for the north is reported. This morning about six o'clock two parties driving past saw an obstruction an the track which certainly would have ditched the train. It was a long piece of iron, fastened down. The men removed the bar and turned it over to the authorities. An investigation is being made.

Success Of Local Young Lady At The University Of Nebraska

The many friends of Miss Alice Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scott, McDonnel street, will be pleased to learn that she has recently been appointed to the position of Assistant Physical Directress in the University of Nebraska, at Lincoln, Neb. Miss Scott finished her course at the University a short while ago, graduating with the highest number of marks in a class of sixty.

As an appreciation of the good work she has done in the Young Women's Christian Association at Lincoln, her classes, at the closing exercises, presented her a beautiful gold crest of the University.

Young Lady Meeting With Great Success On The Stage Visiting Here

Miss Josephine Sproule, a former Peterborough young lady, who is meeting with great success on the stage, is on a visit to the city. She is accompanied by her mother. During their stay here, they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Hagarty, Stock street.

An Examiner reporter interviewed Miss Sproule, who talked most interestingly of her past theatrical season this afternoon. It has been the most successful since her debut. For the past four weeks she has been playing with a Stock Company at Bennett's theatre, Montreal, and came from that city to Peterborough on Tuesday evening. Miss Sproule commenced in August last with Andrew Mack in "Arta Na Pogue," but Mr. Mack's play had been produced for so many years that it was not a favourite with the public and after a short period, he dropped it, taking up a new play.

In November last Miss Sproule entered vaudeville, and until a month ago had a character part in John Harmer's act, "The Devil and Tom Walker." It was a satire on "the Devil," and was produced with great success as a head liner in Hammerstein's theatre, New York. It was presented in all the vaudeville houses controlled by the United Booking Office of New York.

VOTED DOWN PROPOSAL

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

London, June 3.—The Methodist conference to-day voted down the proposal of Rev. Jos. Cooke, supported by Mr. Dr. Gundy, that a commission be appointed to examine candidates for ministry. Led by Rev. G. F. Salton, Rev. Jaspar Wilson and others, the ministers held it would be unfair to put candidates in "sweatbox" for a re-election on Victoria College. The proposal to censor press reports was also defeated.

On Tuesday evening, June 22nd the young Ladies' Mission Circle of the Murray St. Baptist Church will hold a social on their church lawn. Admission 10c. A good time is expected. Come and bring your friends.

MR. PUGSLEY'S COURAGE.

The Conservative journals of the baser sort are still pursuing Hon. Mr. Pugsley with slanderous insinuations, on the head of the insinuations of misconduct contained in the partisan report of the Landry Commission of New Brunswick. The Conservative Opposition neglected the opportunity presented of proving the charges against Mr. Pugsley, if they were capable of proof, which Mr. Pugsley says they were not. The journals show cowardice in repeating charges which their party dare not bring to the proof. They also commit contempt of court in commenting on lis pendens. Mr. Pugsley has shown more courage than his detractors. He has instituted in the New Brunswick Court of Equity an action arising out of the Landry Royal Commission. It will involve a review of the whole case and the production of all accounts in connection with the transaction that was made the basis of slanderous attacks upon a Minister of the Crown. The truth will be elicited under an impartial judicial investigation. And decency would suggest that slanderous comment should be withheld.

HOME LOYALTY

The Welland Telegraph sounds a note with the true ring when it uses the "Canada first" cry and loyalty to Canadian development which ended the exodus Canadians to the United States to point the value of local loyalty in building up a town or city. It applies its argument thus:

> And now we want to ask the residents of Welland if patriotism cannot be taken one step farther? Is not loyalty to Canada only a stepping-stone to loyalty to Welland? Why should be educate our children to make good citizens of Toronto or Montreal? Can we do anything to keep them at home? And the answer is the same—be loyal to your town. Do everything possible to advance the interests of Welland. Do not send your money to build up huge corporations in Toronto or Montreal. Spend every cent you have to spend right at home. Cut our mail order buying. Be true to your neighbours.
>
> If we all did this, do you not think it would have as good an effect on Welland as the "Canada First" cry did on the country in general? Would we not be able to attract new capital and new industries and find employment for our sons and daughters at home?
> "Is it not worth while a trial?"

With the names changed the above appeal would very well apply to Peterborough. It is an appeal to local loyalty which if it had been made and heeded Tuesday, would have led to the technical as well as virtual endorsation of Purity Ware By-law, and have saved the expense of special legislation and the possibility of delay. A trifle more public spirit and we should have had 1,500 instead of 1,155 votes in favour of the by-law. We must make the city attractive by making it a good place for our children to earn a livlihood and at the same time make it a pleasant and attractive home. If farmers would make farming life more attractive, if they would encourage innocent pleasures and innocent recreation—if they introduced a trifle more of the butterfly aspect of life and a little less of the grub life on the farm, sons and daughters would be more reconciled to their lots. We must make Peterborough as live a city in an industrial sense as it is in a commercial sense; we must make the city beautiful, tidy, clean, neat and attractive, so that our children will grow up speaking of it with pride, thinking of it with pride, and so the stage of loving it for itself, of being loyal to it, in every way, will not be far off.

PLAYGROUNDS

"It is safe to predict that in the next few years thousands of acres of valuable city land will be returned to the children for health and recreation," writes J. J. Kelso, of Toronto. "In the rapid development of cities and eagerness for wealth and commercial success, no thought was given to the city beautiful, nor did any one realize that the vacant lots on which their boyish pastimes were held would disappear so rapidly. Now thoughtful men see the mistake that has been made and are earnestly striving to restore the children's heritage. Much remains to be done, but public sentiment is sound on this question and will endorse the necessary expenditure.

"Four or five district playgrounds will not by any means meet the need. Better three small playgrounds than one large one. The tendency is to establish playgrounds in the suburbs where land is cheap, but they should be just as numerous in the heart of the city where congestion of population breeds moral and physical degeneracy. A playground should be within five minutes' walk of every child, and if we allow a playground for every twenty thousand of a city's population we can see how far behind this standard most of our cities are at the present time.

"Equipment is essential, but far more important even than that is the supervision given to the children in their play. If enthusiastic directors with the proper moral viewpoint are given charge of these playgrounds they can do a truly national work in the development of a sound physique and high character. As much if not more can be learned from play than from books, though there need be no rivalry, and it undoubtedly true that play diverts from crime and low pursuits; creating contentment and cheerfulness and inspiring youth with noble ideals.

"If here and there a few old rookeries were torn down and the land devoted to play space more than one useful purpose would be served. Two hundred feet frontage with the ordinary depth of one hundred and fifty feet would make a good neighbourhood playground. Too many children gathered in one place is not desirable.

"Children need outdoor amusements in winter as well as in summer, and if there is the willingness to provide for their needs it can be done without great expense. Free skating rinks should be numerous. Thousands of children have been denied the pleasure and benefit of skating because they could not pay for admission to rinks. The civic government as the guardian of children should be interested in the welfare and happiness of future citizens, and should make recreation and simple sport as free as the air. Healthy enjoyment should never depend on the possession of wealth. The fact of being a child is the all-sufficient reason why play should be encouraged, and every facility provided.

"To secure the proper number of playgrounds, rinks, toboggan slides, gymnasiums, bath houses, etc., will require constant agitation for years to come. If the enthusiasm lags they will not be provided, for large expenditure will be necessary. Therefore, may we not appeal confidently on behalf of the children to men in authority, aldermen, school trustees, editors, business men, educators—to keep the playground movement constantly in view, giving it their endorsement and advocacy whenever possible, remembering that the best type of citizen can be evolved only from the healthy, robust child, who has had a free and well-rounded youth spent in cheerful and clean moral environment."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Brockville Recorder may not intend to be libellous, but its calling a Canadian Government bond a "guilt-edged" security, it suggests the fine hand of the Mail and Empire.

A witness before the Dominion Railway Commission testified that a shipment of modern hats by express of 700 pounds occupied as much space as four and a half tons of ordinary merchandise.

A keen satirical comment on the futility of piling up riches is the trite remark made in recording the death of a very rich man, that he "left" so many million. "Left" it is the word. After wasting a life time in piling up wealth to leave it is the end.

Quebec is taking steps to amend her pulp wood policy in the right direction. Premier Gouin announced at a banquet on Tuesday night that the Crown Lands policy if his Government would be so changed so that in future all pulpwood destined from the United States must be manufactured within the confines of the province. This is many years behind the Province of Ontario, but both provinces owe a Liberal Government a policy that will increase the employment of labour and capital in dealing with pulpwood resources.

Uncle Sam seems to want to make it clear that he wants neither Canadian barley, hops nor potatoes. Well, remarks the Ottawa Free Press, we have found a market for our barley; we can find a market for our hops; and if the railways will only give us fair rates we can find a market in our own borders for all the potatoes which might otherwise go to Boston. The Maritime Provinces of Canada grow the finest potatoes in the world; the trouble has been in the past that central and western Canada has not been able to get them. But now they will probably come west to meet our scarcities at times.

The Toronto News glorifies Hon. Mr. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, on the head of the increase of Succession Duties. Mr. Matheson, if he had had his way when he was fighting the Succession Duties legislation of a Liberal Government, would have abolished these duties or cut them in half. The News also gloats over the possible big inflow of money from the sale of the Gallie's Limit mining lands. The revenue might also be greatly increased if the Government would, according to the precedant it established, siese and sell private mining claims and convert them into money.

There is nothing to prevent a king being a good Samaritan. While Manuel, King of Portugal, was out motoring in the vicinity of Lisbon, he came upon a badly injured 'cyclist, picked him up, took him to a hospital, saw that his wounds were dressed and then took him home. King Manuel thus makes the loyalty of his subjects love; and if he took a journey as the Czar of Russia is preparing to do—from St. Petersburg to Pottova—he would not, as the Czar will have to do, line the railway with troops a distance of 600 miles. The difference arises from one being a man and a king at the same time, and the other being a mere embodiment of the most odious and degraded tyranny of modern times.

GENUINE LOYALTY.

(Toronto Star.)

"Canada," thinks that the dominions over seas are flouted because the British Government did not fly the flag over the Parliament Buildings on Empire Day—as this Dominion, at least, it would be difficult to find anybody who is worrying himself over the matter. Moreover, very little stock is taken in this country of accusations of disloyalty made against a Government or a political party. The charge is hackneyed and thoroughly discredited. It was used for the purpos of preventing the establishment of responsible government in Canada. The first responsible ministry was accused of being disloyal and of showing favour to "French rebels." The Parliament Buildings were burned over its head, and the Governor-General rotten-egged because he respected the constitution. The same charge was made against the Laurier Government in its early years, because it was headed by a French-Canadian.

Canadians do not believe that the British Liberal party is less loyal than its opponent, or has the interests of the Empire less at heart. The work of social reform to which the Asquith Government has set its hand is a great Imperial work; for the Empire can never be safe unless the heart of the Empire is sound. The improvement of the condition of the poor of London is a better piece of practical loyalty than the flying of flags. The Asquith Government is working out a better drama of "The Englishman's Home" than that which has been put on the stage. It is trying to give the Englishman a home worth fighting for.

THE CANADIAN OYSTERMAN'S OPPORTUNITY

(Ottawa Free Press)

It looks a long time forward from now until next September, so far as the ordinary individual is concerned; but the time is none too long if the oyster shippers of Canada are to take advantage of the opportunity which now lies at their feet. The United States Senate has apparently decided that any foreign oysters which enter that country shall pay a duty of 25 per cent.

This being the case, why should not the oyster shippers of the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts of Canada get together, and between now and next fall organize a perfect system of shipment of the bivalves from the beds to the consumers. The Intercolonial will help them; so will the C.P.R.; because the more freight that originates in the East, the better for the railways who have otherwise to send cars back West empty.

We Canadians in the Central Provinces want to eat Canadian fish in preference to other fish, if we can get it in the same condition and at the same price as American fish is offered; and there is no reason in the world why Canada's sea-coasts should not supply the home market with all the fish which it requires, if the shippers will only get together.

It is quite evident that we have no chance of a free entrance into the United States market. Why should we not make up our minds to exploit our own fisheries just for a little while. The thousands of dollars worth of American oysters which enter the central provinces of Canada might just as well be replaced by Canadian oysters—admittedly the best on the continent—it only requires a free consultation between the oyster shippers and the Givernment railways board to reach some arrangement which will, for ever, debar the American oyster from its present advantage in Canada.

There is no reason in the world why Maryland oysters should sell cheaper in Canada than our own Malpecque. All we have to do is to attempt to develop our own market; and we can do it if we want to; and the action of the Senate at Washington seems to tell us plainly that we must do it whether we want to or not.

Here is the opportunity for the Maritime Board of Trade to get busy and devise some scheme which will help us all and prevent the flooding of Canada with American oysters; and when we have begun with oysters we can go on to other fish afterwards.

BARRIE & CO.'S PROGRESSIVE HAT AND FURNISHING STORE

New Improvements Which Add to the Interior Arrangements.

The high-grade hat and furnishing store of Messrs. Thos. Barrie & Co., is known as one of the best equipped and artistically fitted establishments of its kind in Canada. This is one of our stores where money is not spared to keep it up to the full city standard. The features of the different departments are up to the minute, and the very newest out in the realm of men's toggery is always in evidence in their handsome show windows, show cases and show rooms. The favourites in hats, shirts, collars, neckwear, underwear, gloves, umbrellas, etc., are always sure to be found at Barrie's. How well the comprehensive stock is kept is apparent to everyone who visits the store.

One of the more recent improvements to the store is the fitting up of a private office on the ground floor with bookkeeper's and cashier's office above. The fittings are in good style, made of panelled and grained ash, with frosted panes of glass, the whole effect adding much to the general appearance of this handsome store.

BROCKVILLE REGRETS THEIR DEPARTURE

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Travers Removing to Peterborough.

The Brockville Times has the following to say regarding the departure from that town of Mr. R. W. Travers, Manager of the Bank of Montreal, and who is coming to Peterborough to assume a similar position at the local branch:

It was learned to-day that Mr. R. W. Travers, Manager for the past seven years of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, has been appointed manager of the Peterborough branch of that well-known institution. Mr. Travers will not leave for a fortnight or so and in the meantime his successor is not definitely known.

Brockville will feel a very genuine regret over the departure of Mr. Travers. No banker in this district is better or more favourably known than the genial gentleman who has so successfully guided the destinies of the Bank of Montreal here during the past few years. He is not only an able banker, but has prominently identified himself in social and sporting circles as well. No more enthusiastic yachtsman lives in this section and he was, as it happens, just about to add a fine new yacht to the local fleet when he was notified of his promotion.

Mr. Travers himself will also experience profound regret at having to leave the town with which his life has been so closely associated. For not only was he born here when his father was manager of the Bank of Montreal, but he came back to Brockville as accountant many years ago after efficient service in various branches o fthe bank, and again after being stationed at Hamilton and Almonte he returned to Brockville as manager.

The departure of Mrs. Travers will be felt in no less a degree than that of Mr. Travers. Mrs. Travers has long since established herself firmly in the hearts of a large circle of acquaintances. Amiable in disposition, keen of intellect and widely read she has gained a well-deserved popularity on all sides, while her quiet but unceasing activity in charitable works has gained for her the lasting gratitude of many a destitute one. Both Mr. and Mrs. Travers are endowed with the characteristic hospitality of the Irish, and nothing gives them greater pleasure than the entertainment of their friends.

Lever Brothers, Toronto, will send you free a cake of their famous Planto toilet soap, if you mention this paper.

PETERBORO'S BRILLIANT PROSPECTS

There was never in the history of Peterboro a time when prospects were brighter than they are now. The city officials state that there has been double the number of building permits issued already this year more than the best previous year and that the prospects are that this percentage will go up even higher.

Think what it will mean when the new factories begin working, simply this, more families will of necessity, move to the city, employment will be given to others in the city that need it and thus create a demand for homes either to rent or purchase, in either case property is bound to advance more or less in every portion of the city. ¶ People who are contemplating purchasing a house will do well to see J. T. O'Connell's list and get terms. We have a choice selection of properties at moderate prices and easy terms. If you have not time to call during the day, come any evening and we will show you any property on our list. We're always at your service.

NOTES ON BISHOP OF TORONTO'S VISIT TO PETERBOROUGH

The Right Rev. Dr. Sweeney, Lord Bishop of Toronto, accompanied by Rev. Canon Davidson, Dr. Langfeldt and Mr. G. L. Hay, rector's warden, paid an official visit to St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, on Wednesday, January 2. Hon. J. R. Stratton, very kindly, had his automobile placed at the disposal of His Lordship for the day. A goodly number of parishioners were present to extend to the bishop a hearty welcome and express their loyalty to him.

The bishop appreciated the cordiality with which he was received very much and in his remarks drew very valuable lessons from the life and work of a farmer as relating to the Kingdom of God. After having visited St. Mark's, the party went to Lakefield, visiting St. John's Church and the Grove Preparatory School, returning in time for the confirmation service at St. Luke's.

GOT TO THE ROOT OF HIS TROUBLE

And Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured W. Wright's Backache.

He Had Suffered for Several Years but the Old Reliable Kidney Remedy gave Him Quick Relief.

Kelvington, Bask., June 2.—(Special.)—"Yes, Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of Backache, and I have recommended them to others who have also been cured." These are the words of William Wright, a farmer well-known here. "I believe I inherited my trouble," Mr. Wright continues. "At times for several years it was very severe. I also suffered from Lumbago, and in the morning I had a bitter taste in my mouth and was troubled with dizziness and my skin was dry and harsh and there was a sediment in my urine.

"No treatment I could find gave me any permanent relief till finally believing that my kidneys were the root of my trouble, I determined to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Four boxes cured me."

Mr. Wright went at his trouble sensibly. He examined his symptoms, and they showed him that Kidney Disease was his trouble. Do as much for yourself, and if your symptoms point to disordered or diseased kidneys the cure is easy. Dodd's Kidney Pills will do it. They never fail.

CARS DID NOT GO OFF THE TRACK

In the report of the accident on the G. T. R., near Campbellford, yesterday, it was stated that two cars went into the creek. This was not correct, the Examiner, apparently having been wrongly informed. Only the tender of the engine, it is stated, went off the track. The accident occurred on a siding.

A Treasure Ship of 1812.

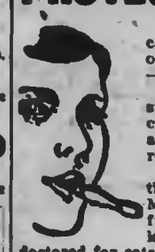
PROTECTS YOU FROM COLDS



As the only way to reach catarrh is by inhaling medicated air, it follows that the healing balsams of Catarrhozone can't fail to cure. It is a purely vegetable antiseptic—soothes and heals wherever it goes.

The germ-killing vapor is inhaled at the mouth and instantly spreads through all the breathing organs. Every case of bronchitis and catarrh is rooted out, and such health and strength is imparted that these troubles never again return.

Catarrhozone has cured thousands, and here is quoted the experience of Mrs. James A. Tweedie, of Jay Bridge, Maine, who sent for sixteen outfits of Catarrhozone for friends in her locality. This lady gives very full particulars why she did so. Her daughter, fourteen years old, had doctored for catarrh, obtaining no benefit, tried lots of other remedies, but al failed—recommended by a neighbor to try Catarrhozone. Instead of despairing, as she had good reason for doing, obtained Catarrhozone and before it was done, as she states, she was completely cured. No wonder she recommends it. Child had dropping in the throat, hawking, spitting; father thought she was going into consumption; could not sleep at night, and adds: "I only wish anyone suffering from catarrh to give it a fair trial."

Just Breathe "Catarrhozone" and You're Insured Against Colds, Coughs, Bronchitis and Catarrh.

Not difficult for Catarrhozone to cure, because it contains the essences of pine balsams and other antiseptics that simply sweep health to catarrh and colds. Large size, guaranteed, $1: medium size, 50c; small trial size, 25c. All dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

SEEDING OPERATIONS ARE NEARLY FINISHED

Oats Appear to be the Only Crop That is Behind—Situation is Satisfactory.

Seeding operations are pretty well finished through the country now as far as oats are concerned. There are a few farmers still who are behind in this work. Had the weather reamained fine all last week, the work would all have been done, but the rain added another hindrance to keep the crop still later. A good many farmers throughout the country are now busy at getting their peas and corn in, and even some of them are at their roots.

As far as the season is concerned, it is really only oats that are in any way behind. Several farmers expressed the opinion that if the weather in this critical month of the year remains favourable there will be really no drawbacks owing to the late season, and it might even prove of advantage to the crops.

The thing that has to be feared now is very hot weather that would bring the grain along without giving it a chance to fill out. The tendency of a short season, which may reasonably be expected this year, will be to make them light.

Otherwise, however, the prospects as far as can be adjudged at this early date, are for a very good year.

In fruits this is especially the case. In almost every variety there is a prospect of a bumper crop if only nothing intervenes to blight the present prospects.

On the whole, despite the gloomy forbodings of the past month, it is not likely that the country will suffer very seriously, it at all, from the late season.

HOW LIFE INSURANCE WAS PAID OUT IN CANADA DURING THE PAST TWELVE MONTHS

New York, June 2.—The life insurance companies in the United States and Canada last year distributed $330,811,000. That is the estimate of the Insurance Press. Dividends to shareholders, money paid out in cash surrender and to annuitants, and foreign policy-holders, would bring the total up to $480,811,000.

In the estimate of the payments of all kinds, to the amount of $480,811,000 in 1908, the amount paid for lapsed, surrendered, and purchased policies by all of the regular life insurance companies in the United States was more than $74,000,000, indicating an effect of the financial scare. The amount for the similar account in 1907 wasc about $59,000,000.

From one point of view, 1908 was practically a year of no progress, the official returns from many States showing a falling off in payments for death claims and endowments.

The largest policy was for $535,000, the next largest $331,825. As usual, the largest of the amounts of the claims paid must be credited to the City of New York, $32,823,432, with Philadelphia, $13,078,566, second in the list and Chicago, $8,706,570 third.

Payments in Canada

The sum of $18,000,000 was paid out on policies to Canadians. One payment alone reached over $100,000, and three over $50,000. Fifteen cities in the Dominion had claims of $10,000 or more. The insurance paid in Montreal totalled $22,339,887, and in Toronto $1,093,412.

The following are the largest policies paid in Canada:

Charles Fawcett, Sackville, N. B.	$131,849
Edward H. Batterell, Montreal	65,195
John Horrance, Montreal	49,250
J. Lrael Tarte, Montreal	27,080
Percy W. Marling, Montreal	25,000
William Stewart, Montreal	20,000
James D. Fowler, N. B.	38,540
Campbell MacPherson, St. John	74,000
Ephriam Smith, Toronto	27,925
Ralph Bricken, Toronto	12,000
Samuel A. Crowell, Yarmouth, N. S.	61,655

Toronto Physician Urges A Strong Campaign Against Patent Medicine And Quacks

Toronto, June 2.—"Let us do all in our power to take from these sharks in human form the opportunity of making money out of the sufferings of their fellow men."

Dr. J. Ferguson, of Toronto, was not sparing in his language this morning in dealing with the patent medicine, or "Nostrum Evil," at the meeting of the Ontario Medical Association. That this evil has grown to an enormous extent, is shown, declared the doctor, by the fact that every year $62,000,000 is spent on patent medicines in the United States and $6,000,000 in Canada.

"These medicines, so called, not only do not cure disease—they actually cause it, and also create an appetite for strong drink," continued the speaker. "In many cases they are so slightly medicated as to only be useful as a beverage, and their manufacture and sale are subsidiary to the breweries and distilleries.

"Debauch, Degrade"

"To debauch and degrade humanity is a profitable business," declared the speaker, dealing with the race suicide brought on by the use of patent medicine. It is notoriously well known that the birth-rate in many countries is falling off, largely on account of this evil."

Infanticide, and the soothing syrup habit also came in for some rough handling. "Opium-doped soothing syrups" was only one of the terms used. "With very few exceptions, every mixture of this kind is drugged with opium or morphine, and thousands of little ones die every year because of their use.

"But perhaps the greatest of all evils is the harm caused to the adolescent by these patent medicines. Notice the advertisements that are flaunted before the eyes of the young, of 'cures for lost manhood,' 'how to become strong,' 'discoveries which astonish the medical profession,' and of wonderful belts, braces, and the like, which 'never fail to cure.' These men are imposters, and murderers, and there is not an editor of a daily paper to-day, who would not voice the same sentiments as I do, their papers are full of advertisements of quacks and quack medicines. Quackery has killed more persons in England than the sword, pestilence, and famine combined.

Arise in Your Might

"Has not the time come for the medical profession to call on the Legislature to protect the public from these human monsters?" demanded the speaker. "The only way to do it is to let more light in. The profession should use all its influence to stay this pestilence in the land."

Among the steps urged to overcome this evil was the passing of a law prohibiting the marketing of any mixture containing a poison which cannot be bought at the druggists without a doctor's order; also, no medicine containing more than 5 per cent. alcohol, and that no mixture shall be advertised which deals with diseases of a private nature. Lastly, that manufacturers of medicines for which extraordinary claims are made, shall be open to prosecution for obtaining money under false pretences.

"Strike, and Strike Hard"

"The Canadian Medical Act is of no use, as it results in the sending of formulas to Ottawa, where nobody sees them, instead of being put on the bottles. It is time for us to strike, and strike hard."

Too much attention to disease and medicines, and not a close enough study of the patient himself, according to Dr. J. T. Fotheringham, of Toronto, is, in a measure, responsible for such schools of healing as mental healers, Christian Scientists, faith curers, and the like. Touching on this subject, the doctor continued:

"I speak with reserve of that latest emanation frim New England, the 'Emmanuel movement.' We may have ourselves to blame by our neglect of psychology, and our devotion to the materialistic side of our profession, for the attempt of the clergy to assume the role of healers of the body as well as of the soul. But if we must add to our knowledge and intelligently practise treatment by suggestion, we may surely also be permitted to demand that the clergy add to their curriculum a course in pathology, that they may have some knowledge of their own limitations along these lines."

Too Many Drugs

The speaker called for a change in the demands made upon medical students and a reduction in the number of medicines used.

"We must throw away five-sixths or even nine-tenths of our materia medica, and then train ourselves more thoroughly in the use of what is left," he declares. "We must also cease to attempt to make research work a part of the training of our undergraduates, reducing the number of hours spent in the laboratory, while insisting on a knowledge of results in laboratory research done by skilled men who devote themselves to it."

Correspondent Would Like To See Customers Get A Free Light

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—There have been several letters published recently, complaining of high rates for electric lighting. There is no use in mere complaining. The Power Companies will do just as other business interests do—get all they can—and the only remedy is competition. In this case private or outside competition would only be a repetition of what we have had, namely cut rates for a short time and then practically a combine—squeeze.

The ratepayers of Peterborough must resolve on having and owning electrical energy sufficient to do all lighting and also keep power rates at a reasonable figure. Surely it is possible to duplicate our success in the Water Works Commission, and have a power plant run on the same efficient basis.

There is one thing might be done in regard to this extension of franchise that would help light our city with little or no additional cost to the Power Company. Give every customer a free light on his porch or verandah. This would simplify street lighting, especially on shaded streets.

Yours truly,
MUNICIPAL OWNERSH'P.

Municipalities To Discuss Notice From Septic Tank Co.

There will be a meeting in Toronto on June 15 to straighten out the septic tank difficulty.

It will be remembered that the Cameron Company of Chicago, made a claim against the city of London for infringement on their patent for septic tanks, and they demanded a royalty.

A large number of municipalities through Canada from coast to coast, installed these septic tanks, unaware that they were covered by a patent of any kind.

They were all notified that they would have to come along with a royalty, and it was decided after considerable correspondence to get together, and see what can be done.

Consequently the meeting will be held on June 15, and delegates from all the municipalities interested will be on hand.

It is more than likely a test case will be made. Mayor Stevely and City Engineer Graydon will represent London at the Toronto meeting.

"I do not see how they have any claim at all," said City Engineer Graydon. "It seems to me that this is rather a late date to start complaining of such a thing.—London Adevrtiser.

Peterborough has received notification of a similar nature and Mr. Willis Chapman who installed the outfall sewer in Ward V. has already met the Council in regard to the matter.

PRESENTED AN ADDRESS OF WELCOME TO THE NEW BISHOP

Right Rev. J. F. Sweeny, M.A., D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Toronto, Administered Rite of Confirmation at St. Luke's Church Last Night to Forty-two Candidates.

HIS FIRST VISIT HERE.

The beautiful and impressive ceremony of confirmation was administered to forty-nine candidates by Right Reverend J. F. Sweeny, M.A., D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Toronto, at St. Luke's church last evening. It was also the occasion of the first visit to Peterborough of Bishop Sweeney, since his election and subsequent consecration to the Holy office that he now occupies. The congregation of St. Luke's took advantage of the opportunity to present an address of welcome to the Bishop. It was read by Dr. Langfeldt's senior lay reader, Ald. J. J. Turner.

The clergy assisting the Bishop were Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, the rector, Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's church, Rev. H. R. Trumpour, [illegible] of All Saints' Church, who carried the Pastoral Staff, Rev. W. J. Creighton, and Rev. A. McKenzie, of Lakefield, and Rev. E. W. Pickford, of Norwood.

The ceremony was witnessed by a large congregation, the majority of whom had been previously confirmed and who were asked by His Lordship to recall the promises they had made. The hymns sung were appropriate to the service of confirmation.

Address to the Bishop.

After evening prayer had been said by Rev. Mr. Creighton, of Lakefield, Dr. Langfeldt remarked that the occasion was an important one. It was the public confession of Christ by a large number of young people. The congregation, he was sure, felt very happy at having the Bishop with them. He called upon Mr. Turner to read an address of welcome. It was as follows:

To the Right Rev. F. J. Sweeney, M.A., D.D., Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Toronto.

Righ Rev. Father in God.—The Rector and congregation of St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, desire on the occasion of your first episcopal visit to the city and parish do most respectfully and cordially welcome and congratulate your Lordship on being advanced to the dignity of the Episcopate. Your lengthy service as Rector of St. Phillip's Church, Toronto, Canon of St. Alban's Cathedral, Archdeacon of York and Simcoe, and administrator of the Diocese, has given an experience, which, united with gifts of learning and culture, deep piety, sound judgment, and devotion to the interets of the Church, serves to justify your elevation to the high and holy office of Bishop and Shepherd of souls. To our felicitations we would add an expression of our loyalty to your person, to your office, and to the Church, fully confident that the policy of progressive administration you have already inaugurated will, with the Divine blessing, redound to the glory of God, and the promotion of the church, material, moral, and spiritual. Trusting that your Lordship will long be spared to discharge the duties of your high vocation and renewing our expressions of fealty to your person and office, we remain, on behalf of the congregation, your faithful, dutiful, and humble co-operators in the great work of our beloved Church.

E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., Ph.D., Rector
G. L. Hay, Rector's Warden.
G. B. Browning, People's Warden.

His Lordship's Reply.

Bishop Sweeney in replying, said: "I am deeply touched by the kind sentiments expressed in the beautiful address of welcome and greeting that you have presented me. I will ever cherish them and hope by the Grace of God to prove myself worthy of the good things said about me. I deeply appreciate your words of cordiality. My work of twenty-six years in this diocese, every hour of it, has been a great pleasure in the service of the Lord. Of all the kind things you have said to me the kindest is the promise of your prayers. If I felt that the people of this Church and of all the diocese are bearing on their lips to the throne of God prayers for me, I have no fear that God will not use me in the extension of His kingdom. Unless I have those prayers I cannot go on, even though I pray much myself. Should I feel disheartened or discouraged in the tremendous and grave responsibility of the work of the diocese will you not come to my prayerful assistance? Again I thank you most sincerely from a full heart for your words of welcome and your good wishes."

To the Candidates.

Bishop Sweeny in addressing the candidates, gave a most interesting and powerful discourse on the holy rite of confirmation. Whether or not one took the ancient meaning of Whit-Sunday, that is, in the primitive church, the newly baptized on that day appeared in white, or the other meaning of it, namely, the day for the pouring out of the Holy Spirit, there was no more appropriate season for confirmation than Whitsuntide. Confirmation was not a spectacular service; nor the reciting of evening prayer, but it was a special demand to pour out on the candidates the gift of the Holy Ghost. It was that, that made this rite, a holy and serious thing. Of all services there were none more gladsome. It was one of joy and satisfaction. They were soldiers, he said, coming forth in the service of Christ.

The alternative phrase "the laying on of hands," caused one to look back to long ago, to the first confirmation His Lordship referred to passages in both the Old and New Testaments, to show that the rite of Confirmation was not merely an ordinance of the church, but the Divine will was being carried out in accordance with His wishes. He traced the history of confirmation from the first administration of the rite at Epheaus in A.D. 63, down through the fourth, fifth and sixth centuries to the time of the Reformation, when some rejected the Episcopacy and lost the rite.

The Bishop said that candidates must consider what confirmation was and what it was not. It was not a mere empty form, but was full of strong determination and love, stretching out into the world, into business and into society. He hoped they would rise to the dignity of the occasion and, in conclusion, left with them the motto: "Go forward." Their lives should be given to the service of Christ, following in His paths of self sacrifice and setting their affections on things above and not on things below.

While the hymn "Just as I am Without One Plea" was being sung the candidates knelt before the Bishop and were confirmed.

After the service His Lordship met the candidates in the Sunday School, and instructed them as to their preparation for their first communion.

ELECTRIC LIGHT CHARGES NOT WORRYING MERCHANTS AS MUCH AS HIGH RENT, SAYS A WRITER

Sir,—My attention has just been drawn to a report of a meeting of the Manufacturers' Committee of our City Council, which was held on the evening of the 27th ult.

At this meeting Alderman Morrow took the position that all the merchants on George strete were complaining of the high rates that now prevail for the electric lighting of their stores. I beg to assure Alderman Morrow that there is the sound of complaint among the merchants of George strete, but I regret that his sense of hearing is so defective that he cannot catch the real sound of complaint. Seeing that the sense of hearing is so defectiveI think it well to try his sense of seeing, and I wish to ask him in his representative capacity as one of our City fathers, to read the following facts.

About seven years ago the merchants on George street paid for electric lighting about $600 per lap less a discount of 20 per cent. At the present time the rate is only $3.00 per lamp net per annum. In other words the merchants on George street are paying according o the size of their stores from $60.00 to $120,000 per year less for light than they were seven years ago.

But how does the question of rental stand? About seven years ago the ordinary well located store on George street rented for $400.00 to $600.00 per annum. The rental for these same stores has increased about 50 per cent., that is to say, the merchant who paid $400.00 seven years ago must now pay in the neighbourhood of $600.00 per annum, and the merchant who paid $600.00 seven years ago now pays over $900.00 per annum.

I hope that Alderman Morrow may now be assured that the cause of complaint among the merchants is really not against the Lighting Companies, but it is against the absentee Landlords, whom he so ably represents, that causes the sound of complaint, and one of these complants is that for every dollar that the cost of lighting of stores has been reduced by the Lighting Companies, the rent has been correspondingly increased $3.00 by their absentee Landlords.

Alderman Morrow is to be congratulated upon posing as the friend of the merchant as against the Lighting Companies especially in view of the fact that there is not a City, Town or Hamlet in the Dominion of Canada that pays less for electric lighting, either mercantile or domestic, than the City of Peterborough.

Alderman Morrow is championing a cause against the Lighting Companies, where there is no cause of complaint. There is no man in Peterborough who could make himself so popular as Alderman Morrow with his usual force of character and far sightedness, if he were to staunchly advocate the reduction of rents to the merchants. Let me assure him that if the rents on George street were reduced, the merchants could sell to the working men of Peterborough their necessities of life at a cheaper price.

Yours truly,
A MERCHANT.

Wheel Rolled Off And Milk Wagon Came To Sudden Grief

Mr. Walter Tebb, of Douro, met with an accident this morning at the corner of Aylmer and Hunter streets. He had brought in a load of milk to the Peterborough Creamery on Aylmer street, and was starting out on his way home, when the nut of one of the front wheels dropped off and the wheel followed. His cans had been filled with decreamed milk which Mr. Tebb was taking home. When the wheel of his cart rolled into the ditch the equilibrium of the waggon was disturbed and the cans slid off, not having the customary pins which are found on milk woggans to keep the cans in their place.

The skimmed milk flowed rather freely for a short time and a large quantity was lost.

SAD DROWNING AT NORTH BAY

TWO OTHERS ARE RESCUED

Canoe Upsets in Lake Nipissing While Two of the Young Men Are Going to Their Cottage and One Drowns—R. G. Parker Rescues the Others at Imminent Risk of His Own Life Yesterday.

North Bay, June 3.—A drowning accident occurred at 5.30 last night, when Charles Chapman, accountant in the Traders' Bank branch here, lost his life in Lake Nipissing, not one hundred feet from shore, about one mile below town. With two companions, G. B. Harris and A. Borrowman, employes, he had paddled down to their cottage on the lake shore yesterday afternoon in a canoe, making preparations to occupy it for the summer. Returning to town in the evening the canoe upset. R. G. Parker, another bank clerk, observed the accident from shore and immediately swam out to where the boys were clinging to the upturned canoe, the water being still very cold from the winter's ice which moved out only two weeks ago. Parker succeeded in bringing the fat, aged with Harris and Borrowman to shore, but poor Chapman released his hold and sank.

Parker was assisted in his heroic deed by H. Tilley, who waded out until the water reached his chin. Chapman could not swim and the other lads could swim very little.

Chapman was a son of Rev. Mr. Chapman, rector of the Anglican Church at Ailsa Craig, was 25 years old, unmarried, and a talented musician, being organist of St. John's Church, North Bay. He was acting manager of the bank this week in the absence of Manager Thomas Peacock, whose wife is very ill in Toronto.

The body has not been recovered.

London, June 3.—(C.A.P. Cable)—R. J. E. Hanson, secretary to Lord Roberts, stated that the Toronto cadets only arrived 24 hours before the competition for the Princess of Wales' trophy started. They were quite unfit to participate in the contest and were reluctantly allowed to shoot. The winners were F. W. Chandler, King Edward VI. School, Surrey, with 284; Victor Black of the Great Yarmouth School, 270; Harry Grove of the Sir John Cass School, 269, out of the possible 300.

EXPRESS COMPANIES AND THEIR BUSINESS

Railway Commission Investigates Profits of Companies.

ONE HUNDRED PER CENT

In Past Years Canadian Express Co. Has Made a Final Dividend of 100 Per Cent. and Dominion Has Made 92 Per Cent.—Cash Bash of Canadian Was $27,500 in 1905 — Yesterday's Sitting.

Toronto, June 3.—Great oaks from little acorns grow, is an axiom which might aptly be applied to the express companies, as the statements of capital invested and present profits submitted to the Railway Commission yesterday afternoon indicated.

The Canadian Express Co. was shown to have launched out in 1865 upon the capital of $27,500, actually paid in in hard cash. Modest as the sum looks, it was never found necessary to issue any more stock. The earnings took care of the equipment, which is now valued at over $212,000, and has earned from all sources an average of 100 per cent. per annum in the past seven years.

The Dominion Express Co. has also had a healthy, not to say tropical, growth. Shortly after incorporation in 1882, the promoters were in the happy position of having got back the sum of $24,500 advanced and paid out $74,000 in bonds loaned by the C.P.R. The property is now valued at $573,999, and earned 92 per cent. on this basis last year.

A neat little family compact was disclosed in the case of the Canadian Northern Express Co. The stock issued was $300,000, of which $295,000 is retained by Mackenzie & Mann interests.

These illuminating statistics were laid bare by W. S. Buell, solicitor for the commission, and George T. Shepley, K.C., its counsel.

The concluding evidence as to express rates was given by W. T. Street, president of the Dominion Express Co., and W. H. Burr, the company's traffic manager. Mr. Street examined as to the transportation of fish from British Columbia across the continent, said that the traffic was heavy, but the business precarious, the fish being American halibut caught in American waters and landed in British Columbia by special order in council, which permit might at any time be rescinded. The tolls on the traffic in 1908 amounted to $300,000.

T. H. Chrysler, K.C., representing the Dominion Express Co., and E. Le Fleur for the Canadian Express Co., gave their side of the argument. They thought it wasn't the province of the board to revolutionize rates. In considering the proposal that the classification of express should be assimilated with the classification of freight, the advantages of speedy delivery of express parcels, as against the slower delivery of freight should be fully weighed.

Not Entitled to Subsidy.

Ottawa, June 3.—A delegation from Seattle consisting of Mr. Jayne, editor of The Pacific Financial Review, and a representative of Waterhouse & Co., were at the Department of Trade and Commerce yesterday endeavoring to obtain a subsidy for a steamship line to run from Vancouver to New Zealand via San Francisco. They were informed that the Dominion Government could not grant a subsidy to a line plying to a foreign port.

Should Have Protected Man.

Sherbrooke, Que., June 3.—Judge Demers condemned the C.P.R. to pay J. Ducharme, Magog, $1,500 damages for the loss of a foot. Ducharme pleaded that he went on board a train drunk, and that the officials should have seen to it that he got off the train safely, and that the train was started before he got on the platform. The judge held that the company were negligent in not seeing to it that Ducharme got off.

REV. DR. LYLE CHOSEN AS THE MODERATOR

Hamilton Pastor is Chosen by Presbyterian Assembly.

TO ACT ON CHURCH UNION

Definite Move Will Be Made With Regard to Long Discussed Question During Present Session—Rev. Dr. DuVal is Unable to Attend Owing to His Wife's Illness—Dr. Patrick Reads the Sermon.

Hamilton, June 3.—Hamilton is today the Mecca of Presbyterians. Representatives of the Presbyterian Church from all parts of the Dominion and from many points beyond have gathered to attend the thirty-fifth General Assembly, which opened last night in the Central Church, of which Rev. Dr. Lyle, the new moderator, is pastor.

Unfortunately the proceedings opened under the shadow of a bereavement, which deprived the assembly of the services of the retiring moderator, Rev. Dr. DuVal of Winnipeg, in whose loss the whole church sympathetically shares. His place at the opening service last night was taken by Principal Patrick of Winnipeg, who delivered the sermon prepared by Dr. DuVal.

The programs of the assembly covers a wide field, and involves five consideration of questions of far-reaching and vital importance. Paramount among these is the now well-thrashed out question of union. The joint committee who have had the matter in hand will present a report which it is expected will lead to clear and definite action. They express satisfaction with the basis of union now agreed upon, and will recommend its adoption so that the issue before the assembly will be whether the negotiations now brought to a head should go for nothing, or whether the basis should be submitted to the Presbyteries and congregations. In any event it is felt that this year's union debate will be a crucial one.

The financial position of the church, particularly in relation to missions, both home and foreign, is another matter which will engage serious attention. In the language of one of the reports, the past year has been "one of great anxiety in some fields, of large in-gathering in others, and of encouraging progress in all," but the note of disappointment will probably be found to overshadow that of satisfaction. Not only has the appeal for one million dollars, decided upon at last year's assembly, failed to produce the required amount, but deficits are reported in many of the important funds of the church, with the result that the operations for the coming year will call for very careful consideration. In the home mission field the commissioners are confronted with a situation which is described as grave, both as regards the supply of ordained missionaries and the contribution of funds, while the assembly is also faced with a growing debt in relation to foreign missions. In connection with the whole question of missions will come up the issue raised by the Laymen's Missionary movement, and on this subject the desirability of co-operation will in all probability be discussed.

New York, June 3.—A cable despatch to The Herald from Constantinople says: A telegram from Adana yesterday announces the hanging of fifteen persons who took part in the recent massacres, nine Mussulmans and six Armenians. Nevertheless, according to news which has reached the Armenian Patriarch here, the persecution of Armenians continues.

The Constantinople press announces that a fresh outbreak occurred in the environs of Konia. Eight hundred Mussulmans invaded two Armenian villages, but, thanks to the intervention of troops, order has been almost established.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

GREAT INTEREST IN OPENING OF CITY LEAGUE ON SATURDAY

Each of the Senior Teams Has a Large Following---Much Speculation as to the Result of the Two Contests---Teams are Practising Faithfully.

Arrangements are being made to have the diamond at Riverside Park laid out and everything in readiness for the opening of the Senior City League on Saturday afternoon. With weather such as has been handed out for the past few days there is little doubt of the success of Saturday's engagements. Much interest is being displayed among the fans, and each of the four teams has a large following, and the rooters will be out in force on Saturday, so that there will be a bigbunch of enthusiasm unravelled during the afternoon. Park St. Athletic Club and the T. A. S. team have the honour of playing the first game, commencing at 2 o'clock, sharp, and they will have a great argument. The Park St. Club, with nearly a whole nine of ex-Midland Leaguers, think they can give Pitcher Quinlan and his team a busy afternoon, while on the other hand the Abstainers are relying on Quinlan's skill in the box to pull out a victory for them. Which ever way the fates decide the fans can rest assured that they will see a real ball game, for both are strong and well-balanced. The Strathconas, champions of the Intermediate League last season, and the West Ends, who were contenders all through in 1908, will be the opposing forces in the second contest, which gives every promise of being as tight a little struggle as has been seen in the ball yard across the river for some time. Manager Oldham, of the West Ends, has been gathering together a number of young players, who are fast and ambitious, and who with oceans of ginger, will take a whole lot of beating. On the other hand the Strathconas have the advantage of being able to lace in the field their last year's team almost intact, so that they had no need this season of building up a new infield or outfield. Each team has four or five pitchers on its staff and neither has decided as to whom will be on the firing line for Saturday's game.

The ladies are again reminded that there will be no charge for admission for the fair sex, who are cordially invited to be present at the games throughout the season. There will, no doubt, be a big crowd on hand for the opening contests on Saturday, as the fans are doping out that there will be lots of classy baseball among the City League teams.

City League Notes.

The Senior League is a good thing for the young players. Realising that good pitchers are scarce, the managers are working out a number of promising young twirlers, who have the earmarks of turning into stars with proper seasoning. The Strathconas and West Ends each have two or three youngsters working out, and no doubt one or two of them at least will make good.

The certificates for the League are now out and Managers are busy getting them filled in by their players.

The management of the League has made the admission charges very reasonable. Fifteen cents for two games of baseball is cheaper than staying at home.

Players are again reminded that there is a $5 fine for delaying the game more than fifteen minutes from the advertised time.

It might also be mentioned that the umpire has authority to put out of the game any player who does any kicking, and that this rule will be strictly enforced.

Mayor Rush is reasonably confident of locating the plate when he attempts to throw the first ball across on Saturday.

Over a dozen men who have played in the Midland League are with the different League teams and of this number no less than eight are playing with the Park St. Club.

THE WALKERS' BENEFIT WAS FAIRLY WELL PATRONIZED

Interesting Programme Put on at Brock Street Rink Last---Band's Playing Was Much Appreciated----Champion Brown Negotiated a Mile in 7.20.

The benefit meet in the interests of the outside walkers who took part in last week's walking match, held last night in the Brock St. rink, was fairly well attended, and an interesting programme was furnished. There has been considerable sympathy manifested for the walkers, and this was shown by the applause with which they were greeted last night.

The 57th Regimental Band turned out en masse, free of charge, and rendered a splendid programme of new music. The band was in excellent form, and its playing was much appreciated. Mr. Gliddon and his musicians were not stingy with their music and their playing was one of the most enjoyable features of the evening.

A varied programme of sports was put on. Jack Richards, the unknown walker, who cut a swath several times in last week's affair, went on for a half-mile run against Jack Blake, and the coloured man won out by half a lap. Richards had all the early speed but could not go the route and Blake, catching him tiring on end, came home on the bit.

Ray Fenton and Lew West hooked up in a two-mile walking match in which he conceeded two laps handicap to his opponent.

Fenton put up a great argument, but West gradually overhauled him and won out by half a lap.

Several races for youngsters were put on and four "kids" had a lively sack race, which was won by Charlie Pogue, the only one of the quartette to negotiate the track without a mishap.

The new champion, George Brown, concluded the programme by walking a mile against time. The speedy boy from Auburn, N. Y. stepped it out in grand fashion, and did the distance in 7.20, which is good going under the conditions. He is surely some walker.

Here Is Some Walking
T. E. Hammond's Great Feat

In view of the walking match held here last week the following from the Over-seas Daily Mail, regarding the performances of T. E. Hammond, the great English pedestrian, should be of interest:

"On Saturday, in weather of a variable nature—wind, snow and occasional gleams of sunshine, alternating the Surrey Walking Club decided another of its periodical races, from Westminster Bridge to the Brighton Aquarium, (distance, 53:1-4 miles) for the "Dithy" Challenge Cup, which was won on the previous occasion in Mr. T. E. Hammond's absence, by H. E. Lang. Hammond competed on Saturday, and not only deprived Lang of posession of the Cup, but accomplished a magnificent performance by beating all previous records for the journey. He won the race by fully four miles from E. V. Hollingsworth, and by rather more than that distance from Lang in the fresh record time of 8 hours, 18 minutes and 18 seconds, or 5 minutes and 9 seconds faster than the previous best, accomplished by J. Butler, on September 22, 1906.

Hammond, who walked splendidly throughout, was closely pressed by Lang for the first twelve miles, but then got away, and rapidly opened up a goodly gap.

Hammond was slightly delayed at the railway crossing, through the gates being shut, but got through the subway ,and eventually reached Bolney (over thirty-eight and one-half miles) in 6 hours, 4 minutes and 18 1-5 seconds. Passing through Hickstead in fine style, Hammond reached the fortieth milestone in 6 hours, 22 minutes and 10 seconds, and walking as fast at the finish as at the start, easily beat Butler's record, and also beat his own previous record of 5 hours, 26 inutes and 57 seconds, on April 9, 1904. There were eleven competitors in Saturday's race and all finished.

WON FIVE MILE RACE

Johnny Smoke, the Chemong Indian, won the fine mile race at the Driving Park this afternoon against two other contentants. His time for 26 minutes.

IS Y.M.C.A. TO HAVE A BASEBALL TEAM?

Plenty of Material if Someone Will Get Them Together.

Is the Y.M.C.A. going to be represented in the Intermediate City League? is the question that is being asked by the other teams.

The Y certainly has a large number of players to draw from and with some one the get to get the fellows together there would be a good team secured to represent the blue and white. For instance there are some good players in the Collegiate institute League, who could be easily coralled. Max Dobbin would fill in the receiving end and there are others who would make good in different positions. There is also Waram, Porter and others who played last year. The Y needs some one to get the fellows together and to make them enthusiastic. The other teams are looking to them to enter he City League pace in the Intermediate section.

LOCAL BASEBALL

The Strathconas team will practise tonight at Nicholls Oval at 6 o'clock sharp. This will be the last practice before Saturday's Senior League game with the West Ends, a full turn out of players is expected. The team for Saturday's game, will be chosen, and a captain for the team elected at to-night's practice.

• • •

The P. A. C. Intermediate team clashed with the Rovers last night on the P.A.C.'s practice ground. The Rovers went down to defeat by 10-4 in a game that was fairly fast. N. Dusty and Ned Simmons pitched for P.A.C. and Bell did the receiving. Neary and Shepherd were tried out as the Rovers' twilers and Wood was behind the bat. Jos. Guerin umpired very satisfactorily.

WITH THE RUNNERS.

Toronto, June 2.—"The Shrubb-Sellen race at twelve miles, scheduled for Saturday night at Hanlan's Point, is off." announced Mr. J. J. McCaffrey this afternoon.

"What is the reason?" was asked.

"I haven't anything to say," replied Mr. McCaffrey. "As a matter of fact I don't know why the race was called off, beyond that Sellen and Shrubb couldn't agree."

Cricket

The Peterborough Cricket Club will practise to-night at Nicholls Oval.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

New York, June 3.—A regular old-fashioned bull market was working in full swing in Wall street to-day. The U. S. Steel stocks were the principal actors for the first hour, making new high record figures and then Southern Pacific was brought out and shoved over five points upward without a reaction of an eighth hardly. This started the whole list up and some gains were made. There was no news accompanying the advance in Southern Pacific, but it is believed it means an increased dividend on this stock later in the year.

H. LEBRUN & CO. ANNOUNCE IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE

The Store to be Refitted and Remodelled —Sweeping Clearance Sale—Giving Up Tailoring Branch.

By reference to the large advertisement in another column it will be seen that the long-established firm of H. LeBrun & Co., Clothiers and Tailors, are preparing to make quite a number of changes in their business. After a long and highly successful record in the Clothing and Tailoring trade of this city, covering the past thirty-six years, the firm have decided on an important forward step in the conduct of their business, in future. After the close of the summer season no more clothing will be made upon the premises. This step is taken because of the increasing cost in making up ordered work; but arrangements will be made to take orders from sample clothes and have them made up for their patrons outside the city. This necessitates the closing out of their very large stock of clothes at and below wholesale cost, during the next two months.

As the store is to be refitted and remodelled on a new and modern plan, the whole stock of ready-made clothing and furnishings is also offered at clearance prices. The preparations for these events have been going on for some time, and as all the stocks are bright, new goods, and unsurpassable values, it will be to everyone's benefit to take advantage of these special inducements. Sale starts Saturday, June 5th.

PROGRAMME OF FIRST BAND CONCERT TO BE HELD ON FRIDAY

The first band concert of the season will be held on Friday evening, as already announced. Mr. Rupert Gliddon, bandmaster, has arranged a programme that should be most enjoyble and should attract a large crowd to Victoria Park for the opening concert. It will not be commenced until 8.30 o'clock, owing to the inspection.

The programme will be as follows:

March—"Old Brigade," by Chambers.
Overture—"Barber of Seville," Rossini.
"Une Serenade" by Chapelle—Euphonium solo, with band accompaniment—Bandsman Cronk.
Iona—Intermezzo
Reminiscences of the Plantation, by Paris Chambers.
Concert Mazurka
Von Tilzer's Medley—"Don't Take Me Home."
March—"King Radium"
God Save the King.

All the above members are good, and from a concert standpoint should be most pleasing. They are also new and a treat may be expected. "The Reminiscences of the Plantation" includes solo parts for many instruments. The following will be heard: Piccolo and E flat clarinet, Messrs. Gowie and F. Miller; B flat clarinet, Mr. F. Barnes; cornet, Sergt. Hughes, euphonium, E. Cronk; bass, Messrs. Harper, Mein, McBrien and Cunningham.

Rossini's "Barber of Seville" is another splendid number.

WEDDING BELLS

HOOLIHAN—MEADE

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Catherdral Tuesday morning, June 1st, at seven o'clock, when Miss Clara Meade, daughter of John Meade, of Douro, was united in marriage to Mr. Dennis Hoolihan, formerly of Peterborough.

The bride was assisted by Miss Annie Hoolihan, of Toronto, sister of the groom, while the groom was assisted by Mr. W. J. Meade, brother of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Kelly.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hoolihan left on the 8:30 train for Hamilton. On their return they will reside at 684 Ross street, East City.

CHURCH GRAFTING BAD AS ANY OTHER

Minister Condemns Holding Up Merchants and Others in the Name of Religion.

Seattle, June 1.—Taking for his subject, "Tolerated Graft on the Increase," Rev. M. A. Matthews, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, dealt with religious as well as other forms of grafting. In the course of his sermon Dr. Matthews said:

"Among the many kinds of graft now tolerated, and which are steadily increasing because of this toleration, is religious, or ecclesiastical, graft. When I first came to Seattle I found in the programme of this church a number of advertisements of local merchants. I protested against this. No merchant ever sold five cents' worth of goods through an advertisement in a church programme. The church, in accepting the merchant's money for the little two-line advertisement, was simply grafting, by using the church as a means of holding him up for the money paid for the advertisement.

"The average church dinner is also a specimen of ecclesiastical grafting. The church goes to the merchants of the city and begs the ham, bread, cake and sugar, prepares the dinner and then invites the very merchants who have given the materials to the dinner or luncheon at fifty cents per plate. The merchant gets no value for his money: he is simply held up by the church organizations. If churches cannot publish programmes and cannot give entertainments and dinners without this sort of grafting they should forever cease publishing programmes and giving dinners.

"Churches also graft on the cities in which they are located by begging free water and free light, and by seeking to escape paying their just proportion of the taxes. I believe that every dollar's worth of church property in this and every other city should be taxed.

"No city or town will ever be free from the grafting thief until the political form of government is replaced by government by a commission. Pay them $15,000 a year to conduct the business of the city, according to business methods. Demand that they give every hour of their time six days a week, to the conduct of the city's business. Put men with brains at the head of your city government, and you will forever free the city from the grafter."

I. B. LUCAS CALLED TO OTTAWA CABINET

I. B. Lucas, M.P.P., Appointed to Whitney Ministry.

NEW FLOTATION OF BONDS

Three and a Half Millions of Four Per Cents Will Be Issued by Ontario Government — Centre Grey Man Is Moved Up to Take Late Dr. Willoughby's Vacancy In Cabinet Without Portfolio.

Toronto, June 4.—Sir James Whitney strengthened the Provincial Cabinet yesterday by calling I. B. Lucas, K.C., member for Centre Grey, to the council board to act as Minister without portfolio in place of the late Dr. Willoughby.

This invitation came somewhat as a surprise to Hon. Mr. Lucas, as he may now be styled, the oath of allegiance and the oath as member of the executive council having been administered by the Lieutenant-Governor, but for some time his name has been associated with those mentioned for Cabinet honors.

Since 1898, when Mr. Lucas first entered the Legislature, he has grown steadily in the favor of his colleagues, until he occupied a front seat among the supporters of the Government. On the death of Henry Carscallen, Mr. Lucas was made chairman of the private bills committee, which position he has filled with distinction for the past three sessions. In addition, the member for Centre Grey, is a forcible and pleasing speaker.

Meanwhile, no particular branch of the Government will be assigned to the new Minister, and he will be left to initiate such legislative reforms as may be desirable, although the resolution introduced last session for provincial ownership with municipal or rural systems is a probable forecast of his legislative tendencies.

Hon. Mr. Lucas is a native of Lambton County, and is associated in Toronto with the legal firm of Mills, Raney, Hales and Colquhoun. No by-election will be necessary as the new Minister sits without portfolio.

Under authority granted at the last session of the Legislature, the Government will issue at once $3,500,000 thirty-year 4 per cent. bonds.

These bonds, dated June 1, 1909, are issued against the consolidated revenue fund of the province, and will be offered to the public, according to the statement made yesterday by Hon. Col. Matheson, at 102, if the subscription is paid before the end of June, and 102 and accrued interest if paid after that date. Principal and interest will be payable in Toronto and Montreal, and by a convenient arrangement with the Bank of Montreal, at par in New York.

As the bonds will be issued in $1,000 denominations only, those wishing to purchase or have the value of a bond in smaller quantities will receive Ontario Government 4 per cent. stock, the interest on which is payable by check. This stock is similar to bank shares, and is represented by a certificate for the number of shares, which are only transferrable upon the books of the Treasury Department by person or attorney. This stock can be had in multiples of $50, and may be exchanged at any time for bonds.

In making this provision the Provincial Treasurer is following the successful innovation introduced on the former provincial loan of $3,000,000 when over $700,000 was taken out in stock.

No portion of the present issue has been underwritten, the Government expressly reserving this high-class security for the public.

Almost a Tragedy.

Woodstock, Ont., June 4.—Wednesday Peter Poole, his three children and John Markey, editor of The Sentinel-Review, went on a fishing expedition to Hodges' Mill pond, seven miles from the city. Poole slipped and fell into 15 feet of water. The editor jumped in after him and dislocated his shoulder, and both were in a bad way until rescued by a man named Hodges.

An Unlucky Reminder.

Kingston, June 4.—Ald. C. G. Graham, who boasted in council that he had refused to pay a fine of $20, imposed three years ago for encroaching on the street line with a portico, until all such offenders have been treated alike, has been notified by the police that he must pay up or suffer the penalty.

Mortgage on Power Plant.

Buffalo, June 4.—Stockholders of the Niagara Falls Power Co. have authorized the placing of a mortgage, or deed of trust, upon the company's Canadian and American property, rights, privileges and franchise to secure an 8 per cent. bond issue of $25,000,000, payable Jan. 1, 1932.

Held Up on Steamship.

Bordentown, N.J., June 4.—Three men late Wednesday night boarded the steamboat Springfield, plying between Bordentown and Philadelphia, and with clubs, a razor and an axe, held up the purser, firemen and two deck hands, robbing them of watches, other jewelry and clothing.

St. Thomas, June 4.—Mr. Harvey McKenny, a Bayham township farmer, who was attacked and frightfully injured by a bull last week, has succumbed to his injuries.

Czar to Visit King.

St. Petersburg, June 4.—Emperor Nicholas will visit King Edward at Cowes August 2.

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE REPORTS

London Conference May Have Row Over Higher Criticism.

SWEATING THE MINISTERS

Strong Exception Is Taken to Present Gruelling Examination Given to Young Candidates for Pulpits on Orthodoxy — Birks, the New President, at London Raises Question of Belief in Bible.

London, Ont., June 4.—A warm debate on the "Higher Criticism" looks inevitable in London Conference, despite the fact that yesterday morning they tried to avoid it by voting down a resolution to subject all candidates for ordination to an examination as to their theological soundness.

Things promised to be peaceful in this regard until Rev. A. K. Birks pastor of Askin street church, here, in assuming the office of president, to which he was elected yesterday, made some very pointed remarks on the subject. He believed in the old Bible, the whole Bible. He did not cut out any eleventh chapters and was not going to transfer his allegiance to the doctrines that had so prospered the Methodist Church to follow the standards of any man who happened to come to the country.

As the conference is said to be pretty evenly divided on the issue, several of his electors were much incensed at the president's remarks, and it is certain they will talk back when they get an opportunity.

In the discussion yesterday morning, after Rev. J. S. Cooke had moved that a commission be appointed to examine into the theological views of the young men, Rev. J. F. Knight, who two years ago went through a severe examination before the conference at Goderich, challenged Dr. Gundy, who had conducted the examination on that occasion, to answer his own question: "What is your own definition of God?"

"If any man here could answer that question," said Mr. Knight, "I would like to hear it. I went to my circuit after my examination under a strong suspicion of heresy, and I protest that you have no right to impose such a reflection on these men. Surely we can believe in the sincerity of such men as Chancellor Burwash and Dr. Wallace and Prof. Bowles, when they declare the orthodoxy of these young men."

Rev. G. F. Salton, of Stratford supported him, saying:

"It is absolutely unfair to these young men to put them into a sweat-box when they are not expecting it."

A motion by Rev. G. N. Hazen to censor the press reports of the congress was rejected.

Rev. B. G. Greatrix at Belleville.

Belleville, June 4.—From blacksmith's forge to the presidency of the Methodist Conference is the case of Rev. B. G. Greatrix of Belleville, yesterday elected president of the Bay of Quinte conference. On the first ballot, out of 184 votes, Mr. Greatrix received 122.

He said he was proud that the honor had been conferred upon him in the city of Belleville, where, in early life, he had spent some years at the blacksmith's forge.

He was born in London, England, received into the ministry of the Methodist Church in Canada in 1863, and since then has served on eleven different circuits in this conference.

Rev. W. H. Tucker of Oshawa was appointed secretary.

Montreal Methodist Conference.

Pembroke, Ont., June 4.—The ministerial session of the Montreal Methodist Conference closed yesterday afternoon, without any reference having been made in any way to the Dr. Workman case or without any matter of a controversial nature being discussed.

Rev. Dr. Chown, who presided at the public meeting, came out flatfooted on the rivalry between the Methodist and Presbyterian Church. One had to recognize, he said, that the spirit displayed was not one of co-operation, but of competition and rivalry. For instance to Calabogie, near Pembroke, Presbyterians and Methodists each had a man there. Neither was doing much as the field was too small for both, though it could support one. This was not a sane or business way of doing things. Co-operation was necessary to secure results.

Rev. J. W. Smith in Guelph.

Brantford, June 4.—Rev. J. W. Smith, Guelph, who is slated for College avenue Church, Hamilton, was yesterday elected president of Hamilton Conference on the first ballot, securing 175 votes out of 200. C. T. Bennett was elected secretary, and A. T. Terryberry assistant.

The laymen's proposal to extend evangelization of the church by holding more open air meetings in public places was voted down.

Attempt to Wreck Train.

Belleville, June 4.—About six o'clock yesterday morning Morden Bird and Henry Foster, driving out past Corbyville, discovered on the track of the Grand Junction Railway, a large piece of iron bolted down in such a way that the morning passenger train would have been ditched.

Earl Grey Sails To-Day.

Ottawa, June 4.—Earl and Countess Grey left yesterday afternoon for Quebec. The Governor-General will sail to-day for England. Lady Grey will make a brief stay in Quebec.

Sir Charles Fitzpatrick will be the administrator of the Government in the absence of Earl Grey.

Prospector Drowned.

Drydon, Ont., June 4.—Coroner White held an inquest on William Cummins, aged 42, an expert engineer lately residing in Sudbury, and formerly in business in Toronto.

It appeared that Cummins, who came from Hamburg, where his wife and family is, led a party to Albany River in search of a "fabulously rich" mine, which Cummins claimed he had heard of from Indians, but of which no trace could be found.

Tuesday Cummins, who was known as the "brawny Dutchman," was missed, and after several hours' search was found in the water under a high cliff. Medical evidence proved he had drowned, and the jury brought in a verdict "found drowned." It is thought Cummins' find was fictitious.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible tortare, as our thousands of signed testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. John O'Connor, Burlington, N.S., writes:—"For years I suffered with Salt Rheum. I tried a dozen different medicines, but most of them only made it worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and before I had taken half a dozen doses I could see a change so I continued its use and now I am completely cured. I cannot say too much for your wonderful medicine."

Are used up

Miss Ella Weed, of Brownsville, near Woodstock, says:—"I have to thank PSYCHINE for my present health. I could hardly drag myself across the floor. I could not sweep the carpet. If I went for a drive I had to lie down when I came back; if I went for a mile or two on my wheel I was too weak to lift it through the gateway, and last time I came in from having a spell I dropped utterly helpless from fatigue. My father gave me no peace until I procured PSYCHINE, knowing it was excellent for decline or weakness. I must say the results are wonderful and people remarked my improvement.

"Instead of a little, pale, hollow cheeked, listless, melancholy girl, I am to-day full of life, ready for a sleigh ride, a skating match, or an evening party with appetite, and a few months ago I could not struggle to church, 40 rods from my home. I have never had the slightest cause to fear any return of the disease." If you are "All used up" and run down you can be built up in a short time by PSYCHINE. It creates rich, red blood, revives the appetite and transforms a weak into strong healthy beings.

Miss Tiverton's Tea Basket.

By ALICIA SPRAGUE.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

They drank tea at that early hour so that those who were married might get home in time to prepare 6 o'clock dinners for their husbands and that those who were single might be safely housed before the early darkness of the winter evenings.

Miss Tiverton sometimes wished that they might stay later, for it was always a long, lonely stretch between their going and bedtime.

Sometimes Lavinia Greer stayed with her, and on those occasions Lavinia's brother Richard would call at 9. And those were the social oases in Miss Tiverton's desert of dreary evenings.

She always made more tea for Richard and brought out her little sponge cakes. Richard liked the little cakes, and he liked Miss Tiverton's dainty ways, her delicate pink and white prettiness and her pale rose colored house gowns.

Lavinia thought Miss Tiverton very foolish to wear muslin all winter. "Think of the washing!" she said as she and Richard walked home one evening. "And Letitia Tiverton is as poor as Job's turkey."

"She surrounds herself," said Richard musingly, "with an atmosphere of beauty."

Lavinia sniffed. She hated to have her brother say nice things about Letitia Tiverton. Lavinia had kept her brother's house for many years, and it had always been her great duty to nip sentimental affairs in the bud.

Therefore it was many weeks after that ominous remark of Richard's before she again spent an evening with Letitia. She took her work over in the mornings or went to the little tea drinkings, but she did not allow her brother to darken the doors of the little gray cottage.

One day Richard spoke of it mildly. "We haven't been to Miss Tiverton's for a long time," he said—"not, I think, for four weeks tomorrow."

Lavinia gave him a sharp glance. "How did you happen to remember the date?" she asked acidly.

Richard looked at her quizzically over his glasses. "I noted the date in my diary," he said. "I always write down the events of the day, Lavinia." He did not tell her that he had added after the formal statement, "Brought Lavinia home from Miss T.'s," the further comment, "Miss T. looked like a rose in her pink gown."

A week later he urged Lavinia to call. "She will think something is the matter," he said.

Lavinia shrugged her shoulders. "I have been there in the daytime," she said. "I don't see what more she can expect."

Richard thought for a moment. "She has told us that her evenings are lonely," he reminded his sister.

"Humph!" said Lavinia. "I don't know that we are called on to put ourselves out to go there these freezing cold nights."

Richard returned to his book, but after a reasonably judicious interval he looked up to say, "I saw a very pretty tea basket in a shop this morning, Lavinia, padded inside to keep the tea warm"—

"Who wants a thing like that?" Lavinia questioned scornfully. "I always make coffee, Richard."

Richard said nothing more. He loved tea, but Lavinia preferred coffee, and there you were. Yet the next morning he surprised to the flaming Japanese banner, which were displayed native wares to tempt the tourists who were making the old fashioned southern village a halfway stopping place on their way to the tropics.

The tea basket was a quaint affair of oriental weaving with a gay pink satin lining and a green and pink cord and tassel about the handle. The pink made Richard think of Miss Tiverton. With a defiant look he went in and bought the basket and ordered it sent to her.

His heart failed him, however, when the dark skinned salesman asked him for a card to put with the gift.

"Just send it without," he said heartily. Visions of Miss Lavinia's wrath should she know of his purchase came to him oppressively.

The mysterious basket was to little Letitia Tiverton a source of infinite delightful speculation. She displayed it to her afternoon circle, the rose colored lining, the pink cord and tassel, the fine basketry.

"And I can't imagine who sent me such a beautiful thing," she ended radiantly when all had seen it.

At the first glance Lavinia Greer's eyes had hardened. Of all those women she only suspected where that basket had come from. Richard had sent it. This looked seriously like the beginning of a romance that would be most inconvenient to Miss Lavinia.

On the way home she thought over a plan. It was simple. At dinner she told Richard, "Letitia Tiverton was too silly about a basket that some one sent to her."

Richard started, and his face flushed. He realized that Lavinia had put two and two together and had guessed that it was he who had sent the tea basket to Miss Tiverton.

"I wish you had seen her," Lavinia pursued. "I wish you had heard her giggle and boast that you sent it."

Richard turned questioning eyes upon her. "But she did not know that I had sent it," he said. "There was no card, Lavinia."

Lavinia went on hurriedly. "Well, then, she guessed, for she bragged of it, Richard—it—it—it was disgusting." Miss Lavinia's face was a dull red. She did not like what she was doing now that she was doing it. But she was desperate.

"I can't imagine"—Richard's tone was incisive—"I can't imagine, Lavinia, a woman of Miss Tiverton's delicacy doing a thing like that."

Lavinia turned her head. "You don't know much about women, Richard," she retorted.

Richard walked abroad that night consumed by angry doubts. Surely Lavinia would not lie. Surely Miss Tiverton would not brag. His gold headed cane tapped the pavement irresolutely. Then suddenly he strode down the street, irresolute no longer.

Miss Letitia, alone and a little wistful in her small gray cottage, heard the tap of the cane as she had heard it every night when Richard went forth for his evening walk.

Behind her curtains she had watched him regularly and had admired the straightness of him, the briskness of his walk, the brown waves of hair which in defiance of modern fashion he wore so long that it almost touched his coat collar.

It had never dawned on Miss Tiverton that such a great being as Lavinia's brother could look upon her and find her lovely. In her humility she had not dreamed that the basket was an offering from such a source.

She had thought the women of her circle might have clubbed together to bestow on her this gift of friendship, and her effusiveness at the afternoon gathering had been due to her gratitude.

The tap of the gold headed cane doubled right in front of her gate, stopped and began again on the stone walk that led to the front door.

Then the bell rang. Miss Tiverton answered it. Richard stepped over her threshold—for the first time without his sister Lavinia.

"I came," he said when he was seated, "to ask a question, a delicate question, Miss Tiverton. Who sent you your tea basket?"

Miss Letitia's clear eyes met his frankly. "Oh, did Lavinia tell you that one was sent me?" she asked. "It's such a beauty!" And she brought it to him, displaying the rose lining and the tassels.

Richard drew a long breath of relief. The doubts that Lavinia had planted fled. There was nothing of deceit in that childlike soul, in that flowerlike face.

"Miss Letitia," he said, with his hand on the basket, "haven't you guessed who sent it?"

Her puzzled glance met his. "No," she murmured.

"I—I sent it," he confessed, "because it reminded me of you—the rose color and the pink—like your pretty gown, your pretty self, a rose of a woman."

Miss Letitia stood half poised for flight. "Oh!" she said breathlessly, and her eyes were like stars. "Oh, Mr. Greer!"

Richard grew bolder. "I sent it because I love you, Letitia. There is no happiness that could exceed that of winning you for my wife."

It came upon little Letitia almost too suddenly, that vision of happiness, and she swayed toward him, looking just then more like a lily than a rose, and the tea basket dropped from her nerveless hand.

Richard caught it deftly as he drew her to him. "You will pour tea for me, won't you," he demanded, trying to bring the color back to her cheeks, "for the rest of my days, Letitia? Lavinia gives me coffee—but, then, oh, hang Lavinia! Will you marry me, sweetheart?"

NOT A NEW IDEA.

Woman's Rights Not an Entirely Modern Development.

The agitation for woman's rights is not entirely a modern development. There was similar clamor during the days of the Roman republic, and the leading men of that time were much concerned about it.

Gaston Boissier of the French academy in his interesting work on "Cicero and His Friends" thus speaks of the growth of woman's influence in Rome:

"In a country where the family was respected, as it was at Rome, women could not fail to be of much importance. It was impossible that their influence, which was already so great within the house, should not attempt to shew itself outside, and the honorable place they held in private life must one day tempt them to invade public life also. The ancient Romans, so jealous of their authority, had the consciousness of this danger and neglected nothing to defend themselves against it. We know how they effected to treat women. There was no sort of unkind remarks they did not make about them. They got them attacked on the stage and mocked them even in their political speeches."

Cato probably was the most bitter enemy of the "new woman" of his time. He watched the growth of her influence in fear for the effect which it was likely to have upon the state of society and the government of the republic.

"Remember," Livy makes him say, apropos of the Lex Oppia, "all those regulations our ancestors made to subject wives to their husbands. Shackled as they are, you have trouble to manage them. What will happen if you give them their liberty, if you allow them to enjoy the same rights as yourselves? Do you think you will then be their masters? The day they become your equals they will become your superiors."

Is it the Catonian fear which leads so many men of the day to oppose equal rights for women?

CALLING CARDS.

New Styles Demand Thinner Pasteboard Than Last Year.

The size, shape and style of cards are slightly different this season.

A thin, flexible pasteboard is used, so that a number of cards may be carried at once without undue bulk.

A woman's card is almost if not quite square, while a man's is fully as long and but half the depth.

A married woman never uses her Christian or given name on her card. She always uses her husband's name, and that is spelled out in full.

Since a widow's name is identified with that of her husband, she retains that same card after her widowhood.

The fashion for divorcees is to prefix their married name by that to which they were born, as, Mrs. Jones Robinson or Mrs. Mary Jones Robinson, it being understood that Jones is her maiden name.

On the lower right hand corner of a woman's card goes the address, and now it is fashionable to have the residence number spelled out in full, even if two lines have to be used.

In the opposite corner is engraved the receiving day, no hours being mentioned, as it is understood that formal visits are received in the afternoon.

A man's card carries his name in full, prefixed by Mr., but it is not considered correct for a man to have professional degrees indicated on his calling cards used for social life only.

A Family Affair.

"Cordelia," ordered the teacher, "throw that gum in the waste basket!"

The pupil's face grew scarlet, but she did not stir.

"If you do not put that gum in the waste basket immediately I will send you out of the room," said the teacher gravely.

The girl walked reluctantly to the desk. "I can't, teacher," she confessed. "It's ma's gum, an' she'll lick me if I go home without it."

An Aged Vagrant.

Mrs. Sarah Ellen Carr, aged 104, was given a month in the Frontenac county jail for vagrancy recently. She has been cared for at the Old People's Home, but steals away and roams the streets whenever she gets a chance. She is still hale and hearty.

To Clean Hot Water Bottles.

A rubber hot water bottle is easily cleaned. Wash it well with lukewarm water and soap, rubbing on the soap with a piece of flannel.

MEN WELL GROOMED.

Exactness of Detail the Secret of Success.

At a recent luncheon a member of the fair sex was discussed, and all conceded she was a "perfectly groomed woman."

"It isn't because of fine raiment," said one.

"Perhaps not," remarked another. "Why is it, then?" chimed in a third, and the fourth settled the debate. "It's because she pays such attention to detail."

If all women realized what this meant more would earn the distinction of being well groomed. The exactness of detail is a wonderful thing toward making a woman appear well groomed.

The careless woman is much in evidence, and frequently she is among the wealthy. Yet her sister not financially so well to do makes a better showing on a much less expenditure of money, and all because she looks carefully after the minutiæ of the toilet. There is a knack in getting things on well and keeping them so. The woman whose heel is run over cannot attract any more favorable attention than the one whose braid on the bottom of her gown is frayed.

It is the little things which make one noticeable. How often a well gowned woman will be seen whose richness of toilet attracts all eyes, yet the otherwise perfect picture is spoiled by straggling locks of hair falling in disorderly fashion over the back of her neck. A hairpin would have adjusted the trouble, but lack of exactness to detail spoiled the whole costume.

It is downright laziness with many women, this overlooking of the little things in life. They feel too much effort is called into play to stop and properly adjust at the time the small essentials that go to make a perfectly groomed woman. This failing will crop out in women who have everything to make themselves attractive, and nicety to detail will be found in many who have a difficult time in "making ends meet."

But it is just this quality which makes others class them among the "perfectly groomed;" also makes them more noticeable than the women of wealth. A small rip in a glove will spoil a rich costume, as will also a veil with a noticeable hole in it. Such a veil will even mar a beauty.

On rainy days the woman lacking this essential quality of detail is even more noticeable, for she dons a costume, usually any kind of a one, and saunters forth. She is less likely to be particular than on a bright day, and her indifference to minor detail makes her anything but an attractive object. She feels the rainy day is an excuse for her costume and instead of dispelling some of its gloom only adds to it by failing to make herself an attractive object rather than the reverse.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

A large pinch of salt put in the tank of a coal oil lamp will cause it to give a better light.

Try a little lemon and salt mixed the next time a price mark sticks to the bottom of china dishes or bric-a-brac.

Instead of adding bluing to water in which lace has been rinsed try making the final rinsing in milk. It gives a lovely creamy tone to the lace.

A little muriatic acid added to the rinsing water after a blue and white fiber rug is scrubbed with soap and water will help to restore the color.

The easiest way to clean a cereal cooker is to turn it upside down in a pan of boiling water and steam it until the sticky mass is soft and loosened from the sides of the pan.

If your lamp smokes or gives a poor light it may come from clogged pipes. Take the lamp apart, boil the burner in soda water and pour hot water through connecting rods and tubes.

Do not put a tomato aspic to harden in a tin or iron baking pan. The acid in the jelly acts on the tin and makes the salad taste, while the black pan gives an unsightly black rim to the aspic.

A sticky cake or bread pan should not be cleaned with a knife or anything which will scratch the surface and make sticking more probable thereafter. For this reason the crust of bread often advised as a cleaner is not desirable.

Balance in Furniture.

To lay down a set of rules for arranging the furniture in any room is obviously impossible, as fitments differ so radically. But there are certain things that can be done successfully with furniture and others that spoil the appearance of the most expensively fitted up apartment. First and foremost of these is to "balance" a room, meaning by that not to get all the heavy pieces or all the large pictures on one side. If, for example, there is a large sofa against one wall, across from it there should be a table or something like that to preserve the equalities. It need not be exactly across, but somewhere on the other side, to avoid looking as though, were the floor swung one side, it would go down and the other come up. In rearranging a room the rugs, if any are used, should be taken up and the floors left so that the chairs, etc., can be easily moved to experiment for the best placing.

Ancient Cats.

Experts have held that the so called "cat" of the ancient Romans and Greeks ("ailurus," the wavy tailed one) was not a cat at all, but a kind of weasel. The mummified Egyptian animal, however, was a genuine cat, even if certain peculiarities about its teeth make it difficult to regard it as a near relative of the modern domestic puss.

The Red Haired Club.

In Vienna there is a Red Haired club, and to prevent fraudulent admissions every candidate is obliged to wash his head thoroughly in hot water and soda before the committee.

Almond Eyes Newest Whim.

One of the queerest fashions that have ever been known to society is revealed by the facial expressions of the "lazy rich." The eyes long have had much attention, and at times they were lowered, showing only a little glimpse of the pupils. At other times it was the custom to have them wide open, like those of a country girl. Now certain well known society women have decided that almond shaped eyes are the perfection of beauty, and for that reason many women have marked their orbs with black to give them the appearance of Japanese eyes. Perhaps they have not as decided an oval turn as those of the little brown women, but it is certain from what has been seen of several women recently there may be physicians who give almond shaped eyes to beauty seekers. Such optics are said by those who model the recent queer dresses of women to suit the svelte form much better than the honest, round, open eye. The Gibson eye was down so much that the full length of the long eyelashes was seen to advantage. It is said Philip Boileau is partly responsible for the almond shaped eye that has taken women by storm.

The queen of Siam has one of the finest collections of jewels in the world. The walls of her bedroom are said to be fairly ablaze with precious stones.

SOME METHODS OF HOG FEEDING

From Farm and Dairy.

Farm and Dairy, as outlined May 13th, has been corresponding with a large number of pork producers in connection with the present state of the pork industry. A particularly interesting and valuable feature of the replies have been those relating to the question, "How do you feed hogs?" The following are extracts from the replies of those who claim to have made a profit from feeding hogs last year.

PROFITABLE HOG FEEDING

"Our hogs are fed principally roots in the winter; in the summer we sow the orchard with rape and let some of them feed on it all the time."—W. A. Martin, Hastings Co., Ont. It should be stated in this case that the hogs kept are pure bred and that they are sold for breeding purposes as far as possible as soon as they are weaned.

"We feed corn, potatoes and shorts together with home grown grains."—D. Dixon, Argenteuil Co., Que.

"We have raised hogs at a profit through raising sugar beets or mangels for them. We feed them skim milk, butter milk, middlings and roots to start them growing. Later on after they are three months old we feed them ground grain and whey. We finish through the last month with corn meal."—Jacob Dillon, Leeds Co., Ont.

"We buy all the feed for our hogs except whey and skim milk. We have never used a pasture for them but we intend to make use of pasture this year. Our hogs are fed milk, shorts and feed flour mixed with water in a slop. This is allowed to soak from one meal until the next. This is fed until the hogs weigh about 120 pounds, then dried corn meal is added to this mixture and the hogs are fed all they will eat."—Owen Cougler, Dundas Co., Ont.

"We feed our hogs skim milk from the separator, shorts and low grade flour."—G. B. Fellows, Oxford Co., Ont.

"We grow everything we feed. Nothing goes off our farm except what can walk off. We start our hogs on separated skim milk, roots and chop. Their summer feed consists merely of pickings in the apple orchard and chop to sustain them."—A. B. Book, Lincoln Co., Ont.

SMALL PROFITS

From replies received from correspondents who claim to have made a very small profit, the following extracts are taken as to how they fed their hogs: "We feed whey in which is mixed shorts after the pigs have been first given a good start on milk. Nubbins of corn from the silo are made use of to some extent, and for a meal ration, we buy mill feeds."—A subscriber.

"During the past year, I have found the margin of profit too small to make hog feeding interesting. As a consequence, I have cut my herd down to about one half of what I could turn off without buying any mill feed. Our system has been to grow mostly pigs farrowed in August or September. We get them started on dairy by-products before winter. We finish them on grass and a little grain. We run them through the winter on silage and skim milk until we get them growing nicely and turn them off about June with grain and alfalfa. For a number of years, we have marketed from 100 to 200 that have been fitted in this way and with very satisfactory results."—T. L. Dunkin, Oxford Co., Ont.

"We place the meal for hogs in a trough dry and pour the drink on it. We feed low grade flour and ground oats. We grow all the feed we can and buy the balance of what is required."—J. F. Carl, Welland Co., Ont.

WANT MORE THAN "HUSKS."

"We feed grain grown on the farm, small quantites of shorts and to our small pigs at weaning time, we also give skim milk, whey and pasture such as corn and rape. We do not feed more than 40 in the year. We lost money on them in the winter of '07 and '08, and have only about 20 on hand now. If manure is a profit, then we have made profit in feeding hogs. If not, then our profits are a minus quantity. Farmers are beginning to feel that they are no longer Prodigal Sons and they are not content with the husks alone when it comes to hog feeding."—W. A. Hambley, Norfolk Co., Ont.

"We grow peas to feed our hogs and buy mill feed to grow them on. We feed shorts and bran in equal parts, soaked in water and swill from the house; also all the separated milk that I have to spare after feeding the calves. Ground oats and peas are fed at the evening meal. We have made a profit on our hogs but it was a very small one."—J. B. Cowieson, York Co., Ont.

The following reply was received from a correspondent who had made no profit in raising hogs the past year. "We buy mill feed for our hogs and feed it with corn chop, skim milk or water. We are keeping no hogs at present. There is not over one third as many hogs in our district as there were last year."—V. J. Chaplin, Northumberland Co., Ont.

A correspondent from Saskatchewan has the following to say: "I have had about enough of hog raising. Six cents a pound dead weight all through the past winter is all right for those who like it but it does not suit me."—G. Boerma, Saskatchewan District, Sask.

From the foregoing, it can be seen at a glance that where hog raising has been carried on at a profit, cheap feeds are relied on and recourse is had to by-products of the dairy, roots, silage, pasture and home grown grains. Almost invariably where millfeeds are used, even to a limited extent, those who have used them, figure their profits near the vanishing point, if any at all.

FIGURING VALUE OF BUTTER FAT

From Farm and Dairy.

Kindly tell me the way to figure up butter fat: say, 100 lbs. milk tests three per cent. butter fat. Cheese sells at 11c a lb. In what way would you figure out the amount? Please make it plain.—H. G. H., Lakehurst, Ont.

Cheese factory proceeds are usually divided on a basis of each month's business. In making a division of factory proceeds on a "straight fat" basis, first determine the total pounds of milk and the total pounds of fat delivered by each patron during the month. If only one fat test is made each month the amount of fat delivered by a patron is determined by multiplying the total pounds of milk delivered by him during the month, by the percentage of fat in his milk and dividing the product of this multiplication by one hundred. In case the test is made twice during the month each patron's milk should be totalled separately for each half of the month and the pounds of fat delivered by him during each half of the month determined as outlined above. By adding the two results together we get the total pounds of fat delivered by the patron during the month. The practise of determining the fat delivered by a patron during a month by using the average of two tests is not by any means accurate.

Next, find the total pounds of milk and of fat received at the factory during the month, also the total pounds of cheese made and sold and the gross proceeds derived therefrom. From the gross proceeds deduct the manufacturing expense and any other expenses borne by the patrons, such as insurance on cheese, salary of secretary, treasurer or salesman. This gives the net proceeds to be divided among the patrons. Divide the net proceeds by the total pounds of fat received by the factory during the month, to get the net price per pound of fat. This price should be carried to two decimal places. Determine the amount of money due to each patron by multiplying the pounds of fat delivered by each by the net price per pound of fat.

If we total the money thus paid out we will usually find it a few cents short of the net proceeds. This is because the net price per pound of fat is not carried to a final decimal. These few cents that are thus left in the treasury should be added in with the next month's proceeds.

1. The total pounds of milk delivered by the patron during the month.
2. The percentage of fat in the milk.
3. The total pounds of fat delivered by the patron.
4. The net price per pound of fat.
5. The money due to the patron.
6. The average selling price per pound of cheese, found by dividing the total pounds of cheese into the gross proceeds.
7. The average pounds of milk required to make a pound of cheese, found by dividing the total pounds of cheese into the total pounds of milk.
8. The average pounds of cheese derived from a pound of fat, found by dividing the total pounds of fat into the total pounds of cheese.
9. The average net price per hundred pounds, per ton or per standard of milk, found by dividing the total pounds of milk into the net proceeds and multiplying the result by 100 or 2,000 or 3,000 as the case may be.—G. G. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor for Eastern Ontario.

GROWING STRAWBERRIES.

From Farm and Dairy.

As the season for planting strawberries is near at hand, and as the time for harvesting from the old patch will soon follow, the following pointers on strawberry culture given by Mr. Farnsworth, a prominent grower in the state of Ohio, at a meeting of the Niagara District Fruit Growers' Association held yast year, will be of value.

"The soil for strawberries should be well prepared," said Mr. Farnsworth. "It should be filled with fertility and thoroughly drained. This berry is a rank feeder. To give advice on varieties is almost impossible as a certain kind that do well in one locality may be utter failures in others. Consult successful growers in your neighborhood and take their advice on this point.

"Strawberry growers who use plants from their own beds for setting out their new plantations should have a bed set aside for this purpose. When planting time comes, dig the entire bed and select the best plants. When planting, clip off a small portion of the roots. A portion of the leaves should also be cut off. Set the plants at a proper depth neither too deep nor too shallow. Have the crown of the plant at the surface of the ground. Pack the earth firmly about the roots.

"Start shallow cultivation at once, remove the fruit buds. When hoeing, place the runners along the rows at more or less equal distances apart. When the runners become too plentiful, cut some of them off. Sharpen the back of the hoe for this purpose. The plants should not be crowded. Thin out the heavy plant setting varieties in the fall.

"As soon as the ground is frozen late in the fall, mulch the patch with wheat straw. Take this off early in the spring and leave part of it between the rows. It does not pay to fruit a strawberry bed for more than one year.

"When harvesting the berries, handle them as tenderly as eggs. They will not stand rough treatment. Do not cap the top of the baskets with the best berries and do not put in the baskets green berries or trash. Berries should go on the market in such a condition that passers by will stop and look at them whether they intend to buy or not. Good berries well packed always command a good price. Have an honest package and guarantee the product from top to bottom."

THE SWINE COMMISSION

From Farm and Dairy.

The Dominion Government's action in having decided to appoint a Commission to enquire into the Bacon Industry of Great Britain, Ireland and Denmark is commendable. The success of the commission will depend on the character of the men of which it is composed. It is essential, therefore that the men who are appointed shall be practical men having a full knowledge of all the details of breeding and feeding hogs in this country. They should be men of well known ability and of the highest character so that their findings will carry weight with Canadian farmers.

The commission should consist of at least five men. Five are none too many to conduct so important an enquiry.

Every opportunity should be given the Commission to secure the fullest information possible in Canada before starting for Europe. The members of the commission should arrange to hold several sittings in Canada for the gathering of information from our farmers and packers. They should visit our leading Canadian packing plants and, also, endeavor to ascertain why the co-operative plants failed.

When the commission have made their report, every effort should be exerted to place the information it contains before the farmers of Canada. This can be done by means of bulletins, addresses at the Farmers' Institutes, and through the agricultural press. If deemed advisable a campaign similar to that carried on through the Institutes, ten or twelve years ago, in regard to the bacon industry, and which met with such gratifying success, might be conducted. The value of the findings of the commission will depend upon the publicity they are given.

SHORT WEIGHT CHEESE.

From Farm and Dairy.

John Riddle, Peterboro Co., Ont.

A matter that should not go unnoticed is the recent complaints of shrinkage in Canadian cheese that have been placed in the Old Country market. Reports have it that some cheese delivered on the English market has been as much as 10 pounds short in weight. As it has been the practice of the Peterboro board not to ship cheese until at least 10 to 15 days old, this complaint can not apply to Peterboro cheese. Cured cheese, only, has gone on the market from the Peterboro board and such could not shrink that much. It shows, however, the great need of care in properly boxing and marketing the cheese.

We must aim to give our customers as few reasons as possible for complaint. We should put it before the Old Country market that Peterboro stands against shipping green cheese and that we should not be classed with those sections that do. The Peterboro board has set itself a high standard and it should and will reap its reward.

If Your Trouble comes from the Kidneys, or from Kidney Poisons in the Blood,

YES!

And if you have been ailing a long time don't lose your courage. It takes a little time—takes some constitutions longer than others. But Doan's Kidney Pills will gradually drain the poisons out of your system; the pain in your back will stop; the sediment in the urine will cease; there will be no rheumatic pains; you will feel freer and brighter, and when the last of the poisons have gone you will be well.

There is no way of getting the kidney poisons out of the system except through the kidneys, and no medicine so effective in taking them out as Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mr. W. Perkins, South Maitland, N.S., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know of the great cure I have obtained by using Doan's Kidney Pills. For six months I could not obtain a good night's rest, had to get up four or five times to urinate, and the urine was very thick and red. I commenced using Doan's Kidney Pills and in a very short time I was right and fit again. I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure."

A REPUTATION TO GUARD.

From Farm and Dairy.

"All directly interested in the dairy industry of the Peterboro district, and especially the cheese makers in the district have something to guard," sad Mr. G. A. Gillespie, the well known cheese buyer of Peterboro in addressing the cheese makers convention recently held in Peterboro. "We are starting on another year. I hope it will be a good one. Last year was probably the best year experienced in this district. From what I know of Peterboro cheese and of cheese from other districts as it goes into Montreal, I believe that we have a right to state that Peterboro cheese is second to none, be it from Eastern or Western Ontario. This means something to us. Others are after our reputation. We must guard it.

"There is no reason why we should not have even a better year this season. As the standard is raised, closer inspection follows. Each year sees the standard being set higher. It is up to every maker to do the best he can under his conditions.

"While in Montreal last fall," continued Mr. Gillespie, "I noticed many cheese that were loose in the boxes. One could slip his hand between the cheese and the box. While such carelessness and minor defects of the cheese will pass when the market is buoyant, they cannot when the market pinches. All work should be done well. Finishing, boxing and branding on any lots of cheese all count when they are opened up on the market."

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Russia has decided to prohibit the profession of atheism.

A negro, who shot a circus hand at Frankfort, Ky., was taken from jail Wednesday night and lynched.

The Department of Justice is being asked for commutation of sentence passed on Salem Assely, who is to hang at Hawkesbury on July 23.

Nearly seventy delegates to represent Britain at the International Council of Women in Toronto, sailed on the Laurentic yesterday from Liverpool.

The president of the Kingston Street Railway Co., H.W. Richardson, opposes the running of Sunday cars, while W. F. Nickle, M.P.P., the secretary-treasurer, favors it.

The Atlantic Coast from Maine to Florida will soon be protected from foreign invasion, by a squadron of dirigible balloons if Congress can be brought to see the necessity and value of such defence.

New Commerce Building.

Montreal, June 4.—Probably the proudest man in Montreal yesterday was Byron E. Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who was present at the opening of its new $750,000 bank building on St. James street.

President Walker said they had been called extravagant, but he did not think so. They thought they had a very large office in Winnipeg, and it had not been standing three years when it was found to be too small, and an addition will have to be made.

He also announced that they would probably establish a new trust company some time soon, the lower part of the bank building being admirably suited for that purpose.

"Amazing Misconceptions."

London, June 4.—R. L. Borden, in an article in The Standard of Empire, calls attention to striking mis-statements regarding Canada contained in a recent treatise entitled "The Struggle for American Independence." Sydney George Fisher, the author of the treatise, declared that English colonists are still at best exactly what John Adams and Hamilton over a hundred years ago described as political slaves, and that the control of the British Government over Canada is far more absolute than it was before the American revolution.

Mr. Borden describes these statements as "amazing misconceptions."

THE FUTURE OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

Presbyterians Vigorously Debate Freeing of University.

OLD GUARD IS OPPOSED

Principal Gordon Champions the Release of the University From Denominational Trammels While Rev. Dr. Campbell Leads the Group Who Want to Retain It For Training of Ministers.

Hamilton, June 4.—Before it had time to settle down properly to work the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church yesterday found itself plunged into the heat of a controversy which aroused the fighting blood of the old guard of the Church, and recalled some of the assembly battles of former times. The relationship of Queen's University to the Presbyterian Church was the issue thus early forced upon the attention of the fathers and brethren, and, as was expected, it gave rise to a debate that was vigorous throughout and at times warm. In their report the trustees of the university submitted a resolution requesting the assembly to assent to the removal from the charter of such denominational restrictions as might impede the development of the university, and to appoint a commission to co-operate with the board of trustees in regard to such changes.

It fell to Principal D. M. Gordon to present the resolution, and in a speech of marked ability and moderation he almost succeeded in persuading the assembly to accept, without further consideration, its proposals. With a lucidity and sequence which compelled the attention of a crowded and expectant house he traced the evolution of Queen's University from its nakedly denominational position to the status of a national institution.

Such was the effect of the principal's speech that for a few moments it seemed as if the assembly would accept it. Rev. Dr. Campbell, the clerk, however, sounded the first note of opposition. He regarded the proposals as the first step towards the separation of the church from the university, and in this view he was supported by, among others, Rev. Dr. Armstrong, Ottawa; Mr. G. M. Macdonnell, K.C., who made a vigorous protest against what he conceived to be an attempt to interfere with the church's control over the training of men for the ministry. As an amendment, he moved that, while reaffirming the resolutions of 1904 and 1908, the assembly appoint a commission to consider the advisability of limiting the relationship between the church and the university to the departments of arts and theology. To these two faculties, he maintained, the church must hold firmly. Among those who supported the resolution were Prof. Jordan, Mr. J. K. Macdonald, Toronto, and two other elders. The debate will be resumed to-day. The evening session was devoted to home missions. Keen disappointment was expressed at the inadequacy of the church's support, but inspiring speeches by Revs. Dr. E. R. MacFarlane, giving accounts of the splendid work being accomplished in the home mission fields, supplied a note of relief.

Says Dam Is Badly Damaged.

Montreal, June 4.—A special from Mexico says: "The real story of the break in the Necaxa Dam of the Mexico Power Co., in which so many Canadians are financially interested, has been suppressed. There is every reason to believe that the dam has been destroyed and the damage in consequence will be enormous. Further reliable details will be cabled later.

R. Wood, who is on the directorate of the company, says that the despatch is "utter rot."

Death of Hon. G. A. Nantel.

Montreal, June 4.—Hon. G. A. Nantel, died yesterday. He was a journalist, lawyer and politician. Welcome to Mackenzie King.

Berlin, June 4.—A large and representative gathering of citizens was at the station yesterday afternoon to greet Hon. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor, upon his arrival from Ottawa. An address of welcome was given by Mayor Hahn.

Mr. King after expressing thanks for the reception, said he felt that in choosing him as Minister of Labor the Premier, while perhaps having in mind the fact that he had been identified for some years past with labor and social questions, had sought particularly to honor the good old riding of North Waterloo, and its splendid position amongst the industrial centres of the Dominion.

Wheat Going West.

New York, June 4.—For the first time in history wheat has been shipped back from New York to the west for consumption. Recent inquiries have been received from as far away as Texas for New York red wheat. Already two boat loads are en route from here to Buffalo, four more are loading and some shipments have been made by rail. This unusual action is made possible by the great scarcity of cash wheat all through the west. No. 2 red sold here yesterday at $1.47, and $1.50 was asked at the close.

Attacked the Guard.

Moosejaw, Sask., June 4.—William Duff, under trial here for horse-stealing, made a desperate effort to escape yesterday. RICHARD HALL & SON'S $50,000 REDUCTION SALE

A Niagara-Like Outpouring of Bargains in High-Class Merchandise—Begins To-morrow Morning

Notwithstanding the large volume of dry goods merchandise that have been offered to the Peterborough public at mutilated prices this season, it would seem as if no parallel can be found that will compare with the extraordinary outpouring of bargains in Richard Hall & Sons' $50,000 reduction sale, announced in to-day's Examiner. The firm's large splendidly illustrated and effectively worded advertisement, is a typical illustration of forceful advertising, and is appropriately styled "A Niagara-like Outpouring of Bargains." The sacrifice of original prices is remarkable and must prove tempting to the most alert and industrious seeker after "best values."

This trade event lays low the prices in all the departments of this resourceful store, and cannot fail to prove successful in accomplishing quickly what is aimed at, viz:—the reduction of their splendidly assorted stock to the lowest minimum.

The character of Richard Hall & Son's dress goods, silks, ready-to-wear garments, millinery, summer dresses and wash suits, white goods, floor coverings, etc., are generally spoken of among women as being in a class by themselves. Its high-class merchandise is what always has and always will stamp the character of this store. It must therefore be a genuine satisfaction to buyers at this sale to know that when Richard Hall and Son's store advertises savings, they can always be depended upon and can be realised to the last copper's worth.

Read to-day's full page advertisement. It is brimful of news for the summer buyer. Nothing more need be said. It has the ring of a truthful business announcement, without any apparent price exaggeration, and will undoubtedly prove an opportune saving event to hundreds of housekeepers in Peterborough.

One important thing aimed at by this firm is the wholesale reduction of stock prior to the departure of Mr. S. Dickson Hall, their European buyer, who is soon to start for Europe—about the beginning of July.

COLLEGIATE CADETS MAKE FINE SHOWING AT INSPECTION

Peterborough's Student-Soldiers Gave a Good Account of Themselves This Morning Before Lt.-Col. Hemming—Company and Battalion Movements Were Smartly Executed—Praise for the Cadets.

The annual inspection of the Cadet Corps of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute held this morning at Riverside Park was a singular demonstration of the efficiency of the corps and the capable and painstaking work of the drill instructor, Lieut. J. E. Hodgson. The work of the one hundred and twenty boys on parade was executed with a soldierly precision and a snappy vim that would have done credit to any militia regiment. The boys carried themselves smartly, marched exceedingly well and executed the manoeuvres of Company and Battalion drill in a manner that reflected most favourably upon themselves, their officers and their instructor. The discipline was splendid. "The silence in the ranks is remarkable," said the inspecting officer during the inspection and throughout the drill, which lasted for over an hour, the cadets bore themselves like well-drilled soldiers.

The corps was formed at the Collegiate Institute and marched to Riverside Park via Water and Hunter streets at 11 o'clock. At the reviewinging grounds Lt.-Col. Hemming, the inspecting officer, accompanied by Lieut.-Col. Miller, of the 57th, Majors Bennett, Clegg, and Hayes, Lieut. Higgins and other local officers were awaiting their arrival. Rev. Canon Davidson, Chaplain of the 57th Regiment, Mr. R. Fair and other members of the Board of Education were also in attendance, and the girls of the Collegiate turned out in full force for the ceremony, while the members of the staff were interested spectators. The cadets were thoroughly inspected by Lt.-Col. Hemming. Under the command of Cadet Major Hall they performed a number of battalion manoeuvres in a most creditable manner. Then the Captains took command of the respective companies and demonstrated their own and their men's knowledge of drill. All 4 companies made an excellent showing. The section commanders were then given a chance to show what they could do with their sections and the inspection was concluded with the march past, which was splendidly executed.

Lieut.-Col. Hemming addressed the cadets briefly at the conculsion of the inspection. He congratulated the officers on the manner in which they handled their men, and the latter for the splendid showing they had made. The Peterborough Cadet Corps had not gone back any since he had inspected them here last summer, and he was klad to inform them that they would be gazetted as a battalion in a very short time. Lieut. Hodgson was to be congratulated upon the fine work of the body of which he was the instructor. In conclusion he informed the cadets that they would have a half-holiday this afternoon, a statement that was enthusiticlly received.

It my not be generally known that the Peterborough Cadet Corps is the largest in the province and its efficiency is remarkable in view of the strength of the organization. In other Collegiates a selection is made of a few of the best boys to form the corps, but all the male members of the local Collegiate Institute drill with the Cadets.

Major Harry Hall in command.

Adjutant, Max Dobbin.

No. 1 Company—Captain, M. O'Brien, Lieutenants W. Fortye, and W. Adamson.

No. II. Company—Capt. Arthur Roseboro; Lieutenants, J. K. Harstone, and H. McGill.

No. 3 Company — Captain Stewart Anderson; Lieutenants, J. Brightman, and Harold Matthews.

No. 4 Company — Captain Harold Brown; Lieutenants, A. Primeau and C. Moore.

Gordon Campbell Has Made A Splendid Showing At Trinity

Port Hope, June 3.—The annual Trinity College sports, held yesterday on the college campus, were a great success, socially and otherwise. Maynard won the all-round championship, winning first in the jumps and second in the sprints. Campbell took second honours. Several school records were broken. The results of the more important events:

Quarter-mile—Campbell, Maynard, 60 2-5.

The all-round cup was held last year by Campbell.

Gordon Campbell, who smashed two school records, is a son of Mr. Peter Cambell, Manager of the Bank of Toronto. Apart from his studies during his past years at Trinity he has always occupied a prominent place in the athletics of the College. He is an all-round athlete and has proven his ability on the baseball, rugby, cricket and hockey teams. Several proud championships have been brough back to Port Hope by teams of which "Gord." was captain. It is understood that this is his last year at Port Hope, and his future at one of the colleges should find him again prominently identified with athletics.

W. A. Talbot Donates Box Of Cigars For First Home Run Among Seniors

The Senior City Leaguers will be pleased to learn that in W. A. Talbot's Tobacco store there is a box of good cigars, for the man who scores the first home run. Mr. Talbot, who has on former ocasions extended a similar inducement to encourage the Marathon hitters to do their best has made the league the generous offer of a fine box of the best weeds and his gift has been gratifully received. The members of the Big Four teams will doubtless do their best to conect with a shoot that will land those cigars. In the Intermediate League last year Bill Shaw, of the Strathconas drove out a long one that brought him home but it was not allowed as a hit. The umpire in these games will of course decide upon a home run hit.

Surveyors For Cobourg-Peterboro' Railway Are Approaching City

According to the Cobourg papers, the Cobourg Radial Railway has commenced the preliminary work of laying their lines to Peterborough. Several months ago there was considerable talk about the two companies, which were seeking charters. One was for a line to Havelock, and the other to this city. Both charters were granted, and since that time there has been little or no news from either of the concerns. Regarding the line now spoken of it is stated that the surveyors have completed their survey form Cobourg to Plainville on Rice Lake, and are coming on towards Peterborough, expecting to reach here in a week or so. The paper also states that it has been reported that on the completion of the surveyors' work the contracts will be let for the grading, etg., and the erection of the line will be gone on with

DIED VERY SUDDENLY

Mr. Robert Walsh, 215 Murray Street, Found Dead Sitting in His Chair by His Daughter on Her Return From School.

FUNERAL TO-MORROW.

With unexpected suddenness came the death of Mr. Robert Walsh at his home at 215 Murray St., yesterday afternoon. No one was with Mr. Walsh at the time of his demise. His daughter, on returning from school, shortly after four o'clock, found him dead in his chair. Just what time he passed away is not exactly known. The late Mr. Walsh was in failing health for some time, but yesterday he was up and around and appeared to be feeling better. The deceased had just quietly slept away.

Mr. Walsh was in his fifty-fifth year and was a life-long resident of Peterborough. He was a man highly respected and esteemed by all who knew him.

For several years he has been caretaker of Murray Street Baptist church. He was well known in the city and had many friends.

He is survived by a wife, two sons, Charles and Thomas, and one daughter, Lulu, all living at home. One brother, John, resides in New York.

The funeral will take place to-morrow at 3 o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake Cemetery.

ANNUAL OUTING OF THE OLYMPICS

Will be Held on Thursday, June 12th, to Stony Lake.

The annual excursion of the Olympics will be held on Thursday, June 10th, to Stony Lake. This event formally opens the excursion season, and if the scenery and natural beauty of the lakes are at their best, the Olympics announce it such for they appreciate the aesthetic and also pay marked attention to the Kaleidoscopic panorama viewed from the steamer's deck. Dinner will be had at Buckhorn and the usual amusements enjoyed there. The trip should be as enjoyable as others, and the members hope it will be a little drier.

Last year the day was wet, the weather man having frowned instead of smiled.

BODY OF UNKNOWN MAN IS FOUND FLOATING IN THE RIVER

Had Been in the Water Since Some Time During the Winter According to the Clothing on the Remains—Coroner Gray Will Open an Inquest This Evening—A Gruesome Find.

The body of an unknown man was found floating in the Otonabee River not far from Fraserville last night at dusk by Mr. Jas. Latimer, a farmer residing on the west side of the river. The man had evidently been dead for months and so far there is no clue to his identity. Mr. Latimer had occasion to be near the river and noticed the body. He telephoned to Peterborough this morning and notified Coroner Dr. Gray. The latter instructed County Constable Cochrane to drive down and remove the body from the water. Mr. Cochrane left at 11 o'clock, and word was received from him just before going to press, that no one had recognised the man.

He had evidently gotten into the river during the winter, as he wore heavy clothing. He had on two coats, buttoned up tightly and wore mits and rubbers. The body was that of a man well up in years. Constable Cochrane had the body taken from the river and removed to the residence of Mr. Jas. Latimer, where Coroner Gray will empanel a jury and conduct an inquest to-night.

The Work The Children's Aid Society Has Done In City Of London

At the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society, of Sarnia, held on Friday evening, Nov. 20, 1908, Sheriff Cameron, of London, gave an excellent address, which is summarized as follows:

In London he had been closely identified with the Children's Aid Society for a number of years, was heartily in sympathy with it and considered it of permanent importance. In the 15 years of their society's existence they had placed in foster homes 200 children, giving them continued guardianship and care. In demonstrating the need of such an organization as the Children's Aid Society he said that though there were hospitals, houses of refuge, orphanages, benevolent societies and churches, until the Children's Protection Act was passed in 1893 no adequate provision had been made for safeguarding the welfare of the neglected children of our province. Since that time over 5,000 children had been rescued and placed in foster home in the province. Of the 700 which Middlesex and London had contributed, Mr. Sanders, the inspector, had been to them a father, friend and adviser, and those who in the first year of the society's existence were waifs and neglected children are now young people fitted by their training to take their places as good citizens.

Quoting from the report of the inspector of prisons for 1907 he showed that there were 11,804 persons in the prisons of the province. Of these there were only 67 boys and girls under 16 years of age. Notwithstanding our increased population, going back thirty-eight years ago, there were 498 children under 16 committed to our prisons. Without claiming that the Children's Aid Societies were the sole cause of this great difference in our prisons the fact of there having been placed over 5,000 in foster homes showed how the supply was being diminished by their rescue and care.

Once placed under the guardianship of the Children's Aid Society, the children received such excellent care and supervision that over ninety per cent. did well and gave very little trouble to anyone.

Surely, in the interest of the children, as well as in the interest of the community, this was a great work.

Foster homes were offered freely, so there was no difficulty in placing children, and the cost of their maintenance was then assumed by the foster parents.

In the case of widows and deserted women with families, who were unfortunate, not blameworthy, he advocated the plan adopted in New Zealand of giving under proper restrictions from the public treasury a sufficient sum for each child to enable mothers to remain in their home and care for their own children. Mothers going out to work and leaving children uncared for all day was one of the chief sources from which wayward children come.

The cost of carrying on Children's Aid work efficiently was comparatively trifling.

Last year our prisons cost $344,000 and there were 11,000 persons in prison!

The task of reforming men and women is slow and difficult, but with children it is different, and in good homes their lives became full of promise. He fully believed in child-saving, and could heartily recommend the Children's Aid Society to the support of all benevolent citizens.

Has Been Appointed Lieut.-Col. 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons

An item in to-day's papers announce the promotion of Major G. H. Syer, of Millbrook, to the rank of Lieut.-Col., commanding the 3rd Prince of Wales, Canadian Dragoons. As a matter of fact, Colonel Syer, has been acting in command of the 3rd Dragoons for a year past, but his many friends in Peterborough, and elsewhere, will be glad to know that he has been gazetted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. He succeeds Lieut-Col. W. W. Brown, of Colbourne.

Lieutenant-Colonel Syer is known to a large circle of military friends in Peterborough, and visited Peterborough on the 24th of May last. He is one of the youngest Lieutenant-colonels in the Canadian Militia, and is an enthusiastic soldier. Colonel Syer has come up from the ranks, and while he has not seen any active service, he has done much to promote the interests of the militia generally, in the district from which the 3rd Dragoons is drawn. Colonel Syer resides a short distance out of Millbrook, and is one of the prosperous young farmers of the Township of Manvers.

Colonel Syer will be in Peterborough this evening to meet Lieutenant-Colonel Gordon, Officer Commanding Eastern Ontario, in connection with the military camp of the 3rd Dragoons, which will take place in Peterborough, beginning June 22nd.

HAD TO PAY TWO FINES

Three Charges Against Frank Buckland at Police Court This Morning—Dismissed on One Fined in Two.

FOUGHT WITH NEIGHBOUR

As a result of an altercation that has existed between Frank Buckland and Alex. Nesbitt, two neighbours on Harvey street, they both appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning, and the former was fined five dollars on one charge and $5.75 on another. Nesbitt was allowed to go, the offence with which he was charged not having been proven. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for Nesbitt, and Mr. R. F. McWilliams defended Buckland.

The first charge taken up was that against Buckland, for using gross insulting and abusive language towards Nesbitt. He pleaded not guilty. It appears that on the night of Victoria Day the two got exchanging words on George street, and considerable bad language was used by Buckland. They were getting ready for a fistic encounter, when Capt. McWilliams came along and seeing a man in uniform about to fight, went in and stopped them. For this offence he was fined $5.00.

Both Nesbitt and Buckland were charged with being disorderly on Harvey street yesterday morning. Only one witness was called and the charge was not proven.

Buckland pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly last evening and for this was fined $5.75. He paid all his fines.

A HORSE SHOW FOR PETERBOROUGH?

Galt is a go-ahead town. It is a brisk manufacturing centre and now it is the focus of popular attention by reason of its splendid horse show, the fifth in a series of successful events of this kind. Peterborough is the centre of a grand farming country which nourishes abundance of excellent horse flesh. Why couldn't Peterborough with such rural surroundings, and a population of 17,000 have as good a horse show as Galt, with a population of 10,000? We had a good spring show but we might have an early summer show that would be more ambitious and inclusive and a credit to the city and attract large gatherings of outsiders. In respect to bringing the crowds to the city we should regard as fish all that comes to our net. Will not some of the enterprising horsemen of the city take the lead and begin to agitate now. It is none too soon to bring the enterprise to a head a year from now. The horse will never lack for lovers, but the auto car at present is pretty well crowding the equine to the wall. It therefore becomes the duty as it will be a pleasure for the horse lover to come to the rescue of the intelligent, companionable animal which has been man's faithful friend since the world began. The horse has been sung in poetry and even the Bible pays its panygeric. The steed will always be with us, for death bestrides the pale horse. All things converge to point the argument in favour of a horse show for Peterborough. Whoever is enterprising enough to make a beginning should strap on his spurs and force the pace.

DOING US GOOD.

The United States, in closing the open trade door between that country and Canada by high tariffs may think it is injuring this country, but it is, in fact, conferring a blessing in disguise. They abolished reciprocity to drive Canada into annexation. It didn't drive, except drive Canada to fined new markets with which it is well satisfied. Annexation is farther off than ever—altogether off, in fact, and as to reciprocity, if any overtures to that end are made they must come from the United States—Canada is quite indifferent. If we can get a reciprocity treaty to suit us, all right; if not, then we shall go on as we are doing. The new United States tariff bill shuts out Canadian fish, oysters, and barley, and potatoes. We shall fit our backs to the burden and find new markets, or what is, perhaps better, develop the home market. The United States shut out Canadian barley about thirty years ago and in the game did themselves more harm than they did us. We lost a market for our barley, but we created a new industry; we took to dairying, at which we have beaten the Yankees at every point, have captured the British market, have given our soil a much-needed rest, and have equipped ourselves for a more profitable pursuit of mixed farming. Maritime province oysters and potatoes, by the new tariff, have been shut out from the convenient market of the eastern United States. Our blue nose cousins will have to cultivate Middle Canada and open up markets here for their fish and oysters and potatoes.

THE MINISTER OF LABOUR

The appointment and swearing in of Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, M.P., North Waterloo, as Minister of Labour in the Laurier aCbinet, marks another distinct advance of Liberalism in the direction of practically serving the interests of the most important national interest—Labour. We have Hon. Mr. Foster, one of the leaders of the Conservative party, at this late day, promising a policy of social reform, which, of course, includes, attention to the claims of Labour to Parliamentary and administrative attention. While Mr. Foster, for his party is yet dreaming of doing something, the Liberal Governments—in Ontoria and at Ottawa, have been doing. The statute books of both the Province and Dominion are studded with acts passed for the protection of the persons and rights of the working man, and we have the last action of the Liberal Government of the Dominion, giving Labour the dignity of a department specially and solely devoted to its interests, and implementing its bona fides by the appointment of a Minister of Labour. In so doing they have made the best possible selection. Hon. Mr. King has long and successfully been associated with labour interests and conditions. He has made them a sp ecial study and has shown himself not only by his mental qualifications well fitted for his new position, but as possessing a spirit of conciliation and fair-mindedness, that are especially needed. The King, in name, has played the role of peace-maker in the field of industrial diplomacy as successfully, earnestly and as prudently as the King in fact, has done in the wider area of international diplomacy. Hon. Mr. King's selection meta with general approval. Even the Mail and Empire has not the effrontery to disparage the appointment; it can go no further than cheap sarcasm and the News, while inevitably paying tribute to Mr. King's qualifications, takes away all the grace of its commendation by carping and sneering anent his connection with a lost and unregenerate cabinet. Mr. King will, of course, have to return to his constituents for re-election. We shall see how deep is the interest of the Conservative party in the welfare of labour; whether he will be returned unopposed or whether the Conservative party will strive to defeat the first minister of the first Department of Labour established in this or any other country.

BRITAIN'S MILITARY DEFENCE

Mr. Haldane, the British war secretary, evidently does not agree with Lord Roberts, that the British army is "a sham." In discussing the question of defense against an invasion recently, the war secretary said the territorial force had got 87 per cent. of its war establishment, and men were coming in daily. The regulars are practically full, so far as men are concerned, and the special reserve is rapidly filling up. Great Britain has now a much larger expenditionary force than ever before in the country's history.

Dealing with that contingency which is known as "the bolt from the blue," Mr. Haldane said: Supposing that 100,000 men got past the fleet in time of peace (which he considered extremely doubtful), they would find the whole expeditionary force of 167,000 men trained to a much higher standard than continental armies. There would be the equivalent of three organized army corps, besides another 150,000 of trained regular troops. That in itself is a pretty formidable force, but in addition there are fourteen divisons and fourteen mounted brigades of territorials.

In Mr. Haldane's opinion it is doubtful whether a couple of army corps coming across the sea would live very long in a hostile country.

As to the danger of invasion, when the army was abroad, if the regulars had to go over seas, the territorial force had to be embodied. Supposing the territorial force to be mobilised, in six months they would be a well-trained force, and there would be the equivalent of seven army corps to meet the enemy. Mr. Haldane admits that if the expenditionary force were abroad and only a couple of months had elapsed after the mobilisation of the territorials when an invasion was attempted, the case would be a most difficult one. But he points out that, to begin with, Britain would be on the alert—the navy would be watching the coasts. Moreover, it would be a very rash government that would send the whole expeditionary force abroad at once. As more and more regulars went out of the country, the territorial force would be stiffening. Mr. Haldane, therefore, does not believe the "Englishman's home" would be in any serious danger even in the most doubtful of the three cases.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Canadian wheat, oysters, and barley are better than anything the United States can produce, but the Yankees are forced by the tariff to feed on poorer bread and drink thinner beer.

The protectionists are a logical lot. The Uunited States taxes Canadian wheat for fear the people shall have cheap bread. They tax Canadian barley so that the people shall not have good beer.

An extra of the Canada Gazette proclaims the coming into force of the act "to create a Department of External Affairs — a foreign office" for Canada, another addition to our dignity as a nation to all intents and purposes.

SOUTH AFRICA'S CONSTITUTION.

(London Advertiser.)

The indications are that before the end of the present year South Africa will be one country under one government, like Canada and Australia. The final draft of the union act, which was recently accepted by the second national convention at Bloemfontein, differs in some respects from the original draft, which was made public at the beginning of the year.

In general the proposed constitution has a strong resemblance to of the Dominion of Canada, the unique feature being the extensive application of proportional representation. Under the first draft all the councils, general as well as provincial, were to be elected by proportional representation through the single transferable vote. The House of Assembly and the Provincial Councils were to be directly so elected on the basis of uniform three-member constituencies, and these bodies, elected by proportional representation, were to proceed to elect the senate and the provincial executive committees on the same principle. Under the final draft as signed, the senate and provincial committees will be so elected, but the House of Assembly and Provincial Councils will be elected as at present, by majority in single-member constituencies. This is the chief change made by the Bloemfontein convention.

Native electoral rights in Cape Colony are maintained by an enactment that no person registered as a voter in any province is to be removed from the register by reason only of any disqualification of race and color. A further safeguard is provided by a clause declaring that no one enjoying the franchise in Cape Colony at the time of the union can be deprived of it unless the disfranchisement bill is passed by both houses sitting together ,and by not less than two-thirds the number of members in both houses. While, however, coloured people will be permitted to vote, they cannot send one of their race ot represent them in the Legislature, a clause excluding all coloured persons from sitting in any of the chambers.

Other amendments provide for the raising of the salaries of the members of the House of Assembly, making the voter's qualification also the qualification for membership of provincial councils, and making the payment of the annual interest on the public debts of the colonies and their sinking funds the first charge on the consolidated sinking fund, instead of the second charge. A sub-section is added, declaring that the Union Government shall carry out a railway agreement between Cape Colony ,the Transvaal and Natal.

The consent of three of the contracting colonies was given in advance to any arrangements that might be made at the Bloemfontein convention; in Natal the sended draft has still to be submitted to a referendum, but indorsement by the electors of that colony is taken for granted.

RAILWAY WORK IN THE WEST.

(Manitoba Free Press.)

Not more than ten days ago the employment agencies in Winnipeg were almost unapproachable on account of the large number of men that surrounded them eagerly awaiting their turn to sign contracts for work during the summer. Many thousands are employed every Spring in Winnipeg for work upon railway construction. During May, according to the opinion of Mr. A. Calder, one of Winnipeg's best known employment agents, fully 5,000 men have been hired for this work. But quite a large number of contracts are not ready to receive the bulk of their men. When all labour requirements are met for railway construction alone, it will be found that approximately 7,500 men will be engaged at that work in the West.

If all the plans for the summer are carried out the estimated expenditure in Western Canada for railway work alone will aggregate $85,000,000. The Canadian Pacific will expend $20,000,000; the Canadian Northern, $11,000,000, and the Grand Trunk Pacific a similar amount. The Railway World, a leading railroad journal in the United States, says that James J. Hill will spend about $15,000,000 in this country this year. So far there are not any indications of the Great Northern magnate expending that amount, but sooner or later the expenditure will be made.

It is hardly necessary to say that wherever surveys have been projected settlement has taken place. Homesteaders plead hard for the building of new lines. Although many Manitobans have built up for themselves very desirable homes at long distances from a railroad, it has been a hard struggle. Hauling wheat over poor roads is an arduous undertaking. But it is evident that with so much railway extension the production of wealth in the Canadian West during the next few years will go forward with immense strides. In so far as the railways are concerned it is no experiment with them. The country has been tried, and its produce becomes freight of a paying kind and volume. Capital invested will obtain good returns. In the meantime the country is profiting by the employment of so many men that will turn their attention to the cultivation of the soil when railway construction no longer offers a field for it. Moreover the railways themselves, in order to provide funds to meet their obligations in the future, will become powerful agencies in placing settlers upon lands adjacent to their lines. The great natural resources of this vast prairie empire are being attacked by so many forces that development in the next few years will be on a scale greater than it has yet been seen.

KEEPING CREAM SWEET

From Farm and Dairy.

J. Stonehouse, Ontario Co., Ont.

After the cream is separated, cool it down quickly, the sooner it is cooled the better. It is not enough to leave it stand in the atmosphere. Put it in cold water and change it when it gets warm, or better still, place it in ice water. Keep the cream separate until the next milking time, before adding it with the old cream. Keep the old cream in a cool place and thus prevent souring. Cream can be kept from four to five days in the hotest weather by means of ice. Keep your cream under the same conditions as you used for the old deep setting system of separating—in cold water and ice. I knew of cream that was kept sweet for a week at a time all through last summer. Some of the patrons of Locust Hill, Ont., Creamery delivered their cream only once a week and kept it perfectly; this creamery would accept only sweet cream.

It may be a little trouble to put in conveniences to care for the cream so that it can be kept sweet, but when these are once installed there will be no future trouble. Look after the milking of the cow. Clean the separator, cool the milk and do not mix the cream until the next milking. Keep the cream as cool as possible and a good article will sure to be produced. It is a hard matter to spoil good cream at the creamery. Once it is delivered there in good condition, a first-class product is more than likely to result.

ONTARIO MILK COMMISSION

From Farm and Dairy.

The Ontario Provincial Milk Commission, appointed to investigate the whole milk problem, held their first meeting on May 25th, at the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, electing Dr. A. R. Pyne, chairman. Those present were: Hon. Jos. Duff, Minister of Agriculture; Mr. C. C. James, Deputy Minister, and Messrs. F. G. Macdiarmid, M.P.P. for West Elgin; J. R. Dargavel, M.P.P., Leeds; W. F. Nickle, M. P.P., Kingston, and Mr. W. Bert Roadhouse, Secretary.

About two hours were spent in thoroughly discussing all the phases of the question with a view to making the investigation as complete and as far-reaching as possible. It was decided to visit a number of Toronto dairies and sources of milk supply on June 28, 29, 30, and later on to personally inquire into conditions in all the other cities of the Province, as well as a number of centres across the line where considerable progress has already been made in the effort to secure pure milk. In the meantime the Secretary was instructed to communicate with the various cities and States on both sides of the line to secure all the literature available on the subject. The Commission will be glad to receive suggestions from producers, distributers, or consumers. The Secretary's address is the Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

The Other Girl.

By H. A. DEALL.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

To all their friends there seemed to be something essentially incongruous in the idea of their marriage. Friends, of course, as is well known, have the right to decide these things.

Grace Ormiston was a New England girl of an old Boston family, who knew her Emerson by heart. It was even reported that she knew what Robert Browning meant when he wrote:

Sixteen and Sixteen and Sixteen.

Jim Garrison had been born and reared on a big Kentucky plantation, and he had obtained his education in that school which not only believes but vows that a gentleman's education is complete when he has been taught "to ride, to shoot and to speak the truth."

Yet their marriage had turned out a happy one, for with all Jim's ignorance of books he was a gentleman, every inch of the stalwart length of him. He did feel a bit oppressed, though, at times when his clever and learned wife let him "slide out of the conversation," as he expressed it, and showed by her manner that she knew it was over his head and that she excused him in sympathetic kindness.

The truth was that Jim would have been quite a bit the better for it if he had possessed more of a share of that of which most men have too much—conceit.

Poor Jim didn't have a bit, and he used to rub his handsome head ruefully and with very genuine sorrow at the harassing thought that he was not good enough for his brilliant beauty of a wife and that she must feel some degree of shame for him when she was surrounded by the wise and learned people who called on them continually.

When they had been married a little more than a year a telegram came for Jim while he was absent in Kentucky looking over some of his land. Mrs. Garrison hesitated before she opened the yellow envelope, for she was not a woman who believed in letting her curiosity get the better of her, although she had her full share of that delightful instinct of her breeding.

However, she finally decided that she should open the telegram to see if it was important enough to forward to Jim. Surely every one will forgive that. Women ought to be curious. It's part of their charm. Think of what the world would be without woman's delicious curiosity!

The message was short. But few as the words were they were sufficient to make something very much like her little world tumbling disastrously down around the pretty ears of Mrs. Garrison. The telegram was dated from a village on Long Island and said:

The Girl is dying. Come at once.

It was signed Jack Farrington. Grace recognized this name as that of one of her husband's friends of whom she had often heard him speak, but whom she had never met.

Grace was not a naturally jealous woman—that is, nothing more than to say that she was not any more jealous than is any good, true, warm souled woman. She tried to remain unsuspicious; but, try as she would, she could find but one interpretation for the message.

Her faith in Jim was too absolute to believe that "the girl" referred to could be her rival since their marriage. She never gave place in her mind for one moment to any idea that her Jim was capable of the shameful, disgusting treachery such a surmise would presuppose.

But she could not help but see that this girl had some old claim on Jim and the thought of such a claim on the man whom she loved so passionately was sufficient to drive her nearly frantic.

She perceived that the sender of the telegram had taken it for granted that Jim would not hesitate to "come at once." And then she recollected with a keen sense that gave her new pain now that Jim always had spoken shyly and hesitatingly about Farrington and had evaded all her attempts to induce him to invite this friend of his early days to their home.

Her feeling was one of total desolation. She moaned at the thought there could be anywhere in the world a woman with such a claim upon her Jim that he must go to her deathbed. Mrs. Garrison realized now and all at once how deeply and helplessly she loved her handsome husband and how empty all her world of knowledge and art would seem to her if that love were destroyed.

At last, however, she began to think of the unknown girl who lay dying. With a mighty effort she put aside her own grief and telegraphed to her husband:

Mr. Jim Garrison, Phenix Hotel, Lexington, Ky.

Come home immediately. A matter of life and death. GRACE.

She could not bear to telegraph to him that "the girl" was dying. To refer to her in such a way was repugnant to every instinct, and she was in total ignorance of the girl's name.

Before noon she received the expected reply. It read:

Leave at noon. Arrive tomorrow noon.

Grace Garrison, having forced herself to sacrifice her own emotions and her own wounded love and anguished pride, was not the woman to shrink from making the sacrifice complete and deep, however her feet might bleed on the weary way.

She telegraphed to Farrington that Jim would reach home at noon of the next day and would come down to Jim's bedside immediately, but meantime determined to expedite his trip in every manner. Whatever this Woman was to Jim, Grace resolved that Jim must reach her bedside before death closed her eyes if she could make it possible.

The railroad time tables showed her that connections could not be made until very late in the evening, and she decided that he must be hurried down in her automobile.

It was a swift machine that had been bought especially for her use by her mother. Jim had steadfastly refused to learn to drive it. But Grace decided that it would not do to have the chauffeur drive Jim on such an errand, for fear of gossip among the servants. She came to the brave decision that she would drive the machine herself.

It was a very worried and excited man who ran to her at the gate of the railroad station. "Tell me what it means, Grace!" cried he.

Grace Garrison had faced the sacrifice, but she was a woman. Her face grew stern and cold. She replied that a crowded station was hardly the place for such confidences and waited silently till he was in the automobile. Then, when they were whizzing on their way to Long Island, she looked fixedly at Jim and without a word handed to him the telegram from Farrington.

"I'm awfully sorry The Girl is dying," he said. "It sort of breaks me up. But if she had to die I wish that I had been left in peace till I had finished business in Kentucky. I was just closing a very profitable little transaction."

Grace looked at him in shocked amazement. Jim stared at her and opened his mouth to say something, but thought better of it. Grace turned her face away to hide her tears, which she could not repress, try as she would. She did not trust herself to speak except once or twice to ask the direction from Jim. The last time she fancied that she heard him chuckle, but dismissed the idea as a morbid fancy.

Farrington met them with a cordial handshake and a strange cheerfulness, which was explained when he said hurriedly to Jim that The Girl was much better. Then he asked coldly if they would not like to see her.

Jim replied in the affirmative without a moment's hesitation, but Grace held back. Then Jim chuckled. It was an unmistakable out and out chuckle.

Bewildered, wondering, Grace followed the two men as Farrington led the way to the stables.

A rather feeble looking mare whinnied when she saw Jim and made a weak effort to get upon her feet.

On the way back Jim said with a happy smile: "You'll have to read up on one subject, anyway, darling. Anybody who knows anything at all about racing knows The Girl. She's the winner of the Shenandoah sweepstakes, the Cumberland futurity and the Gold cup, and she belongs to the racing firm of yours truly, Garrison & Farrington. I'm glad she is better; but, sweetheart, even if she had died I would have considered her well paid for by the knowledge I've won through your misunderstanding about that telegram. Am I very stupid, darling, if I think that you love me, even though I don't know much of literature and art?"

And Grace Garrison gave him a reply that convinced him that he was not stupid.

Preparing Robin Beefsteak.

On a certain occasion I saw a sturdy specimen of the robin tribe on the lawn searching for provisions for his family of clamorous gormands. At length, by tugging and perseverance, he succeeded in extracting a lusty angleworm from the tough sward and was making the effort to fly to his nest with the prey. But Mr. Worm rebelled. More than that, he writhed and squirmed with the greatest energy, and the bird that had come to market so bravely was in danger of finding his provisions so unruly that he could not reach home with them. But he was not to be defeated so easily. Stepping to the board walk near by, he deliberately began to pound Mr. Worm down upon the hard surface with an emphasis that bade fair to finish all protests and writhing. And so it did. A dozen pecks, and not only was the little fellow's beefsteak ready for transportation, but it was ready pounded for the broiler—or in this case consumption without the aid of broiling.—Young People.

He Did It.

A teacher had just finished explaining the use of the ditto marks when she noticed one of her young searchers for knowledge searching for it in a story book. So she made him stay after school and told him to write the sentence "Always pay attention" 100 times.

In a very short time he gave a glad shout, "I've did it!"

"What kind of language is that?" she remarked severely. "And you surely haven't had time to do it."

"Well, I'm done it, then. Anyhow, here it is." He held up his paper. The sentence was written once at the top, and the remaining surface was covered with dots.

"But you haven't done it!" she exclaimed.

He gazed at her scornfully.

"Course I have. Them's ditto marks. Made 'em ninety-nine times. They're good things."

What else was there to do but to let him go at once? And she did.

Short and Ugly For Him.

"No, sir," said Plodding Pete, "I would not stop another minute to talk to dem folks. Dey passed me out a short an' ugly word."

"What was it?"

"Work."—Washington Star.

REAL HAND GRIP AGAIN.

Elbow Shake Superseded by More Friendly Token of Greeting.

"I am glad to notice that the absurd elbow shake, which for so long replaced the infantile, kindly hand grip, is passing out of fashion," says Lady Violet Greville in London Graphic. "Who invented it, why it was foisted upon us, none has ever seemed to know. It was ugly, artificial and devoid of all the charm and intimate meaning of the handshake. To give the hand gracefully used to be taught in the old days of deportment. The curve of the elbow was studied, and grace became a part of the lady and gentleman's equipment.

"I have seen it stated that the angular, jerky movement of the present handshake is due to the period of hustle in which we live, so that the graceful, rounded movements which accompany leisure and confidence have given place to distrust, to a sense of opposition and conflict, which expressed itself even in the form of our address. Fortunately the true handshake is an unmistakable indication of character—the flabby palm, the limp grasp, the shaky shake, the warm, honest, feeling grip of the hand differentiate people as much as they do their faces or their appearances. Some people inspire confidence at once as soon as your hand first lays in theirs; others convey an indefinable sense of fear or repulsion."

REJECT SUFFRAGETTES.

The Canny Scot of Thrums Will Not Stand For the Ballot.

The first suffragette has set foot in Thrums, the little village which has been made known to every fiction lover by James M. Barrie in his delightful Scotch stories. There are few persons in Thrums who have not furnished material to Barrie, and the reading world knows these highland folk as rigid conservatives and with little patience for women who interest themselves outside their homes. Miss Helen Fraser of London was selected for the Thrums invasion. She met all Thrums in the village hall, and, true to the tradition of the place, her first words for suffrage were interrupted by Biblical quotations. A score of texts were shouted from all parts of the hall, and every one was against the spirit of the movement for woman's rights. For half an hour Miss Fraser's patience was tried; then her good nature won her a quiet hearing, and she was permitted to continue without further interruption. It was said, however, the canny Scots left the meeting shaking their heads soberly and exchanging views anything but favorable to the cause of the vote for women. One white haired villager was heard to remark: "Gae me wife a vote? Nae, nae, laddie; I'd cut off me right arm first."

Mrs. Park Sails For Orient.

The National College Equal Suffrage league, of which Miss M. Carey Thomas of Bryn Mawr college is president, was organized at Buffalo last fall by the union of fifteen college equal suffrage leagues scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The founder of the league, Mrs. Maud Wood Park of Radcliffe, has sailed from San Francisco for the orient. She will spend two years in studying the position of women in foreign lands. She will visit China, Japan and other eastern countries before going to New Zealand, where the women, as in federated Australia, are fully enfranchised; thence to Europe, where she will spend some time on the continent, and then on to England. Mrs. Park hopes that when she reaches England, two years hence, the women of that country will have gained the parliamentary franchise for which they are now contending so fiercely.

Miss Fowler an Anti-suffragist.

Miss Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler, novelist, has decided opinions in opposition to the suffrage campaign. "For my part," she says, "I would advise the woman of today to confine herself to the four spheres of usefulness which are open to her and which she is so well fitted to adorn—the spheres of domestic life, religious activity, social influence and, finally, intellectual culture. I firmly believe she should keep clear of the one sphere which is at present closed to her, that of public and political strife." As might be expected, Miss Fowler's words have not been received with any degree of enthusiasm by the women leading the fight for suffrage, and vigorous criticism is the rule. There are many women, however, who indorse Miss Fowler's views, but they are not organized like the suffragists.

Reducing Flesh.

Whatever else fashion hints, there is not the slightest rumor that flesh is to be stylish in the near future.

Therefore women who are not thin are keeping up all kinds of methods to make them so.

Live on noodles is the cry. Consequently this diet is strictly kept by women who are willing to sacrifice anything to be thin.

The latest remedy, however, is to drink camomile tea without sugar an hour after eating.

Wistaria on Hats.

Among the prettiest of the artificial blossoms is wistaria. In its delicate lavender and white tints it is particularly lovely and springlike. Its graceful, slender clusters of bloom with glossy green leaves lend themselves admirably for trimming the new hats.

One wide brimmed hat of fine wistaria straw had a flat bow front and back of wide velvet ribbon in lavender and masses of wistaria blossoms and foliage heaped on the wide brim.

Hope is a flatterer, but the most upright of all parasites, for she frequents the poor man's hut as well as the palace of his superiors.—Shenstone.

NOVEL COFFEEPOT.

Fluid Flows Freely by Pressing Button on the Handle.

How many housewives have burned their fingers by opening the hot lid of a coffeepot to permit a freer flow of the liquid! To obviate this fault there has been invented a coffeepot the lid of which remains closed. By pressing the small lever on the handle at its spindle, and it runs out readily in a straight stream instead of gurgling out and splashing over the sides of the cup. This is one of those minor inventions which the average person does not appreciate, but which add materially to the comfort and satisfaction of the housekeeper, and should interest all men who are anxious to save their wives as much as the unpleasantness of cooking up-to-date.

The Drill in the Pearl.

The pale, bent workmen were, most of them, drinking cooty pearls, but here a man in kid gloves performed the operation of skinning—the operation of removing a pearl's outer, discolored coat, so as to give it again its original luster. And by the window another man shook industriously three pearls in a bottle.

"It is a secret of the trade—of the pearl driller's trade," he said—"this bottle shaking. You see, in pearl drilling a drill point often breaks off in a pearl, and to get it out may take a whole day's work—that is, if you don't know the secret."

He looked closely at the bottom of the glass bottle, and then, continuing his shaking, he resumed: "But if you put your pearl in a bottle and shake it up the drill point in a few minutes will fall out of itself. Look! There's another out already. The third will come soon now."—Exchange.

Lunar Rainbows.

Lunar rainbows are seldom observed in the temperate zone. Very likely the physical phenomenon occurs frequently, but its invisible because of the faintness of the moon's light. In the tropics, where moonlight is more intense, says the Scientific American, lunar rainbows are more frequently observed. They are by no means rare at Reunion island. At all places the phenomenon is most frequently seen at full moon when the moon's light is highest, but it has been seen in various phases of the moon. It was first observed by Aristotle. A lunar rainbow is produced at full moon by the spray of the great Victoria falls of the Yguassu in Brazil.

The Dot Over the "I."

The small letter "i" was formerly written without the dot. The dot was introduced in the fourteenth century to distinguish "i" from "e" in hasty and indistinct writing. The letter "i" was originally used where the letter "j" is now employed. The distinction between "i" and "j" was introduced by the Dutch printers at a comparatively recent date, and the "j" was dotted because the "i," from which it was derived, was written with a dot.

Blue Laws.

The name "blue laws" was given to the first collection of laws framed for the government of the New Haven colony. They were published in collective form in 1650, the volume being in a blue cover, which gave rise to the name that has clung to the laws ever since.

Her Chance.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Peroxide is something that should be used sparingly, if at all, and only under the advice of one who makes treatment of the hair and scalp a specialty.

Continuous reading on railway journeys is bad for the sight. Always read in a good, steady light. Rest the eyes occasionally when working by looking into the distance or lowering the lids.

The eyebrows give expression to the face almost as much as the eyes themselves. One can do a great deal to alter and improve the shape of the brows by gentle stroking between the fingers daily. The fingers should be well moistened with olive oil or vaseline, which stimulates growth.

Lavender scented sheets are said to induce sweet slumbers. The odor is exceedingly fresh, clean and wholesome. Old fashioned housewives always scented their linen and drapery with sprigs of the sweet old flower. Italian orris root and French veticert, a dried root, may be used as a substitute.

A few Tonics taken before bed time, put into the drawers and wardrobe where underwear, table and bed linen, gloves, handkerchiefs, etc., are kept, will impart to these articles a most delicate odor which will be extremely agreeable. Jewel boxes and other receptacles may also be scented with them. They are easily obtained of druggists.

The Grecian coiffure, so becoming to many, is not suited to the woman with long features or a tip tilted nose. The arrangement is usually most effective when the hair is drawn straight back from the forehead. Sandal closely at the front, and a few bangs are curled over the forehead to soften the facial outlines. Wave the hair slightly and gather it loosely in the Psyche knot at the back exactly opposite the tip of the nose, but not above nor below.

Chess Word Wanderers.

An interesting set of word wanderers clusters about the game of chess. "Shah," the Persian word for king, was corrupted in French to "eschec," which has been transferred into English as "check." Our verb and noun check, in most of the common uses, has arisen from the cry of "Check!"—literally "King!" or "Look out for your king!"—which is given when a player puts his opponent's king in danger. When a player has put his opponent's king in such a condition that he cannot be rescued he cries "Checkmate!" a corruption of the Persian "Shah mat!" or "The king is dead!" The chessboard was called in old French an "eschequier." From this word are derived our "checker," both verb and noun; "checkers," the name of another game played on the same kind of board, and "exchequer," so called on account of the checkered cloth on which accounts were formerly calculated.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Blushing Tree.

The blushing tree gets its name from the change of hue it assumes when the rain falls on it. As the drops drench the leaves, gradually but unmistakably the green tint gives way to pink. In a few minutes the green fades from sight. Only in a few half hidden spots beneath broad branches and on its trunk is there a tinge of green to be seen. After an hour or more, when the shower is over, the tree assumes its familiar green once more. Certain tiny insects, and not the tree itself, change color. These peculiar parasites are possessed of the power of chameleons. In the warm sunshine they are greener than the tree on which they live, but when the chilly rain falls upon them they contract their tiny backs and become a pretty pink in tint. Millions of these change the entire appearance of the tree and make it seem to be blushing.

Dresden a City of Pleasure.

Dresden is essentially a city of pleasure—of fair, wide prospects, of hearty river life, of zest in nature and art. Even the public buildings cluster about the Elbe just as the huts of the first settlers clustered. A circle of Wendish herdsmen's huts on the right bank, a line of fisher shanties on the left—these were the unlikely beginnings of Dresden in the sixth century. But the settlement lay at the only point in the river valley where a ford was practicable, tempting the Germans to settle on the left bank between the Wends and the swamps, or Seen, unlovely places that have long since disappeared, leaving behind only the names Seestrasse, Am See and Seevorstadt. Indeed, the very name of Dresden is derived from the Slavic dresjen, which means "dwellers in the swamp forest."—Robert Haven Schauffler in Century.

Not So Short.

He was supposed to be a poor but otherwise honest young man, while she was admittedly a thing of beauty.

"Will you marry me?" he asked.

"No," she answered.

"You are very short," he muttered.

"Ditto," she replied. "That's why there is nothing doing in the matrimonial line."

"Oh, I don't know," he sneered, as he extracted an obese billbook from an inside pocket and displayed a number of $1,000 bills. "I'm not so short."

Whereupon the unwary maid tried to fall upon his neck, but he gracefully sidestepped, and she fell to the floor in a faint.—Chicago News.

Made It Clear.

Sergeant of Royal Irish Constabulary (interviewing new member of the force)—Well, Maginnis, 'tis the fine, strong, fleshy lookin' fella ye are. Now, if a despirit band attackted ye wid a knife an' a pistol, would ye run or fight? Recruit—Shure, yer honor, I would! Sergeant—What, ye would? Recruit—Begorra, I mane I would not, sor! Sergeant—Ah, now that's brithers! G'long wid ye, me brocko!—London Opinion.

HELPED THE CABMAN.

But Not Because He Had Driven Him Years Before.

A very old man once called to see Lord Strathcona at his offices and explained as the reason of his visit that he was the cabman who drove him to his ship when he set sail for Canada long years before.

Lord Strathcona was interested in this reminiscence of his youth and listened to the ancient jehu when he went on in a tearful voice to complain that death had just deprived him of one of five grandchild and that he himself had fallen on evil times.

Lord Strathcona soothed the old fellow's sorrows with a little money.

Again, after a time, the old man called on Lord Strathcona and this time told him that both his grandsons were down with typhoid fever and, as Lord Strathcona had helped him before, perhaps he would again. After some gossiping chat about Scotland Lord Strathcona again comforted the old man with a little money.

When he had gone an official who had overheard the conversation said:

"I hope you did not give that man any money, Lord Strathcona. When he saw you before one of his two grandsons was dead. Now he says both are ill with typhoid fever."

"Thank you very much, Mr. Jones," said the high commissioner, with a twinkle in his eye, "but do you know when I left Scotland for Canada I had no cab to take me to the ship, but just walked down my village myself to the dock in a barrow."—London Tit-Bits.

A SECRET SIGNAL.

The Tailor's Comment While Measuring a Customer.

"Did you ever notice how the tailors while measuring a man for a suit of clothes mix in a few letters occasionally among the numbers?" asked a downtown lawyer recently of a friend.

"Whenever I have been measured for a suit of clothes the tailor always said S. B. L. in a subdued voice as he took the measure for the length of my trousers. I often wondered what this secret signal meant and on one occasion made so bold as to ask, but was put aside in some casual way, which plainly showed me that the tailor did not wish me to know the meaning of the mysterious S. B. L.

"Well, I never knew what these letters meant until one day not long ago, when I stumbled across the solution quite by accident. I was waiting to have my measure taken while a strapping big fellow was on the rack. As he measured the length of the trousers leg the tailor said, '32, S. B. L.'

"'Yes,' came back the reply from the big fellow, 'and —— bowlegged too.'

"All these years tailors have been accusing me of being 'slightly bowlegged,' and I had never caught on until I was practically told the answer in the accidental way."—Philadelphia Record.

Books.

God be thanked for books! They are the voices of the distant and the dead and make us heirs of the spiritual life of past ages. Books are true levelers. They give to all who will faithfully use them the society, the spiritual presence, of the best and greatest of our race. No matter how poor I am, no matter though the prosperous of my own time will not enter my obscure dwelling, if the sacred writers will enter and take up their abode under my roof—if Milton will cross my threshold to sing to me of paradise, and Shakespeare to open to me the world of imagination and the workings of the human heart, and Franklin to enrich me with his practical wisdom—I shall not pine for want of intellectual companionship, and I may become a cultivated man, though excluded from what is called the best society in the place where I live.—William Ellery Channing.

Result of Poor Writing.

The Duke of Wellington, through misreading a badly written letter, made a ludicrous blunder. The letter was written by C. J. London, a botanical author, who wrote to the duke requesting the privilege of seeing his beautiful beeches. The duke misread the signature for that of C. J. Bloomfield, bishop of London, and wrote in reply: "My lord, I shall always be glad to see you at Strattofieldsaye, and my servant shall show you as many pairs of my breeches as you may choose to inspect. But what you want to see them for is quite beyond me."—Exchange.

PRESENTATIONS TO VALUED MEMBERS

By the Members of the Daughters' of England Last Night.

The sixteenth anniversary of the Daughters and Maids of England Benevolent Society was celebrated in the Sons of England hall last evening. A very enjoyable time was spent, there being a large number in attendance and everyone had a most enjoyable hour or two in social intercourse.

During the evening, on behalf of the society, Mrs. S. Mitchell made presentations of a brooch to Mrs. G. Tovey and a beautiful mission lamp to Mrs. Wolstenholme.

The addresses read were as follows:

Dear Sister Wolstenholmes:

We wish to express to you our feelings of appreciations of your valued services in connection with our beloved order as well as for your many estimable qualities of heart and mind. We feel that it would give us great pleasure if we could convey to you some idea of the regard in which you arr held by us.

We therefore have adopted this method, hoping it may serve our purpose and that in looking at it you will be reminded of the fact that you are loved by the members of this society and that your efforts in its behalf are appreciated by them.

Signed on behalf of Lady Lansdown Lodge,
ROSE MITCHELL, Sec'y.

Dear Sister Tovey:

We wish also at this time to remember you in a tangible manner, not as a reward for the valuable service you are rendering as our worthy treasurer, but to lend some slight force to our words when we say that we appreciate your services to our lodge; also that the feeling we have toward you is most cordial. We, as members of this society would ask that in the use of it you may be reminded of the pleasant hours which we have spent together, and that your interest in our order is greatly valued by us all.

Signed on behalf of Lady Lansdown Lodge,
ROSE MITCHELL, Sec'y.

Suitable replies of thanks and appreciation were made by Mrs. Wolstenholme and Mrs. Tovey. At the conclusion refreshments were served.

He gave the members the benefit of his wide experience in incubation and feeding and a lot of valuable information was given out which was greatly appreciated. There were two pairs of birds on exhibition, one pair of Partridge Wyandottes, owned by Mr. Cunningham and a pair of Ancanas, owned by Mr. Cameron.

IS FRED VARTY FOUND?

Reported to Have Been Arrested in Bancroft.

The news has been received by the authorities in the city to the effect that Fred Varty, who is wanted in Havelock, has been arrested in Bancroft on a charge of having been drunk and disorderly. He and his brother caused some trouble in Havelock. The brother was arrested and paid his fine a few days ago, but Fred made his escape with the village constable's handcuffs locked about his wrists. Nothing has been heard of him since and it was not known where he had disappeared to. From the report received the man in Bancroft is considered to be young Varty.

CANOE FROM HOME

Peterborough Man Rowing on the Avon River Discovered a Home Boat

A Peterborough man who recently returned from the Continent, states that he was reminded of home one day when his thoughts were as far distant as he was. He was rowing on the River Avon, near the town of Stratford, when he casually glanced at the name of the manufacturers of the boat and to his surprise saw the trade mark of the Canadian Canoe Co., of Peterborough, Can. He enjoyed that sail on the historic river with greater pleasure than before.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

THE TOYS AWAKE

This great spectacular play to be given for the Children's Aid Society, promises to be the event of the season in Peterborough, as it has been elsewhere. It will be given Monday and Tuesday next. About 250 of the talented young people and children of the city will take part. Beautiful costumes, pretty drills and tableaux will give a charming attractiveness to the production. The Record of St. Augustine, Fla., says:

The prettiest picture ever seen on the stage of the Genover Theatre was seen last night in the spectacular production "The Toys Awake." Judge Dowling, in his resplendent robes, was a majestic looking king, and Miss Helen Monson was a regal queen. The costumes were of costly material, and were exceptionally beautiful in design.—St. Augustine Record.

FIGHT WEEDS NOW.

From Farm and Dairy.

The next few weeks much of the time on the farm will be occupied in fighting weeds. To fight them successfully we should attack them at the weakest point. All annual and biennial weeds start from seed. There is no time in the life of a plant that it can be so easily killed as when it is springing into life. Just as it is coming through the ground or even before, when there is only a long white hair like stem under the surface, is the easiest time to destroy them by stirring the soil. A few minutes sunshine will kill the hardiest of them at that time.

Hoe crops consisting of corn and roots are the principal cleaning crops. As much work as possible should be done with horses. The weeder (Breed), scuffer harrows and cultivator should be used whenever possible.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE MATINEE OF PETERBOROUGH TURF CLUB WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Three Splendid Races Were Seen Yesterday---Track Was in Grand Shape and Fast Time Was Made---Foot Race Was a Feature of the Contest.

The second matinee of the season under the auspices of the Peterborough Turf Club was held yesterday at the Driving Park and proved very successful, although the attendance was not as large as the excellence of the sport merited. Quite a few ladies attended and the fair sex seemed very much interested in the results of the contests. The track was never in better shape and the weather conditions were splendid. It was a trifle warm, but a delightful breeze blew across the grounds and in a measure tempered the too ardent rays of the sun.

A splendid programme was put on and some exciting racing was seen during the afternoon. A praiseworthy feature was that the bill was run off sharp on time and to Starter Martin Connors, who gave every satisfaction and to the other officials, credit must be given for the business-like way in which the matinee was conducted.

An interesting feature was the five-mile foot-race which was captured by Fred Simpson's protege, Parker, of Hiawatha, who ran a well judged and heady race and won handily. Slighte, of the Victoria Harriers, and Leo Robertson were the other starters, and for a while it looked like a tight contest. Robertson dropped out, but in the finish Slighte hooked on to the Indian and followed him closely. Parker cut out a rapid clip but Slighte stuck only a yard behind and it began to look like a sprint at the finish to decide the issue, when the Vics' runner suddenly left the track. He afterwards returned after the Indian had opened up a big lead, and finished strong. It was Parker's race by a quarter of a mile in the remarkably good time of 27:20. This boy Parker is sure some runner. Fred Simpson thinks a lot of him and it looks as if Fred's opinion is justified, as Parker has all the ear-marks of becoming a classy runner.

The green race (Class C.) was won in straight heats by J. T. O'Connell's mare, "Sadie," which had away the better of the argument from Lillico's mare, "Reka K." The latter broke badly and was never in the running.

The 2:50 class was comparatively easy for M. Storey's fast little mare, Minnie G., although it took four heats to bring home a winner. Minnie G. got away badly in the first heat and then to make matters worse broke a hobble, ending up in last position. The mare showed her class, however, by going out and cleaning up the next three heats in handy fashion. She was driven by the owner and gave a very good account of herself. Lulu Chimes was the principal contender, although Queen's Baron annexed the first heat. Lulu was second in all four and shows improvement over her last season's form. The second heat was about the best of the afternoon, Minnie G. beating out the McIvor mare by a nose in a whipping finish.

Martin Connors' Lady Gothard and Eddie Jones' Patterson had a great argument in the Class A event. The first heat went to the mare after a hard race all the way. The second was won by Patterson by a scant nose. The horse trailed all the way and won out in the drive. Patterson behaved badly in the third heat and ran for over half a mile, and was never a factor The fourth heat, however, was captured by Patterson and the race was declared a draw.

Following was the results.

Class A

Lady Gothard, Martin Connors	1	2	1	2
Patterson, E. Jones	2	1	2	1

Time—2:24, 2:25, 2:25¼, 2:33.

Class B

Minnie G., M. Storey	4	1	1	1
Queen's Baron, W. Whitham	1	4	3	3
Lulu Chimes, Thos McIvor	2	2	2	2
Herklan, N. Nicholls, Lakefield	3	3	4	4

Time—2:23½, 2:30, 2:28¼, 2:30.

Class C

Sadies, J. T. O'Connel	1	1	1

Time—2:53, 3:05, 2:58.

BRITISH BEAT THE SCOTSMEN

Interesting Soccer Game Last Night Was Won by the Britons---Score 5 to 2

The newly organized team of local Scotsmen "Harry Lauder's Bairns" were defeated by the Brinton's Midland League team in an interesting soccer game last evening, the score being 5 to 2 in favour of the Britishers, who were in better condition and outlasted their opponents. The game was a treat, especially in the first half, when the Scots had the score 2 to 1 in their favour. They fell away, however, in the second half, through lack of training, with the result that the Brintons scored four goals and won out by 5 to 2. The game was well contested and was played as it ought to be, and as the old country men also play. Jimmie Brodie was the best man on the field.

MAYOR RUSH WILL HURL FIRST BALL

Ald. Bradburn Will Toe the Plate and Ald. Phelan Will Do the Receiving.

The opening of the Senior City League to-morrow afternoon will be a formal affair in a sense and a number of the civic officials will start the fun arolling. Mayor Rush has signified his intention of throwing the first ball and Ald. Wm. Bradburn will endeavour to solve the Chief Magistrate's delivery. Ald. Harry Phelan will do the receiving and after that—well, the senior league teams will make their bow. Ald. Bradburn states that he wants one of the Lajoie model bats, and is of the opinion that a catcher will not be needed. He has also heard of the box of cigars and may claim them on a technicality, whatever that is. The opening should be attended by a large number of the followers of the teams, and those who like the game.

SOME HITTING BY EDMUNDS

Jerry is Fattening His Batting Average at Expense of Edmonton Pitchers

Jerry Edmunds is still clouting the ball on the nose for the Winnipeg Maroons. In Monday's game Jerry made two out of Winnipeg's five hits, and scored two of the three runs to the credit of his team. The Winnipeg team was playing Edmonton so that two ex-Peterborough catchers were in the game, Burridge doing the receiving for the Alberta team. The Winnipeg Free Press says:

"Timely swats by Jerry Edmunds and Duck Holmes were reverberating features of a Maroon ninth innings rally, as the result of which two runs were shoved across the plate, and the first gain recorded against the Edmonton Eskimos.

At this stage Winnipeg had succeeded in making only one hit off Smith that being made by Piper in the first innings. Edmunds opened the local half of the seventh with a stinging drive for a base. He went to second on Beatty's out, and scored on Holmes' hard drive to right field. ....Jerry Edmunds did not fail us, and a timely single sending in the one that knotted up the game.

PETERBORO'S CITY LEAGUE TO OPEN TO-MORROW AFTERNOON

The Managers Announce Their Line-Ups for the Opening Contests---Two Splendid Games of Ball Should be Seen as the Teams are in Good Shape for the Battle.

Peterborough's new Senior Baseball League will open at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon, after appropriate ceremonies, with a double-header, the T.A.S. and Park St. Athletic Club meeting in the first game at 2 o'clock, and the Strathconas and West Ends contesting the 3:30 o'clock feature. Two splendid games should be seen as all four teams are strong and in good shape for the opening contests. A large number of new players are breaking into the game which makes it a difficult manner to forecast the result, but it is a safe prediction that both games will be snappy and hard fought.

T. A. S.

The West Ends and Strathconas will come together immediately at the conclusion of the first game, with the following lineups:

West Ends

Strathconas

Weatherstone 2b, F. Craig 3b, Kendry ss, Shaw lf, Heaslip 1b, Curtis cf, L. Dobson p, Guerin rf, Wilson c, Hickey p, Patterson p.

Dan. McCabe will handle the indicator in both contests.

A RESPONSE TO GEO. N. BROWN

Jim Harrison Has Something Further to Say About the Walkers' Benefit

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice in the Review of last evening a letter from Geo. N. Brown, in which he stated that I tried to hold him up in connection with the walkers' benefit on Wednesday night. I merely wish to say that my statements in the Examiner on Wednesday were absolutely true, and I am prepared to swear to them if necessary. In addition a local man, who was present at the interview will substantiate what I say. I was not offered one-sixth of the receipts as Mr. Brown says, nor was there any terms offered me. I was merely told that I would be used like a gentleman when they came to divide the receipts. This was not satisfactory, as I had several samples of what was called gentlemanly treatment at the hands of those in the walking game.

As for Mr. Brown's wishing to walk me for $100, I might say that just now I haven't one hundred cents. It seems a little strange that a man who is able to wager from $100 to $1,000 on himself should have to get up a benefit to raise $5 to take him home.

Yours truly,
JIM HARRISON.

INTERNATIONAL JURY ON OLYMPIC GAMES

All Disputes and Problems at Future Olympiads Will be Handled by World Body.

Berlin, June 5.—The most important act of the international council of the Olympian games that has been in session here was the recommendation of the principle of an international jury to decide the events in future Olympiads. The council took under consideration the unfortunate controversies that arose in London in 1908, and finally decided that it was wiser to introduce an international system of judging, than leave this to the sole control of the country where the games take place. The Swedish representatives accepted this view.

The Council, it is expected, did not act in a spirit of criticism of anything that happened in England. Its opinion was that the contests could be conducted with greater goodwill if they were under international control.

The Swedish committee has invited the participants in the games of 1912, which are to be held in Stockholm to reside in Sweden during the period of training should they desire to do so.

White & Gillespie's Success In The Handling Of Flowers

They Consider Them a Valuable as Well as an Attractive Adjunct to Their Business—The Following Article and Cut are Reproduced From the Spring Number of the Canadian Grocer.

The grocery business has many side lines and the average grocer is generally eager to delve into some extra issue it is profitable and does not interfere with his main concern. On looking over the field of additional lines and upon careful consideration of the whole subject, it is not very probable that the handling of pot flowers would present itself without some suggestion in that regard from outside. It is a business that for many years seemed so utterly foreign to a grocery establishment that the oversight may be easily understood. There is however, a connection and it has remained for White and Gillespie, of Peterborough, to practically demonstrate that during the greater part of the year flowers can be handled successfully and, what is of more importance, profitably, and they practically take care of themselves.

This may appear to be a rather broad statement upon casual observation but Porter White has explained to The Grocer the manner in which the firm has been able to satisfactorily handle flowers.

Two Season's Experience

The first experience was in the Spring of 1908. They made arrangements with A. Blade & Son, florists, to take a certain number of their potted plants and flowers. Blade & Son were at somewhat of a disadvantage from the fact that they had no down town store to compete with those florists who had display shops and windows on the main street. They agreed to give White & Gillespie a fresh supply of flowers every Monday, as many as they could handle, and to replenish the stock during the week if necessary. This would mean that White & Gillespie would always have a fine display of flowers and would provide against any of them becoming unsightly or without bloom. It also meant that the grocery firm would meet with no loss in the carrying of the flowers.

Last Spring the agreement came into effect and White & Gillespie handled flowers until late in the autumn when the florists' supply was practically entirely sold out. About a month ago the same plan was entered upon and as was the experience last year the idea is proving a good one to all parties concerned.

The stock includes ordinary house plants, many of which can be transplanted to an outdoor flower bed. At this time of the year plants are in great demand and will continue so until late in the summer. They invariably catch the eye of the customer and being an article that everybody buys they are easy sellers. As Mr. White stated, "they sell themselves with but little effort on our part."

Continuing, he said, "When a woman has made nearly all her grocery purchases and is about to leave the store her eye catches the flowers and she asks the price of the geranium or that something else and as there is always room for another flower in every home and the price being reasonable she will ask to have one or more sent along with her order. As the plants are fresh every week they are always in bloom and therefore most attractive. We have a particular place for them in the store and often display them in the window. The only attention they require is to be watered every morning which can be done in ten minutes. They make a catchy display window and give bright and cheery appearance to the interior.

Losses Impossible

"The chief points in the handling of these flowers is the fact that there is a clear and assured profit. They appeal to every woman. The price is within the range of the slenderest or strongest purse. They are easily cared for and no extra trouble is experienced in their delivery as they go out with the rest of the orders. Moreover the average woman will go to a florists for plants and flowers about once a year, in the springtime, at least she intends to go. When she finds them in the grocery store at as fair a price as she can get in any florists' she buys them then and there, and they are sent out with her order of groceries.

"There is nothing objectionable to the flowers from the grocer's standpoint. They are not only attractive and clean but they permeate the shop with a delicate fragrance that is appreciated by the customer as soon as he or she enters the store."

In conclusion Mr. White stated that they sold a great many last year and already have disposed of a large number this spring, thereby demonstrating beyond a doubt that they are a profitable adjunct to a grocery business when suitable arrangements can be made with a florist.

GLIMPSES OF LIFE AND CONDITIONS IN ENGLAND

Weather Has Been Very Cold and Disagreeable—There Has Not Been Much Change in Bath With the Exception of Electric Lights and Motor Cars—Telephone Etiquette is Different From Ours-

(Written for The Examiner by Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse.)

Speaking from a strictly Canadian standpoint, the weather for the past ten days has been awful. Never in all my years in Canada, do I remember to have felt the cold so keenly. East winds have been blowing every day, and yet, notwithstanding this, that noble being the Briton, keeps his doors and windows wide open in order to "air the house properly." He's a wonderful man for fresh air and cold baths—I think that the last mentioned item is really quite a national mania, and that everyone, whether he takes a bath or not, likes to make everyone else think he does, for when I was travelling down from Liverpool the other day I happened to get into conversation with a man who, judging from external appearances, was not dangerously addicted to the habit. He informed me, however, that he could never eat his breakfast without his "morning dip." He must have missed many breakfasts.

Bath, that "city of precipices," as Whyte Melville once called it, is basking to-day for the first time in the sunshine of perfect spring weather. The east winds have vanished and a wonderful purple haze is hanging over the hills. It is a wonderful city, and possibly, next to Athens and Edinburgh, the most beautiful in Europe. Situated in a deep hollow and surrounded by a perfect amphitheatre of hills, on whose sides beautiful terraces and crescents of houses rise abruptly to the sky line, it is a marvel of architectural beauty, but, what appeals to the esthetic sense in man does not extend to his legs, of all attitudes pleasures connected me to a "constitutional" in Bath. There is not much change in the place. Bathchair men are still to be seen wheeling invalid ladies around the crescents; palsied and rheumatic sufferers hobble along as best they can to the historic pump room to drink the waters, and the beadle, in his quaint old-fashioned costume perambulates the corridor, the envy and terror alike of the ubiquitous small boy. But I was wrong—there is a change—the gas lamps are a thing of the past and electricity is king; motor cars whirl and toot, toot in all the busy thoroughfares and along the country roads. Taxicabs and motor buses climb the hills with tired wayfarers, and telephones, of strange device are to be found in many private residences. Yes, without a doubt, if the shade of Beau Nash haunts the Assembly Rooms and the Milson Street the great rendesvous of the fashionable world, it notes many changes since the hey-day of fashion and frolic of the ancient city.

Talking of telephones, a Canadian or American is likely to get into somewhat bad odour if he rings up and calls out Hullo! It is considered very bad form. The proper thing to say is, "Are you there?" I am told it is "more polite." It will take me some time to get used to it. Up to the present, in my anxiety to do the right thing, I have been calling "Hullo, are you there?" but am told that this is rather an aggravation than an improvement.

To-day and yesterday, the Bath races have been held, and it is a blessed thing that they are finished. The direct road to the race track is past our house, and a more conglomerate crowd than has streamed past the door could not very well be imagined. Gipsy caravans, costermongers' carts, motors, cabs, buses, all filled with a motley crowd of pleasure seekers, have been wheeling past and filling the house with dust. The roads are really magnificent, notwithstanding the dust. Every day since my arrival kind friends have been giving me motor rides in the country. To thoroughly appreciate the pleasures of this mode of conveyance one has but to travel along an English thoroughfare. There is no bumping over rocks and stones and splashing through mud puddles. But the amount of traffic is tremendous.

Politics are quiet. The only real stir that has been created has been by Lord Roberts' speech in the House of Lords in regard to the inadequacy of the army forces. The [illegible] with which the Unionists and the married men of the country view the budget proposals of Mr. Lloyd-George is deep-seated and sincere. The British taxpayer is beginning to growl at the thought of the extra demands that are likely to be made on his resources.

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Copyright 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle.

On the road which led to the old dark manor-house upon the side of the hill a youth had been riding. His mount was a sorry one, a weedy, shambling, long-haired colt, and his patched tunic of faded purple with stained leather belt presented no very smart appearance; yet in the bearing of the man, in the poise of his head, in his easy graceful carriage, and in the bold glance of his large blue eyes, there was that stamp of distinction and of breed which would have given him a place of his own in any assembly. He was of small stature, but his frame was singularly elegant and graceful. His face, though tanned with the weather, was delicate in features and most eager and alert in expression. A thick fringe of crisp yellow curls broke from under the dark flat cap which he was wearing, and a short golden beard hid the outline of his strong square chin. One white osprey feather thrust through a gold brooch in the front of his cap gave a touch of grace to his sombre garb. This and other points of his attire, the short hanging mantle, the leather-sheathed hunting-knife, the cross belt which sustained a brazen horn, the soft doe-skin boots and the prick spurs, would all disclose themselves to an observer; but at the first glance the brown face set in gold and the dancing light of the quick, reckless, laughing eyes, were the one strong memory left behind.

Such was the youth who, cracking his whip joyously, and followed by half a score of dogs, cantered on his rude pony down the Tilford Lane, and thence it was that with a smile of amused contempt upon his face he observed the comedy in the field and the impotent efforts of the servants of Waverley.

Suddenly, however, as the comedy turned swiftly to black tragedy, this passive spectator leaped into quick strenuous life. With a spring he was off his pony, and with another he was over the stone wall and flying swiftly across the field. Looking up from his victim, the great yellow horse saw this other enemy approach, and spurning the prostrate, but still writhing body with its heels, dashed at the newcomer.

But this time there was no hasty flight, no rapturous pursuit to the wall. The little man braced himself straight, flung up his metal-headed whip, and met the horse with a crashing blow upon the head, repeated again and again with every attack. In vain the horse reared and tried to overthrow its enemy with swooping shoulders and pawing hoofs. Cool, swift and alert, the man sprang swiftly aside from under the very shadow of death, and then again came the swish and thud of the unerring blow from the heavy handle.

The horse drew off, glared with wonder and fury at this masterful man, and then trotted round in a circle, with mane bristling, tail streaming and ears on end, snorting in its rage and pain. The man, hardly deigning to glance at his fell neighbor, passed on to the wounded forester, raised him in his arms with a strength which could not have been expected in so slight a body, and carried him, groaning, to the wall, where a dozen hands were outstretched to help him over. Then, at his leisure, the young man also climbed the wall, smiling back with cool contempt at the yellow horse, which had come raging after him once more.

As he sprang down, a dozen monks surrounded him to thank him or to praise him; but he would have turned sullenly away without a word had he not been stopped by Abbot John in person.

"Nay, Squire Loring," said he, "if you be a bad friend to our Abbey, yet we must needs own that you have played the part of a good Christian this day, for if there is breath left in our servant's body it is to you next to our blessed patron Saint Bernard that we owe it."

"By Saint Paul! I owe you no goodwill, Abbot John," said the young man. "The shadow of your Abbey has ever fallen across the house of Loring. As to any small deed that I may have done this day, I ask no thanks for it. It is not for you nor for your house that I have done it, but only because it was my pleasure so to do."

The Abbot flushed at the bold words, and bit his lip with vexation.

It was the ascrist, however, who answered: "It would be more fitting and more gracious," said he, "if you were to speak to the holy Father Abbot in a manner suited to his high rank and to the respect which is due to a Prince of the Church."

The youth turned his bold blue eyes upon the monk, and his sunburned face darkened with anger. "Were it not for the gown upon your back, and for your silvering hair, I would answer you in another fashion," said he. "You are the lean wolf which growls ever at our door, greedy for the little which hath been left to us. Say and do what you will with me, but by Saint Paul! if I find that Dame Ermyntrude is baited by your ravenous pack I will beat them off with this whip from the little patch which still remains of all the acres of my fathers."

"Have a care, Nigel Loring, have a care!" cried the Abbot, with finger upraised. "Have you no fears of the law of England?"

"A just law I fear and obey."

"Have you no respect for Holy Church?"

"I respect all that is holy in her. I do not respect those who grind the poor or steal their neighbor's land."

"Rash man, many a one has been blighted by her ban for less than you have now said! And yet it is not for us to judge you harshly this day. You are young and hot words come easily to your lips. How fares the forester?"

"His hurt is grievous, Father Abbot, but he will live," said a brother, looking up from the prostrate form. "With a blood-letting and an electuary, I will warrant him sound within a month."

"Then bear him to the hospital. And now, brother, about this terrible beast who still gazes and snorts at us over the top of the wall as though his thoughts of Holy Church were as unsouth as those of Squire Nigel himself, what are we to do with him?"

"Here is Franklin Aylward," said one of the brethren. "The horse was his, and doubtless he will take it back to his farm."

But the stout red-faced farmer shook his head at the proposal. "Not I, in faith!" said he. "The beast hath chased me twice round the paddock; it has nigh slain my boy Samkin. He would never be happy till he had ridden it, nor has he ever been happy since. There is not a hind in my employ who will enter his stall. Ill fare the day that ever I took the beast from the Castle stud at Guildford, where they could do nothing with it and no rider could be found bold enough to mount it! When the sacrist here took it for a fifty-shilling debt he made his own bargain and must abide by it. He comes no more to the Crooksbury farm."

"And he stays no more here," said the Abbot. "Brother sacrist, you have raised the Devil, and it is for you to lay it again."

"That I will most readily," cried the sacrist. "The pittance-master can stop the fifty shillings from my very own weekly dole, and so the Abbey be none the poorer. In the meantime here is Wat with his arbalist and a bolt in his girdle. Let his drive it to the head through this cursed creature, for his hide and his hoofs are of more value than his wicked self."

A hard brown old woodman who had been shooting vermin in the Abbey groves stepped forward with a grin of pleasure. After a lifetime of stoats and foxes, this was indeed a noble quarry which was to fall before him. Fitting a bolt on the nut of his taut crossbow, he had raised it to his shoulder and leveled it at the fierce, proud, dishevelled head which tossed in savage freedom at the other side of the wall. His finger was crooked on the spring, when a blow from a whip struck the bow upward and the bolt flew harmless over the Abbey orchard, while the woodman shrank abashed from Nigel Loring's angry eyes.

"Keep your bolts for your weasels!" said he. "Would you take life from a creature whose only fault is that its spirit is so high that it has met none yet who dare control it? You would slay such a horse as a king might be proud to mount, and all because a country franklin, or a monk, or a monk's varlet, has not the wit nor the hands to master him?"

The sacrist turned swiftly on the Squire. "The Abbey owes you an offering for this day's work, however rude your words may be," said he. "If you think so much of the horse, you may desire to own it. If I am to pay for it, then with the holy Abbot's permission it is in my gift and I bestow it freely upon you."

The Abbot plucked at his subordinate's sleeve. "Bethink you, brother sacrist," he whispered, "shall we not have this man's blood upon our heads?"

"His pride is as stubborn as the horse's, holy father," the sacrist answered, his gaunt face breaking into a malicious smile. "Man or beast, one will break the other and the world will be the better for it. If you forbid me——"

"Nay, brother, you have bought the horse, and you may have the bestowal of it."

"Then I give it—hide and hoofs, tail and temper—to Nigel Loring, and may it be as sweet and as gentle to him as he hath been to the Abbot of Waverley!"

The sacrist spoke aloud amid the tittering of the monks, for the man concerned was out of earshot. At the first words which had shown him the turn which affairs had taken he had run swiftly to the spot where he had left his pony. From its mouth he removed the bit and the stout bridle which held it. Then leaving the creature to nibble the grass by the wayside he sped back whence he came.

"I take your gift, monk," said he, "though I know well why it is made you give it. Yet I thank you, for there are two things upon earth for which I have ever yearned, and which my thin purse could never buy. The one is a noble horse, such a horse as my father's son should have betwixt his thighs, and here is the one of all others which I would have chosen, since some small deed is to be done in the winning of him, and some honorable advancement to be gained. How is the horse called?"

"Its name," said the franklin, "is Pommers. I warn you, young sir, that none may ride him, for many have tried, and the hardiest is he who has only a stave-rib to show for it."

"I thank you for your rede," said Nigel, "and now I see that this is indeed a horse which I would journey far to meet, I am your man, Pommers, and you are my horse, and this night you shall own it or I will never need horse again. My spirit against thine, and God hold thy spirit high, Pommers, so that the greater be the adventure, and the more hope of honor gained!"

While he spoke the young Squire had climbed on to the top of the wall and stood there balanced, the very image of grace and spirit and gallantry, his bridle hanging from one hand and his whip grasped in the other. With a fierce snort, the horse made for him instantly, and his white teeth flashed as he snapped; but again a heavy blow from the loaded whip caused him to swerve, and even at the instant of the swerve, measuring the distance with steady eyes, and bending his supple body for the spring, Nigel bounded into the air and fell with his legs astride the broad back of the yellow horse. For a minute, with neither saddle nor stirrups to help him, and the beast ramping and rearing like a mad thing beneath him, he was hard pressed to hold his own. His legs were like two bands of steel welded on to the swelling arches of the great horse's ribs, and his left hand was buried deep in the tawny mane.

Never had the dull round of the lives of the gentle brethren of Waverley been broken by so fiery a scene. Springing to right and swooping to left, now with its tangled wicked head betwixt its forefeet, and now pawing eight feet high in the air, with scarlet, furious nostrils and maddened eyes, the yellow horse was a thing of terror and of beauty. But the lithe figure on his back, bending like a reed in the wind to every movement, firm below, pliant above, with calm inexorable face, and eyes which danced and gleamed with the joy of contest, still held its masterful place for all that the fiery heart and the iron muscles of the great beast could do.

Once a long drone of dismay rose from the monks, as rearing higher and higher yet a last mad effort sent the creature toppling over backward upon its rider. But, swift and coal, he had writhed from under it ere it fell, spurned it with his foot as it rolled upon the earth, and then seizing its mane as it rose swung himself lightly on to its back once more. Even the grim sacrist could not but join the cheer, as Pommers, amazed to find the rider still upon his back, plunged and curveted down the field.

But the wild horse only swelled into a greater fury. In the sullen gloom of its untamed heart there rose the furious resolve to dash the life from this clinging rider, even if it meant destruction to beast and man. With red, blazing eyes it looked round for death. On three sides the five-virgate field was founded by a high wall, broken only at one spot by a heavy four-foot wooden gate. But on the fourth side was a low gray building, one of the granges of the Abbey, presenting a long flank unbroken by door or window. The horse stretched itself into a gallop, and headed straight for that craggy thirty-foot wall. He would break in red ruin at the base of it if he could but dash forever the life of this man, who claimed mastery over that which had never found its master yet.

FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

Millions of leaflets are being circulated among the people of the Empire, informing the masses how to guard against Tuberculosis, of which 100,000 Germans die every year. The time is fast approaching when this disease will be treated like diphtheria and smallpox—the patient being isolated and removed from contact with others.

Meantime it is to be hoped the masses will learn the all-important lesson of guarding against coughs and chest colds, from which tuberculosis always springs. When your throat tickles, your chest feels tight and sore, when you sneeze and feel cold shivers up your back — that should be your warning.

Nerviline Will Assist

The following treatment is known to be very efficient: Give the chest and throat a vigorous hand-rubbing with Nerviline, and take twenty drops of Nerviline in hot, sweetened water. If there is any hoarseness or cough, gargle well with Nerviline and put a Nerviline Porous Plaster over the chest. By following this advice you can keep clear of colds, pneumonia, bronchitis, and preserve uniform good health. This is worth cutting out and preserving.

PERFECT FLIERS.

Eagles, Vultures and Similar Birds Are In This Class.

It is a fact that those ingenious and daring minds that devote themselves to the solution of the problem of aviation have given no small part of their preliminary study to considering the manner of flight of birds.

A strange result of this investigation is the conclusion, now generally indorsed, that, as a whole, the bird world is not to be regarded as perfect in its attainment of flight. For, instance, it is contended by the best authorities that all birds obliged continually to flap their wings—and in this category may be mentioned sparrows, finches, thrushes, crows, etc.—are still in an imperfect stage of advancement.

In the next class, as being a degree advanced, are put such birds as pigeons, swallows, etc., which are able to dart ahead for a space after they have gained a good start by the vigorous flapping of their pinions.

In the third class the birds that may be said to be perfect fliers are the eagles, vultures, albatrosses and similar big birds possessing the ability to rise and fall and sway and soar in the air indefinitely without a perceptible movement of their wings. It is, of course, known to every person of an observant turn that these big fowl are able to soar into the air gradually until at last they disappear from the eye of the watcher, it being almost impossible to detect any movement beyond a slight occasional motion of the tail.—New York Tribune.

A QUICK CHANGE.

From the Desire For Comfort to the Craze For Speed.

Mr. Nowcar (about to start on his first trip in his recently purchased motor car, to his chauffeur)—Now, William, I want it thoroughly understood I will not have fast driving. Always keep well under the legal limit—not as close to it as you can. Ten miles an hour is fast enough for me. What I want is comfort, not excitement. Do you understand?

Three days later. "Er—er—William, I must be back to the house by 7 o'clock. This road seems very straight and wide. Don't you think you might go just a little faster without danger?"

Two days later. "William, this dust is very unpleasant. If you could pass that car ahead—it seems to be going rather slowly."

Next day. "Put on a little more speed, William. There's no use in being a crank. This road is too good to lose the chance."

A week later. "Open her up, William! There are no police within five miles, I'll bet, and if there are who cares? I'm out for fun! Let her zip! Let her zip! This is no steam roller! Let's have some speed!"—Life.

Monkey and Goat.

Monkeys are more renowned for mischief than for kindness, but even monkeys can be benevolent. M. Mouton records the doings of one in Guadeloupe that surely seemed to merit that reputation. This monkey had a friend in a goat that went daily to the pasture. Every night the monkey would pick out the burs and thorns, sometimes to the number of 2,000 or 3,000, from the goat's fleece, in order that the animal might lie down in peace. On coming in from the pasture the goat regularly went in search of his light handed friend and submitted himself to the operation. Strange to say, the tricky instincts of the monkey reasserted themselves after the pricks were removed. He would tease the poor goat unmercifully, plucking his beard, poking him in the eyes and pulling out his hairs. The goat bore it all with patience, perhaps regarding it as only a fair price to be paid for the removal of the thorns.—London Standard.

The Ruling Passion.

His clothes said he was a tramp, but his brow was high and his manner grand. "Madam, may I request the favor of a pair of your husband's castoff trousers? These are somewhat passe." This, with a sweep of a tattered hat, brought results in the shape of a pair of hubby's oldest, which were just about two degrees better than those the tramp was wearing. After a critical survey of his acquisition, instead of the polite words of thanks the good woman was waiting for, the tramp volunteered, with a deep, long drawn sigh of regret, "Madam, I see your husband discards from weakness."—Puck.

Don't Be Cheap.

Do not hold yourself too cheap. If you do not think well of yourself others are not likely to think much of you. You are usually taken at your own value. By this is not meant a foolish self conceit, but a proper self respect.

Have a regard for the esteem of those whose opinion is worth having. No one can be admired by all. He who has no enemies may doubt whether he has real friends. Try to win the regard of the good and the wise. If the foolish take offense, pass it by.

Think too well of yourself to stoop to anything coarse, mean or untrue. However humble your station in life may be, you may think yourself worthy only of that which is good and true. To be genuine puts you on a high level. Whatever your purse, you may be rich in character. Think yourself worthy of the best to which you can attain. Aim for the highest you see, and should you fail to reach it you will still be higher than if your aim had been low.—Milwaukee Journal.

Unfeeling.

A soft air shook the honeysuckle vine, and puffs of delicate perfume floated gently to where erotic Blenkinsop sat spooning with his girl. Not a leaf stirred. Only the stars and moon above and the green earth below. All around was the atmosphere of lee-ove.

His tone was reverend and hushed. It was as if this slim and beautiful maiden were in his eyes a goddess.

"Darling," he exclaimed, pausing in his ecstatic osculations, "each time I kiss you it makes a better man of me!"

They fell to again.

A voice from above broke harshly on the night:

"What are you by now, then—saint or archangel?"

A burst of ribald laughter, the rattle of a closing window and then once more the holy calm of undisturbed night.—London Scraps.

Why They Moved.

The Bingses, mother and daughter, had long outstayed their welcome at their country friend's house. Moreover, they evinced no sign of going away nor did the mother seem to be in any way affected by the strong hints to go which the overtaxed hostess threw out from time to time. Finally, forbearance exhausted, the entertainer decided to reach the mother through her daughter. So one day, calling the little visitor to her, she said, "Maimie, when do you expect to go home?"

"Oh, I'm sure I don't know," was the careless reply. "We've several other places to stop at yet."

"Well, when do you go on to the next place?"

"Can't even tell that. Mamma says it's immaterial to her just when she'll leave here."

"But, my dear child," exclaimed the exasperated hostess, "doesn't your mother realize how costly living is these days?"

"Oh, yes, she knows how dear it is. That's why we left the city."

"Well, Maimie, I cannot afford to entertain visitors any longer, and I wish you'd tell your mother that at once!"

"Is that an insult?" rejoined the child, turning haughtily to the speaker.

"Why do you ask that, child?"

"Because when we're insulted we go on to the next place!"—London Weekly.

Unanswerable.

"Vicious circle" is a term often used in the medical world. An example of its psychological use applied to argument may be found in Joseph A. Scoville's book, "Old Merchants of New York City."

Tom, the son of a wealthy man, was a great favorite with all who knew him, but he heartily detested business. A merchant of New York had hired him as a bookkeeper at a high salary. Nevertheless Tom got into the habit of reaching the office later and later, until finally he got there about 2 in the afternoon. When this state of affairs had gone on for a week, the merchant remonstrated.

"But, my dear sir," returned Tom, "how can I come any earlier? I don't get my breakfast until 1."

"But get your breakfast earlier."

"How can I? I don't get up till 12."

"Then get up earlier."

"How can I," pleaded Tom, "when I don't go to bed until daylight?"

In the face of such convincing argument there was nothing to be said.

Why the Criminal Weeps.

The central office detective had just sent one of the worst criminals in the city away for a long, long rest.

"Did he give you any trouble?" asked a friend.

"No; he did a good deal of crying, though."

"For some woman, I suppose?"

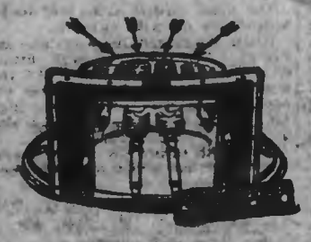
"Woman? Rather not! They never cry for human beings. This fellow had a wife who had stuck by him through the trial and who before he was caught worked her fingers off for him. Then there were two children. But he never mentioned them. He was crying about his flight—his pigeons, you know. He had about sixty fancy ones, and whenever he thought of what would become of them while he was away tears would spring to his eyes. A lot of the worst crooks and gangsters in the city are fanciers, and a kid couldn't be more sentimental than they are. Sometimes, too, they are sorry for dogs. I knew one who was more anxious about his ferret than anything else. At the same time I never knew a criminal, man or woman, who had a cat among the things they were sorry to leave behind."—New York Press.

Mission of Pain.

Although looked upon as an evil, pain is kind. It tells that the laws of nature have been violated and warns us to correct the cause. If it were not for pain we would go on doing things that would destroy us. Pain is a warning that something is wrong, and instead of trying to hush the pain with some drug we should seek to remove the cause.

The Hecla Furnace

These Grate Bars Clean Your Fire Without A Poker



Because each of these four Grate Bars can be shaken separately. When the outer edge of a fire is dead, shake only the outer grate bars. When the outer edge needs a hard shaking, and the center only a few twists, you can clean each part of the fire of all the ashes and clinkers, without turning good coal down into the ash pan. This saves the fire—saves coal—saves sifting ashes—and, of course, one grate is much easier to turn than four geared together.

"Hecla" Individual Grate Bar is only one of a score of improvements possessed by this furnace alone.

The "Hecla" Fused Joints, for instance, insure the Furnace being dust, smoke and gas proof. The joints are fused, making them solid and absolutely airtight.

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP.

There is many a man and woman tossing night after night upon a sleepless bed. Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right. Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system, that it cannot be quieted.

Or again, you have, a sinking sensation, a feeling you are going to die; or perhaps, you wake in your sleep feeling as though you were about to choke or smother, and that leaves you for the night. If you allow these conditions to continue for a short period even, you will begin to feel your health declining. It is the nerves and heart not acting rightly, and they can only be set right by the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They soon induce healthful, refreshing sleep, not by deadening the nerves, but by restoring them to healthy action.

Mrs. E. Nest, St. Mary's, Ont., writes:—"I can gladly recommend your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as I was greatly troubled with my nerves. I was so bad I could not sleep at night without the lamp burning, but after taking four boxes of the pills I became all right again."

THE SECRET PASSAGE

A TRUE STORY

Supreme Court
Appellate Division
Second Department

Brooklyn N.Y. May 4, 1909

There are very few people who know what they mean when they say "circumstantial evidence." I do not know any evidence except circumstantial evidence. The phrase has no scientific meaning.

Sincerely yours.

THE unvoiced alarm that sets a panic afoot at certain times in some mysterious way no man may understand had drawn an anxious little circle of maids and servants, who fluttered about Le Brun, the butler, within the porte cochère.

"Half o'clock and no ring for chocolate yet," exclaimed the cook. "Such a thing has not come upon us in all the years I have served my lady. 'Tis surely strange."

Le Brun, ordinarily a man of judgment, severity and reserve, not quick to play a part in any absurdity or domestic comedy, bore some reflection of the prevailing uneasiness in his face and manner, a fact that did nothing to calm the vague fears of the others.

"You may well say a strange thing for one so fixed in her habits as the mistress. Let no one think I seek to spread baseless dread, but I misdoubt me much we shall find something amiss when those doors are opened. My lady never locked any but the inner one before."

It was not well-considered, such a word at such a moment. Exclamations of dismay followed his pronouncements. A heavy rain was falling and the rumble of thunder knocked ominously upon these superstitious hearts. It needed but the sob of the under housemaid to push the situation to the verge of hysteria. Le Brun, recovering himself suddenly, brought them up with a sharp turn.

"Come, no scenes. We know nothing yet except that my lady has not called at her accustomed hour. If M. de Savonlere fails to come within the hour I shall send word to the commissary and the doors shall be forced. In the meantime we will have no disturbance, if you please."

He had scarcely delivered himself of this speech with rather hollow pomposity when there was a summons at the gate and the group melted away. Le Brun admitted M. de Savonlere, the son-in-law of Lady Mazel.

While he shook the clinging moisture from his coat the young man inquired briskly if his mother-in-law could be seen yet, adding that he had affairs on hand that necessitated an instant interview. M. de Savonlere acted as man of business for the well known leader in Parisian society and fashion whose daughter he had married, and it was his custom to consult with her every morning. Le Brun imparted his news maladroitly.

"Monsieur, I fear something has happened to my mistress," he blurted.

"Something! What kind of a something?" asked the visitor quickly. Le Brun spoke with visible effort.

"Nay, how should I know? But here it is two full hours past the time she is used to ring her bell, and we have heard nothing from her. The door to the outer antechamber is locked, a most remarkable thing, since there has never been a key to it, nor can we gain any response from knocking upon it. In truth, if the second antechamber door as well as her own is locked she could not hear us, just as we could not hear her if she should be calling for aid."

"Well, I see nothing there for such a state of mind," said M. de Savonlere, looking keenly at the butler. "Perhaps she finds it convenient to sleep a little longer. What else disturbs you?"

Cause for Alarm.

"If you knew my lady's punctuality as I do you would see cause for some alarm, monsieur. But there is another matter. Before I retired last night I tried the doors and windows on the ground floor as usual. I found the street door, through which you have just come, swinging wide to the wind, although I distinctly recall having closed it securely after my lady went up stairs."

"You say there is no key to the outer antechamber door?"

"I have never seen one. Nor is there a key to the second. Both close on the latch. The door to the bed chamber has a spring lock and Lady Mazel keeps the key inside."

M. de Savonlere looked upon the matter in a darker light on hearing of these circumstances and hurried up the great staircase to the mezzanine floor, with Le Brun at his heels. He tried the outer door leading to the first antechamber and found it fast, as the butler had said. He pounded upon the panels without result.

"Le Brun, I don't like the look of this. We must get these doors open. I will take full responsibility. It may be that she has suffered a sudden attack of apoplexy or other trouble."

"But would the doors be locked if it were nothing more?" inquired Le Brun, with white face.

"Bring the men servants with a crowbar!" was the incisive reply.

The butler brought the coachman and a footman from the servants' quarters. Urged on by curiosity and the sense of impending [illegible], the women flocked behind. The first door was forced. The small, dark ante chamber was empty and the door beyond was also closed and locked. This was also forced. The little party paused outside the bedroom and listened. There was no sound from within. Finally M. de Savonlere summoned the courage, real enough in face of the strange situation of affairs, to rap, gently at first and then more vigorously.

No response was audible. With a gesture he ordered the men forward with the crowbar. A blow, a wrench opposite the lock, and the heavy barrier swung inward. At first glance there appeared no indication of disorder to the group that peeped timorously from the doorway. The interior of the bed was hidden by the heavy curtains. Le Brun, beads of perspiration standing upon his forehead in his excitement, brushed past the others, who hung back, and flung the draperies aside. He started back violently with a gasping cry of terror.

The body of Lady Mazel lay across the top of the bed, a torn and stained pillow partly covering it. She had been cut and slashed almost beyond recognition. Subsequent examination showed that fifty-one wounds had been inflicted upon her with a knife and that she had been dead about twelve hours. The bed clothes and her own linen garment showed how desperate and determined had been her struggle for life.

The Banded Box.

While M. de Savonlere and the men servants pressed in silent horror about the bed and the women screamed, Le Brun ran to the other end of the room where stood a small, but stoutly banded strong box, which he seized and lifted.

"How is this?" he cried. "She has not been robbed."

It was found that, in fact, the chest was heavily weighted and the lock still fast.

M. de Savonlere took charge of the investigation with a degree of self-command and decision that did him credit. He quieted the women and sent them to their quarters, ordered the door closed upon every one except Le Brun and sent the footman for the Commissary of Police. Then he charged the butler to describe to him in detail the happenings of the previous night. Le Brun apparently retained a hold upon himself with difficulty. His words came wheezingly in his throat and he leaned against a table for support as he attempted to reply. Several times during the broken recital M. de Savonlere caught him up sharply. The man seemed to be abnormally affected by the tragedy. In substance he told his story as follows:—

"My two sisters, fashionable milliners, as you know, called upon my lady, the day being Sunday, to pay their respects. She received them kindly and was with them until late in the afternoon. She then dined with Father Poulard. At her accustomed time she retired to her chamber, where I attended her to receive her commands for to-day. After I left her she was waited upon by her two maids and the last one of them to leave her left the key to the bed chamber on a chair just inside the door and closed it. It catches on a spring lock and cannot be opened from the outside without violence.

"I went down into the hall and sat before the fire. I must have fallen asleep, for when I looked at the clock again it was well past my usual hour for retiring. As I recall it was eleven o'clock. I made the rounds of the floor, and then it was that I found the outer door ajar. The matter puzzled and troubled me, but I fastened it and went to bed.

"This morning I attended to the marketing as usual and on returning was surprised to hear that my lady had not sounded the bell. It was then that I discovered the circumstance of the locked antechamber door. The rest you know."

The methodical young man of business made no comment upon these statements, but took care to make note of them. The case began to take some form in his mind. He turned to an examination of the room.

In a corner he found a wide linen scarf, splashed with blood and tied and knotted into the form of a cap. It retained the shape of the head upon which it had been wound. Among the ashes on the hearth lay the blade of a short, common kitchen knife, with only a small, charred fragment of the wooden handle adhering to its base. Undoubtedly in this he held the weapon that had been used by the murderer. Turning again to the bed he noticed that the bell rope, which ordinarily dangled a tassel handle just above the pillow, had been looped up high out of reach. This explained how his mother-in-law had been unable to summon aid and argued some opportunity for preparation on the part of the assailant. He was still at a loss for a motive. There appeared to have been no robbery.

Story of Le Brun.

While the young man had been absorbed in his investigation Le Brun had been walking back and forth in an agitated manner within the embrasure of the window, pausing at every turn to wring his hands. The butler's actions irritated M. de Savonlere.

"Look here, Le Brun," he broke out, roughly. "Do you know where my mother-in-law kept the key to the strong box?"

Le Brun, startled by the question, shook his head and declared that he had never known where the key was kept. M. de Savonlere thought this rather strange and was more than ever puzzled by the butler's behavior. He set to work, however, to discover the strong box key. He had been unsuccessful up to the moment when the footman ushered in the Commissary of Police and two of his men.

After the official had inspected the body and its condition he requested full particulars of the circumstances. M. de Savonlere elaborated carefully from the notes he had made and exhibited the nightcap and knife blade. Le Brun was asked to repeat his story and did so with some effort, holding in every detail to his former statement. The commissary watched him with a cold, expressionless eye as he talked, but did not interrupt him. The inquiry came around once more to the point of the key to the strong box. Another search for it was instituted.

The commissary noticed a small mahogany cabinet on the dressing table. He opened it by snapping back a catch. Inside lay Lady Mazel's jewels, and M. de Savonlere was able to state positively that none was missing. The Commissary took a small bronze key from an upper shelf of the cabinet.

"I think we shall have a sight of the inside of that cabinet now," he said with something of triumph. It proved to be the one of which they were in search and the strong box was thrown open. To M. de Savonlere, who saw the interior of the chest each morning while discussing and arranging affairs of business with Lady Mazel, it was immediately apparent that some hand other than that of his mother-in-law had last disturbed the contents. Packages of papers had been disarranged. A leather bag which had contained a large sum of gold when he had put it in its place the previous Saturday lay almost empty, with loosened strings.

"The motive is here, M. le Commissaire," he said. "I should say offhand that fifteen thousand francs is missing. And what a clever rogue is that who seeks to cover his tracks by locking up the chest again and by putting the key back in its place, doubly clever in withstanding the temptation to take just one little jewel with him. Observe the care with which he avoided that mistake. It could be too easily traced."

This phase of the crime having been cleared up the Commissary stationed himself in the outer antechamber and caused the servants to be brought before him one at a time. He questioned them soothingly, not holding an attitude of suspicion but seeking to bring each over to his own side by subtle flattery. He gained few additional facts bearing directly upon the case, however, until it came the turn of the first maid to Lady Mazel.

Opening the Chest.

After approaching his point cautiously the official asked casually:—

"Do you know where your mistress kept the key to her strong box?"

"Oh, yes, monsieur," answered the girl, readily. "It was always in her little jewel cabinet, on the table."

"Did any one in the household besides yourself know where it was kept?"

"Only Le Brun, monsieur, I think. I have seen him open the chest at my lady's command."

When he had excused the maid the commissary asked M. de Savonlere if the butler had not professed ignorance concerning the place where the key was kept. The young man replied that he had. Le Brun was then summoned. He appeared with a bundle in his hand and on entering the room loosened this and spread out in a rather dramatic manner a rope ladder about thirty feet in length.

"I found this but a moment ago in the lower hall, monsieur," he said. "Evidently the miscreant intended to escape by means of it after accomplishing his wicked deed."

The Commissary examined the ladder.

"You say you discovered it in the lower hall?"

"Yes, monsieur, in a corner, where it had been overlooked."

"How do you suppose he really escaped?"

"I fear that I am culpable there, monsieur," said Le Brun, in distress. "It must have been while I was dozing before the fire that he found an opportunity to pass by me and out the street door."

The Commissary tapped smartly on the table. His two assistants appeared instantly from the inner chamber.

"Arrest that man," he ordered, pointing to Le Brun. The butler, stricken into the picture of terror by the words, held out his hands in supplication.

"Surely, surely, monsieur," he gasped, "I am not that much to blame. You would not arrest me for having fallen asleep."

"I arrest you for murder," said the Commissary. "Search him."

The odds and ends of articles taken from the pockets of the trembling prisoner were carefully examined. M. de Savonlere was particularly interested in the small bunch of keys found upon him. He tried each of them in succession upon the lock of the antechamber door, but without result.

"Perhaps you will do better with this one," said the Commissary, and held out to him an unattached key which he had found in Le Brun's side pocket. M. de Savonlere tried it in its turn and was not altogether surprised to find that it fitted the lock exactly.

Le Brun was sent away under the guard of the two gendarmes while the Commissary and M. de Savonlere proceeded to knit together the promising points that had come to their hands.

The first question to settle was how the butler was able to penetrate to the bed chamber in order to accomplish his design. The unattached key, as they determined by examination, was a rough bit of hand manufacture, sawn out of a sheet of copper and filed into shape. It unlocked the doors to both antechambers but brought them no nearer to an explanation of the manner in which the murderer had passed the third door. This was fastened by a strong spring lock, which did not extend to the outer side, and apparently it had not been tampered with.

Untangling the Clews.

M. de Savonlere came to the conviction that the murderer's entrance had not been effected through the door before the Commissary was ready to relinquish the possibility, and changed his investigation to another angle. The walls of the bed chamber were heavily hung with tapestries and the young man felt his way among and back of these hangings, tapping the wall and panels in search of some secret means of ingress. His discovery, when it came, was simple enough, however, and afforded immediate solution of their problem. In a corner, covered from sight by the arras, was a plain door, evidently long disused. The copper key fitted the lock and the door swung open on rusty hinges.

Beyond was a dark, narrow passage, leading straight back through the house, damp and musty and smelling of the decay of years. They followed it to another door, which also gave before the master key. And here the matter finally cleared, for when they opened the barrier they found themselves on the rear stairway leading to the servants' quarters above. It was plain that the murderer had known of this passage, had made himself a key to fit the locks, had entered in the night, killed Lady Mazel, robbed the chest and made off either the way he had come or through the antechambers. The latter course seemed the likeliest, for he had locked the two antechamber doors.

The one circumstance that seemed to M. de Savonlere to obstruct a clear case against Le Brun was the fact that the copper key had been found in his pocket. It seemed a little strange that a man who could plan and carry out such a desperate crime had lacked the cleverness to hide or destroy such vital proof against himself. But the Commissary assured him that such an oversight was a familiar phenomenon in dealing with criminals. Further discoveries also served to remove any question from his mind.

While the body of Lady Mazel was being removed it was noticed that a shred of some fabric, heavily stained, was still clutched by the fingers of her right hand. On being examined this proved to be a strip of heavy, figured silk. It was easily established that it had not been a part of any article in the room, and the natural supposition was that she had torn it from the person of the murderer in the death struggle. The servants were questioned and several of them identified the silk immediately as part of a cravat which they had seen Le Brun wear many times.

The cook swore positively that the partly destroyed knife, found in the ashes on the hearth, was one which she had long used in the kitchen. It had been missing about two months, she said, but she was sure that there could be no mistake, for it had been ground and sharpened many times and the blade had assumed a peculiar contour.

The linen scarf, knotted into the form of a cap, offered something of a mystery for a time until M. de Savonlere converted it into another bit of evidence to add to the overwhelming case against the prisoner. Le Brun wore his hair rather long and the young man bethought himself that it would not be strange if he had wished to hold the strands back out of his way while attacking Lady Mazel. The scarf was taken to the prison and when placed over the butler's head was found to fit him exactly.

The incident of the rope ladder was regarded as a rather stupid attempt on the part of Le Brun to deflect suspicion from himself toward some unknown intruder. His agitated actions and his premature fear of a tragedy, which had been carried to excess, joined also with this view.

The only matter which remained to any degree outside the theory of the butler's guilt was the disposition of the money stolen from the chest, although the case as it stood was completely satisfactory. Even here, however, the prosecution, through the clear headed assistance of M. de Savonlere, was partly successful.

The amateur investigator was able to discover that on the morning of the murder, while ostensibly engaged in marketing for the household, Le Brun had visited his wife, who lived in another quarter of the city. The apartments of the couple were searched and under the bed the young man found a small iron box containing about a thousand francs in gold. The woman was arrested and an attempt was made to implicate her. She was able to clear herself of complicity, however, and the case was centred upon her husband, the authorities being convinced that he had not taken her into his confidence. She admitted that on the morning in question Le Brun had brought her five hundred of the thousand francs. Neither then nor at the trial could the prosecution present a clear explanation of what the butler had done with the rest of the money. It was supposed that he had placed it in a bank under an assumed name.

Le Brun obtained a speedy trial, the peculiarly aggravating circumstances surrounding the crime causing the authorities to hasten the wheels of justice. His defence was unconvincing and he was quickly sentenced to death. His execution took place about two weeks later.

* * * * *

About a month after the disposal of the case the local police officers of the town of Sens, about sixty miles from Paris, had occasion to look into the affairs of John Gariet, who recently had set himself up in business there as a dealer in horses. During convivial moments in a tavern he had allowed it to become known that his real name was not Gariet, but Berry. This fact coming to the ears of one who had confidential relations with the police, a quiet investigation was made. Nothing was known of the man's antecedents before coming to Sens, but the fact that he had changed his name was considered sufficient ground for keeping him under surveillance.

He was seen exhibiting a small gold watch to some acquaintances while partly intoxicated and was arrested. The watch proved to be very valuable and was sent for identification to the Paris police. Through the watchmaker whose name it bore it was established as having been the property of Lady Mazel. M. de Savonlere pronounced it to have been the property of his mother-in-law, but said that she had lost it about two months before the date of her murder. Berry was sent for and was asked by the Paris authorities to explain how he came to have the watch in his possession.

He told several contradictory stories, which were all disproved, and an inquiry was set on foot. It was learned that Berry had been employed in the Mazel household as coachman and that he had been turned away for theft. The circumstance of his sudden accession to wealth, which had enabled him to purchase the business of a horse dealer in Sens, seemed to indicate that he had been concerned in a considerable robbery, and still more stringent measures were adopted to discover his movements before leaving Paris. In the midst of these a shopkeeper living near the Mazel house caused something of a sensation by informing the police that he knew Berry and that he had seen him leaving the home of his former employer by the front door late on the night during which Lady Mazel was murdered.

At this point M. de Savonlere became interested and obtained all the available results of the official investigation up to date. In looking back over the case against Le Brun he had been struck forcibly by the fact that no garment belonging to the butler had been found bearing blood stains, unless the bit of cravat were excepted. While not doubting that justice had been done, he had tried without success to explain this lack to his own satisfaction. The struggle between the murderer and his victim must have been furious, yet Le Brun had showed no scratches on his face or hands and no marks upon his clothing. He set himself to discover whether Berry might not have had some connection with the crime.

His Two Confessions.

A barber living a few blocks from the Mazel home came forward with the information that on the morning following the murder he had shaved Berry, whom he had not seen until then since his discharge. The man's face and hands were badly scratched, he said, and when he asked Berry the cause the former coachman's answer had been that he had received the scratches in killing a cat. It was learned from the police at Sens that Berry when he appeared there had brought with him a sum of money approximating fifteen thousand francs.

Armed with these bits of information M. de Savonlere visited Berry in jail, informed him that he had positive proof of his complicity in the murder of Lady Mazel and urged him to confess. Somewhat to his surprise the manoeuvre was successful, the prisoner weakened and officials were summoned to take down his statement. When they arrived, however, the man had recovered his assurance in some part and told a remarkable and fanciful story. He said that he had assisted in the murder at the instigation of Mme. de Savonlere, the daughter of Lady Mazel, and that he had guarded the door while Le Brun killed his mistress. He was tried and condemned to death.

On the way to the scaffold he recanted his first confession and substituted another which undoubtedly established the truth of the strange matter.

During his employment with Lady Mazel he had planned a robbery of her strong box and had made the copper key to fit the lock of the door to the disused passage. He found, incidentally, that it would also lock the antechamber doors. He was dismissed before he was able to accomplish his design and did not find an opportunity to slip into the house unobserved until the Friday preceding the murder. He made his way up the rear stairway to the top of the house, where he concealed himself in a storeroom. Here he remained until Sunday, subsisting on apples and bread which he had brought in his pockets. The only weapon he had with him was the kitchen knife, which he had stolen the day of his discharge.

On Sunday afternoon, when he was sure that Lady Mazel was not in her chamber, he descended the stairs, entered the secret passage, made his way into the bedroom and secreted himself under the bed. About midnight, when he was sure that Lady Mazel was asleep, he crawled out of his hiding place and quietly looped the cord of the bell rope out of reach of a grasping hand. He then tied the scarf which he found on a chair about his head to keep his hair back. His first blow had glanced and it took him ten minutes to subdue Lady Mazel, though he succeeded in preventing an outcry.

After she was dead he found the key to the strong box, having learned where it was kept from the first maid, opened the chest, transferred the contents of a bag of gold to a canvas sack, locked the chest, replaced the key, threw off the scarf and tossed the knife in the grate and left the room through the antechambers. He locked both doors after him with the copper key for the purpose of postponing discovery of the crime. The inner door locked itself with the spring catch.

Making his way carefully downstairs he saw Le Brun fast asleep in a chair before the fire. Stealing along to his side he dropped the copper key in his side pocket and reached the street by the front door, leaving it open behind him. Before starting out he dropped the rope ladder, tied into a bundle, which he had made and carried for use if he should be forced to escape through a window.

The bit of silk cravat was part of an article which had belonged to Le Brun, but which Berry had stolen. He was wearing the cravat at the time of the murder and his victim wrenched off the strip in resisting him. Le Brun's acute sensitiveness and his fear lest the crime be imputed to him had brought about the unfortunate mistakes of manner which had counted against him at the opening of the case.

HE STARTED BACK VIOLENTLY WITH A GASPING CRY OF TERROR.

Comfort and Convenience

If you have never experienced the pleasures of living in a "Sunshine" heated house, let us tell you that it is a comfort and convenience which is fully appreciated.

For an average of seven tons of coal to an eight-roomed house, an even temperature of sixty-five to seventy can be kept up from October to April. Once a is started there is no work attached to its operation beyond placing in coal twice a day, and drawing out ashes and filling water pan every other day. Chains on a pulley fixed in the hall, or room above the cellar, answer the respective requirements for:—Burning Up, or Closing Off.

No caretaker is necessary, no engineer has to be called in. No precautions, beyond following directions, are necessary.

If you can run a stove (and who cannot) you can run a Sunshine Furnace.

'Phone or call on the furnace man in your town, whose name appears below, and secure full particulars.

A LEPROSY TRAGEDY.

The Sacrifice of Kaomouna, the Hawaiian Beauty.

HER LIFE FOR HER MOTHER.

A Story Which Sheds a Bright Light Upon the Filial Devotion of Kanaka Women—The Reason a Baby's Advances Were Not Returned.

The usual Honolulu crowd was down at the dock when the steamship from San Francisco pulled alongside the pier on a brilliant, balmy afternoon in January some years ago. American women in summer afternoon costumes, a few English and a few German women of society, arrayed also for steamer day, leaned back languorously in their carriages and phaetons, under the shade of parasols, listening to the lazy complimentary talk of the duck clad, let enwreathed young business men who combined duty with pleasure in thus waiting for the great steamer to slip laboriously into her measured berth beside the pier.

All of the Kanaka women had bare feet. They stood about in little groups as silent as the men of their race. A few of the Kanaka women carried tiny brown babies—silent also. The young women were of varying degrees of beauty, their figures showing a uniform excellence of proportion.

One of these Kanaka women at the dock on this brilliant January afternoon was particularly beautiful. She was clad like the rest of the women of her race. She was fully five feet ten inches in height, and the white silk cord with which, unlike the other Kanaka women, she drew her white dress about her waist emphasized the splendid heroic proportions of her figure. Kaomouna seemed quite unconscious of her beauty. The young shipping clerks, hurrying to and fro on the dock with their pencils behind their ears, stopped suddenly when they caught sight of her. The women in the carriages, who had not been long down from the States or from Europe, saw Kaomouna and asked the women of longer Honolulu residence, "Who is that glorious creature?" Kaomouna, with a very sad face, spoke only an occasional word to one of the Kanaka women.

The steamship was made fast to the pier, and the passengers began to troop over the gangplank. There was one man with his pretty young wife and three-year-old little girl. The little girl was the first to catch sight of Kaomouna as she reached the bottom of the gangway. She quickly freed her hand from her father's grasp and ran toward Kaomouna with baby words. Kaomouna smiled at the little girl, but did not offer to take her up. Instead she folded her arms, looking down at the little pink faced child pleasantly. When the mother had taken the little girl she raised her eyes to look at Kaomouna.

"Did you ever in your whole life see such a perfectly beautiful woman?" asked the young wife of her husband in a whisper when he came up. "And Tita seemed to take to her immediately. If we could only have her for a nurse for Tita!"

Kaomouna heard her.

"Kaomouna would love to be that," she replied in a soft Kanaka accented speech, smiling. Then a look of pain came into her face. "But it may not be—it may not be!" And, with her hands at her eyes, Kaomouna turned suddenly and disappeared among the departing men and women of her race.

Three months later the parents of the little girl were at the dock together to witness for the first time the saddest of sights—the departure of the lepers for the island of Molokai. The Kilauea Hou, the leper steamer, was out in the stream, and the lepers were being carried out to her in barges. A litter was borne through the roped inclosure for the lepers. On it lay a very old Kanaka woman in the final stages of the disease. At the side of the litter walked Kaomouna. Her face was very sad. The parents of the little girl wondered. They spoke to an official of the Hawaiian board of health, who was busy in the task of embarking the lepers.

"Surely," they said, "she does not accompany the lepers?"

"Who — Kaomouna?" replied the health official. "Oh, yes, she does. But it is her own choice. Kaomouna, you know, has been secreting her old mother for a number of years. We always knew there was something mysterious about Kaomouna—that is, we have known it for the last five years. She had made queer visits to a palm hut far over in the Nuuanu valley. Last week we followed her. We felt there was leprosy in it. We found her mother in the hut. Kaomouna had had her in hiding, trying to save her from Molokai, ever since the disease became evident. Kaomouna is not infected in the least. She has been careful. But she elects to follow her mother to Molokai. Extraordinary? Why, not at all! You do not understand the filial devotion of Kanaka women—men, too, for that matter. Such cases are common enough."

The parents of the little girl looked at each other. There were tears in the mother's eyes.

"That is why she folded her arms and would not touch Tita!" she said. "In this world of God, civilised or uncivilised, could there be anything more noble?"

All was ready, and the Kilauea Hou, with Kaomouna and her mother on board, slowly started down the harbor, the Kanakas on the dock setting up the weird, plaintive death wail.—Washington Star.

JUST TIME.

The Wonderful Part it Plays in the Earth's History.

Truly it is hard for us to realize what a part time has played in the earth's history—just time, duration—so slowly, oh, so slowly, have the great changes been brought about! The turning of mud and silt into rock in the bottom of the old seas seems to have been merely a question of time. Mud does not become rock in man's time nor vegetable matter become coal. These processes are too slow for us. The flexing and folding of the rocky strata, miles deep, under an even pressure is only a question of time. Allow time enough and force enough and a layer of granite may be bent like a bow. The crystals of the rock seem to adjust themselves to the strain and to take up new positions, just as they do much more rapidly in a cake of ice under pressure. Probably no human agency could flex a stratum of rock, because there is not time enough even if there were power enough. "A low temperature acting gradually," says my geology, "during an indefinite age would produce results that could not be otherwise brought about even through greater heat." "Give us time," say the great mechanical forces, "and we will show you the immobile rocks and your rigid mountain chains as flexible as a piece of leather." "Give us time," say the dews and the rains and the snowflakes, "and we will make you a garden out of those same stubborn rocks and frowning ledges." "Give us time," says Life, starting with its protozoans in the old Cambrian seas, "and I will not stop till I have peopled the earth with myriad forms and crowned them all with man."—John Burroughs in Atlantic.

GOING ABOUT IN CHINA.

Useful Sedan Chair in the Crowded, Noisy Streets of Canton.

There are but two ways to go about Canton—on foot or in a sedan chair. The streets are from four to eight feet wide, the average being probably about six feet, and wheeled vehicles are out of the question. Even the jinrikisha cannot be used here. If you try to make your way on foot, the density of the moving masses renders progress almost impossible, and rowdies and pickpockets are numerous, so that the best plan is to take a responsible native guide and chair.

The chairs are carried by two, three and sometimes four men, according to the weight of the passenger. The two bamboo poles by which the chair is supported are about eighteen feet long and are joined at the front and rear ends by a crosspiece. After you have taken your seat the coolies raise the ends of the poles to their shoulders and are off at a dogtrot, only interrupted by a "congestion of traffic," which occurs very frequently.

It is surprising to see how rapidly they can go through the crowded streets. The whole line of chair carriers are yelling all the time, as are other people who are carrying burdens, for as there are no carts in use the entire merchandise of the city is transported in the same manner, not by chairs, of course, but slung on poles carried across the shoulders.

The noise resulting from the simultaneous shouting of every one in sight, both in front and in the rear, for the stream is flowing in both directions, is enough to make one wonder if the long expected riot has begun.—Denver Post.

To Transfer Printing.

Anything printed on paper with ordinary printer's ink can be transferred to a clean sheet of paper in the following manner: Take three drams of common yellow soap and dissolve it in one quart of hot water. When cool add one and a half fluid ounces of spirits of turpentine. Put all in a bottle, cork it and shake well together. Take a sponge or soft brush and apply some of the solution to the printed surface. Let it soak for a few minutes. Lay it face down upon the paper on which the transfer is required and press both together evenly between the leaves of a thick book placed under weights. In a time varying from half a minute to several hours, according to the newness of the printed original, it will be transferred in reverse.

It Would Make a Difference.

As a Tonic Bass' Barley Wine Has No Equal

Two things are absolutely necessary to produce a successful malt extract.

To be of any value it must be aged and free from fermentation, otherwise it will not keep for a prolonged period.

It must be made from the choicest barley malt and selected hops.

Most of the so-called malt extracts are made from the refuse of the brew.

It's true that these are barley malt and hops but with the bulk of the nutritive principles taken out.

These extracts are bottled immediately after they are made.

To prevent fermentation taking place, while the malt is in the bottle, salicylic acid and other preparations are used.

Salicylic acid, if taken into the system for any length of time, brings on serious kidney troubles.

Bass' Barley Wine is made from the finest selected barley and choicest hops — not from the refuse of the brew.

To remove fermentation, it is matured for three years in casks before it is bottled.

When you use Bass' Barley Wine you are using an absolutely pure malt extract, which in process of making, has become partly digested.

For this reason, and on account of its pleasant taste, it is easily assimilated by the most delicate stomach.

As a tonic for nursing mothers, for insomnia, nervous troubles, etc. Bass' Barley Wine has no equal.

Bass' Barley Wine costs 30 cents a bottle

FLOATING PALACES

Notwithstanding the fact that India has for many years been under the rule of England, the conditions and manner of living have not greatly changed in many parts of it. On the Ganges river in the northwest provinces the tourist will see, if he approaches Benares at the right time, the same type of craft that carried pilgrims to this most sacred of Hindoo cities hundreds of years ago. These are floating palaces or magnificent galleys on which rajahs journey to Benares and which serve as a test of their pious zeal.

These galleys differ hardly an iota from the vessels used for the same purpose by rajahs who died centuries past. Incrusted with gold, silver and pearls and decorated with tapestries embroidered with precious metals and jewels, these wonderful modern-ancient vessels lend a festive touch to the river scene. But their sumptuousness does not prevent the richest rajah who possesses one from bathing in the same water, surrounded by 500,000 poorer pilgrims, even though the sacred river is thus piously filled with myriads of microbes. And he will fill great jars with the water in which the pilgrims have washed their bodies and drink it.

In contrast to these floating palaces are the barges of the poorer classes. The system of caste in India imposes upon the riverman the obligation of living on the water as his ancestors lived, so his shabby looking craft is also his home. Usually he has in his floating house a small chapel dedicated to a secondary divinity who personifies the river on which he exists.—Popular Mechanics.

ABSENTMINDED.

A Question the College Professor Could Not Decide Himself.

There is a highly esteemed professor in one of the big colleges who is even more absentminded than most geniuses. His son is a student in the same college. At the beginning of a lecture to his class one morning a look of perplexity overspread the professor's face, and his hearers noted that his thoughts seemed to be wandering from the subject he was discussing. At length he paused for a moment and quietly requested that his son be summoned without delay. The young student, startled by such an unusual message from his father, hastened to him, expecting to find him dead or dying. The professor had not finished his lecture by the time his son arrived and was explaining things in his usual clear and convincing manner. At last the son succeeded in attracting his father's attention, and this extraordinary dialogue took place:

"John, I am surprised," growled the distinguished educator. "What do you mean by interrupting me in this way?"

"Why, father, don't you remember? You sent for me to come at once."

"Oh, yes, to be sure. Now I recollect. It was my fear of annoying your mother. You know how it distresses her, dear soul, if I fail to appear at my meals. I got thinking about this when I started lecturing this morning, and I sent for you to set my doubts at rest. John, please tell me have I had my breakfast yet this morning?"—New York Press.

But then, as you say, gittin' married is about the seriousest piece of business a body can iggage in, an' mebbe I am a fool an' mebbe he's a bigger one. There's no tellin'. It's a terrible solemn thing, as I seshun you've found out by this time. Like enough I'll rip sorrow, but so will he. There's one comfort."—Detroit Free Press.

A Delicious, Nourishing Meal for 5 Cents

YOU don't believe it, do you? Here it is: Take two SHREDDED WHEAT BISCUITS; heat them in the oven to restore crispness, pour hot milk over them; add a little cream and salt to suit the taste.

Or, if you don't like milk, try it this way: Heat two Biscuits in oven to restore crispness; then dip them quickly in salt water, place a piece of butter on the Biscuit, allowing it to melt into the shreds.

Or, heat the Biscuits in oven, dip them in milk, drain, and fry in butter, after which they may be served with a little cream, if desired.

A little fruit makes the meal even more wholesome and adds little to the cost. Try one of these tomorrow.

Shredded Wheat is made of the choicest selected white wheat, cleaned, steam-cooked and baked. Try it for breakfast to-morrow with milk or cream. The Biscuit is also delicious for any meal in combination with fresh or preserved fruits.

Not Even the First Step.

Mr. Morse, having bought a new bicycle of the most improved pattern, presented his old one to Dennis Halloran, who did errands and odd jobs for the neighborhood. "You'll find the wheel useful when you're in a hurry, Dennis," he said.

The young Irishman was loud in his thanks, but regarded the wheel doubtfully.

"I mistrust 'twill be a long while before I can ride it," he said.

"Why, have you ever tried?" asked Mr. Morse.

"I have," said Dennis gloomily. "A frind lint me the loan o' his whiles he was having the mumps. 'Twas three weeks I had it, an' what wid practicing night an' morning I niver got so I could balance mesilf standing still, let alone riding on it."—Youth's Companion.

How He Lost Out.

"It served me right," sighed the bachelor. "I ought to have remembered that women have no sense of humor."

"What's gnawing you now?" queried that inquisitive friend.

"Why, during leap year a pretty girl with an obese fortune proposed to me, and I said 'No,'" explained the bachelor, "thinking, of course, she would take it for granted that my 'No' meant 'Yes,' but she simply let it go at that."—Chicago News.

Father—It's singular that whenever I want you to marry a man you object, and whenever I do not want you to marry one you straightway insist on it. Daughter—Yes, and whenever we are agreed the man objects.—Liverpool Mercury.

A Threatening Comet.

M. Camille Flammarion, the great scientist, after many years of study, arrived at the conclusion that the world will in the twenty-fifth century come across the path of the comet Bella. On this occasion a collision will take place, and, Bella being infinitely greater than the earth, a shock may be expected which, he calculates, will be 865 times greater than the shock caused by the collision between two trains, each traveling at sixty-five miles an hour.

Loving Letters.

Never burn kindly written letters. It is so pleasant to read them over when the ink is brown, the paper yellow with age and the hands that traced the friendly words are folded over the hearts that prompted them. Keep all loving letters. Burn only the harsh ones and in burning forgive and forget them.

More Than Pleased.

"Pleased! She wanted to keep the tickets for fear something might happen to me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

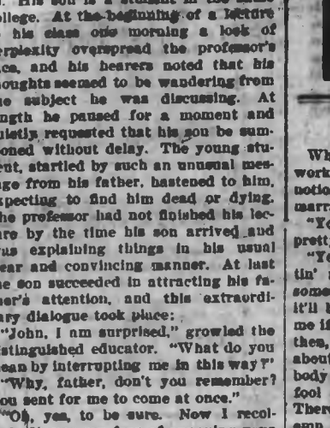
SORE THROAT

Slight colds become more offensive and sickening every day. The inflammation extends further into the head, soon the ears begin to buzz and ring, the head aches, the eyes pain dreadfully, the nose gets plugged up, and this forces the patient to breathe through the mouth. Vile, filthy secretions are forced back into the throat, requiring a great deal of coughing to keep the air passages free. Finally, this foul matter finds its way into the stomach, causing dyspepsia and general ill-health. By this time the patient has SYSTEMIC CATARRH, which say strength, depletes the vital energies till Consumption is the ul w result.



BREATHE CATARRHOZONE

BROTHER TOLD BROTHER

One Suffered for Fifteen Years, the Other for Thirteen.

The convincing powers of a testimonial were never more clearly shown than in the case of Mr. Hugh Brown, A brother, Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., read in the paper about Hon. John Costigan being cured by "Fruit-a-tives." Knowing the Senator would only endorse a medicine which had cured him, Mr. Lemuel Brown tried "Fruit-a-tives." They cured him of Chronic Indigestion and Constipation, so he urged his brother to try them.

Hartland, N.B., Oct. 12th, 190[illegible]

"Three doctors told me that I had Liver Disease and serious Stomach Trouble. My stomach was very weak. I took their medicines for thirteen years and grew worse. My brother (who was cured of terrible Indigestion by "Fruit-a-tives" after suffering for 15 years), recommended me to try these wonderful tablets. I bought half a dozen boxes and have just finished the sixth. I eat all kinds of hearty foods without distress and am greatly improved in every way. "Fruit-a-tives" also cured the Chronic Constipation which was so distressing in my case."

THE HUMAN HAND.

Its Relation to the True Education of the Young.

No animal or bird can endure the extremes of climate like man or is at home in so many different parts of the world. A dog, it is true, will follow man anywhere, but only when food and shelter are provided. Nor can any other creature subsist on such a variety of food as man can digest. He flourishes on roots, herbs, grubs, insects, fruits or fish, on which flesh eating animals would starve, or he is equally pleased with animal and bird flesh on which herbivorous animals would starve. He can pick nuts with the monkey, catch fish with the otter, dig roots with the wild pig, eat ants' eggs with the ant eater and grasshoppers with the snake.

And all this is due to man's hand. Because his hand could grasp a stone or a club man rose on his hind legs and walked and talked. His hand is the most wonderful of all tools. It twists like a monkey wrench, hangs on like a grappling hook, cracks like a nutcracker, picks like tweezers, tears like forceps, grubs like a gopher.

This brings us to the first great lesson of health and common sense. Man owes all to his hand. Train the child's hand, then answer the questions that the brain, which the hand builds, will ask, and you have true education—education at its best. Give children every kind of hand work that their play instincts call for—and their play instincts are the deepest and most useful in their nature—and then brain development will follow as naturally as the night follows day.—San Francisco Chronicle.

It Gets the Criminals.

According to the Chinese method of criminal prosecution, a man is responsible for the crime he may have committed personally, but if he chooses to escape justice by running away from the place where the deed was committed then the remaining members of his immediate family are held and punished in lieu of the real culprit. This may seem a strange way of attracting the real criminal back to the scene of his crime, but it appeals to the religious side of the man's superstitious nature. According to their religion, the man who forsakes his parents when in peril will find his soul sailing around through hades without chart or compass for all eternity. In view of this, compliance with the law is very prompt, for John Chinaman does not care to take the desperate chance.

He Explains.

"Why is it, professor," asked the young man with the bad eye, "that when Christopher Columbus discovered this country he didn't settle down and stay here?"

"Doubtless you are aware, my young friend," answered the professor, "that the Spanish form of his name was Cristoval Colon?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, a colon does not mean a full stop. We will return now, young gentlemen, to the consideration of the lesson."—Exchange.

Make Friends.

There is nothing so healthy as plenty of human nature about one, young, old and middle aged. When we stay at home too much or associate entirely with a very limited circle we lose the proper sense of perspective. The few individuals whom we like assume giant proportions in our thoughts and the rest of the world recedes.

THE NUMBER THIRTEEN.

Time Was When It Used to Be Considered Lucky.

Abstract science has done much in brushing away the cobwebs of popular superstition, and abstract science establishes the fact that thirteen in ancient times had quite a different meaning from the thirteen of today. Oriental people found in thirteen something divine and hence something good. Thus it is in the folklore of the Persians, the Indians and Hindoos.

Old Testament Jews were of the same opinion, as Biblical students well know. Thirteen cities were especially dedicated to the priestly tribe; thirteen high priests descended from Aaron; thirteen kings sat in the high council of the ancients; on the 13th day of the month Nisan the preparations for Passover began, and the holy incense consisted of thirteen different odors.

It is well known that all the nations of the old world were in more or less intellectual rapport. The ideas of one tribe descended to the other. But it is certainly interesting to learn that the figure 13 had its sacred and divine meaning also in America of yore among the long since extinct tribes of the Incas and the Aztecs. The inhabitants of Peru counted seven days without any particular name in the week. Their year had seven times fifty-two days, or four times thirteen weeks. The father was compelled to support his illegitimate child to the thirteenth year. The Aztecs had weeks of thirteen days, each with a special name. Their century had fifty-two years, or four times thirteen. Their public archives were of circular form, with a sun in the center of each of the thirteen parts, and thirteen were their tribes.

YOU MANUFACTURE FAT?

If it were not for the fact that you add to your fat every day, you would soon get back to a decent figure. Each day's activities consume some of your excess. But it is "off with the old—on with the new" with you every twenty-four hours so that the fat balance remains unchanged

Now, people who take Marmola Prescription Tablets really get thin, but harmlessly so, and a hint as to the reason is given above. They eat and drink with undisturbed delight as formerly and yet they lose many of them a pound a day. The reason is Marmola causes the body to stop manufacturing useless fat, hence the body it is introduced into gets thinner as a matter of course. Each day's activities alone would account for the delightful result.

Check up results from this point of view and you can readily understand why Marmola Prescription Tablets cause no ill effects or wrinkles but on the contrary, help the stomach and the appearance. They are nature's allies, not her competitors. This commends them to all over the timid, as safe, and since they reduce one as fast as is desirable, that is all that is required.

When you get tired trying other methods of getting thin test this one. Marmola Prescription Tablets come in large, generously filled cases, and if your druggist cannot supply you which is unlikely, you can get one or more cases by mail by sending the price 75 cents, direct to Marmola Company, Department 833, Detroit, Mich.

The Kaffeeklatsch.

The difference between a 5 o'clock tea and a German Kaffeeklatsch is enormous. The tea is a pleasant go-as-you-please meeting, where we balance our teacups in hand perilously handicapped by our multitudinous possessions, augmented by the frail saucer on which a top heavy piece of cake finds an insecure resting place. We may enjoy a variety of creature comforts augmented by ices and cups on festive occasions.

Not so the German Kaffeeklatsch. That is a ponderous affair which you take sitting at tables. Coffee and savories mark the beginning of the meal, followed by numberless cakes which the Germans know so well how to make. This is followed by some creamy preparation or a beautiful device made in ice. This again is succeeded by the choicest fruits.

The Kaffeekanne is meanwhile still busily plying its trade. There is a well known German song which ends with the refrain, freely translated: "Thank you, thank you, hostess mine. I never drink more cups than nine."—London Queen.

The Fairy Hounds.

In some years stoats appear to be more numerous than in others, and they are seen not in ones and twos, but in dozens, hunting together in small packs. The late E. T. Booth of Brighton, when shooting in East Lothian one autumn, met a pack of stoats which attacked a terrier he had with him and would not be driven off until he and the dog between them had killed more than a dozen. Stoats will hunt together from scent and in full cry like a pack of hounds, one always keeping the line and followed closely by the others. This sight has been recorded by different observers, who have also seen weasels hunting in the same way. There is a popular notion in the west of England that hares are hunted at night by packs of little fairy hounds, locally called "dandy dogs," and these are said to be weasels, which the west country folks call "fairies," pronouncing the word "vairy" and "vair." Some of them declare that they have seen and watched the chase with awe.—London Graphic.

In a Different Class.

"I hear, Mike, that your wife has gone into society. Has she become a clubwoman yet?"

"Indade an' she has not got into that class. She still uses a flatiron, sor."—New York Times.

ARAB SCHOOLS.

Their Peculiar Methods in Teaching and Studying.

"An Arab school," said a traveler, "is one of the most interesting places in Cairo to visit. The children, with the schoolmaster, sit upon the floor or the ground in a semicircle, and each has a tablet of wood which is painted white and upon which the lessons are written. When the latter are learned they are washed out and replaced by other lessons.

"During study hours the Arab schools remind one of the Chinese, for the children all study aloud, and as they chant they rock back and forth like trees in a storm, and this movement is continued for an hour or more at a time. The schoolmaster rocks back and forth also, and altogether the school presents a most novel appearance as well as sound. Worshipers in the mosques always move about while reciting the Koran, as this movement is believed to assist the memory.

"The desks of the Arab schools are old contrivances of palm sticks, upon which is placed the Koran or one of the thirty sections of it. After learning the alphabet the boys take up the study of the Koran, memorizing entire chapters of it until the sacred book is entirely familiar.

"A peculiar method is followed in learning the Koran. The study begins with the opening chapter, and from this it skips to the last. The last but one is then learned, then the last but two, and so on in inverted order, ending finally with the second chapter.

"During the student's progress it is customary for the schoolmaster to send on the wooden tablet a lesson painted in black and red and green to the father, who returns it after inspection with a couple of piasters pasted upon it. The salaries of the schoolmasters are very meager indeed."—Washington Herald.

Honest Answer.

The stories told of Snetzler, a famous Swiss organ builder, prove that he was a man of rare and incorruptible honesty. At one time the parish officers of a country church applied to Snetzler to examine their organ and make improvements in it.

"Gentlemen," said Snetzler after a careful examination of the instrument in question, "your organ be wort £100 joost now. Vell, I vill spend you £100 on it, and it shall den be wort £50!"—London Graphic.

Those Elaborate Defences.

"Would you shoot a man who assailed your veracity?"

"No," answered the peaceful citizen. "I'd rather take a chance on his personal opinion than to go before a jury with a story that might convince the general public that he was right."—Washington Star.

Pretty Light.

"I'll have to ask you to pay in advance," remarked the hotel keeper.

"Isn't my luggage good enough security?"

"I fear it is a little too emotional."

"Emotional?"

"Yes; easily moved."—London Mail.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS CURE ALL MINOR TROUBLES

The stomach, the bowels, or cutting teeth is responsible for most of the ills and suffering that afflicts babyhood. Baby's Own Tablets will keep your child well because it is the best medicine in the world for these troubles, and at the same time it is the safest. The mother has the guarantee of a Government analyst that this medicine contains no opiate or poisonous "soothing" stuff. Mrs. Jos. Since then he has thrived and grown splendidly." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How He Worked the Artist.

Kyosai always refused if asked outright for a sketch. So his friend began the negotiation by offering the artist an excellent dinner. When Kyosai had drunk deeply and seemed in a mellow humor his host called for drawing materials, saying that he felt an artistic fancy taking possession of him. No one was surprised, as Japanese gentlemen often amuse themselves in this way after a feast. The servant then brought an enormous sheet of white paper and spread it on the floor with the brushes and Indian ink beside it. The crafty host, without looking at his guest, sank on his knees and began to draw, apparently absorbed in his occupation, but intentionally producing weak and incoherent lines. Kyosai watched the feeble effort in silence and growing irritation, and at last jumped up, dashed the tyro aside and tore the brush out of his hand, exclaiming: "Out of the way, you wretched bungler! I will teach you how to draw!" And the result was a priceless sketch, which remained in the possession of the wily entertainer.

A Max O'Rell Story.

Before he attained fame with his various books M. Blouet (Max O'Rell), who was for several years French master at St. Paul's school, related how he obtained his post there. After two or three earlier applicants had returned unsuccessful from their interview with Dr. Walker, who was at the time headmaster of the school, M. Blouet's turn came.

"I want," said the doctor after a few words, "a French master who can preserve discipline. My last was a perfect gentleman and a good fellow, but he could not keep the classes in order. The end of it was that after being much worried by one of the boys the poor fellow went home and shot himself."

"Sir," replied Max O'Rell, "that is where my countryman made a little mistake. I should have shot the boy."

The doctor rose, says M. Blouet, and grasped my hand.

"M. Blouet," he exclaimed, "you are my French master!"—London Captain.

PAPER FOR MONEY.

Extreme Care and Secrecy Used in Its Manufacture.

The various great nations devote much study to the improvement of their secret processes of manufacturing paper for money and banknotes, the principal object being, of course, to render counterfeiting more and more difficult.

Our own government guards with extreme care every detail of the manufacture of this paper, laying special importance upon its secret of getting silk thread into the composition of the paper itself.

The efforts of this government, however, are not nearly so painstaking as those put forth in making the flimsy paper used for Bank of England notes, which are probably the finest paper money in the world. These notes are manufactured from fine Irish linen, and the peculiar properties of the Test water (so called from the river of that name) produce paper of a purity and texture unsurpassed. The secret of the security of the Bank of England note against forgery and counterfeiting is said to be entirely in the paper itself and not in the printing.

In addition, the notes show a watermark so cleverly devised that an expert from the mill can tell by a glance at the date of manufacture the very name of the employee who made it. The watermark is produced by a design countersunk in the woven wire bottoms of the trays in which the hot paper pulp is poured and dried. It has never been successfully imitated.

Extraordinary precautions are taken for the security of the mill where these notes are made, as well as of everything in the mill. There is, of course, a staff of police constantly in attendance and a private wire to police headquarters, nine miles away.

The watchmen who patrol the mill corridors every night must pass at each quarter of an hour clocks of wonderfully ingenious construction, the revolving dials of which are pierced with holes, which at the precise moment the watchman is due before them pass over a slot. The watchman pushes through a peg he carries, and the clock ticks on. Should he not present himself at the moment scheduled for him to appear, however, the timepiece immediately sounds an alarm.—New York Tribune.

Almost any desired color is imparted to agate by German lapidaries, who warm the dressed stones in a solution of sugar, then coat them with color solutions in acid, which carbonize the sugar, the color being absorbed by the more porous strata.

The Power of the Tongue. James 3: 1-12.

Verse 1—What class of persons are most likely to want to rule, or be "masters," those engaged in good works or those who neglect them?

Will one who is in rapt love with his fellows want to rule them, or will he judge them harshly?

Unfaithful Christians always put up a high standard for others; what effect will that have upon the standard with which God will measure them? (See Matt. 7:1-5.)

Verse 2—How much of our trouble and how much of the trouble we make for others is caused by our tongues?

If a man does not do any harm by his works, is he very apt to do any otherwise?

If a man says hard and unkind things about his neighbours, and intentionally wounds the feelings of others by his words, is he necessarily a bad man?

Is the control of the tongue the key to the control of the entire man?

Verse 3—It takes an iron bit to control a horse, what is the "bit" which will effectually control the tongue?

In what respect is an ungoverned tongue like a runaway horse with a broken bit, and what are generally the results in each case? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verses 4-5—It is actually so, that the tongue is to the man what the rudder is to the ship, that is, does the tongue govern the influence of the man?

Is it necessary at all times to watch our tongues, compelling them to refrain from wrong words, and to use right words; just as the man at the wheel of a ship controls the rudder with vigilant watchfulness?

Is the tongue capable of setting a church or a neighbourhood all ablaze with scandal, just as a match may set fire to a city?

Verse 6—What are some of the many "iniquities" which the tongue can cause?

Can you recall and mention some of the moral poison emitted by an evil tongue?

Do persons with an evil tongue always draw their inspiration from "hell?"

Verses 7-8—Man can do very wonderful things, in training animals and controlling the forces of nature, but cannot "tame" the human tongue, nor destroy its poison; to whom may we apply to have this effectually done?

Verses 9-12—If a man uses his tongue both for bad and for good, for "blessing and cursing," does this not stamp him as a rank hypocrite?

Is it possible for a person with an evil tongue, to be the same time well pleasing to God?

Lesson for Sunday, June 13th, 1909. Heroes of Faith. Heb. 11:1-40.

FALLING HAIR STOPPED.

Baldness Cured by Destroying the Parasitic Germ That Causes It.

Baldness follows falling hair, falling hair follows dandruff; and dandruff is the result of a germ digging its way into the scalp to the root of the hair where it saps the vitality of the hair. To destroy that germ is to prevent as well as cure dandruff, falling hair, and, lastly, baldness. There is only one preparation known to do that, Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new, scientific discovery. Wherever it has been tried it has proven wonderfully successful. It can't be otherwise, because it utterly destroys the dandruff germ. 'You destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

FOSTER, THE WEATHER MAN, SEES WARM WEATHER CLOSE AT HAND

Washington, D.C., June 5.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 3 to 7, warm wave 5 to 9. Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 7, cross Pacific slope by close of 8, great central valleys 9 to 11, eastern states 12. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 7, great central valleys 9, eastern states 11. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 10, great central valleys 12, eastern states 14.

This disturbance will cause a general rise in temperatures and the great cool wave will break up. Just previous to the coming of this storm centre frosts will go farther south than usual and following it, as the next storm wave comes in, a great hot wave will extend farther north than usual. Exceedingly cool weather will cover Manitoba and northwestern states and provinces, not far from June 7.

Third disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 12, cross Pacific slope by close of 13, great central valleys 14 to 16, eastern states 17. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 12, great central valleys 14, eastern states 16. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 15, great central valleys 17, eastern states 19. This will be a notable storm wave. It will bring a great high temperature wave, a series of dangerous storms and will be followed by a severe cool wave. I cannot locate the dangerous storms, and therefore advise all to be on the alert for them.

Not much rain will fall far several days before this storm wave passes, but heavy rains will follow it. Near June 17 will be a period in which destructive storms may be expected.

Earthquakes

The recent earthquakes in southeast of and west of Manitoba puzzle scientists because it occurred in a country that gives no evidence of ever having been volcanic. There are causes of earthquakes and I hold that one of these is electric, very similar to a cloudquake commonly called thunder. If the earth becomes overcharged with electricity it will discharge to the moon or sun or to another planet and that discharge, if very sudden, causes an earthquake. If less sudden a tornado, a hurricane, or a great continental storm centre results.

About May 15 when that earquake occurred, the electrical tension was great and the quake probably prevented great storms.

NOTE BOOK FOUND ON DROWNED MAN MAY GIVE CLUE AS TO HIS IDENTITY---CONTAINS NAMES

The remains of the unknown man found in the Otonabee River near Fraserville, were viewed by a jury empanelled by Dr. Gray, at the residence of Mr. Latimer last evening. The jury is composed of the following men: Messrs. James Latimer (foreman), Wm. Henry, Wm. McIlmoyle, James McIlmoyle, Wm. Thos. Cullens, Thos. Latimer, Richard Latimer, James Stewart, George Trotter, James Trotter, James Hopkins, Allin Kidd and James Finkbyn. After the post mortem examination the jury adjourned until next Friday evening, when the inquest will be resumed at eight o'clock in the Orange Hall, Fraserville. The remains were brought to Mr. D. Bellegbem's undertaking establishment last night and will be kept there for identification.

Note Book in Pocket

The drowned man was well advanced in years. He was dressed in heavy winter clothing. He wore thick woollen mits. A watch, his spectacles in a case, and a little note-book of the United Harvesters' Co. were found on him. Probably a clue to his identity has bene discovered in the finding of this little book. Int it the following names and dates are written:

G. Trennith, October 21—3 days.
S. Marehon, October 22—3 days.
B. Horton, October 23—3 days.

These names might be those of men that he, either has worked for, or persons that he might have had in his employ. The names were written rather indistinctly and the above may not be spelt correctly. There was also an account of money he had evidently spent at stores in Peterborough, including the Peterborough Hardware store, the Port Hope Knitting Works, and others.

List Of The Streets Which Will Receive Cement Walks

Board of Works Threshed Out the Matter Last Night and Determined Upon Work to be Done—Some of the Walks are Already Under Construction.

AN EXTENSIVE PROGRAMME

The Board o fWorks spent considerable time last night in determining the streets that are to receive cement sidewalks this year. There were in quite a number of instances counter petitions, but none of them were sufficiently signed. Several of the streets have already been completed, but they are only a few. Those decided upon are as follows:

Barnado avenue, north side, from Conger street to North boundary.
Conger street, north side, from Barnado avenue, to the west side of lot 5, plan 78.
Dublin street, north side, from George street to Water street.
Sheridan street, east and west sides, from Hunter street to Brock street.
Elm street, north side, from Park street to west side of lot 20, plan 35.
John street, east and west sides, from King street to Boliver street.
Rubidge street, west side, from Kirk street to Murray street.
Reid street, west side, from Dalhousie street to Wolfe street.
Sophia stret, north side, from Rogers street, east side, from James street, north side, from Burnham street to each side of lot 99 north of James street, Plan A.1.
Robinson street, north and south sides, from Burnham street to Mark street.
Burnham street, east side, from Hunter street to Maria street.
Cricket Place, north side, from Driscoll street to a point 10 1-2 feet west of the east side of lot 9, plan 88A.
Rogers street, west side, from Stanley avenue to south side of lot 5, plan 17A.
Euclid Avenue, north and south sides, from Concession street to Erskine street.
Rogers street, east side, from Sophia street to James street.
Rogers street, east side, from Douro street to Wilson street.
Townsend street, south side, from Stewart street to Aylmer street.
Gladstone avenue, north side, from Lock street, to east side of lot 190, plan 114.

A number of complaints have been received regarding the manner in which Mr. Z. Blodgett has been watering the streets in his district. The City Engineer wrote him stating that he would have to pay $5.00 for not doing his work entirely satisfactory. On motion it was decided to ask Mr. Blodgett to be present at the meeting of the Council on Monday night.

Question of Poles.

The City Engineer reported that he had examined the pole lines marked out by the Peterborough Light & Power Co., which includes 33 new poles.

The aldermen could not see why the two companies could not arrange to run their wires on the same line of poles wherever this was possible.

The Otonabee Power Company also asked for permission to erect 14 more poles.

Ald. Bradburn moved that the power companies be allowed to place poles where necessary and where no poles now are. In cases where either company has a pole line that they be told to arrange to have two sets of wires on one line of poles.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Buller and McIntyre that no power lines or electric light wires be strung on the same side of any street on which the fire alarm wires are strung.

Gas Mains.

The Peterborough Gas Company asked for permission to lay gas mains on certain streets. The engineer reported on these and recommended that they be granted and that the company leave the streets in the same condition as they found them. The request was granted.

An Elm Tree.

A letter was read from Mr. C. H. Clementi, stating that a big tree in front of his place had caused him a lot of trouble and cost him considerable money. The roots blocked the sewer and he had to replace it twice. The last time it cost $40. He thought the city should pay half the cost, and also allow him to cut down the tree. No action wa staken.

The Ashburnham water fountain will be fixed up permanently this summer.

A new walk on the north side of Parnell street will be laid.

Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Gillespie moved that the cheque of $900 from the government for the sewer built last year to the Normal School, be put into a special account.

Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Buller moved in amendment that the money go to the Board of Works.

The original motion was carried by a vote of 3—2, but the chairman said the money had been paid into the Board of Works account already.

Ald. Bradburn moved that the Council give the Board of Works authority to purchase a horse for the dump cart and that crushed stone be placed on the streets and also that the loose stones on the streets be raked off. Ald. Duncan seconded this and it carried.

Mr. A. E. Dixon was present in reference to the Downie street creek. He reperesented a couple of property owners interested. One client said that he wanted the city to carry out their promise which was made a couple of years ago to allow him a piece of the stret in exchange for his granting a right of way through his property for the drain.

It was stated by Ald. Duncan that no permission to build on the street was ever given.

The chairman said the board could do very little this year.

Mr. Duncan said he did not wish to force any expense upon the city this year if the city would give him deed for that part of the street his house is on. He would give the city a deed for his property.

Mr. Dixon was told to have a petition sent in with all interested parties on it, and the board would report to them at once.

STOMACH COMFORT

When the Stomach Rebels, Headache, Indigestion and Nerve Pain Follows—Mi-o-na Brings Relief.

Just as soon as you are done eating the healthy stomach commences to churn the food around and mixes it thoroughly with the juices of the stomach.

If the food is not churned it lays heavily in your stomach, turns sour and causes all kinds of distressing symptoms, such as headache, indigestion, stomach pain and dyspepsia. Mi-o-na helps the stomach to properly mix the food.

John S. May, of Isabella street Belleville, Ont., says, "For over seven months I was in constant agony with a case of nervous dyspepsia and indigestion that medical skill could not relieve. I was weak and had lost much weight through loss of appetite and suffering. My meals would fill me with gas and a feeling of oppression across the stomach and all up the left side, left me in a miserable condition. I was restless at night and as tired and unrefreshed in the morning as on going to bed. A choking sensation in my throat was always constant when lying down, and my heart seemed to flutter and pound as though it were coming through my side. I was benefited from the first two days' use of Mi-o-na. I began to feel like myself again, my appetite returned and the depressive feeling left me. I can enjoy my meals without the least worry of after suffering. I have gained in weight and can sleep the night through in comfort.

Go to Wm. Madill, the druggist and get a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na Tablets. Money back if Mi-o-na does not cure.

MR. WM. FOWLER PASSES AWAY

It was learned with general regret yesterday afternoon that William Fowler passed away at his residence at 273 Rubidge St. Although the deceased has to all appearances been a strong healthy man he had been suffering quietly for some time, his illness gradually developing until it took an acute form about four weeks ago. Since that time he rapidly failed until he passed away at 12.15 yesterday afternoon. The late William Fowler was born on July 25th, 1836, on a farm in North Monaghan. He followed farming until about 20 years ago when he retired and moved into the city wehre he resided until his death. In 1862 he married Jessie Lillico, second daughter of the late Archd. Lillico of North Monaghan. GORGEOUS NEW HATS WORN BY RICH NEW YORK WOMEN

That the women who compose New York's "400" are not bound by convention in style is shown by the pictures reproduced above. They represent five of the most fashionable women of the metropolis and the individuality of each is shown by the distinct variations in hat styles. These women believe, and of course have the money to support their ideas, that one style for all women is an impossibility. In hats they wear what becomes them, despite the decrees of fashion designers.

Year in and year out Mrs. Willie K. Vanderbilt, jr., wears hats modeled along the lines of the one shown in the accompanying illustration. She is not unconscious of her pretty profile and she does not purpose to hide it under a peach basket merely because the fashion designer has said that peach baskets were the rule. Of course these women take on effects from the new modes, but never to the effacement of individual taste.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's hat is a flaring milan braid, faced with black and tipped sharply from the face on the left side. It is very simply trimmed with a great flat bow of black satin and lends itself nicely to a graceful veil effect.

Mrs. Chas. Dana Gibson has gone in this year for a panama, very broad and flat crown and trimmed only with an abundance of black satin ribbon. Mrs. Gibson is the model for the "Gibson girl," the creation of her artistic husband.

Mrs. Natalie Collins, who is one of the most smartly dressed women in New York society, shows her individuality by having her hat tipped on the right side and having the trimming placed on the left.

Her hat is of black chip, high crown encircled by a band of soft taffeta ribbon, with a large flaring bow. Mrs. John McCullough has gone in for the peach basket with fruit trimming. It will be noticed that Mrs. McCullough has adopted the new collarless bodice. She relieves the barenness with the use of a string of pearls.

Mrs. Orrin Root is shown with a flower trimmed rough black straw. This straw is as roughly braided as the straw of a common waste basket. It is tipped to the back of the head and comes down almost flat on the shoulders.

MONUMENT TO MAN WHO STIRRED THE COUNTRY IN DAYS OF SLAVERY

MONUMENT TO JONATHAN WALKER.

"Why, that brand is highest honor!
Than its traces never yet
Upon old armorial hatchments was a prounder blason set;
And thy unborn generations, as they tread our rocky strand,
Shall tell with pride the story of their father's branded hand."

The verses are carved upon the four sides of the base of the monument.
—Whittier's "The Branded Hand."

Muskegon, Mich., June 5.—Almost forgotten is he now — Jonathan Walker, the "Man with the Branded Hand." Only a gay and crumbling monument, 30 years old, in a cemetery here, stands to remind the world of what he did.

He stirred the whole nation a half century ago, did Walker. Whittier wrote a famous poem about him. Northern abolitionists raised money to get him out of a southern prison. Walker, working single-handed, was helping negroe slaves escape from Florida across the Britsh West Indies. For this he was branded in the right hand by the United States marshal, "S. S."—slave stealer.

IDENTIFY REMAINS

Residents of Emily Recognize Body of Drowned Man as Being That of Elias Armstrong—Was a Carpenter Who Worked Much Among Farmers.

LETTERS IN POCKET

Is the body that was found in the Otonabee river near Fraserville yesterday morning that of Elias Armstrong? It is believed that is, letters found on his person strengthening the belief. One from Thos. Armstrong, of Waltham, Mass., is addressed Elias Armstrong, and another one from Toronto has on it a similar address. An account for several carpenter's tools purchased in April, 1905, from the Peterborough Hardware was found. The name E. B. Armstrong was written on it.

Descriptions Similar

There is strong reason to believe that the drowned man's name is Elias Armstrong. An Examiner reporter called on Mr. Vincent Eastwood, manager of the Royal Bank, having learned that he knew a man of that name. When asked if he knew a man by the name of Elias Armstrong he replied that he did. Armstrong worked for him as a carpenter three years ago. He was a man who travelled about the country building barns and doing general carpenter work. Mr. Eastwood's description of Armstrong tallied very much with that of the drowned man.

It is thought that he was walking across the ice during the winter and went through.

Several residents of Emily, on looking at the remains, recognized them as those of Elias Armstrong., There seems to be no doubt but that it was him who met death by drowning.

SHOULD VACCINATE

Dr. Bingham Says the People of Peterborough Should Adopt That Precaution.

Dr. Bingham, medical health officer for Peterborough, speaking to a reporter of the Examiner this morning said:

"As small-pox is prevalent in many parts of the country at present, therefore I earnestly advise that every person should be vaccinated, who has not already adopted that protective measure.

THE NAVY OF CANADA IS TO INCLUDE TEN CRUISERS IT IS ANNOUNCED TO-DAY

The Fleet Will Also Have Ten Torpedo Boats and a Similar Number of Torpedo Boat Destroyers—A Representative of English Ship Building Company is in Montreal.

THE COST OF THE SCHEME

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Montreal, June 5.—Canada's navy, planned to act as auxiliary to the British fleet in time of need, is to consist, it is announced, of ten cruisers, ten torpedo boats and ten torpedo-boat-destroyers. A representative of Hawthorne, Leslie & Cote, English ship-builders, Newcastle-on-Tyne, has been here discussing the matter with Hon. Mr. Brodeur and it is understood the information comes from him. The cost is estimated at three to five million per year for five years.

HARD ON THOSE WHO BET ON THE HORSE RACES

Toronto, June 5.—The grand jury to-day brought in a presentment which is the "hottest" on record in some respects. It condemns the custom of betting on horse races as most harmful and denounces the practice vigorously. The Governor-General and His Majesty himself, it is announced, will be memorialised to refrain from attending races and betting bad example.

INSPECTION OF CHEESE LAST HALF OF MAY

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, Inspector, Reports a Very Fine Quality of Cheese in All the Factories.

On Thursday and Friday, June 3rd and 4th, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, Inspector for the Peterborough Cheese Board, made a tour of a number of cheese factories, for the purpose of inspecting the cheese purchased by him at the last meeting of the Cheese Board. A representative of the Examiner accompanied him, and personally visited the factories with Mr. Gillespie, with the view of observing the improvements which have been made in the process of cheese making, as well as the character of the section.

The cheese factories visited were as follows:

Lakefield factory — E. Demerst, cheesemaker.
Pine Grove Factory—R. A. Little, cheesemaker.
Youngs' Point Factory—A. Wilson, cheese maker.
Selwyn Factory — Thos. Borland, cheese maker.
Treewern Factory — J. Chittick, cheese maker.
Otonabee Union Factory — Ernest Deyell, cheese maker.
Keene Dairy Co. Factory—J. W. Smith, cheese maker.
Shearers Factory — J. J. Hogan, cheese maker.

The cheese inspected was the last half of May make and the general result justified Inspector Gillespie's remark that all the factories had turned out a very fine quality of cheese. Here and there a cheese was found that bore some slight defect, but these were so few that they did not detract from the high standard of all the factories.

The factories were all very busy, and the quantity of cheese made is large enough to cause the patron to feel sanguine of a heavy season's business. The cheese are all well cured, and the sanitary condition of the factories most satisfactory. The effort was made to circumvent the almost super-natural instinct of the reporter to "scent a scent." It is not so very long ago that one would go round a concession, out of the way, to escape the "sniff" of a cheese factory. Those visited this week, however, were so well equipped, so clean and so well conducted that the presence of an inspector might be dispensed with. If anything could be added to make the factory plants more efficient than they are, it would be to have the cheese all cool-cured, similar to the system in the Trewern factory, Selwyn.

It was noticed that in most of the factories the whey was allowed to go to waste, owing to the scarcity of pigs to feed it to—a circumstance which is much to be regretted at present.

It was a satisfaction to note that in the territory covered by this inspector the crops were invariably in good condition.

Mr. Gillespie intends to ship his cheese on Tuesday next, of which all the factories which he bought from have been notified.

THE TOYS AWAKE

To be given for the benefit of the Children's Aid Society next Monday and Tuesday night promises to be the prettiest thing ever seen in the Grand Opera House here. Tremendous crowds follow this play everywhere. See what the press says of it:

The picture presented at "The Awakening of the Toys" in the Opera House last evening was a most charming one, and the large audience which had gathered to see the performance was delighted with the entire programme. The decided opinion of those who saw the performance last evening was that "The Toys Awake" was the best children's play ever see nin Galt. Galt Reformer.

A crowded house, filled with enthusiastic and interested people witnessed one of the most elaborate and pleasing productions in the spectacular children's play "The Toys Awake" that has ever been placed before the public in this city.—The Index, San Bernerdino, Cal.

FISHING PARTY HOME

Four Anglers Make a Fair Catch of Trout

A jolly fishing party of four returned from the wilds of Northern Peterborough, where they spent the past week dangling their well baited hooks in the babbling brooks and pebbly streams emptying into Ketchecum Lake, Gull Lake and Gold Lake. The sports were Messers. Hall, Frank McPherson, Dickson Best and Alderman Buller. They had a first-class outing and besides having a barrel full of fun they got a good coat of tan and twenty-four trout. In telling their friends about it they give the number of fish at 24 for each one besides a lot of others which they could not land. The back country is looking fine now. The trees are all out and the weather was ideal for a fishing expedition.

BEAUTIFY THE CITY.

On Friday the Board of Works—so named some would think sometimes, on the lucus a non lucendo principle—made their annual tour of inspection of our streets. It is possible that their visit peppares them to join in a sentence of the general confession in the Church service—"we have left undone those things we ought to have done, and we have done those things we ought not to have done." While such a tour of inspection is eminently proper so that those responsible may see with their own eyes what are the needs of our streets, it must be done thoroughly. It is feared, however, that the inspection was more or less perfunctory. A member of the Board was asked last night if he had noted that the necessary work on a certain street that had twice been ordered done had been done, replied: "We were driving so fast that we had got past that part of the street before I thought of it."

Unfortunately there is not much money available for street work this year. This is all the more reason that it should be spent to the best advantage—that much needed improvements should not be neglected.

But on the score of improving the appearance of the city there can work be done that would cost little and give good results. We all know that the chief defect of our street work is neglecting the maintenance of highways in good condition—making timely repairs, filling holes that form from gravel applied with here and there a load of earthly gravel, or from applying here and there a defective load of broken stone.

This might be systematically done, and the result would be that the life of a street, that is, a smooth driving surface, could be prolonged indefinitely. In connection with this, the tidiness of the streets, one of the essentials to the general beauty of the city, the removal of rubbish, which now lies in festering heaps at crossing intersections, and opposite sewer man holes, at once filthy and unsightly—might be attended to The city pretends to make citizens keep their premises clean, while the public thoroughfares are left in the condition of a dumping ground.

Why would it not be possible at small expense to inaugurate a little system in this matter" and "kill two birds with the one stone"—keep the street in good repair and keep them clean? Why not employ a man, and provide him with a dump cart? He could be put to filling holes in the street with gravel or street metal, and when he is thus treating a street, he could, on its completion gather a return load of rubbish, rotten leaves, the stuff dug out at street intersections and the filth removed from sewer manholes, and leave his load at some city property that needs filling. He would thus be doing double work at one trip. The streets would thus be kept in good repair and also kept clean and tidy; and owners of private premises would be encouraged in keeping their lawns and boulevards—large and small—in a beautiful condition; and the general beauty, of the city would be very greatly enhanced.

Apropas; the city authorities should take cognisance of the desecration of unfenced lawns by delivery boys, bill distributors and postmen. In reaching a house some of these ignore the walks and cross private lawns and boulevards, and in many cases go the length of a street from house to house across the lawns, to their great injury, if the practice is continued, and to the exasperation of the owners.

There should be some way of teaching respect for private property, especially as neglect of it makes for a general marring of civic beauty.

What is lacking in this, as in the general administration of our streets, is system. There is nothing like system—everything seems to be done on the haphazard principle. Without system effectiveness is impossible. If one of our big manufacturing establishments, say the Canadian General, could change the system it applies to its operation, for the lack of system in our street work, the condition of the city would be revolutionized with in a few months and the Electric Works would be—out of business; collapse would be inevitable.

THE COMMON SPIRIT

The Lakefield News announces that "the Methodist and Presbyterian congregations of the village will worship together next Sunday," in the respective churches, morning and evening. This indicates that a gratifying condition of brotherly amity and love obtains as between the members of the respective congregations and suggests the inquiry—if this is done on one Sunday why not on every Sunday? It also leads to the further inquiry as to the wisdom of maintaining two church buildings and employing two ministers, where one of either might serve. Such a condition argues a great waste of money and energy. There are no essential doctrinal or dogmatic differences between the two denominations. A sincere man or woman worshipping under either form of worship would receive a spiritual benefit and refreshment greater than he would get under perfunctory participation in a form of service that may have become a mere matter of habit. If there were no Methodist Church or parson or service in Lakefield, Methodists would find the Presbyterian Church, service and parson perfectly satisfactory spiritual and devotional substitutes and vice versa. Either church building would hold both congregations and one service and one minister could effectively serve both. Then why maintain the two ecclesiastical establishments? Evidently for no other reason than that of sentiment or pride of church or denomination, and as a matter of training and habit. Why not, to take a practical view, merge the congregations and dispense with one church building and one pastor, making the selection a matter of lot as was the division of the Promised Land in patriarchial times. In the Great Canadian West the fields are white unto harvest which is not being reaped because, though the harvest is great, the labourers are few. Close one of the churches in Lakefield and transport it—if not bodily, in spirit—to some of the thousands of neglected population centres of the Northwest. Send one of the pastors with it, and he will find that in view of the field of usefulness that would open up there, he had been spending his time in Lakefield in carrying religious coals to Newcastle; that he had been an intruder, an unnecessary husbandman in a vineyard whose tillage had been amply provided for. This suggestion may be fanciful but it is only advanced to emphasize the assertion of the general fact of the terrible dispersion of Christian energy, throughout Canada, and as an illustration of the wisdom of church union or rather church separation; that is separation of sects in congested centres and the employment of the released forces in the missionary field. Such an apportionment of forces, practically in each other's way in long settled communities would go far to solve the home mission problem, if the right methods were taken. But this is not always done. City and other churches are enjoined, urged and even harrassed for funds to send missionaries to the newer parts, only to duplicate the mistakes made at home—the establishment of some "denomination" in a field already served, while the regions beyond are perishing for the bread of life. Thus we find in new regions three or four missionaries of different sects fighting for the spiritual bones of a few settlers whose need is spiritual food not multiplication of nomenclature—religion, not denominationalism. If the churches, as a whole would carry to a logical and practical issue the spirit of two congregations like those of Lakefield, worshipping together, His Kingdom would come, and His will be done, in a manner whose reality would shame even the visions of faith. Community of spirit wrought into practice would work miracles.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is comforting, says the Toronto Star, to feel that Tennyson, who "saw the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue," predicted also the "parliament of men, the federation of the world."

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church is is wrestling with the question of excommunicating Queen's University—that is cutting the connection between the church and the university.

Lethbridge is leaping ahead and keeping the pace of the vigorous west, For the month of May the building permits issued amounted to $232,850. No wonder the Herald voices the general rejoicing.

The Toronto papers complain that the attendance at the city jail is outgrowing the accommodation. That's what comes of having a popular preacher for jailor. Governor Chambers could fill a church when he was a pastor, and it seems he has not lost his drawing power; and he has a hold on his congregation he never possessed before.

AGRICULTURAL COMMISSIONS.

(London Advertiser)

As the largest of all Canadian industries agriculture must always command, not merely the attention of all engaged therein, but also outsiders who so largely depend upon its success for their own prosperity. At present two efforts are being made in the direction of improvement both of which, if successful, will have a marked effect upon the future of the country.

The Dominion Government is sending a Commission to Europe to investigate the Danish methods of bacon production in the hope of placing this industry upon a better footing. There are good reasons for believing that with information of the best means of production at their service, Canadian farmers can grow and market hogs in a way to commend even more profitable prices in both the home and British markets. The old time habits are giving way to a careful consideration in the matter of feeding and no longer do haphazard methods in this, or any other portion of farm work, spell profit. Success in farming means the application of knowledge and judgment and any assistance given the farmers which will enable them to improve production must prove beneficial to the whole country.

In the second place the Provincial Government has appointed a Milk Commission, the members of which will investigate the methods of milk production and marketing at present prevailing in the province and suggest improvements in the light of experiments conducted in the States and in Europe. The members of the Commission will personally visit Canadian and States' centres and in this way obtain information at first hand. So far as Europe is concerned reports will give them plenty of material. The importance of milk and milk products in our ordinary dietary and their bearing upon the public health justifies more attention being given to its production and marketing. Already a good deal in the way of improvement has been done by private individuals and associations, but it is rightly felt that such a stage has been reached in Canadian development that further improvements may well be enforced on a wide basis. It may be of course that investigation will show we are already well in advance and that what is most required is to bring up the general average so as to ensure a higher standard all round.

The fact that Governments are given attention to these matters ensures for Canadian farm productions a general excellence which will maintain the reputation of the Dominion and afford the best encouragement to all interested to come and assist in making the most of our unrivalled advantages in the way of vast stretches of agricultural land. All agricultural improvements mean a good deal to our present condition and still more to our future prosperity.

CARPER ANSWERED.

(Hamilton Times.)

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was very effective during the session in meeting the criticism of the Opposition to the effect that the National Transcontinental Railway would cost before being completed considerably more than the first estimated. There has been a very considerable increase in the price of labor and commodities since the road was projected. Moreover, it has been a common experience that such great public works tend to outrun original estimates of cost. He instanced the Suez Canal estimated to cost $20,000,000, but which ultimately cost $50,000,000. Then there was the bridge over the Firth of Forth, estimated to cost $6,400,000, which cost when completed $10,000,000. The bridge over the East River New York, cost 47½ per cent. more than the original estimate. The Victoria bridge at Montreal, built by Robert Stevenson, cost 25 per cent. more than the original estimate. The important features are that the road is a work of vital importance to Canadian progress and development; that it is being conducted in the most economical manner; that it is being built as no other great Canadian railway has been built at the outset, in a thoroughly first-class manner throughout, and that its successful operation is already assured. When, in addition to this, we find that a considerable contribution to its cost has been made out of current revenue, the Canadian public has every reason to be well satisfied with the work.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

New York, June 5.—The market opened active, and irregular. There was an immense amount of profit-taking among the railway stocks, but at the same time the standard list was in very good demand with Reading, Penna and the Hill issues particularly firm. There was good manipulation in many specialties, and sentiment turned quite bullish. The equipment issues were well bought and should become prominent soon. During the second-hour Steel common was the most important feature, aking up all of yesterday's loss. The way in which the market absorbed the heavy profit-taking to-day indicates to us that the important interests are still committeed strongly to the bull side, and have really begun no real distribution. We believe there will be a material advance all along the line next week and advantage should be taken of soft spots to buy good stocks. The market is becoming much broader and is calculated to influence a much greater participation. American stocks were irregular in the late London market. Foreign houses had a good many mixed orders in this market.

UNION FARMERS' INSTITUTE EXCURSION

The above excursion will be run via Canadian Pacific Railway special train, to the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, on June 10th, calling at all stations from Cavanville to Tweed, inclusive. Train leaves Peterborough at 6:55 a.m. Return fare $2.55. It is expected a great many who live at a distance from those stations will arrange to meet trains at various stations along the line, owing to the very cheap fares, which makes it the chance of a lifetime to visit the Capital of the Dominion.

PETERBORO'S BRILLIANT PROSPECTS

There was never in the history of Peterbero a time when prospects were brighter than they are now. The city officials state that there has been double the number of building permits issued already this year more than the best previous year and that the prospects are that this percentage will go up even higher.

Think what it will mean when the new factories begin working, simply this, more families will of necessity, move to the city, employment will be given to others in the city that need it and thus create a demand for homes either to rent or purchase, in either case property is bound to advance more or less in every portion of the city. ¶ People who are contemplating purchasing a house will do well to see J. T. O'Connell's list and get terms. We have a choice selection of properties at moderate prices and easy terms. If you have not time to call during the day, come any evening and we will show you any property on our list. We're always at your service.

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN.

The matter appearing in this space from time to time is furnished by the Temperance and Moral Reform League of this City, who have arranged for its Publication.

BRANTFORD TEMPERANCE FORCES AT WORK.

The City of Brantford, like Peterborough, is in the midst of a local option campaign. The temperance workers of the city observed Sunday last a "Temperance Sunday". Special services were held in all the churches, both forenoon and evening, and a monster mass meeting was held in the opera house in the afternoon which was presided over by the Mayor of the city. It is probable that next fall a similar series of meetings will be held in Peterborough. At Brantford, the local clergy and workers were assisted by others from outside points, among whom were Rev. J. G. Potter, of this city, Rev. T. A. Rogers, who took a prominent part in the Owen Sound campaign, and Rev. Thos. Cowan, who figured conspicuously in the Toronto Junction fight. Mr. Potter's part in the day's programme is thus referred to by the Expositor:

Rev. J. G. Potter.

Very forceful, inspiring and encouraging were the addresses given by Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., of Peterborough, who spoke in the Congregational church in the morning, the mass meeting in the afternoon, and at Zion Presbyterian Church in the evening. The campaign for local option is now on in Peterborough, and Mr. Potter gave some pointers for Brantford workers, his addresses creating a great deal of interest in the large congregations who listened to him. The speaker has strong convictions and gave many stirring instances of the evils resulting from the traffic, and the power of Christ to redeem men from its bondage.

In Owen Sound.

In its report of the afternoon meeting, the Expositor has the following:

Rev. T. A. Rogers, of Owen Sound, described himself as a citizen of no mean town, as there were 12,000 people there, the majority of whom believed in the God who rules over all. The vote there last January on the local option question has been called small, but when the nature of the antagonists was taken into consideration it was not so. The whole power of the liquor traffic in Ontario was arrayed against the local optionists, and $30,000, it is stated, was spent there on the day of the voting. All reports from the substantial citizens say that Owen Sound, as a result of local option, is one hundred per cent. better than before it came into force. Captains of the G. P. R. steamships, the Y. M. C. A. secretary and the merchants of the town all state that conditions were never better.

Backbone, Not Wishbone.

"What we want in our men is backbone, not wishbone," was the cry of Rev. J. G. Potter, Peterborough, in a splendid address. Many citizens, he pointed out, wish for the success of the cause, but they don't go out and sign the ballot for it. The law is for the free people, and their will the government is only too willing to carry out. There are two phases to the local option movement. The money is taken by the bar-room when it should go to the stores of our city. But of more value to a community than mere money, are the homes of its citizens, for the bar is responsible for much of the misery in ruined homes. It is for Christian people to decide.

An Instructive Record.

A correspondent of the National Prohibitionist gives some interesting information concerning the results of prohibition in Worcester, Mass., during the year ending May 1st, 1909, as compared with the preceding twelve months. The statement contains a great deal of information, among which is the following comparative table, giving the total number of arrests for the last year of licenses and the first full year of local prohibition:

	License	No License
Arrests for drunkenness	3,924	1,849
Arrests for assault and battrey	382	263
Arrested for larceny	343	255
Arrests for neglect and non-support	112	87
Arrests for disturbing the peace	210	109
Alcoholic ward, City Hospital	274	144
Deaths from alcoholism	30	6
Deaths from all causes	2,560	2,190

The First Year.

The City of Rockford, Ill., with a population of about 35,000 people, voted out the liquor traffic in April of last year, and has now had the experience of a year of prohibition after the experience of a license system under which fifty-five saloons were in operation, paying fees of $1,- 000 each. The number of arrests for drunkenness, for the first year of prohibition, was 394, as against 708 during the last year of license.

A number of newspapers have been expressing their opinion of the changed conditions that have prevailed under the new law, and two sample statements are contained in the following paragraphs, the first of which is taken from the Daily Register, a Republican paper, and the second from the Morning Star, which supports the Democratic party:

"One year ago to-day the regime of a saloonless Rockford opened, and the most enthusiastic advocate of license will admit that the showing made during the past twelve months is a strong argument in favour of a continuance of the system."

"Rockford's first year as a city without saloons came to a close last night and the reports which have been made from the police records show that while the absence of the saloon has not done away with all the drunkenness, it has cut the work of the police to less than one-half as far as loking after drunks is concerned."

HOTELMAN GOES TO JAIL.

Those people who have been claiming that it would be useless to introduce local option in Peterborough, because it was possible to secure liquor in Lakefield, which is now under local option, must have been interested recently in the fine that was imposed on one of the hotelkeepers in Lakefield, who was caught selling liquor.

It is a very dangerous matter for hotel men or for any other persons to sell liquor in local option districts. This is shown by the fact that many hotel keepers have been sent to jail who have attempted it. This week, James Simpson, the proprietor of one of the hotels at Kinmount, a local option village, was sent to jail for 4 months at hard labour by Magistrate Moore, of Lindsay, for selling intoxicating liquors. In order that he might be detected, the Government used two Arenuians as spotters.

The law now requires that a hotelman who is convicted a second time of selling liquor in a local option district must go to jail for four months without the option of a fine. That is what will happen to the hotel keeper at Lakefield if he continues to break the law.

OVERTAXED NERVES A DISTRESS SIGNAL

The Trouble Can Only be Cured by Enriching the Blood Supply.

When your nervous system is exhausted the trouble makes itself evident in many ways. You feel always fatigued and unfit for work. Severe headaches distract you; your back is weak; you sleep badly; your appetite is uncertain; you are nervous and irritable and after any exercise you tremble and perspire excessively. If the trouble is not checked your case goes from bad to worse until you feel that your condition is hopeless and that insanity is threatened.

Your nerves are calling for help. They are starved because they demand from the blood more nourishment than it can supply. New rich blood is the secret of nerve strength and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cure nervous disorders because they feed the weak, exhausted nerves with rich, red blood. The case of Mrs. Emma Hall, of Hamilton, Ont., furnishes proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure even the most stubborn cases of nerve exhaustion. Mrs. Hall was left a widow and was forced to work in a mill to maintain herself and her two little children. She bravely faced the battle of life, though she had never had to conform to such conditions before. Notwithstanding the splendid spirit she displayed the work played havoc with a delicate constitution, and some years ago Mrs. Hall noticed signs in herself of a nervous collapse. She consulted a doctor who gave her some medicine and told her she "would be all right in a few days." But relief did not come and it was finally a daily occurrence for her to faint at her work. These fainting spells quickly developed into pronounced hysteria and chronic irritability, and Mrs. Hall says that death would have been a relief. She consulted several doctors but got no help, and she felt that she was almost bordering on insanity. In this condition she was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Grasping at even the possibility of help she decided to do so. After taking three boxes she actually found some improvement, and from that time on this improvement was steady and increasing daily until after a few months she felt the cure was complete. She says:—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done what doctors failed to do and what I myself thought was impossible. They have freed me from the terrible trouble I suffered and my old joy in life has been renewed." When Mrs. Hall began taking Dr. William's Pink Pills she weighed only oneh undred pounds while under her renewed health her weight has increased to one hundred and thirty pounds.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be had from any dealer in medicines or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HUNTING IN SOUTH AFRICA

London, June 5.—Walter Savage Landor, the African traveller, ridicules former President Roosevelt's spectacular departure from Africa in rough togs, and with a huge outfit, three-fourths of which is unnecessary. The regions in which Roosevelt is hunting could scarcely be called wild, he said, since the Duchess of Aosta was seat there for the benefit of her health, and in it Mrs. Mac Millan constantly shares the outdoor life of her sport-loving husband. Mr Landor said it was to be regretted that Roosevelt, whom he liked very much, persisted in advertising himself in so foolish a fashion.

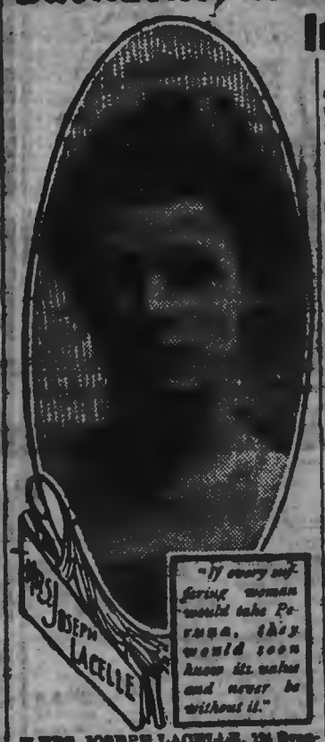
Pink Post Cards

The Secretary of the Association, Mr. A. M. McKenzie, has sent to all the members in the various cities a large pink post card setting forth a few of the advantages to be derived by attending the convention.

On the editorial page the following refence is made: The time approaches for the annual convention of the Canadian Association. The gathering at Peterborough towards the close of July promises to be one of the most interesting and profitable yet held. Peterboro is one of the brightest and best of Ontario's younger cities and offers advantages that should make it a good rallying point. It is central, accessible, and so situated as to afford opportunity for recreation as well as business. Both down the river and up the Kawartha Lakes are resorts that are as attractive for a day's outing as can be found anywhere within our borders. There ought to be a splendid attendance and from what is already known of the programme it may be assumed that there will be plenty of food for thought as well as incentive, for holiday making in the Peterboro convention. From the number of enquiries already received as to the place, the programme and those likely to attend, it is safe to gather that the attendance will be larger and more representative than usual.

Backache, Headache and Internal Pains.



Mrs. Joseph Lacelle, 236 Besserson St., Ottawa East, Ontario, Canada, writes:

"I suffered with backache, headache and dragging pains for over nine months, and nothing relieved me until I took Peruna. This medicine is by far better than any other medicine for these troubles. A few bottles relieved me of my miserable half-dead, half-alive condition.

"I am now in good health, have neither ache nor pain, nor have I had any for the past year.

"If every suffering woman would take Peruna, they would soon know its value and never be without it."

Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

Mrs. Joseph Beaudoin, 32 Rue St. Olivier, Quebec, P. Q. Can., writes:

"Peruna is wonderful for indigestion. I eat whatever I want and no longer feel any oppression. Having had dyspepsia for a long time and having tried various other remedies, I decided to try Peruna and with the fourth bottle of it I was perfectly cured.

Chronic Nasal Catarrh.

Mr. Chas. H. Bernath, 320 Sixteenth St., Detroit, Mich., writes:

"It affords me great pleasure to testify to the merits of Peruna as a remedy for catarrh.

"I suffered for some time with chronic nasal catarrh, but after two months treatment during which time I used seven bottles of Peruna, I am pleased to say that I am entirely well, there not being the slightest trace of catarrh left.

"Peruna is without a doubt, in my mind, the greatest remedy known for catarrh."

Weak, Tired Feeling.

Miss Marie A. Leger, 338 W. 19th St., Chicago, Ill., Worthy Secretary I. O. G. T., writes:

"I am glad to give a good word for Peruna, and I hope that all whose tired and weak feelings are troubled with systematic debauch as I was for years, will profit by it.

"I had tried many remedies, but none did more than give me temporary relief, and some did not even do that.

"I took Peruna at the suggestion of a friend, and was more than pleased and surprised at the results.

"I am now perfectly well and strong. That weak, tired feeling has left me, and I feel like a different person entirely."

The History of Disease.

It is wonderful how many women in Canada and the United States have been practically made new again by the use of Peruna.

Not the victim of any specific disease, but just a half-dead and half-alive condition.

Miserable, dragging pains that keep a woman always from doing her best work, from being her best self. Cross and petulent, perhaps. Maybe even a clatterer in her household, just because her health is continually below par. She never feels quite right. She gets the reputation of being sullen, or slothful, or ill tempered.

Her trouble is not a moral one at all. It is simply a physical one. Make such a woman well and she immediately becomes transformed into a new being mentally.

ANNUAL INSPECION OF 57th REGIMENT BY GENERAL LAKE

Took Place at the Armouries Last Evening—Regiment Was 262 Strong—Did the March Past, Which Was Followed by Company Inspection.

MANY CITIZENS TURNED OUT

The annual inspection of the 57th Regiment took place last evening, commencing at at half past seven, at the armouries. The inspecting officer was Major General Sir Percy H. N. Lake, K.C., M.G., chief military adviser to the Department of Militia of Canada. He was accompanied by Colonel Hemming, chief staff officer, Eastern Ontario, of Kingston, and Lieutenant. Colonel Heward, aid-de-camp to General Lake. Colonel Miller accompanied the officers in their inspection.

The regiment turned out two hundred and sixty-two strong, with the regimental and bugle bands in attendance. At a quarter to eight the regiment with Lieutenant-Colonel Stevenson commanding, marched out on to Central Park. A large number of citizens witnessed the manoeuvring of the soldiers on the park, showing their great interest in military affairs by standing for nearly two hours watching them. General Lake first inspected the regiment on parade in line. He walked down the line taking close notice of everything.

The next feature of the inspection was the march past, which was exceedingly well done, the band rendering their regimental march. This was followed by company and section drill, which occupied a space of two hours. The signalling corps transmitted a message to the satisfaction of Colonel Hemming.

General Lake did not care to express any opinion as to his impression of the regiment until he had made his report. The general left on the midnight train for Ottawa.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF THE NORMAL SCHOOL LITERARY SOCIETY HELD LAST NIGHT

Enjoyable Programme Rendered----Valedictory Address Read by Miss Lily Cadwell---Affair Was Attended by a Large Representation of the Pupils of the School.

The closing exercises of the Normal School Literary Society was held last evening in the assembly room of the school and privided a very enjoyable evening for the members, of which there was a large representation present.

Mr. Austin, who occupied the chair, in opening the meeting, which he said was the last of the term, thanked the staff pupils and outside friends for their help.

The programme was opened with a selection ,"Our Father Land," by the Normal Glee Club, a number rendered in splendid fashion.

Miss Sharlow gave a very enjoyable reading and Miss Holland was heard to advantage in a piano solo.

Miss Davies' rich soprano was effectively displayed in a solo which was heartily received, and an encore had to be given.

Mr. D. Walker, principal, explained that he did not intend addressing the pupils at any length, but merely to talk to them. He said he was afraid that some of the students had not really caught the spirit of the work, as he understood some had been buying bugs for their collections.

He emphasized the necessity of the students working deligently after leaving Normal. It was their duty to make the school attractive and work interesting. Also they should pay particular attention to dull pupils. The bright ones do not need the teacher's care, but the dull ones must be helped.

In closing the principal said that he and the rest of the staff would expect great things from the members of the first class of the P. N. S. He wished to thank the students, on behalf of the staff, for the way the students had always treated them. The discipline had given no trouble and the lecturing was always a pleasure. Mr. Walker wanted the students to always remember that the staff would be glad to hear of the students' success. The institution would remain for consultation and it would be a pleasure to help the students at any time.

Hearty applause was the way the students showed their appreciation of Mr. Walker's talk and expressed the love they have for their staff.

Dr. Park gave a violin solo in a most delightful manner and Miss Argue showed her ability as an elocutionist by giving a recitation. A recall number had to be given in response to the applause.

Miss Mason contributed a piano solo that was one of the most enjoyable numbers of the evening.

The programme was brought to a close by the reading of the valedictory address by Miss Lily Cadwell which was given in a clear voice that was expressive of the feelings of the meeting.

The address was as follows:

Principal Walker, Teachers and Fellow Students:

To-night we are assembled together to say our formal farewell. The word thrills us with sorrow as we realize that to-night heralds the separation of a body of students bound together by strong intellectual and social ties. How are we to say farewell—to break away from all the happy associations of our school life! Words sound hollow and seem "shrunk by usage into commonest common place," but they are none the less heart-felt and sincere.

We have enjoyed the distinction of being the first class of the Peterborough Normal School. We have been proud of our school because of its beautiful structure, its wide halls and spacious class-rooms. When the term opened in the fall, the building was incomplete, and much of the splendid equipment had not arrived. Consequently there were inconveniences on all sides. But all this only tended towards a stronger feeling of friendship between the staff and the students. The days, full of interest in a new work, grew into weeks, and the weeks rolled into months, and now our Normal year will soon be but a pleasant memory of the past.

It is of the way in which we were received by the citizens of Peterborough that we wish to speak. We thank them most sincerely for their kindly welcome for the manner in which they have made us feel that the best that the city could give was not too good for the new Normal student. The churches could not have been kinder. The many social functions which were arranged for us did much to make our stay pleasant and to develop a better acquaintance for our fellow-students.

We wish to thank the clergymen of the city who have met us so regularly and faithfully. They have made their lectures interesting and instructive and their thoughts have applied to our student life and to the calling for which we have been trained. We shall remember them and their influence long after we have forgotten the words they taught.

And now we wish to thank the principals and staffs of the Model schools for their untiring efforts on our behalf. We have found them courteous and kind with a warm feeling in their hearts for the timid junior. They have most unsparingly sought to make our regular visits to their schools a success. To the teachers of the kindergarten we wish to tender our sincere thanks for the care they have taken to present to us the principles of their work.

It is when we wish to say farewell to the principal and staff of our Alma Mater that we realize how inadequate are our words. But we feel that those who have always understood our difficulties so well, will not fail us now. We have never found you too engrossed in the school as a whole to give your time to the individual student. At all times you have shown us that you had our interests at heart. If we have one thing to regret, it is that we have, perhaps, not always done justice to a staff of teachers who are collectively and individually enthusiasts in their work. You have not been merely our lecturers but also our friends and advisers, on every occasion when we required assistance.

It is only fitting to speak of what we have gained from our daily lectures. It is almost unnecessary to say that when we came our conception of education was narrow in many respects. We shall leave the sphere of your influence with much broader ideas of life and education and with a strong desire to make our lives successful in the service of others.

We wish you to understand that we have appreciated beyond expression your efforts to make the lectures interesting and useful. We feel that we are especially favoured in that we have been permitted to live over again the struggles of the earnest educators of the past. We have seen the pages of history glowing with the noble lives of our ancestors and we have been carried quite out of ourselves by the lectures in the study of the mind. Groups of students with faces full of interest and quiet enthusiasm have been made to forget care for a time and have been dismissed with some words of rare humour which have done much to lighten our hearts.

Even our enjoyment of the actual, physical world has been enhanced. Our Nature Study and Art have opened our eyes to this great, wonderful world. We have learned that all nature throbs with life, that not the most simple arrangement in plant or flower is without reason. If we can but make the students in our care, see the world with its richness of colouring and train them to hear the wanton music of the birds, the murmuring rills and streamlets we shall have done much to brighten their lives.

And now comes the saying of farewell to the students. We have made strong friendships which for a time at least must be severed. But is it not a relieving thought that we may expect to hear again of some of use, doing some grand and noble work in some far wider field of effort and achievement?

During our remaining few days together we shall be harassed by examinations, but have a bright incentive before us. Through the kindness of our Athletic Club we are looking forward to a long happy day together, when the worry of examinations will be over and we shall have nothing but glorious plans ahead.

We must not forget to mention the Literary Society and to thank those who have helped to make it a success.

In the long, long, after years we shall think of our Alma Mater with a warm love in our hearts. It would seem altogether unnatural not to feel deep pain at parting. Life seems full of farewells and our hearts rebel that we, who have grown so proud of our school and our staff, must part.

But let no sadness or sigh, to-night,
Break in our farewell chorus;
For the radiant light of life's noontide bright
Is all aroundi and before us;
And hope's bright star shines clear afar,
While the wide world waits before us.
Then let none speak of a journey done,
Though we part to-night with fond good-byes;
It is but life's longer way begun,
And we press where the nobler heights are won.
"Sic Itur ad Astra"—so doth run;
The pathway to the stars.

A Splendid Treatise On Teaching Reading In The Public Schools

Miss Jean A. Jackson, of King Edward School, Illustrates and Explains Her Excellent Method.

The following paper on "Expressive Elementary Reading," given at the recent convention of the City Teachers' Association held at the Collegiate Institute was read by Miss Jean Jackson, of the King Edward School staff. The excellence of the paper was most heartily recognized. Miss Jackson had a class present and practically illustrated the method outlined below, to the satisfaction and even delight of all the teachers present. Mr. Mowat, Inspector of Schools, believes that the publication of the paper will be of very great benefit to the teachers of the city and county, especially as he has been able to note that Miss Jackson's methods of teaching reading as expressed in her monograph, have, in their practical application by herself produced most satisfactory results:

The importance of reading as a school subject cannot be overestimated.

I. It is an instrumental subject—affecting all other subjects.

II. No matter at what age a child leaves school, his education still continues by means of reading.

III. It gives a life-long pleasure.

Expressive reading in its elementary stage depends on five things:

(b) Proper phrasing.
(c) Interesting subject matter.
(a) Rapid word recognition.
(d) Correct interpretation of the author's thought.
(e) Last, and ever important—the teacher.

I. Word Recognition

Before commencing to teach sounds of letters, have much ear training in the school-room. Teacher rings bell. Pupils were previously told to close eyes. Teacher asks what object was touched. Tap on blackboard, walk across the floor, etc., having pupils tell what took place each time. Also analyze words into sounds as "I am thinking of something. It is f-i-sh. Who can guess?"

Continue this method each day for a few weeks in connection with teaching new sounds.

Analytically — Have pupils close eyes. Teacher places a bell behind her and says "I have a b-e-ll." When they have guessed the object, hold it up before them and have them analyze slowly, b-e-ll. Some difficulty will be experienced here at first, but it is excellent practice, materially assisting in combining sounds afterwards to form words. Have in the room plenty of common objects represented by one syllable words—objects will sustain the interest.

The next step is combining sounds to form words. At first let a pupil take the pointer in his hand, point to each letter in the word in order, and sound aloud as m-a-n equals man; c-a-n equals can, etv. Have him do this rapidly down the entire sounds, combining them mentally, still pointing to each word. Then let him quickly name the words.

Do not make the mistake of teaching the reading of sentences too early. It will kill expression. More will be gained by practising mere word recognition. I might mention one or two little devices which will assist here.

(a) Place a number of words on the blackboard. Draw a line around them and have pupils fish for words with the pointer.

(b) Write in ink, words containing known sounds on pieces of cardboard, say two inches square. Have a number of these in a box. Let each child draw one. Those naming the word correctly, keep the cards. The pupil having most cards, wins the game.

(c) Place list of new words on the blackboard—drill, and have children turn their backs. Teacher says, "Now children, we shall call these little words hens; and the brush is a fox coming up to steal them." Teacher rubs out a word, pupils then face board, and detect the missing one. You will see that the child is getting good eye training.

(d) Still another device is to allow two children to go to the blackboard with pointers. Another child will be the teacher, and in a loud, clear voice, calls out the word he wishes them to find. The idea is to see which pupil get the word first. So much for word recognition.

II. Proper Phrasing

Place objects on the desk, under the table, in the box, etc. Ask pupils where the object is. Write simply the phrase "on the desk," on the board. Have pupils compose similar phrases. Give plenty of drill on these groups, until the children recognize that such groups must not be broken up. In the elementary stages of reading, the words and proper phrasing of each lesson in the reader, should be taught first from the board, before taking the lesson from the book. In fact, better results are obtained if the whole lesson is written on the board, before reading from the school-book, placing a sentence on board, and have a pupil read it—then go on to the next sentence.

III. Interesting Subject Matter

Of vast importance is the material set before little children to read. A child has a desire to read only that which interests him—that which he understands—that which has become part of his life, or appeals strongly to his imagination, for we all know that the imagination of children knows no bounds. Children love to impersonate. We have all seen them turn chairs into a train of cars, stride broom-sticks for horses—little girls play house, talking to their dolls and impersonating the character of their grown-up friends or heroines. "The way to a child's heart leads through fairy tales, and children's classics. What a fascination fairy tales hold even for boys up to the age of fourteen. Fairy tales are charged with misleading children by giving false notions of things. But children know these tales are not true, nor ever could be, but they appeal to the inner impulse and feeling. We have all seen the sparkling eyes, and rapt attention when such tales have been related. No pupil will go into raptures over a tame story about Jimmy Jones going on a message for his mother, and being waylaid by some chums, bringing down upon him the wrath of his mother upon reaching home again. Oh, no! Nothing so ordinary for the modern child. "Fairy stories and fables have lasting value, and foster moral ideas." Let the child draw his own moral, or touch it very incidentally. He'll find it, yes, and perhaps apply it, much more conscientiously than we do. Boys long for stories of thrilling adventure. If we do not meet this demand by giving them strong healthy stories of this type in school, they will resort to the news stand to buy cheap, low, wild west tales.

But where are we to secure all this interesting materials for our pupils? So far, the public schools primary readers have not satisfied the demand. What a thrill went through a little fellow as he read that wonderful and exciting story of "the fat man and his cat." The whole book was composed of just such extraordinary literature. May the little ones forgive us for ever expecting them to attempt to put a spark of life into such dry rubbish!

Then, too, fairy tales use words beyond the youngest school children. Here the teacher comes to the rescue by converting the whole story into simple little sentences which the child may easily learn to read. The teacher may relate some of the story, then write on the board for the pupils to read. In the story of "Silverlocks and the Three Bears," your first sentence might be "That soup is hot." Any words not phonetic will have been previously taught by the "look and say" method. The teacher throughout, must arouse and sustain interest. She must interrogate, keep up an atmosphere of expectancy and sustain the mind in suspense.

The old readers started off with a lesson about a cat or a dog. Why not a bear or a wolf? Teach these words by the "look and say" method, and let the pupils have these words early. Always let a child read under the impulse of strong and vigorous thought. Where possible, have good, clear pictures to awaken interest. Avoid the use of words foreign to a child's vocabulary, which are sometimes introduced into a reading lesson for the sake of teaching a new sound. Such instances are "dint," "hie," "hue of health," "reef," etc. These words may appear later on when pupils are older, and have become more familiar with them by frequently hearing them used. But such words are meaningless to the little ones. When they are to be taught, reserve them for a list of new words, as a spelling lesson.

The old Part I. Readers were very careful about adhering to short, one-syllable words. This produces jerky reading. If taught properly, a two-syllable word occasions little more difficulty than those of one syllable, and a great number of these words form part of a child's vocabulary. The Canadian Publishing Company Primer uses good judgment in introducing such words as "begins," and "to-day," in the very first reading lesson. Do not stay at the cat, rat, hat, stage too long. Little children enjoy reading "The Three Bears," "The three Little Pigs," "The Old Woman and Her Silver Sixpence," "Jack and Jill," and scores of similar stories. Do not try to finish a lesson in one day, but keep up the interest by reserving some for the next.

Conversational lessons are splendid for cultivating expression. The little ones would rather know what heroes and heroines say, than what they do. Do not make your sentences too long. The little minds grow weary holding the thought and the words.

To Secure the Best Results.

How to secure the best results in blackboard reading:

(a) Place sentence on the board, allowing children to make it out for themselves before any one reads it aloud.

(b) Pupils mentally analyze a new word into its sounds, and then combine sounds to get the pronunciation of letters to a new word, to see which seems to fit best. Example "ow" in "snow" is quite different from "ow" in "now."

Give every child sufficient time to read through a sentence then ask for it. If he feels what he is reading there will be no difficulty with expression.

A very helpful book for supplementary reading in the Part I. Grade is the "First Reader," by Wade and Sylvester, published by Ginn & Co., Boston. It is valuable for several reasons. The illustrations are clear, interesting, and up-to-date. The type is large; sentences are short, and the words well graded. Subject matter is first class. Also the book is well bound. The "Canadian Teacher" provides good material each month. In the issue of May 1st there was a very suitable little story about "The Lark and Her Little Ones."

Then, too, we must use the Reader prescribed by the Education Department, but back this up with plenty of supplementary reading. Write stories on heavy cardboard for pupils to prepare at home. These stories should contain new words, but words which stand for something with which the child is familiar. Let him master them for himself, and come the next morning to school ready to stand in front of the room, before the class and read aloud, each in his turn. This develops concentration; (pupils must watch for their turn), confidence; good, clear delivery; and a desire to excel. Have pupils express their opinion and select the best reader.

Another good device is to secure a good story of, say, five paragraphs. Write each paragraph on cardboard, and on the back place the name of the story and the number of the paragraph. Have several stories thus divided and distribute one card to each pupil. Call out No. 1 of a certain story. Pupil steps up and reads his [illegible] class. Each child must be on the alert to remember when his part of the story appears. Hence a chance to train the powers of concentration, confidence, and of oratory. Who knows how many M. P.'s we are developing?

It is better to read a new book than to re-read an old book. Stimulate the child's mind, rather than cram his memory.

The Teacher.

To teach primary reading successfully the teacher should be kindly and sympathetic with a humourous affection for all things human. She should have a clear knowledge of the mental resources of children; a close acquaintance with children—their whims—likes and dislikes, enthusiasms and interests. She should have the power to attract and hold the attention of children of different capacities, temper and disposition. Her manner should be lively, and she should exhibit good humor and tact in working with children. Her imagination must be strong that pupils may catch the spirit. A teacher must also be careful to use language which children can understand. Preachers and lecturers usually talk over the heads of children. As Dr. McMurray of the N. Illinois Normal School says: "Fluency and verbosity are not signs of power. Children require simple, direct words, clearly defined in thought, and grounded upon common experiences. Facts and realities should stand behind the words of the teacher, words should be photographs of objects, or views of experiences." And, in closing, let me urge upon the primary teachers, especially not to be slaves to the school readers. Many little children know the book by heart before it is put into their hands. Set up high standards of proficiency for your pupils. They respect the teacher who makes strong demands upon them.

Sidewalk On Benson Ave. Must Be Laid Inside The Tree Line

The Board of Works during last night's session decided that the cement pavement to be laid on Benson avenue must be within the tree line, and thereby a rather long standing question is decided. The residents on the east side of the street have asked for and have gone to some trouble in an endeavour to secure the walk on the outside of the line. The question has been brought up at various meetings and the citizens from that section have waited on the committee more than once. The members of the Board of Works have viewed the situation and the question has apparently received every consideration.

At the meeting last night Mr. R. J. Kidd, Dr. Pentland and other residents were again present, and presented their points, favouring the walk for outside of the trees. A letter was received from Mr. W. Henderson, superintendent of the waterworks, emphasising disadvantages the walk on the outside would create. The city engineer wrote a letter practically to the same point as Mr. Henderson's. The Water Commissioners stated that they had no objections to the walk going on the outside of the tree line as long as they kept it a foot from the water mains.

After a lengthy discussion it was moved by Aldermen Buller and McIntyre, that the walk be laid outside the tree line, providing the property holders terrace their lawn and replant their trees.

This motion was defeated and it was decided that the walk would have to go on the inside and the workmen commenced this morning to construct it.

PARTY OF "AMERICANS" TO ARRIVE AT "GLENWOOD" FOR THE FISHING

"GLENWOOD"—STONY LAKE.

Pretty Summer Resort which will be opened in the course of a few weeks.

Among the popular Stony Lake resorts that will soon be opened for the season is "Glenwood" picturesquely situated on Breeze's Island. The manager, Mr. Alex. Howe, of Cleveland, O., seen by the Examiner this morning, stated that the house would be opened to tourists by June 10th, and from that time he expected a busy season until the leaves begin to lose their colour in the autumn and the summer girl returns to the city according to the natural order of things. Mr. Howe has proven his managerial abilities during the two years that he has been in charge of "Glenwood." Previous to that it was conducted by his aunt, Mrs. Breeze, and under his care it has more than maintained the popularity it had won. Among the first expected visitors is a party of Clevelanders, who will arrive in time for the opening of the fishing season. He has already registered quite a number of guests for later dates, and judging from past seasons this should be a splendid year. "Glenwood" is an ideal summering place, combining excellent bathing, boating, sailing and fishing facilities. There is mail every day and the steamers call four times. Everything the tourist needs is easily obtained.

The hotel has been overhauled and improvements that will be appreciated have been made. Accommodation may be secured for at least fifty persons and particular attention is bestowed to families.

BAND'S FIRST FRIDAY NIGHT CONCERT A GENUINE TREAT

Thousands of People Gathered at Victoria Park in Spite of the Threatening Weather to Listen to a Delightful Programme by Mr. Gliddon's Musicians---Some Grand Numbers.

The first of the Friday night series of concerts by the 57th Regimental Band last night in Victoria Park, attracted an immense concourse of people, in spite of the threatening weather. It was a striking testimonial to the popularity of the band, and must have been appreciated by Mr. Gliddon and the skilful members of his finely trained organization. Even when rain started to fall towards the close of the programme, a large portion of the crowd remained until the end of the work of the band was received with applause, the heartiness of which could not be doubted. It is scarcely necessary to state that the concerts this year will be more popular than ever as the music-lovers of the city have been waiting anxiously for the series.

The programme given last night was one that was eminently suited to the mixed nature of the crowd. It combined in a pleasing manner standard and popular music, and in each class, the band showed a complete mastery of technique, and a trueness of tone that made their numbers most effective. They readily and effectively responded to their leader and played with a vim and earnestness that were truly refreshing. The band is in as good condition now as it ever was and the members are to be congratulated upon the fruitful results of their faithful practising during the past few months. Their playing is a treat that will be eagerly looked forward to from week to week by the citizens.

Last night's programme opened with Chambers' vigorous march, "Old Brigade," a stirring number that was played smartly and well. The overture, "Barber of Seville," which followed, was perhaps the choicest of a programme of musical gems. The band did ample justice to Rossini's beautiful number, their handling of the overture being superb and the applause that followed was a well deserved tribute to the ability of the band.

Bandsman, Ed. Cronk, bore off the individual honours of the evening in his beautiful euphonium solo, "Une Serenade," a really grand selection and played in a grand manner. Mr. Cronk is a superb player, and his work last night was as usual splendid. He had to respond to an encore as a result of the applause his effort drew from the crowd, and he responded in a pleasing manner.

The band's next number was the catchy intermezzo, "Iola," by Moret, which was well played and thoroughly enjoyed.

One of the best things on the programme was the selection which followed. "The Reminiscences of the Plantation," a number into which were interwoven many of those ever-popular medolies associated with the Southern States. The selection introduced variations for various instruments as follows: Piccolo and B flat clarionet, Bandsmen Gowie and F. Miller; solo clarionet, Bandsman F. Barnes; solo cornet, Sergeant F. Hughes; euphonium, Bandsman E. Cronk; basses, Bandsmen Harper, Mein, McBrien and Cunningham. The number was most delightfully played and made a hit of the the first water.

The medley, "Don't Take Me Home," a compilation of Harry Von Tilzer's latest song selections, brought the programme to a close. On account of the threatening weather, two numbers, a concert mazurka, and a march were omitted.

Board Of Works Finished The Day's Work By Night Session

Toured the City During the Morning and Afternoon and Met in Council in the Evening—The Questions Considered and How They Were Disposed Of.

BROCK STREET PAVEMENT.

The Board of Works enjoyed an entire day's work yesterday. In the morning and afternoon Alderman Phelan's committee toured the city in a body and completed their inspection about six o'clock. They considered requests that had been received from the citizens of every ward, weighed their merits and returned to act upon the decisions at which their trip enabled them to arrive. In the evening they had another session, this time around the council board.

Alderman Phelan was in the chair and Aldermen Gillespie, Duncan, Bradburn, McIntyre, Buller and Mayor Rush were present.

Brock Street Sidewalk

Several deputations were heard and their requests considered.

Rev. Canon Davidson and Mr. A. B. Coulthard, representing the congregation of St. John's Church, requested that the proposed cement walk on the south side of Brock street between Water and Sheridan streets be not constructed as planned. The city had decided to build the walk from street to street. Rev. Mr. Davidson stated that it was the desire of the congregation to build a walk from Sheridan street to the east rear entrance, and from Brock street to the west rear entrance, leaving the part between the entrance as it is at present unbuilt. The walk unbroken from street to street would greatly impair the beauty of the church property and would present objections which suggested themselves. There was practically no demand for a complete walk on that side of the street, as pedestrians preferred the easier grade on the north side.

Mr. Coulthard also spoke, stating that everyone was a unit in the desire to enhance the city's beauty. St. John's Church grounds were admittedly beautiful, and it was felt the sidewalk as proposed would considerably detract from it.

Alderman Phelan stated that the committee would duly consider the question.

The Great Art.

Culture is the ability to use learning intelligently and effectively—in doing sensible and beautiful, rather than startling, things. As the poet says, "Of all the arts, great music is the art to raise the soul above all earthly storms." To the truly cultivated, the New Scale Williams Piano lays bare the secrets of the world's best music. Its grandeur of tone, superb action, and sympathetic touch, enable the performer to interpret every mood of the composer. Mechanically, the New Scale Williams is absolutely faultless. "I predict for it a distinctive place among the great pianos."—Ben Davies. Mr. Davies' prediction has come true. To day, the New Scale Williams enjoys a prestige that is the admiration of the music-loving world. In the homes, on the concert stage, in the studios of the teachers and artists, it is the honored guest. It is safe to say, that among the great pianos, the New Scale Williams is greatest.

J. M. Greene Music Co., Opera House Block, Peterborough.

The Gingerbread Man and Comic Opera will be presented at Grand Opera House, Saturday, June 12. Matinee and night

The "Gingerbread Man," a comic opera of the real school is slated for presentation here. This genuine musical offering has demonstrated its merit for the past three seasons with unusual success, and has made one of the greatest impressions on the quality of its music alone, of any opera of recent years. It has a pretty little fantistic story and superabundance of good comedy, and as its characters are particularly interesting, it has never failed to give genuine satisfaction to its auditors. This season the original No. 1 cast is appearing in it, and as it comes fresh from the larger cities with the original production, it should demand attention. The cast is an unusually good one, and the chorus are said to be comely and sufficient in quality. It has some unusually good lyrics written by Frederic G. Rankin and the music by A. Baldwin Sloane, is in his best style. Mr. Sloane has been responsible for the scores of "Coming Through the Rye," "Lady Teasle," "The Mocking Bird," and several other comic operas and musical comedies, and his music has never yet failed to score in anything that he has ever done. By music publishers he is considered "sure fire" and he receives a large sum yearly from the publishers for an option on the publishing of his scores.

In the personnel of the company will be found such clever people as Chas. J. [illegible]owen, Herbert Salinger, Maurice Holden, Fred J. Nice, Ross Snow, Adele Archer, Georgia Campbell. Iola Renard and Rose Murray.

The scene of the play is laid in Fairyland, and is afterwards transferred to Bunnland, where rival kings dispute the possession of each other's respective territory. The good fairy is impersonated by a male comedian, who adds his usual quota of fun, and in conjunction with the "Gingerbread Man," a creature supposedly made from gingerbread, dominates the piece with unctuous comedy and creates no end of merriment for all concerned.

In order to give perfect rendition of the opera, the orchestra will be embellished for this particular occasion.

DECISION REACHED

A Commission Will Settle the Disposal of Queen's.

APPRECIATION FOR LAYMEN

Hamilton, June 5.—What the moderator, Rev. Dr. Lyle, described as a happy conclusion to a difficult question, was reached by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church yesterday, when, by a unanimous vote, he subject of the relationship of Queen's University to the church was referred to a commission, who shall confer and co-operate with the trustees of the university regarding the constitutional changes proposed, and report to the next assembly. It was made clear that in taking this course the assembly was not committing itself to any of the changes suggested. The adoption of Principal Gordon's motion simply meant that the question involved is too vital to be disposed of without the fullest consideration, and that before being called upon to remove any of the denominational restrictions at present imposed upon Queen's by its charter the church should first have the benefit of the judgment of a commission, after full inquiry in co-operation with the trustees of the university.

In the afternoon the assembly was afforded an opportunity of expressing its warm appreciation of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and of listening to inspiring speeches upon the work of that remarkable organization by Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., representing the Canadian Council of the movement; Hon. W. A. Charlton, the chairman of the Presbyterian section, and Mr. Anderson, the secretary, as well as by Principal Gandier. Rev. Dr. Bryce and others. The enthusiastic reception accorded to Messrs. Rowell and Charlton was the assembly's spontaneous tribute to a movement which by resolution it subsequently formally endorsed.

Between the afternoon and evening sessions the commissioners attended a garden party given by Mrs. Hendrie.

Foreign missions night is always an occasion of great interest, and in the evening the large Central Church was crowded by an audience eager to hear the story of the Christian harvest in foreign fields. There were no fewer than nine speakers, these including Dr. Morton, the veteran missionary from Trinidad, and his wife; Rev. E. A. Fraser, a stalwart Scot, also from Trinidad; Mr. S. B. Bobold, who is laboring to such good purpose among the Jews in Toronto; Mr. Jonathan Goforth and Dr. Watters, an earnest young medical missionary from Central India.

Million Dollars Damage.

Montreal, June 5.—The Star has a special despatch on the Meridan Power dam accident, saying the damage totals one million dollars.

NEARING A CLOSE.

Woodbine Track Is Scene of Another Fine Day's Racing.

Toronto, June 5.—The card at the Woodbine track yesterday had only half a dozen races, the fields in most cases being on the large size, the Royal Canadian steeplechase bringing together a cracking fine lot. This was another of the startling finishes that have been the custom in the even through the field at the Woodbine this spring. The card was a featureless one, but this in no way detracted from the keenness of the sport. The finishes were close in the majority of the events, while there was only one straggling start. The summary is as follows:

First race, purse $500, 3-year-olds, 6 furlongs—Tasley, 1; Desperado, 2; Lady Ormar, 3. Time 1.14 1-5.

Second race, purse $500, 2-year-olds, 5 furlongs—Setback, 1; Dalhousie, 2; Hickory Stick, 3. Time, 1.02 2-5.

Third race, purse $500, 3-year-olds and up, Canadian-bred, 6 furlongs—French Shore, 1; Supper Dance, 2; Valydon, 3. Time, 1.18.

Fourth race, purse $500, 3-year-olds and up, selling, 1 mile and 70 yards—Neoskaleeta, 1; Howard Shean, 2; Punky, 3. Time, 1.46 3-5.

Fifth race, Royal Canadian Steeplechase, purse $600, 4-year-olds and up, about 2 miles—Dr. Koch, 1; Stellaland, 2; Wilhalla, 3. Time, 4.12.

Sixth race, purse $500, 3-year-olds and up, selling, 1 1-8 miles—St. Elmwood, 1; Edwin Gum, 2; Hiacko, 3. Time, 1.55.

New Dominion Botanist.

Ottawa, June 5.—The position of entomologist and botanist of the Canadian Government until recently filled by the late Dr. Fletcher, has been divided. Prof. Charles Gordon Hewitt of Owens College, Manchester, England, where he was a lecturer in entomology, will be the entomologist. The position of botanist will probably be filled by the appointment of Hans Gussow of Breslau, Germany, who has been offered the position, but no reply has been received yet. For six years past he has been employed in botanical work by the Royal Agricultural Society of England.

Prof. Hewitt will arrive about September.

May Not Be Condor.

Victoria, B.C., June 5.—A search of the locality in which the wreck of H.M.S. Condor, lost with all hands eight years ago, was reported located, has been made by H. J. Hillier, Government telegraph lineman. He wires: "I have examined Long Beach carefully, find nothing of Condor wreck. Have examined spar found, decided it is from wreck of Pass of Melfort. The supposed hull on beach Mr. Harvey noticed a sea breaking over four years ago, do not know if it is a wreck or sunken reef; can be examined only from sea at low water."

Steamer Burned.

Detroit, June 5.—The steamer Iron Age of Huron, Ohio, burned to the water's edge off Bar Point, Lake Erie, yesterday. Captain Wm. J. Willoughby and his crew of nine men escaped in small boats.

Hotelmen Heavily Fined.

Kingston, June 5.—Two hotelkeepers, C. Millan and John Hastings, for selling liquor during prohibited hours on Sunday, May 23, were fined $150 and $100 and costs, respectively.

BECOMING WARLIKE.

Ottawa Suffragettes Are Trying Sensational Methods.

Ottawa, June 5.—The women suffragists of Ottawa, perhaps owing to the presence of Miss Keegan, a handsome young English woman, who has spent a term in a London jail as the result of one of the famous anti-Asquith demonstrations, are becoming somewhat more militant, and next week will collect their forces in their first open-air venture.

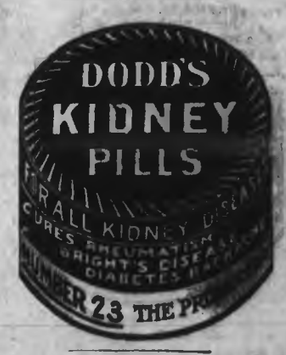
Acting upon Miss Keegan's information that the English suffragists have found resolutions fruitless, they will begin to press their views home. Foiled in an attempt to drag Sir Wilfrid Laurier and R. L. Borden into a lengthened correspondence, though the latter nearly fell a prey at the second letter, they this week turned their batteries upon the wives of the two leaders.

From Lady Laurier they secured a message of sympathy and Mrs. R. L. Borden sent the same. This they followed up by requesting Mrs. Borden to give them her mansion and grounds for their use for demonstration purposes. She was obliged to refuse politely.

This has only added fuel to the flames, and at a meeting yesterday a more warlike spirit was manifested, the result of which will be made known next week.

A New Fruit Company.

Ottawa, June 5.—The Toronto Cuban Grape Fruit Co. has been incorporated, with a capital of $100,000. The incorporators are: John Robson, F. W. Sawtell, A. A. Raynor, A. T. Longbottom and Miss L. M. Heal.



Delay Is Made Up.

Toronto, June 5.—"The reports we have received from the Northwest as to crops are most encouraging," said C. A. Bogart, general manager of the Dominion Bank, yesterday. "The weather has been ideal throughout the whole Northwest for the past two weeks, and the crops have made up for all they had lost. As you know, they have been somewhat behindhand as compared with other seasons, but I should think that they have fully caught up by this time."

Chauffeur Sentenced.

New York, June 5.—A sentence of not less than seven years nor more than twenty years in Sing Sing Prison was imposed yesterday upon William Darragh, a chauffeur, whose automobile ran down and killed Ingvaard Trimble in this city on March 27.

WASHOUTS IN WEST

Flooding Rivers in Mountains Cause Big Damage.

THREE PERSONS DROWNED

Great Northern and Canadian Pacific in British Columbia Are Heavy Losers by Freshets — Two Unknown Men Lose Their Lives at Waldo, B.C.— Great Havoc Is Reported at Fernie.

Calgary, June 5.—Washouts in the mountains near Revelstoke have almost paralyzed traffic, and no transcontinental train has come through from the coast since Wednesday, and there may not be any before Monday next. Passengers cannot be transferred, owing to the nature of the washouts.

The Great Northern Railway has suffered quite as badly as the C.P.R. owing to the terrible freshets following the hot, rainy spell. The damage seems to be very general throughout British Columbia, and the fruit men, lumbermen and ranchers will lose heavily.

Destruction at Fernie.

Fernie, B.C., June 5.—Elk river has risen suddenly, and is carrying destruction all along its tortuous banks.

West Fernie is inundated, and Fernie annex is in danger, and the flood is the worst in years. Two unknown men were drowned at Waldo, in an attempt to cross the river, and three dead bodies have been seen as they were swept through here. One of these has since been recovered further down, but is not yet identified. Both the Elk River and Fernie lumber companies have lost much property, and a great boom of logs above here is likely to go out at any moment. If this should break it will likely carry out the railway bridge here, which would mean the suspension of traffic westward.

Smallpox on S. S. Virginian.

Montreal, June 5.—The steamship Virginian of the Allan Line, Captain Vipond, with 800 passengers on board, from Liverpool to Montreal, was quarantined at Grosse Isle, below Quebec last night, on account of a case of smallpox on board.

The case developed in the steerage, and the 500 passengers in that department will be examined to-day. The Virginian will be delayed at least twenty-four hours, although there will be no inconvenience other than delay caused to the first-class passengers.

Forest Fires In West.

Along the Prince Albert branch of the Canadian Northern Railway, in the Saskatchewan River District, the fire extends 100 miles, and it is feared lives may be lost in the farming settlements.

A passenger train went through a furnace of fire and the windows became so hot that they could not be touched. A twenty mile gale is fanning the flames.

Active Training for Riflemen.

Kingston, June 5.—Private Whitney, who had his left eye injured during the recent sham fight by grains of powder, loses the sight of his eye. Lieut.-Col. Cunningham of the 14th Regiment, next Tuesday night, will have it go up against Fort Henry. On July 1, he will take the regiment to the butts for a day's practice.

At the border she was stopped, questioned severely and detained for some hours in the immigrant pen, after which she was put on board a train and returned home.

Mann's Chauffeur Arrested.

Niagara Fals, Ont., June 5.—Geo. Seagel, chauffeur for D. D. Mann of the Canadian Northern, was arrested here last night by Chief Manns and Officer McNamara on information from the Toronto police, charging him with causing bodily harm to several girls while on a "joy ride" in Toronto a week ago. He will be taken to Toronto to-day.

KNOX CHURCH BOYS' CLUB

The last meeting of the Club took the form of a social gathering of the members, who entertained the young ladies out of the classes of Mrs. Roger, Mrs. King, and Mrs. Sherwood of the Sunday School.

Mr. Wm. Shepherd, as Social President, occupied the chair, in his usual pleasant and jocular manner.

A comic song was rendered by Mr. A. C. Davenport.

Mr. McKenzie was called upon to speak. He praised the Club for what it had done and the bright future that lay before it. In the new church was to be added a special club room for the boys. This piece of news and the encouraging words of the speaker were heartily cheered.

Parlour games were taken part in, Ice cream and cake followed.

Deer Lake, June 5.—A very serious accident occurred at Kennaway when Mr. John Bowen, Jr., of this place was very badly cut on a trimming saw in Mr. Burgess' mill. In some manner he encountered a plank which pushed him on the saw twice and in this manner received two cuts, one on his left side which was thirteen inches long, and one on his hip which not being so long is much deeper. Under the treatment of Dr. Bellamy, of Bancroft, the young fellow is doing as well as can be expected.

FIGHTS O' LONDON TOWN.

Broadway is bright and cheery,
The crowds are gay and free,
But Johnson looked toward London;
Said, "Dat's de place foh me."
He bought a steamer ticket
And said, "I'll get a fight.
De English cough up freely,
To fightahs, black or white."
O dressy clubs of London, who lay your money down,
What fortunes lie within you, O, fights o' London town.

The face of Johnston clouded,
When the morning papers told
That two black husky fighters
Were copping foreign gold,
Jeanette had whipped all comers;
Sam Langford took Hague's goat.
So Johnson phoned the captain,
"Guess Ah won't take that boat."
O dressy clubs o' London, that lay your money down,
"Dey're mighty risky business, dese fights o' London town."

LOCAL BASEBALL

The St. Peter's school team trimmed the King Edward School nine last night by the score of 8-5. The battery for St. Peter's was O'Hern and Calalghan, and for the south city team Martin and Taylor. Mr. Kerr, of the King Edward School, gave every satisfaction as umpire. The feature of the game was the work of Willit Taylor, the boy who had both legs amputated several years ago. In the pitching box his work is phenomenal, considering the fact that he is so badly handicapped. He rapped out long hits as often as the next of his comrades, but one of his chums has to run the bases.

HEY! BOYS! KNOW HOW TO SWIM? THE EXAMINER TELLS YOU HOW TO-DAY

THE ILLUSTRATION SHOWS THE BEGINNING OF THE STROKE AND KICK, AS WELL AS THE VARIOUS MOVEMENTS OF ARMS AND LEGS IN THE BREAST STROKE.

Boys learn to swim!

Of course, it is scarcely necessary to tell a real boy to learn, for there is something in boy nature that leads him to the water about the time he escapes from his mother's apron strings ,and he learns to swim as a matter of evolution.

But, boys, learn to swim correctly. Once mastered, the art is never forgotten. And you never can tell when the knowledge will be of value.

The Examiner believes every boy should be able to care for himself in the water, and has asked an authority on the subject to explain the proper method to thoroughly master the art of swimming.

He says:

I always advise beginners to wade into the water until it reaches their armpits, the nface the shore and try to get to land.

Confidence in your ability to keep your head above water is half the battle. Don't do this by throwing your head back so it rests on the spinal column, but hold yourself naturally and easily.

When facing the shore, fall forward gently in the water, with your hands under your chin, thumbs touching, elbows pointing outward, just below the surface. Give a slight push with your feet at the same time moving both hands outward and downward, backs together, fingers closed with sufficient force to keep your head above. When both hands are fully extended, sweep them at full length back until they touch your legs. Then bring your hands together under your chin again, for another stroke. This is the arm movement in the breast stroke.

As for the use of the legs ,well, use them like a frog. A frog swims by drawing his knees up on each side and pushing them backward as if it were kicking something. That's just what he is doing, kicking the water. At the end of the kick his legs are together, toes pointed downward.

Don't draw your knees up under you. Spread your legs apart—like one of those Jack-on-the-string things—with the knees on each side. When kicking, strike with the soles of the feet and push the water from you. Finish with your feet far apart, and then draw them together in a straight line, toes turned downward.

The kick should be made just as your hands are extended for the stroke. Do not hurry to make the next kick, or the next stroke. Take your time. A strong, even kick and stroke will carry you through the water for some distance. One fault with even good swimmers is that they hurry the kick and lose speed. Not till your speed begins to slacken is it necessary to make another stroke or a sound kick.

CHAMPION FRANK GOTCH WANTS SOME EASY CASH

New photograph of the heavyweight catch-as-catch-can champion, who is to put one over on the gullible June 12 by indulging in a "championship" match with poor old-worn Tom Jenkins.

BY TIP WRIGHT

Frank Gotch, heavyweight champion, and Tom Jenkins, ex-champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler, are to meet in Des Moines, Ia., for the title, June 12.—News Item.

Help! Police! Fire!

Some one in Des Moines ought to be pinched. The promoter of this farce must have a senatorial nerve and the hide of a hippo. The idea of husky young Frank Gotch and ancient Tom Jenkins in a championship match is enough to make a sick man grin.

Still, if the public will pay to see this sort of stuff, it's not my cue to waste sympathy. But for the sake of sport the match should be side-tracked. Jenkins has no more chance to throw Gotch in an honest match than I have to get a tip from Jim Patten.

The past performances of Gotch and Jenkins are enough to put this affair on the blink. In the east, where their work is a by-word, the two wouldn't draw well enough to pay for the paper.

The match will not attract attention in the world of sport. The fact that Jenkins claims to be in condition as the result of his work of teaching Uncle Sam's cadets how to do head spins, won't do. The Newburger is old, big, fat and slower than a B. & O. accommodation on a greased track hitting a grade. Gotch is in better shape than ever, and the "championship match" is farcical on its face. It simply belittles Gotch, who, to get the money, is making an exhibition of himself.

LAY FOR WEEKS AT DEATH'S DOOR

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Mrs Thompson's Dropsy.

It Started With Backache and Grew Worse Till the Doctor Said She Must Die.

Holt, Ont., June 4.—(Special).—All the countryside here is ringing with the wonedrful cure of Mrs. Samuel Thompson, who lay at the point of death for weeks, swollen with Dropsy so that the doctor five different times decided to tap her, but desisted because, as her husband said, "It might be better to let her die in peace." After the doctor had given her up Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her.

Mrs. Thompson's terrible trouble started with pain in the back. She grew worse and the doctor treated her for jaundice for eight weeks. Then her feet and legs began to swell, and it was realized that Dropsy was the trouble. For seven months she suffered. The doctor said there was no hope; she must die.

As a last resort Dodd's Kidney Pills were tried. The improvement was slow, but gradually her strength came back. To-day Mrs. Thompson is a well woman. She says and the countryside knows, she owes her life to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

If the disease is of the Kidneys, or from the Kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills will sure it.

Buried Wrong Body.

Watertown, N.Y., June 5.—On May 4 J. M. Kellar disappeared from this city and later a note, in which he said he was about to kill himself, was found on a bridge over Black River, in this city. Ten days ago a body found in the water was recognised by Mrs. Kellar as that of her missing husband and was buried by her.

Yesterday she discovered her husband working on a farm near Chaumont. He disclaimed any knowledge of the note, and said he went away to look for work.

To Reclaim Waste Lands.

Toronto, June 5.—Hon. William T. Pipes, Attorney-General of Nova Scotia, and vice-president for that province of the Canadian Forestry Association, will be in Toronto on Monday to confer with Hon. Frank Cochrane as to the method of reclaiming the waste lands in the older parts of the province.

On behalf of the Nova Scotia Government, Hon. Mr. Pipes will retain Prof. Fernow to make a preliminary survey of the timber resources of that province.

An Alleged Dynamiter.

Sudbury, June 5.—Isadore Bourassa, farmer and market gardener, is under arrest, charged with dynamiting the residence of F. F. Lemieux, barrister, last July. The information was furnished by Philbert Bouffard, a hired man, to whom Bourassa is alleged to have admitted the crime. He comes before Judge Kehoe on Tuesday next.

NO HIGHER CRITICS

Rev. Dr. Manning Says Methodist Ministry Is Free From Views.

EXPENDITURES TOO HEAVY

London, June 5.—In his address to eleven budding ministers at last night's session of the London conference, Rev. Dr. Manning of Windsor, declared that the Bible was to-day what it always had been and always would be. He further declared that there were no higher critics in the Methodist ministry. He said:

"I haven't much to say about the Old Testament. Some people profess to know the origin of the books of Moses, but no man that reads and thinks can have lived as many years as I have without knowing that he must keep some things in solution. I am not a higher critic. I am prepared to say that there is not a man in the practical ministry of our church who is a higher critic. The Bible is what it always has been and always will be."

In the morning Rev. Richard Hobbs stirred up a new theology discussion when he remarked:

"The higher critics tell us we must be liberal in our interpretation of the Old Testament, and conservative in our interpretation of the New, but these are two horses no one can ride at the same time. When they discredit my Lord, and my Lord's testimony as a teacher, and tell us that He knew no more about the Old Testament than any teacher of His day, so that all He said about Moses was wrong, I take exception to it.

"I challenge Mr. Hobbs' right to make such remarks," said Rev. J. E. Ford of Lucknow, "unless we are allowed the privilege of presenting the other side.

"If my Lord is not allowed to be the supreme authority in all scriptural interpretation, I'm going to start sawing wood for a living," declared Mr. Hobbs.

"Mr. Hobbs can take to the tall timbers as soon as he wishes," said Rev. J. H. Oliver of Sarnia. "I prefer going westward to preach the gospel on the plains. I think much of this discussion has been an effort on the part of the preachers to supply copy for the newspapers."

Mission Expenses Large.

Pembroke, June 5.—A deficit in connection with The Christian Guardian, the official publication connected with the Methodist Church, and an intimation that throughout Canada women are now too often taking the place of men in business offices, stores and schools by the new president were among the items at the Montreal Methodist conference yesterday. As many deputations are waiting on the conference and as the reports are more numerous than usual, the committees will have to work extra to-day.

The economical management of the home missionary department came in for considerable discussion, following the report by Secretary Rev. James Allen of Toronto. Rev. Geo. Clendenen of Ottawa said he did not think the claim could be made, as was made some years ago, that the department held the record for economical management. Rev. W. H. Sparling said he had come across level-headed business men who had demurred at giving to the fund because the operating expenses, the cost of distributing the money, was so excessive.

Rev. E. Thomas made particular reference to the young people's forward movement, at the head of which is Rev. Dr. Stephenson, and said that that branch was very highly manned and abnormally high percentage of the money received was paid for advertising.

After a free and frank discussion a resolution of appreciation, and confidence was passed.

Dr. Chown on Moral Reform.

Belleville, June 5.—The feature of yesterday's sessions of Bay of Quinte Conference was an address by Rev. Dr. Chown on the work for temperance and moral reform throughout Canada. He hoped to see Brantford and Peterboro carry local option laws next year.

Dr. Chown also delivered a rap at race track gambling. He did not believe in the "scum of American blacklegs" coming to Canada and robbing the hard-working class of all their money at every race meet. In a couple of years he expected to secure strict legislation again race track gambling.

He referred to social conditions of "the Ward" in Toronto and suggested securing an expert sociologist to study conditions.

The simplification of the catechism and a restraining of the doctrine in it was the recommendation made by the Sunday school and extension committee, also a suggestion that no Sunday schools be closed during the summer months. These will be sent to the general conference for consideration. To show loyal support to the Lord's Day Alliance, the Sabbath observance committee suggested that every pastor severely criticise pleasure indulged in on Sundays by motoring, boating, bicycling and fishing.

Masonic Banquet at Woodstock.

Woodstock, June 5.—A special train with over 100 members of Doric Masonic Lodge, Toronto, arrived last night during a heavy rainstorm, which somewhat spoiled the elaborate demonstration that had been arranged in their honor by Oxford and King Solomon lodges of the city. A banquet was attended by 300 brethren.

POPULAR YOUNG LADY PASSES AWAY

Death of Miss Vivian Clancy at Her Home, Rubidge Street, Yesterday—Funeral To-morrow.

The death occurred yesterday afternoon of Miss Vivian Clancy, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clancy, at her late residence, corner of Rubidge and King streets. The late Miss Clancy had been ill about three weeks, but during that time gradually sank and for the past few days little hope has been entertained of her recovery. She was twenty-five years of age and had lived all her life in this city, where she had a host of friends who will learn with deep regret of her death. She was a young lady of many estimable qualities and was beloved by all who knew her.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

EXCITING EXPERIENCE WITH CLOUD OF FLIES

Ex-Ald. T. J. Wilson had an experience at Stony Lake last week that he will not soon forget. He left Lakefield in the afternoon bound for one of the islands in Stony Lake with a scowful load of lumber, drawn by a small tug. All went well until the scow ran high and dry on a submerged rock, and it required an hour and one-half's toil, and the removal of three-quarters of the cargo before the craft could be freed. Mr. Wilson with the men who were within, paddled to his cottage in a punt, and returning to the scow left the doors and windows wide open. When they got back they found the place full of mosquitoes, and an all night fight ensued in which the insects had all the best of the argument. That was bad enough, but the climax came in the morning when, after bringing the lumber safely to its destination the party ran into the midst of a swarm of black flies that made life miserable for the men.

Fortunately for the people who spend their summers at Stony Lake, the season for these pests is short-lived, and black flies are rarely encountered, very rarely, after the first few days in June.

LATE COUNTY COURT JUDGE CHARLES ALEXANDER WELLER

The death of Judge Weller, which occurred at half-past five o'clock on Saturday evening, June 5th, will be learned with very general regret. The passing away of a gentleman who has for fifty-seven years been in professional and judicial practice, and for the same length of time a citizen, is an event of more than usual importance. Judge Weller, for the past few months had been in a state of failing health. Though close upon eighty years of age Judge Weller retained his clearness of intellect and characteristic soundness of judgment and capacity for work up to the last, even in his last illness, dealing at his residence with matters that demanded his official attention. It may truly be said of him that he died in harness, faithful to the last to the duties he had so diligently discharged during his thirty-four years professional practice, and twenty-three years occupancy of the bench. Some time this spring his condition showed an improvement and promised further amendment, but within the last month affections of his vital organs increased in intensity till on Saturday evening he passed painlessly and peacefully away, surrounded by the surviving members of his family.

Charles Alexander Weller was born in Cobourg, March 29th, 1830. He was a son of the late William Weller. In 1852 he became a citizen of Peterborough, at the same time entering upon the practice of his profession immediately upon his being called to the bar at the age of 22, in 1853, and has since continuously been a citizen and legal practitioner, or an occupant of the bench. In the same year of his arrival in Peterborough he was united in marriage to Miss Gilchrist, daughter of the late Dr. Matthew Gilchrist of Colborne. To this marriage were born two children, the late Capt. H. P. Weller, barrister, of Millbrook, and Mrs. H. P. Dean, who, with her four children, have had a home with Judge Weller at his residence at the head of Scott street for many years. Mrs. Weller, after a long illness, died on November 30th, 1893. Judge Weller was a long time member of St. John's church—over two score years.

At St. John's on Sunday morning, Judge Weller was remembered in the service. Hymn 262—"Let Saints on Earth in Concert Sing"—was sung by choir and congregation, the rector feelingly referred to the forty years faithfulness of the deceased as a member of St. John's congregation and voiced the sympathy of the congregation with the family, who have been faithful workers in the Church and Sunday School. At the offertory Mr. George Chandler sang the beautiful sacred lyric, "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death" and at the end of the service the organist performed Chopin's Funeral March.

There is not much that is not known, to tell of Judge Weller's life as a citizen. He has moved among us for nearly three score years, quiet, and somewhat reserved and always dignified, but at the same time invariably genial and courteous. Further reference to his qualities in a professional capacity will be found in another column of this issue. If it were, however, permitted to enter the privacy of domestic life, much could be said of Judge Weller's kindness and consideration in his family relations, reflecting as high credit upon his paternal kindness of heart as his intellectual and legal ability did upon his professional and judicial career.

The large place Judge Weller held in the esteem and even affection of the local bar is shown by the action of the Peterborough Law Association, which met the day after his death and adopted the following tribute to his character and work, and expression of condolence with the bereaved family and relatives:

The Members of the Legal profession of the County of Peterborough deeply lament the death of Charles Alexander Weller, Esquire, County and Surrogate Judge of Peterborough, who departed this life June 5th, 1909, in his eighteth year. Called to the Bar in 1853 he entered the practice of his profession at Peterborough in the same year, was appointed County Attorney in 1858 and County Judge in 1868.

Judge Weller endeared himself to the profession by his uniform and constant courtesy, his patience in hearing and absolute integrity and fairness of judgment. In Court he heard the last word and gave patient hearing, then with knowledge of affairs, a judicial mind and appreciation of the equities he rendered judgment rarely appealed from and always received as the judgment of a just judge.

Lamented by all he will peculiarly be missed by the profession which he adorned and in whose love and respect he lived in kindly intercourse.

He served the people faithfully and in a ripe old age died, lamented and mourned by all.

The profession tender to his bereaved family their condolence and this expression of their respect for one whose loss will be most deeply felt especially by those to whom he was so tender and loving.

Signed on behalf of the Peterborough Law Association,

LOUIS M. HAYES,
President.

E. H. GOODWILL,
Secretary.

Peterborough, June 7th, 1909.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the family residence, Reid street, and was a solemn and striking tribute of respect and esteem. The members of the Peterborough Law Association, comprising the legal profession of Peterborough; the members of the City Council, the civic officials, and the members of the Board of Education, attending in a corporate capacity. The outside members of the judiciary and legal profession present were His Honour Judge Harding, Senior County Court Judge, of Victoria, and His Honour Judge McMillan, Junior Judge of Victoria, Lindsay; Messrs. R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., Lindsay; O. A. Langley, Lakefield; Geo. J. Sherry, Norwood, and Chas. A. Ghent, Havelock. The pall-bearers were relatives of the deceased, Messrs. Harold and Arch. Morrow, George Grover and Irwin Grover, George Grover, Toronto; Erwin Grover, Norwood; Henry Weller, Toronto, and Vincent Ketcham, Gananoque. Other relatives present for the funeral were, a brother, Mr. J. L. Weller, Superintendent of Welland Canal, St. Catharines; two nieces, Miss Weller, Cobourg, and Mrs. Quipp, Cobourg; Mrs. Grover, Norwood and Mr. Warren Dean, Perth.

At three o'clock, the body, escorted by the legal and civic bodies and a large cortege of carriages was conveyed to St. John's Church, where the chancel and pew of the deceased were draped in black. As the church was filling, Mr. Devey, organist, performed Chopin's Funeral March, and as the body was carried up the aisle, the Dead March in Saul, and the recessional voluntary was the funeral march from Beethoven's Sonata in A flat. Rev. Canan Davidson, rector, recited the office for the burial of the dead and the remains were consigned to their final resting place in Little Lake cemetery.

CARRIER PIGEONS ARE SENT ON THEIR LONG AIR JOURNEY

Mr. W. F. Skitch Liberated Sixty-seven Yesterday Morning at 6.02 O'clock—Were Sent Off From the Lift Lock Hill and Started Out in a South Easterly Direction.

Two baskets, containing 67 homing pigeons, expressed by Mr. Chas. H. Therrien, Secretary of The New Bedford Homing Pigeon Club, of New Bedford, Mass., and consigned to W. F. Skitch, Mgr. Canadian Express Co. arrived at 9 o'clock Saturday evening. The birds came in good condition, and were well cared for and were in good shape for their long journey.

At 6.02 the following morning they were liberated from Armour's Hill by W. F. Skitch, David Moore and Chas. Harmer, in the presence of quite a number of spectators. The baskets were thrown open simultaneously and there was a whizzing of wings; the birds rose upwards to a distance of about one hundred feet, making a couple of wide circles, for about a minute, then to a direct course south easterly, moving at a very rapid rate, and in about five minutes were entirely lost to view.

A week ago the pigeons made very fast time between Richmond, N.Y., and New Bedford, Mass., covering the distance of three hundred miles in five hours and two minutes, averaging about a mile a minute.

THE LATE JUDGE WELLER.

In the passing of Judge Weller, the city and county of Peterborough and Midland district lose one of the best known, most highly respected and even venerated of citizens, the legal profession one of its most learned members, and the bench a judge who, in the exercise of his judicial functions, maintained its highest traditions. Charles Alexander Weller was born in the town of Cobourg on March 29th, 1830. He was the second eldest son of the late William Weller. He received his academic training at that educational nursery of many of the greatest minds of Canada, lay and legal, Upper Canada College. He pursued his course of legal training and study with the law firm of Boulton and Cockburn, Cobourg. He was called to the bar in 1853, and at once began the practice of his profession, in the then town of Peterborough, which he continued uninterruptedly and with marked success for thirty-four years, or till his elevation to the bench. His practice in Peterborough began in partnership with the late W. H. Visard. The first office he occupied was in a building on George street, which was about on the site occupied by the building of the Peterborough Hardware Company. At the end of one year, Mr. Visard retired from the partnership and Mr. Weller continued practice by himself for several years, when the late Mr. D. G. Hatton, who had studied and acquired the qualifications of his profession with Mr. Weller, was admitted to partnership. This legal firm continued in existence for some time, when it was dissolved, and Mr. Weller resumed practice by himself, which continued till he was appointed a judge. He was appointed County Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace for Peterborough at the early age of 23—in 1853—and twenty-eight years before his appointment to the bench, and from 1856 to 1886, he was solicitor for the Bank of Toronto, his new responsibility necessarily involving the resignation of that position. In 1875 he was appointed, jointly with his brother, the late W. H. Weller of Cobourg, Local Master in the Court of Chancery. The brother dying in 1886, Mr. Weller retained the position of Master, which he continued to occupy till the time of his death, the law permitting the offices of County Judge and County Master to be united in the person of one incumbent.

In March, 1886, Mr. Weller was appointed County Judge in succession to the late Judge Dennistoun, who resigned after a service of twenty-six years. On Tuesday, March 13th, 1886, Judge Weller's appointment was made by order-in-council at a Dominion Cabinet meeting and on March 23rd an extra of the Canada Gazette announced Mr. Weller's appointment as County Judge and local judge of the High Court of Justice, and Revising Barrister for East and West Peterborough under the Electoral Franchise Act of that time.

The appointment was regarded with universal approval, by both profession and public. At that time the Examiner, in comment upon the matter, said:

> "This is an appointment, upon the occasion of which the Examiner is pleased to be able to offer double congratulations—to Mr. Weller upon so appreciative a recognition of his fitness for the position; and to the county and legal fraternity upon the appointment of a gentleman upon whose impartial and equitable administration of justice, the one can count with confidence and the other can respect. So far as we are able to learn Mr. Weller's appointment gives unusual satisfaction especially among the gentlemen of the bar, whose interest in and opinion upon, such a subject are deserving of especial consideration. He has had an extensive legal practice, which he has enriched with a course of professional reading, beyond the range of ordinary local practice; and we hope he may long be spared to administer even-handed justice, and maintain the dignity of the position, to which a timely recognition of his legal abilities has called him."

These words, written 23 years ago, with a knowledge of Judge Weller's capacity and character proved prophetic and have been more than literally fulfilled in two ways, both as to the character and length of his judicial services. In his judicial capacity Judge Weller was regarded popularly as "a fair judge," "a reasonable judge," and "a just judge." He was held in the highest respect by the bar, for the depth and range of his legal knowledge, the soundness of his opinions and his firm and dignified, but complaisant, attitude towards the profession. With his justice he combined the quality of mercy and reasonable lenience in his treatment of criminal offences; in fact the only criticism that has been applied to his administration and bearing, is that he leaned strongly to the side of mercy, a quality that will not be counted against him in the divine court of judgment, to which all, as he has been, must be brought. The client in civil cases without a legal adviser, always found in Judge Weller a sympathetic and patient protector of his interests and defender of his rights.

In politics Judge Weller was a Conservative, but at no time was he active in politics and after his elevation to the bench his abstention from politics was complete. His work absorbed his attention to the exclusion of other interests. He was of the class of citizen who scrupulously minds his own business. He was a member of St. John's Church and a warm friend to its welfare. It may be said without exaggeration that Judge Weller as lawyer, judge, and citizen, as the head of a family, and especially as a grand-father "was a man, take him for all in all, we shall not soon look upon his like again." He was respected and honoured both in private and public life. At his funeral to-day the members of the local Law Association, the City Council, and the city officials, and the Board of Education were in attendance as official bodies, and honoured him for his public virtues and services as a large concourse of private persons honoured him for his life as a citizen and a man.

Complains That One Fishery Boat Is Not Sufficient

"To the casual observer, Mr. Editor, it would appear that the protection of fish in the waters of the Province of Ontario was a problem which it is found convenient to take up at any time when the Department responsible for the fish is not otherwise engaged. Occasionally the wheel is given a turn, and we have a change in the close season or a voluminous batch of instructions to inspectors, etc., or possibly an in the latest efforts to attempt along other lines at suppression, generally those which are most economical and least effective.

"A fair example of this is seen in the Government's last effort by putting a cruiser on the waters of the Trent Canal to patrol that system of waters from Healey's Falls to Lake Simcoe, an area of water of not less than four hundred square miles. How this cruiser is to be in Lake Simloe and Stony Lake at one and the same time is difficult to see for the particular season when its service is most necessary demands its presence everywhere at the same time.

"The Department set out some months ago with the intention of placing a small, swift cruiser in the shape of a gasoline launch at the disposal of the Inspectors at the most important points along the lakes. This would enable them to patrol the spawning grounds at the proper time and also maintain a reasonable degree of wholesome restraint on the casual depredator and law-breaker. The turn of the wheel has occurred, however, and we now have this proposal turned down for the single patrol. It is only another evidence of the weakness which has always characterized this Department of public administration."

May Lose Sight Of One Eye As Result Of Being Struck By A Nail

Mr. John Stanger, Stewart street, who has been working on a boathouse for Mr. L. Potvin, at his cottage, Stony Lake, for the past week, had the misfortune to meet with a painful accident on Thursday last. He was driving a nail through a plank when it sprang back and struck him in the eye.

Mr. Stanger was brought to the city on Friday, and was removed to Nicholls Hospital. It is thought that he will lose the sight of the eye, although all that medical assistance can do is being done to save it.

Committee Appointed For St. Peter's T. A. S. Annual Outing

Forty candidates were initiated yesterday afternoon at the regular meeting of St. Peter's T.A.S.. There was a large attendance of members with Mr. N. Bibby presiding. One of the most important questions considered was that of the annual picnic on Dominion Day. A committee was appointed to look after the entire affair and on Wednesday night the sub-committee will be arranged. All those who were selected yesterday are asked to remember the meeting. Rev. Dr. O'Brien was present yesterday and gave a helpful address.

The society continues to forge ahead and the members show a continued enthusiasm for its success.

Tourists Will Be Treated With More Courtesy Than In The Past

Capt. Hunter of Belleville, was in the city to-day and met Capt. R. W. Carson regarding the movements and other business connected with the "Naiad." The new steamer was tied up near Crescent street since Saturday, being cleaned and made ready for her maiden trip on these waters to-morrow. Capt. Carson will have charge of the fishing inspectors between Barrie and Heeley's Falls. The issuing of the fishing licenses to tourists will be in his hands and also the two-dollar permits to guides who must be registered. Capt. Hunter stated to the Examiner that more courtesy would be extended to the tourists on these waters this year, and Capt Carson will have to give this matter his attention. He stated that in the past the fishing inspectors had not shown them due courtesy and the importance of their coming to Canada was now fully realized and the department desired to use them well in order to encourage their returning another year. The Naiad" starts out to-morrow either up or down stream, and will, in future, make Peterborough its headquarters.

The city officials state that there has been double the number of building permits issued already this year more than the best previous year and that the prospects are that this percentage will go up even higher.

Think what it will mean when the new factories begin working, simply this, more families will of necessity, move to the city, employment will be given to others in the city that need it and thus create a demand for homes either to rent or purchase, in either case property is bound to advance more or less in every portion of the city. People who are contemplating purchasing a house will do well to see J. T. O'Connell's list and get terms. We have a choice selection of properties at moderate prices and easy terms. ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and a severe female weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but I could not bear to think of it. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash—and was entirely cured after three months' use of them."—Mrs. S. A. Williams, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 30, Gardiner, Me.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

THE ANGLO-RUSS PACT FORMED

Report Current That Postures Will Jointly Rule Persia.

A CHECK FOR THE KAISER

Berlin Paper Publishes Highly Circumstantial Story Including Draft of Terms of Supposed Treaty—British War Office Denies Rumor, But the Fact of Negotiations Still Remains.

London, June 7.—(New York Sun Cable.)—A political sensation of the first magnitude was created throughout Europe Saturday by the publication in the semi-official Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, of the circumstantial announcement that Great Britain and Russia have assumed joint suzerainty over Persia. The terms of the treaty which the paper declares has been adopted are such as to competely deprive the Shah's kingdom of its independence, and to reduce the country almost to the vassalage of Egypt.

The Vossische Zeitung gives the terms of the treaty, which, it says, has been signed not only by Great Britain and Russia, but by Persia, as follows:

First—The Shah is to restore the constitution, without alteration, and proclaim a general amnesty.

Second—All the financial affairs of Persia shall be controlled by Great Britain and Russia.

Third—All Ministerial nominations shall be subject to the approval of Great Britain and Russia.

Sixth—Great Britain and Russia undertake to protect the Shah from all acts of violence on the part of the Persian people.

Seventh—They guarantee the safety of life and property and of the throne of the Shah.

This startling announcement, considering its source and the intrinsic evidence of its official inspiration, received full credence until a few hours later, when the British Foreign Office issued a denial of its authenticity. The statement was broadly to the effect that there was no foundation for the statements of the Vossische Zeitung. But it was admitted that some weeks ago Great Britain and Russia made joint representations to the Shah respecting the advisability of a restoration of the constitution.

This denial can hardly be accepted as disproving the matter. The Persian situation has reached such a critical stage that both Great Britain and Russia decided recently that it was imperative to deal with it by radical measures.

Dynamite Explodes.

Cobalt, June 7.—Nearly a case of dynamite went off on one of the main streets of the town. The dynamite was in the bottom of a toolbox, where the men were cutting off ten feet of the hill opposite the public school on Grandview avenue. In some manner fire got into the box and the workmen were warned. They just got out of the pit in which they were working when the explosion occurred.

Not a person received a scratch, which is considered miraculous, as the fire alarm had just rung, and the people were flocking to the scene of the explosion when the dynamite went off.

Wage Battle In Prison Corridors.

Tiflis, June 7.—A desperate battle was fought in the prison here, which ended in the killing of eight prisoners, and two wardens and the mortally wounding of four wardens and two soldiers.

Five convicts who were condemned to death, while being transferred to the death cells, overpowered the wardens, wounding and disarming them. They ran through the corridors, shooting down everyone they encountered. They were finally brought to bay by a detachment of wardens, but refused to surrender.

To Meet the Czar.

Paris, June 7.—It is officially announced here yesterday that President Fallieres of France will meet Emperor Nicholas of Russia at Cherbourg on July 31.

Cholera In St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, June 7.—The first few days of summer have been marked in St. Petersburg by an alarming increase of cholera.

A WOMAN'S BACK WAS NOT MADE TO ACHE.

Thousands of Women Suffer Untold Misery Every Day With Aching Backs That Really Have No Business To Ache.

Under ordinary conditions it ought to be strong and ready to bear the burdens of life.

It is hard to do housework with an aching back. Backaches come from sick kidneys, and what a lot of trouble sick kidneys cause.

But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it is not to be wondered that they get out of order.

Backache is simply a warning from the kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney troubles.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you in the same way as they have cured thousands of others.

SEVERE PAIN IN BACK.

Mrs. O. Warren, Radisson, Sask., writes: "I was troubled with very severe pains in my back for years. I tried everything I could think of but they did me no good. A friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking two boxes, I have not been troubled since."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25, all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering specify "Doan's."

CANADA'S FAMOUS MEN AND WOMEN

Gladly Testify to the Great Value of "Fruit-a-tives."

Hon. Senator Costigan (member of the Cabinets of five Premiers of Canada), says:—"Fruit-a-tives is the only medicine I ever took that did me any good for Constipation."

Mrs. J. R. Finch (widow of one of the most prominent physicians in London), writes:—"I was a constant sufferer from Stomach Weakness all my life and no physician could cure me, but Fruit-a-tives gave me entire relief and I strongly recommend this medicine."

Mr. James Dingwall (Superintendent of St. Andrew's Sunday School in Williamstown, Ont., for nine years) states: "I am now over eighty years old, and I can strongly recommend Fruit-a-tives for Headache and Kidney Trouble and Chronic Constipation."

Mr. H. Marcilleamett (High Constable of Quebec), testifies:—"I suffered for two years with Severe Pain in the Back. Nothing did me any good until I tried Fruit-a-tives."

Mr. W. J. McComb (the leading merchant of Trenton, Ont.), writes:—"I was a martyr to Headaches—consulted doctors — wore glasses — without the slightest relief. Then I took Fruit-a-tives and this remedy cured me."

This is the kind of evidence that convinces. Dealers everywhere have "Fruit-a-tives." 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. Sent postpaid on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

DUHAMEL IS DEAD.

Catholic Archbishop Takes Suddenly Ill at Casselman.

Ottawa, June 7.—Most Rev. Joseph Duhamel, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Ottawa, died suddenly Saturday night at Casselman, whither he had gone with the intention of presiding at a confirmation class yesterday.

The late archbishop had been in failing health for a couple of years, but had pursued his duties with scarcely an interruption. On Saturday he showed weakness after the work of the morning, and was advised not to go to Casselman. He could not be persuaded, however, and shortly after his arrival he expired, the immediate cause of death being an affection of the heart.

Archbishop Duhamel was born at Contrecoeur, Que., 68 years ago, but shortly after his birth his parents removed to Ottawa, where he was educated until his ordination to priesthood in 1863. He became successively priest of Buckingham, Que., and St. Eugene County, Ont., and in 1884 was appointed Bishop of Ottawa, on the death of Bishop Guigues. In 1886 he was created Archbishop of Ottawa.

He was a knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Holy Sepulchre, a Roman Count, and chancellor of the University of Ottawa.

The body was immediately removed to Ottawa, and lies in state at the Basilica, where it was viewed yesterday by large numbers. The funeral will take place on Thursday. Archbishop Bruchesi of Montreal and Archbishop McEvay of Toronto will deliver orations in French and English respectively.

COMING TO CONGRESS.

Delegates From Antipodes Arrive In Vancouver.

Toronto, June 7.—The delegates from India, Tasmania and Australia for the Women's Quinquiennial Congress have arrived in Vancouver, and these from Norway and Sweden have also landed in America. On June 8, Mrs. Willoughby Cummings will leave Toronto to meet them in Montreal, along with the others who will have come from over the seas. There they will enjoy the hospitality of the local council and a series of most interesting entertainments has been planned. Ottawa has also arranged a cordial welcome for them and on June 16 the whole force is expected in Toronto.

Here the first week will be given wholly to business, and the second to the work of the congress, and both will be varied by multitudinous social events. On the evening of June 30 a farewell reception will be given for the delegates in the Parliament buildings, which have been placed at the disposal of the council by Sir James Whitney, who will also preside at one of the evening meetings. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King is to be another speaker.

Drownings at Smith's Falls.

Smith's Falls, June 7.—Two men who were fishing in Rideau Lake Saturday found the body of a man floating on the water. The body was identified as that of Israel Early, an old resident at this place. He and another man McCormack, left town on Tuesday to do some work at Dart's cottage, on the south shore of the lake, about seven miles from here, but there is no evidence of the men having been there, and the supposition is that the boat was swamped as they turned to go into the bay where the cottage is located. This is a particularly rough part of the lake and a stiff breeze was blowing when they left here. An upturned boat was seen in that vicinity on Wednesday. McCormack's body has not yet been found. He was an elderly man; but very little is known of him here. Early was 65 years of age, a widower with a grown-up family.

French Colony at 'Frisco Protests.

San Francisco, June 7.—Ambassador Jusserand, Mayor Taylor and about 2,000 members of the local French colony who attended a reception to the Ambassador and Madame Jusserand, entered vigorous protests to the statements made by President David Starr Jordan of Stamford University in his speech at Bryn Mawr College, that France was a decadent nation.

The ground was thoroughly warmed before the cold snap, and with the rain, the temperature rose, but fell again last night.

Influenza Coughs—

Influenza seems to seek out the same victims year after year, and if the disorder is once contracted, one is ever after prone to catch it again. No remedy is so sure to cure, so certain to prevent the dangerous after-effects, as "Nerviline." The germ-killing, soothing, pain-relieving power of Nerviline is the marvel of every doctor. Ten times stronger than ordinary remedies. No wonder it breaks up Coughs, Colds, and Influenza in one day.

Nerviline

"Last Winter," writes J. B. Hemmingway, of Woodstock, "I was stricken down with influenza. Every bone in my body ached. My chest was tight and sore, breathing was hard, stabbing pains shot through my lungs and made me wince. My head swam with dizziness, and fever and high pulse dragged down my strength. Nothing but Nerviline helped, and it cured me quickly. For all Winter ills I urge every family to use Polson's Nerviline."

All dealers sell Nerviline, large bottles 25 cents.

Rev. H. J. Keith Preached To The Woodmen Of The World

Large Attendance at Knox Church Last Night—The Necessity of Being Right in Ourselves if We Would Wish to be a Power for Good in the World.

ADDRESS TO THE WOODMEN

The evening service at Knox Presbyterian Church last night partook of a special nature owing to the large number of the Woodmen of the World, who attended in a body. The pastor, Rev. H. J. Keith, chose as the text for his sermon, "And now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees," St. Luke 3:9. His message was not only particularly of benefit to the members of the visiting order, but to each individual person. The main thought expressed was that if any person or any organization desires to achieve good among mankind there must be first an absence in themselves of those things which they are seeking to reform in others.

The symbol of the Woodmen of the World stands for progress and reformation. But these aims are not easily accomplished. Even in the church opposition has been met and in the world obstacles are much more pronounced. St. John as he held up the figure of an axe striking at the root of a tree was sensational. "Christ Himself in His message to the world was sensational and if you bring a message which is to have power against the selfishness of men you will be regarded as sensational." Rev. Mr. Keith said that the gospel of Christ was filled with socialism. Not, however, that socialism which is as full of as many wrongs as the system which it seeks to right. Christ's socialism goes down deep into the roots of men's lives. Character is recognized. It is the standard and not wealth and power. The socialism of St. John regards all men as brothers and goes into their needs. "He that hath two coats let him impart to him that hath none and he that hath meat let him do likewise." We must recognize men the world over as brothers.

Rev. Mr. Keith referred to the man who was not willing to accept his responsibilities and burdens. He is a parasite and not worthy to be called a man. The text also suggests regeneration. A man may cry loudly for reformation and progress, but he must also conform to that idea. No man will turn away from his selfishness without the aid of a power outside himself. Every man that stands as a reformer must recognize that selfishness in him is an evil that must be removed before he can help in bearing the burdens of the world and the regenerating gospel for every man was sent by St. John in the following words: "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world." By conforming our own lives by the regeneration suggested we fit ourselves to help others and to remove evils.

The church was crowded owing to the attendance of the Woodmen. The choir sang several anthems well, and Mr. James Browne sang as a solo "Face to Face."

Benson Street Residents Make Final Effort Re Cement Walk

Board of Works Decided to Build it Inside Tree Line Contrary to Wishes of the Ratepayers on the Street—Hurried Meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council—The Question Not Yet Decided.

BE CONSIDERED TO-NIGHT

The Benson street cement sidewalk question is still unsettled. The Board of Works decided on Friday night that it should be laid inside the tree line. This was diametrically opposed to the wishes of the ratepayers on that avenue. They wanted it on the outside and they so expressed themselves on more than one occasion, when, as a deputation, they voiced their demands to the Board.

When they learned of the Board's Friday night decision they resolved to make a last stand. They had fought the question over wall and ditch, and it was a case of "now all together for a final sortie," and they quickly called up Mayor Rush and asked him if he would arrange a meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council on Saturday night. His Worship gave his word and the residents were present in force. Mr. R. J. Kidd, who headed the deputation, stated that the residents of Benson street desired to make it one of the most beautiful in the city. There was no reasonable objection, he stated, to their request being granted. They were willing to pay the expense of terracing their lawns down to the walk, and would also transplant the trees. The Water Commissioners had stated that the pavement on the outside would not materially interfere with the water mains. At the Friday night meeting Ald. Duncan and Ald. Bradburn expressed themselves as adverse to the removing of any trees. "There are not enough now," they stated. The Benson street people state that they will not remove any of the trees by the walk being laid according to their wishes.

The outcome of the meeting was that the question was left over until this evening, when it will be considered at the regular meeting of the Council.

The Benson street ratepayers will, in all probability, be present again en masse ,and make the best of the reprieve, which they obtained on Saturday night.

Report Of Local Conditions For The Month Of April

Mr. J. A. Sharpe, Correspondent for the Labour Gazette, Makes His Regular Statement Upon the Work and Prospects in Peterborough and District.

THE GENERAL OUTLOOK.

Mr. J. Arthur Sharp, correspondent for Peterborough and district, to the Labour Gazette, reported as follows on the general condition of the labour market for the month of April:

The general condition of the labour market during April showed an improvement over the previous month. The ratepayers carried a by-law to provide $120,000 for the erection of a new dam and pumping station for the waterworks department, but disapproved a by-law from the city council asking for $15,000 for the construction of a power house at the waterworks dam. The Central Milling Company's directors mets and declared 8 per cent. dividend; it is their intention to double the capacity of the mill this summer, and to turn out 400 barrels of flour per day. Custom returns for the month of March show an increase of $4,000 over the figures of March last year. The increase in railway traffic in bank clearings and customs revenue all point to improved commercial conditions. The annual general meeting of the Canadian General Electric Co. was held on Morch 29. The management presented a satisfactory financial statement; the profits of last year's operations were somewhat in excess of those of the preceding year, presenting an addition to the credit side of profit and loss. The current liabilities were more than cut in half the reduction being from $2,191,266.00 to $1,093,123.88.

The barbers have signed a petition and have presented it to the city council asking that a by-law be passed to close barber shops at 11 o'clock on Saturday evenings.

Condition of Local Industries

Agriculture.—Farmers have been very busy, although the season has been somewhat backward.

Lumbering.—The lumber companies are all busy getting their logs out. The Baker Lumber Co. has about twenty-five cribs to bring down and thirty-five men left the city to drive back to Eel's Lake to bring logs for the Peterborough Lumber Co. The McDonald Lumber Co. also have a large gang of men bringing logs for their mill.

Railway Construction and Employment.—A large quantity of new rails will be laid on the C.P.R. line west of this city.

Manufacturing.—Exceptional activity prevailed in the brick yards this month and a very busy year is anticipated.

Condition of Particular Trades

Bricklayers were not doing much, but look for a busy summer. Stone masons were beginning work. There was no large contracts in progress, but a lot of small houses were under way, and carpenters were fairly well employed. Lathers and plasterers were not doing much. Painters and paperhangers had a good month. Plumbing and gasfitting has been quiet and very little stone cutting was done. Iron moulders have been well employed, also iron workers and helpers and core makers. Machinists reported some improvement. Electrical workers reported conditions better than for some months. Woodwerkers and furnishers showed improvement. The Peterborough Furniture Co. will enlarge its factory one-half the size of present building this summer. Pattern-makers and coopers were active. Printers and pressmen have been fairly busy. Tailors have also had a busy month. Bakers and confectioners have been busy. Cigar makers and tobacco workers have had a quiet month. Leather trades reported a good month. Railway workers have been fairly well employed. Steamboat men were getting busy the latter half of the month, as the locks and bridges opened on the 15th. Unskilled labour was fairly well employed. The city will start on sewer construction at once.

District Notes

Campbellford.—At a special meeting of the town council Mr. S. J. Moore, manager of the Trent Valley Woollen Mill, asked that a fixed assessment of $50,000 be placed on his mill property for 20 years. He stated that the company would erect a large addition to the south end of the mill, 78 x 178 feet and would employ 70 more hands than at present.

Hastings.— The local engineering staff of the canal are busy with survey work, getting the work ready for the contractors.

The Radiator building and land in front which have been unused since the company ceased operations now presents a lively scene. Gangs of men are busy putting up the piers for building the new dredge and getting out the timber ready for the scows for the coming work. Considerable timber has arrived and more is on the way from British Columbia.

Bobcaygeon.—The Bobcaygeon Lumber Co. has about completed its winter cut after a very satisfactory season. The quantity of custom work was large. About 200,000 ft. were cut. The company has still on hand material for ties and shingles which will be cut later on.

ASSAULTED A MAN AND WAS FINED

Harold Bestard Had to Pay Five Dollars at Police Court This Morning.

Harold Bestard was fined five dollars at the police court this morning for assaulting a young man on Thursday evening last. Mr. Ozias La Plante appeared for the complainant. Bestard pleaded not guilty.

The informant stated that he was driving along road past Bestard's place when the latter's dog ran out and started to fight with the complainants. He called several times to Bestard to separate them, but he wouldn't. Finally witness got out of his buggy and kicked Bestard's dog. The defandant became angry at this and struck him a blow in the face and called several uncomplimentary names.

The defendant admitted striking the complainant but said that he tried to pull his dog away.

His Worship imposed the above fine, stating that if he ever heard of the dog running out at persons again he would order it to be killed.

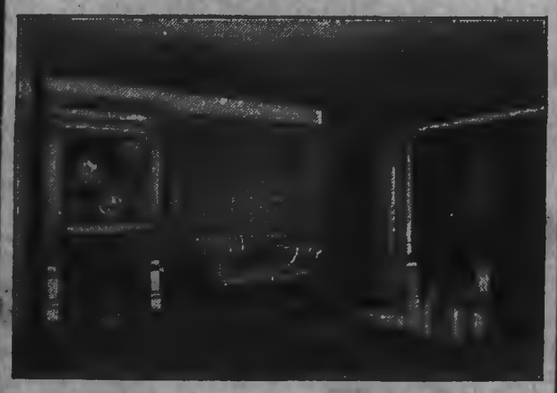
The June Bride's Home



While the first impressions are not always lasting, still they should be very favorable when the bride is brought into her new home for the first time. The appearance of the home often makes or mars the happiness of the young married couple.

There are a great many things that go to make a home beautiful, but the most important are the wall decorations; just as the background of a picture is all important so is the background of the home's furnishings.

You can demonstrate this fact in your own home by taking a piece of your nicest furniture, first place it in a room that is papered with a poor characterless paper or perhaps none at all, note the effect, then "presto change" put the same article in a room with beautiful rich paper, then note the result.

We specialize in this line. We're always working out schemes for wall decorating that are artistic and appropriate, schemes that just fit the room it is wanted for. Don't forget this is the most important feature of the new home for your bride, young man. Have her form favorable impressions of the home from the first time she sees it. Cressman's will help you, the cost is no more. Choose home furnishings and wall decorations here—easy to select, easy to compare, for both departments are on the same floor—the third.

Part Of Remains Of Big Elephant Will Be Sent To The Veterinary College

Interesting Story of the Manner in Which the Illness of a Circus Animal is Attended To—"Sig," a Very Intelligent Beast During His Sickness—Was Sent to Infirmary

Special to The Examiner.

Louisville, Ky., June 7.—About two weeks ago, in a small town in the southern part of Georgia, Sig, the big prize elephant with the Gentry Shows, caught a cold, which settled on his lungs. He was given the ordinary home remedies applied to a cold on the lungs, perhaps goose-greased flannel pads on his chest and maybe he had to soak his feet in hot water before going to bed. Anyway, the home remedies did no good and Sig developed congestion of the lungs. His case became serious and it was thought expedient to bring him North for hospital treatent. So the two-ton pachyderm was placed in a palace stock car and started for the animal sanitarium at Louisville.

As Sig and his trainer, Charley Russell, came north the climate became uncomfortable for the patient and a gasoline heater was placed in the car. A day after it was installed the thing exploded and the flaming fluid splashed on Sig's face, neck and sides and the poor, speechless beast was made more miserable.

The car arrived in Louisville shortly after daylight, and at 9 o'clock Dr. S. A. Bradley, the veterinary surgeon, with his largest and strongest ambulance began the work of removing Sig to the hospital. This was a colossal task. The elephant was unable to stand on his feet and it was necessary to rig up a derrick to get him into the ambulance, for he weighs 4,000 pounds. Not until 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon did Sig reach the infirmary. Again a derrick was rigged up and Sig was placed in a sling and gently laid upon a bed of straw.

As the doctor said, Sig was an awfully sick elephant and his pulse was weak. Nothing could be done but to administer stimulants—the kinds that are given to ill folks, but heavier. First came a quart and a half of whisky, containing an ounce of quinine. This was followed by two quarts of beer. Sig was so sick that he could not lift his huge head nor open his mouth, although conscious, and the attendants had to do it for him. They attached a pulley to the rafters and, tying a rope to Sig's trunk, just raised his head. He was past all help, however, and at 9.45 o'clock he died.

Much has been said about the intelligence of elephants, and this elephant's actions during the time the doctor was working to give him relief, bear out all tradition. When he was being removed from the car, the animal became rather impatient, and was inclined to be refractory, but at a word and a pat fro his trainer the suffering beast became quiet and permitted himself to be handled freely. He coughed a good bit and groaned stertorously, but did not offer a swat. After he was inside the infirmary Sig lay on his side, but patient as he seemed to be the "big boy," as Russell called him, could not repress his expressions of agony, for besides the laboured breathing, he suffered from the burns.

Sig was known by sight, if not by name, to thousands of youngsters all over this broad land. And many, many of them have ridden on his back during the concert after the big show. So, too, do all remember the big elephant that sat on his haunches, drank from a bottle, played dead, blew a bugle, and performed countless other elephantine tricks, for Sig was the pride of the show and the apple of his owners' eyes. He was 18 years old and was born in the Hagenbeck private zoological garden at Hamburg, Germany. Coming to this country at an early age, he traveled extensively and has been the property of Gentry Brothers for about twelve years.

Sig had a magnificent pair of tusks and these will be kept by the show people. The hide will go to Dr. Bradley, and the lower jaw, the one that once harboured a "lump," will be sent to the Ontario Veterinary College at Toronto, Canada, for it is regarded as a curio. The elephant was valued at $3,500.

that the bookings for the month of May amounted to over 250,000 tons, of which 170,000 tons went to independent interests. The outlook is for somewhat higher prices and it is probable that the blowing in of new furnaces as soon as prices advance will check too high quotations. Orders for about 300,000 tons to be delivered by October 1st have been booked by the Chicago district, while the test for the Southern market will probably come about July 1st, when many contracts for last half relivery will be made.

The grain markets continue strong, chefly because of the more crop damage stories sent to this country from foreign wheat producing centres, and which were effective in causing an advance in prices abroad. The publication of the Kentucky State crop report for May showed a condition of winter wheat of 90 as compared with 81 of the previous month.

Estimates of the condition of the cotton acreages have been more favourable of late, while the prevailing weather condition in Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas are the reverse. The revised estimate by the Bureau of Statistics makes the yield of a group of Southerners competing linters, estimated on 500 pounds net lint per bale. There is some talk of a group of Southerners competing for the control of the local stock of cotton accumulations of July contracts.

Stop That Scratching?

Just as long as you have dandruff your head will itch. It's the little microbes that are gnawing down into the hair roots. It may take a long time for these persistent pests to get down to the vital part but when they do, they will destroy the life of the hair in a very short time.

"My hair was falling out rapidly and becoming gray when I heard of your guaranteed Hair Restorer, and, after using one bottle my hair stopped turning gray. The first application removed the itching, my hair stopped falling out and I now have a new growth of hair, and it is soft, glossy and pliable." Carrie Williams, 844 Clinton Ave., South, Rochester, N Y.

Parision Sage, the delightful Hair Restorer is guaranteed by Wm. Madill to stop falling hair, to cure dandruff and all diseases of the scalp or money back. It is the most refreshing hair dressing in the world. Ladies use it extensively because it makes the hair beautiful, soft and luxuriant—50 cents a bottle at Wm. GROWS POTATOES IN RECORD TIME

Mr. Wm. Miles Makes a Hobby of This Culture With Good Results.

Mr. William Miles, 547 Weller street, showed the Examiner a few specimens of new potatoes which he has grown in his garden. They were almost full grown, and for this time of the year are particularly large, demonstrating that Mr. Miles' experiments with the tubers have been successful. They were planted on the 31st of March, when the ground was frozen hard. They were twice frozen in sprouting, but their growth was not apparently retarded. They were not protected in any way. Mr. Miles has many interesting methods of growing potatoes and any person interested would do well to visit his gardens on Weller street.

CANADIAN ORDER OF FORESTERS ATTENDED PARK STREET BAPTIST CHURCH ON SUNDAY EVENING

It was an interesting and timely sermon that Rev. W. C. Riddiford preached to the local Courts of the Canadian Order of Foresters at the Park Street Baptist Church last night. The occasion was the annual church parade of the Foresters, and there was an excellent representation at Divine service. Mr. Riddiford took "Opportunity" as his subject and his address was effective and applicable.

After bidding the Foresters welcome, Mr. Riddiford stated that he did not know all about the order they represented, but he did know that when God put it into the hearts of men some 31 years ago to organize one more institution for the help of the afflicted and widows, it was formed for no selfish purpose.

In regard to the principles of the order the speaker felt very much interested, and he congratulated the Foresters on the humane part of their programme in their provision for consumptives at Muskoka. He was also interested to know that no infidel could join their ranks and that no saloonkeeper could be a member. It was hoped that the order would cling tenaciously to the principles it had established.

The text for the sermon was taken from Galatians, 6:10, "As Often as We Have Opportunity Let Us Do Good Unto All Men." Every man should bear his own burden. We all have to bear burdens and everyone has his individual cares. We need a fellow sympathy and a fellow love. Jesus Christ said that brotherhood was the goal of Christianhood. To do good to all was an opportunity open to everyone.

Opportunity knocked at the door but once. She knocked and then passed on, and an opportunity lost could never be recovered. We should take advantage of these opportunities if they were God given. An opportunity for mere material gain was not God given. The opportunities that we should take advantage of were those for doing good to mankind. Paul said: "As often as ye have opportunity do good."

God was raising all over this country of ours, organizations which had for their principles, doing good.

Opportunities were often lost through the mistaken conception of the real end of life. The right conception of life was to go about doing good. And we were not to simply strive for the material offerings of this world. We were here to do good to all men. The speaker gave evidence that these opportunities were numerous and while we might not be able to do them alone, we could with the help of Jesus Christ.

If the members of the Canadian Order of Foresters had the touch of Christ in their lives, their order would rise to the heighs of its ideals.

On returning to their hall, the members were called to order by Bro. Wm. Whitcroft, C. R., who thanked the brethren for their attendance. Several members referred to the excellent sermon and the practical truths which were so forcibly drawn therefrom.

On motion a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Rev. Mr. Reddiford for his able address, and to the church officers for the use of the church and to the choir ofr the special character of the music rendered.

The closing ode was then sung and the brethren separated.

Financial Review For Week

(By Reginald Burton.)

New York, June 5.—The great victory won by J. Pierpont Morgan during the past week in Paris, where he was successful in having the Steel issues listed on the Paris Bourse caused the buying of these shares in such volume as to end the price to a further high record of 68. The cables rather exaggerated the transaction at Paris; some saying that the whole capital stock of the corporation would be listed and others that 1,000,000 shares of the common would be traded in the shape of trustee's certificates. Later, however, it became known that only 100,000 shares to be dealt in on trustee's certificates was correct. The main point was that for the first time a security of an American industrial company was placed before the French investor. Entrance to the French market was the principal matter; the amount of stock involved at the beginning was immaterial. All Europe is watching American securities just now because of the tax on incomes and the low investment return from European securities. The quick recovery made by the United States from the panic of 1907 has demonstrated the solidity of the industrial situation in this country.

The production of copper in the United States during the year 1908, according to the advanced statement just issued by the geological survey, was 942,570,721 pounds, which is the largest ever made by this country. It exceeds that of 1906 by 27,765,639 pounds and that of 1907 by 73,574,200 pounds.

INSURANCE MEN AS BALL TOSSERS

Prudential Life Insurance Staff Entertained at Chemong by Superintendent John I. Allen.

The quiet and peaceful citizens of Chemong were taken somewhat by surprise Saturday afternoon, when the staff of the Prudential Insurance Company of Peterborough breezed into that noted summer resort and treated the fans of that hamlet to a gae of baseball.

The teams lined up under the captaincy of Superintendent J. I. Allen, a former Connecticut League "star" twirler, and Assistant-Supt. F. E. Bradley, of National League fame.

Both nines played exceptional ball with Mr. Allen's forces, winning out by the score of 4 to 3, although it is only fair to mention that had it not been for the superb fielding and timely hitting of one "Dubbs" Cornelius, once famous second baseman of the Chicago Cubs, in the early nineties, Mr. Allen and his men would have won by a considerable larger margin. While on the other hand, Joseph Leadbetter saved the game many a time by his spectacular fielding, and was very much in evidence with his trusty stick.

The outing was given by Superintendent Allen in appreciation of the faithful week's work of his staff; it being a record-breaker.

EUROPE IS NOW IN A FERMENT

Lord Rosebery Addresses Imperial Press Delegates.

BRITAIN TRUSTS COLONIES

Outlook in Europe is Ominous But Britain Will Fight Aggression With the Aid of Her Dominions Across the Seas — Sir Hugh Graham Replies For Visitors—Cheap or Cable Service is Wanted.

London, June 7.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The most representative gathering of British newspaper men ever held, occurred Saturday evening at the Garden Club, at Shepherd's Bush, when 1,000 journalists of the United Kingdom gave a banquet in honor of the 57 colonial delegates to the Imperial Press Congress that is to open at the Foreign Office on Monday.

While the Londoners predominated, every section of the British Isles sent a delegate to welcome the colonial visitors who have come to London from all corners of the Empire.

Lord Burnham presided at the banquet. Lord Rosebery delivered the speech of welcome to the pressmen, and the reply was made by Sir Hugh Graham of Montreal.

Lord Rosebery, an orator of empire and master of eloquence, humor, satire and impassioned invocation, was greeted most enthusastically on rising to propose the toast, "Our Guests."

Lord Rosebery was particularly serious in his reference to the European situation, pointing out that whereas all the talk is of peace all the action is in preparation for war. He said he regarded the outlook as ominous, almost appalling.

He had never seen the condition of things in Europe so remarkable and so menacing as at this moment.

There were features of this general preparation for war, he declared, which must cause special anxiety to the friends of the British Empire.

One was forced to wonder where it was going to stop, whether it would merely bring Europe back into a state of barbarism or whether it would cause a catastrophe in which the working man of the world would say "We will have no more of this madness and this foolery, which is grinding us to powder."

Then they came to a question of close union between the Empire. That was most vital of all. (Cheers.) It was perfectly certain that if they were to build up the Empire they could only do it by the freest knowledge of each other's wants and ideas. He remembered when he was in Canada thirty-three years ago that the news which reached Canada from the Mother Country had not passed through wholly favorable friendly channels. All that was changed now, and he was quite certain that no such abuses now existed.

If they wanted to hold the Empire closer together, their first and main method must be by the cheapest means of communication. (Cheers.) No one could have lived as long as he had without seeing the enormous improvement in our British press with regard to news from the Empire beyond the seas. (Cheers.)

"On the duty of national defence," said Rosebery, "we can and will build Dreadnoughts, or whatever the newest type of ship may be, as long as we have a shilling to spend on them, or a man to put in them, but I am not sure that it may be your duty to take back to your young Dominions across the seas this message, this impression, that some personal duty and responibility for national defence rests upon every man and citizen of the Empire. (Loud cheers.)

"Tell your people, if they can believe it, the deplorable conditions in which Europe is rattling into barbarism, and the pressure that is put upon this little England to defend itself, its liberties and yours. (Loud cheers.)

"Take this message also back with you, that the old country is right at heart, that there is no failing or weakness in her, and that she rejoices in renewing her youth in her giant dominions beyond the seas. (Cheers.)

"For her own salvation, she must look to herself, and that failing her, she must look to you."

At the close Lord Rosebery was cheered again and again, the audience rising to sing "He is a jolly good fellow."

Sir Hugh Graham, in responding, thanked the gathering for the warmth of their welcome, spoke of the necessity of the journalists joining forces for the good of their county in their great national crisis.

Referring to the defence of the Empire, Sir Hugh said that for many years Canada, under both political parties, had been sponging on the Motherland for protection. Both political parties in Great Britain had been too indulgent a parents to ask us to pay a share, and we had been too mean to offer it, but a change was impending, inspired by the pluck of New Zealand and Australia, colonies ever in the van. Canada had agreed to send delegates to discuss the problem with the British Government and it must be gratifying to the whole British world that the commonwealth, dominions, colonies and dependencies had offered hearty co-operation in this movement, which had originated with the press, was supported by the people, and is now espoused by the political parties. (Loud cheers.)

The colonial visitors will make a strong plea for the reduction of cable rates and the laying of a Government cable across the Atlantic, as suggested by Hon. Mr. Lemieux, the Postmaster-General of Canada, thus linking up the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia and New Zealand by an "all-red line." A movement will be started also for the establishment of an imperial press association and the interchange of news between the colonies and England.

The meeting of the Canadian delegates to the Imperial Press Conference elected J. S. Brierly of The Montreal Herald president, and Macdonald, Halifax, secretary. Later the Australian and Canadian delegates met electing J. S. Brierly president.

ROPE ABOUT MAN'S NECK

Buffalo Woman While Spending Sunday at Niagara Goes Hysterical and Jumps In—Husband Tries to Rescue Her, and In Attempt to Pull Him Out Bank Gives Way Under Life-Saving Party.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., June 7.—One of the most sensational of Niagara tragedies ever recorded took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when Mrs. Sarah Cohen, 24 years old, of No. 463 Broadview, Buffalo, committed suicide by jumping into the river from the second Sister Island, and her husband, Lewis Cohen, 27 years old, narrowly escaped death in an effort to rescue her.

The three children of the Cohens, as well as a nephew of Mr. Cohen, witnessed the tragedy.

In the effort to rescue the husband from a fate similar to that of his wife Representative James S. Simmons, Reservation Officer Charles J. Martin, Cohen's nephew, and two other men who assisted them, narrowly escaped being thrown into the rapids, when the bank upon which they were standing while hauling at a rope attached to Cohen suddenly gave way.

The affair created the wildest excitement on the State Reservation, and hundreds of people gathered on the bank of the Second Sister Island. Mrs. Cohen's body lodged on a rock near the brink of the falls, and was recovered at 7.15.

The family came to the falls for Sunday, and while walking Mrs. Cohen suddenly became hysterical from the heat and jumped into the swift current above the Falls. Cohen jumped in, seized his wife's body, and with the other hand gripped a log.

In the meantime, the cries of the children attracted Martin and Simmons. The officer hurried to the shelter house of Good Island for a rope. When he returned he found Cohen alone, the terrific current having torn his wife from his arms as his strength gradually grew less. One end of the rope was floated down to the unfortunate man and has had just strength enough to slip the noose about his neck. Fearing that to haul on it in that position would result in strangling the man, those on shore shouted to him to slip it down about his waist, but the force of the current and the waning strength of Cohen made that impossible. He did manage to twist it about his wrists a couple of times and those on the bank began to haul him in.

Hardly had the strain been placed on the rope when the bluff on which the rescuing party was standing gave way, and carried them almost into the river. Fortunately they hung to the line, and when secure footing was again found they succeeded in hauling Cohen to shore, more dead than alive.

May Sue the Magistrate.

Glace Bay, N.S., June 7.—The criminal libel suit brought by Rev. D. McGregor, D.D., against John J. Cameron, M.D., of Antigonish, came to an abrupt close when the magistrate dismissed the case on the ground that he had no jurisdiction. It is reported that an action claiming $10,000 damages for false arrest, has been brought by Dr. Cameron against the magistrate who issued the warrant upon which Dr. Cameron was arrested charged with libel. The constable who executed the warrant will also be proceeded against.

WEST ENDS BEAT STRATHCONAS IN FIRST GAME OF THE SENIOR CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE

Opening Fixture was Marked by Clever Fielding and Good Playing Throughout and was Much Enjoyed by the Fans—West Ends and T.A.S. Tied in Exhibition Game.

(From Saturday's Sporting Extra.)

The Senior City Baseball League was opened at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon with a League game between the West Ends and the Strathconas, and a five-innings' exhibition game between the T. A. S. and West Ends. The League fixture went to the West Ends by a score of 10 to 7, after an exciting and see-saw game, which was not decided until the last innings. A bunch of errors in the final chapter gave the victory to Jack Oldham's bunch, who gathered in five runs and annexed the big end of the score. It was a snappy game, marked by some brilliant fielding on both sides ,and the fans enjoyed the contest immensely.

The Straths worked a "kid" pitcher, Harold Hickey, and the youngster got along well in the senior company. With good support he would have won his game, as he kept the West Ends' eight safeties pretty well scattered, although he tired on end. Dobson worked the first seven innings for the West Ends, and did good work He retired in the eighth, in favour of Kirn, who cut off the Strathconas' work with the stick in good fashion. Each side had eight hits and the pitchers' had the better of the battle more than the score would indicate. Some splendid fielding was done, a feature being the work of Shew and Curtis in the outfield for the Straths, each of whom killed off promising hits by nice running catches.

There was a good-sized crowd of fans present in spite of the threatening weather.

The game was opened with appropriate ceremonies. Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, pitched the first ball, subbing for Mayor Rush, who was unable to remain for the opening. Ald. Bradburn was at the bat, and when Ald. Phelan tried to steal a Salome twist over the corner of the plate the batter swung mightily and made a foul, amid loud applause and the ceremony was over.

The first game, which was only an exhibition game, the West Ends taking the place of the Park St. A. C. who were unable to play owing to the death of a relative of several of the members. The game was a good exhibition and resulted in a 1 to 1 tie, after five innings. Quinlan pitched for the T. A. S. and Rose and Minergan for the West Ends. The score and summary follows:

The Strathconas broke into the scoring column in the second innings With two out Kendry drove one inside the third base line, for two bases and scored on Gibson's high drive to first, following Curtis' grounder. The latter counted when Minergan threw wildly to first, after scooping up Wilson's grass cutter.

The West Ends got one back in the third, Rose was safe when Hesslip let his grounder to first trickle through. He stole second and scored on Carton's single.

In their half of the sixth the West Ends tied the score. With one gone Halpin hit safely and Kirn was walked. Dobson drove a grounder at Kendry, which got away from Strah's shortstop and the tieing run was over.

The Straths went ahead again in their half. Shaw singled, stole second, and went to third, when Debson tried to catch him off the bag. Craig hit to left centre for two bases. Shaw scored while Craig was out trying to stretch his double-sacker into a triple.

In the seventh the West Ends pulled out in front again. Gibson beat out a slew one, ..stole second, and scored on Minorgan's two-bagger, over Shaw's head. King singled, sending Minergan accross and then rode home himself, when Kirn hit to left for two sacks.

Curtis singled and stole second and third, coming home on Hickey's fine single over short. Weatherstone singled and Craig was walked, filling the bases. Hesslip lifted one to Rose, in centre, who dropped the ball and two runs came home. Guerin ended the agony by striking out. The last innings was an awful dream for the Straths. Minergan and King were given free tickets. Halpin struck out but Kirn hit to Kendry, who threw home too late to catch Minergan. The same play was made when Craig hit a grounder and then errors by Weatherston and Kendry allowed Kirn and Craig to score. Dobson came home when Wilson threw to second. Carten fanned and Gibson hit one to Craig, ending the innings.

..Wallie Parnell, batting for Hickey in the Straths' half, was hit by Pitcher, stole second and scored on an infield out; Kirn was master of the situation and there were no more runs Dan McCabe umpired both games to the entire satisfaction of everyone concerned. .

LAKEFIELD TEAM BEAT THE LAST YEAR'S CHAMPIONS

Warsaw Beaten 2 to 1 in a Splendid Game at Lakefield on Saturday Evening---Homesters Were Ahead All the Way But the Teams Were Well Matched and the Game Was Hard Fought.

Examiner Special:

Lakefield, June 5.—Under ideal weather conditions the first Midland League game of the season was played here this evening with Warsaw as the visiting team. There being only two teams in district III. and the game at Warsaw on May 24th having resulted in a draw, this was the deciding contest for the honours of this district. The boys in red and white from the Dummer capital have been training hard since this last game and came up with the determination to trim the Cementville contingent right on their own lawn. The homesters under the colours of blue and white have not been neglecting practice in the meantime, and had made strong resolutions to not suffer the humility of being beaten at home by an aggregation from a much smaller burg.

The scene of the fray was the Agricultural grounds, which are dry and level and well adapted for good football. At seven o'clock sharp, Referee Jack Sullivan, of Peterborough, gave the toot that started the fun. Warsaw had the kindly assistance of a fairly strong breeze, while the Lakefield boys faced the level rays of the setting sun.

After fully five minutes of end to end play, Jack Quinlan notched one for the locals and the crowd let loose a cheer which aroused the whole village. During this half of the game the play was somewhat tame and listless, as there was little or no team work, and it was more of the nature of a sparring match spiced with an occasional jolt. Within the last few minutes before half-time, the visitors became more aggressive and had about a dozen corner kicks, but failed to make connections with the goal, and thus at the resting period the score stood 1 to 0.

When play was resumed the wind had died down, and the sun had vanished behind the ridge, so that the opposing sides were then on an equality in the clear twilight. This session opened at a much faster clip and there were no idle moments at all. Every player was Johnnie on the spot and right after the ball, while the excitement was at hight tension. Both teams improced in combination and made some brilliant rushes and in one of these Murdoff sent a sizzler past Ferguson and the visitors went down another peg. At this stage of the game there was some real football which was lightning fast and free from roughness. Warsaw rallied and came in with a dash and a scrimmage resulted in front of the Lakefield nets. In this mixup when all the players were trying to be in the game at once, Johnston got the lucky stroke, which made the score-board read Lakefield 2, Warsaw 1. Any part of the second half was worth going miles to see, and in the last ten minutes the Reds made a most heroic attempt to even the score and they bored in till they had the Blues pretty well huddled up in front of their own goal. When the full-time whistle blew the tally remained the same, but it was certainly a sensational finish and the crowd gave a sigh of relief when the result was declared.

The work of Mr. Sullivan as referee was most satisfactory and his decisions were never questioned. The only stop in the game was for about 30 seconds, when two players came together rather heavily and both went down. When they got up each blamed the other and began to make faces and act as though he had some intentions. While they were making up their minds the referee invited them to excuse themselves and retire to the fence for the balance of the game. They meekly obeyed orders and went away back and sat down in a repentant mood. That's making them behave!

The chief characteristic of this game were the speed of the second half and the freedom from rough play. Two more evenly matched teams could scarcely be found and both can stand improvement on the firing line for they missed many oportunities to score. Another point worthy of note was the absence of that jeering and tauting which is usually indulged in by the spectators in events of this kind. If the local club can continue to serve up the same brand of football, the game will greatly increase in popularity. Although the Warsaw team were the 1908 champions of the Midland League and their aspirations for this year were cut short, yet they took their defeat to-night like true sports and attributed their downfall to the fact that they did not "waken up" and get going in the early part of the game.

As Havelock has won District IV. the schedule calls Lakefield to the railroad town on June 12, while the return game will be on June 19. If this is adhered to, there will be some doings on these dates, when the eastern candidate for the final game will be decided.

The line-up was as follows:

Warsaw (1)

Goal, R. Ferguson; backs, W. Selkirk, H. Payne; half-backs, A. Payne A .Fife, Allan Payne; right wing, W. Bell, A. Lonnergan; left wing, W. Carveth, H. Harling; centre, J. Johnston.

Lakefield (2)

THE WEST END TEAM IS A CLASSY BUNCH OF YOUNGSTERS

Manager Jack Oldham has adopted the right course in connection with his West End Senior League team, and the wisdom of his tactics was shown on Saturday, when his bunch of youngsters cleaned up the Strathconas in handy fashion in the first League game and held the T. A. S. to a tie in a five-innings exhibition game. The West End magnate was wasted no time in going after old-timers, but scoured the city for young and fast players, and the result is that he has gathered together a squad that will take a lot of beating. They may not win the championship, but it is certain that they will not go down without a hard fight. The West End players are young, willing, and anxious to learn and as a result they are formidable opponetns. Three of them are recruits from the Collegiate Institute League. The team came through its first test in senior company on Saturday with flying colurs. It was the toughest kind of a trial for young players, too, as they had to fight an up-hill fight against a nine of more experienced players and pull the game out of the fire in the ninth innings. The West Enders will be heard from often during the season, and it is certain will be in right with the fans.

NEXT SATURDAY'S SENIOR BALL GAMES WILL BE HARD FOUGHT

The two Senior City League games scheduled for this Saturday will bring together the Strathconas and Park St. Athletic Club in the 2 o'clock game, and the West Ends and T.A.S. in the 4 o'clock fixture. Two splendid games should be the result, as all four teams are in good shape. Much interest is being taken in the debut of the Park St. Club, who were unable to play on Saturday. The South End aggregation have a fast nine and will take a lot of beating. The Strathconas will have a much stronger line-up than on Saturday. Several of their players were not available for the opening, but will be on hand on Saturday and the High Commissioners promise to give the Southerners a hard run for the honours.

Judging by the five innings go which they had Saturday, the T.A.S. and West Ends will have a warm battle to decide the second game. Those youngsters wearing the gray shirts will give the Abstainers a pretty tight squeeze, and it should be a game worth going farther than Riverside Park to see. There will be a big crowd on hand for the two games as the good ball played on Saturday pleased the fans.

LOCAL BASEBALL

An unusual feature about Saturday's Senior City League game between the West Ends and Strathconas, is that neither club knew who was to have the services of Len. Dobson until a few minutes before the game started. That player had not signed a certificate with either team and both were inclined to think that he would be with them. He was willing to play with either, so Managers Oldham and Metheral adopted a sportsmanlike course and tossed a coin for the player. The West Ends won the toss and Dobson was sent to pitch against the Straths.

The Strathconas Senior City League team will practice at Nicholls Oval to-night at six o'clock in preparation for Saturday's game with the Park St. Athletic Club, and a full attendance of players is expected.

BASEBALL

Jerry Edmunds is hammering the ball hard for—Winnipeg. In a game last week he won the contest by hammering a drive over the fence for a homer with two on the bases. He got three hits out of three times at bat. The Free Press says:

It was such a beautiful evening for ever half the route, McNeill, who was successful in making the locals eat out of his mit the previous day, felt good enough to go back on the job, and the rude surprise he received was highly relished by the hungry bugs. Pinch-hitter Jerry was the chief disturber. With two on the sacks and a like number retired, in the merry first, our high class backstopper lifted the pill over the score board, bringing much applause as well as a new lid down on his devoted head.

More Work Offering.

According to the May Labor Gazette there was a marked increase in general industrial activity throughout Canada. The forwarding of men for the lumber drive and the opening of the lumber mills absorbed large numbers of work people in Ontario and the eastern provinces; in British Columbia also an improvement in this branch was reported. Railway construction gangs were considerably augmented during April.

India's Victims of Tigers.

The ferocity of the tiger can be seen from the fact that according to a recent writer he is made responsible for 37 per cent. of the human beings killed by wild animals in Hindustan. The writer adds that once a tiger has tasted human flesh he is satisfied with nothing else, and that in southern India one of these man-eating tigers has devoured 200 human beings.

A Busy Legislator.

Lord Avebury has many titles to fame, two of which are, perhaps, little known. He has passed more bills through Parliament than any other private member of the British House of Commons; and, although he has been the means of giving holidays to millions, not one of the legislators takes fewer holidays than he does himself.

PETERBORO' SURGEONS USE NEW ANAESTHETIC

Stovaine Injected Into the Back Renders the Patient Insensible to Pain, While at the Same Time He is Perfectly Conscious.

IS USED IN BUCHAREST

Washington, June 6.—In a report to the state department the American consul-general at Bucharest, Roumania, says a surgeon of that city has discovered a wonderful anaesthetic which is a combination of strychnine and stovaine. The patient, he adds, does not lose consciousness. The anaesthetic is injected in the spine for operations below the waist and in the neck for operations above.

In connection with the above despatch, it is interesting to know that a similar operation was performed in a local hospital last week, by Peterborough surgeons, and that the result has been considered highly successful. Stovaine was used in the case of a well-known local citizen, who had to have his leg amputated at the thigh. He received no chloroform or ether, and could be talked to during the operation, and if he had wanted to, could have watched the whole operation. The method of giving stovaine is to inject a few drops into the nerves of the back close to the spine.

It speaks well for the local hospital and surgeons that they should have successfully used the anaesthetic described by the Bucharest surgean, and described as a wonderful discovery.

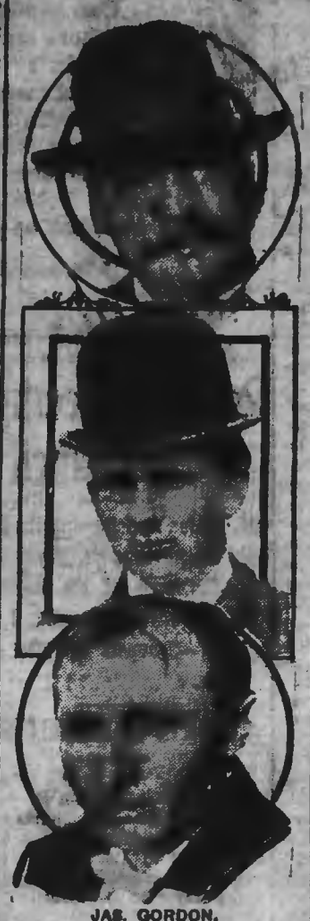
Train Robbing Is A Hard Proposition These Days



JAS. GORDON.
W. D. WOODS.
FRED TORGENSEN.

Omaha, Neb., June 8.—If James Gordon, W D. Woods and Fred Torgensen are convicted of robbing the Union Pacific Overland limited train recently, their case will be only another proof that the day of successful train robbing has passed.

Jesse James and his gangs fought only sheriff's posses. The telegraph and telephone were not perfected and the country was poorly settled. The railroads did not have their own police and detective departments.

In these days the train robbers have to pit their wits against trained police departments of great cities, and against the railroad detectives.

The result is that they are usually caught before they get a chance to spend the stolen money.

The only successfully train robbery within 20 years was on the Burlington road, near Woodlawn, Lincoln, Neb. The bandits got $45,000 and escaped.

Gordon, Woods and Torgensen were caught when they went to a spot to recover hidden masks and revolvers.

THE PLACING OF EXHIBITION BANNERS ON THE STREETS

Mr. Robt. Leary waited on the Council last night in regard to the placing of banners on the streets announcing the annual Industrial Exhibition. He understood that there was an objection, but hoped that in this case it would be overlooked. The association was arranging to bring several excursions to Peterborough on Fair Day, and they wished to keep the event prominent before the farmers. On motion of Aldermen Buller and Duncan, the Association was given permission to stretch their banners across the streets.

Mr. Leary was also given another month's franchise of the streets for the laying of gas mains. The work is now practically ready to be begun, and Mr. Leary stated that a month was all that was asked for.

Angry Bull Keeps Bathers In Two Trees For Hours While It Makes Shreds Of Their Clothes

While bathing in the Otonabee about a mile down the river on Saturday evening, four young men were suddenly surprised by an infuriated bull and sought refuge in two small trees some thirty yards apart. This scene as it is brought up before the mind looks anything but possible, but it was a fact, nevertheless. Comic papers frequently show pictures of some poor mortal perched in the branches of a tree mournfully watching a bull tossing his clothes in the air and hearing them with horns and hoofs. This is common to the "funny" papers, but it was tame and dry compared to this Saturday night episode.

In the lowering twilight these four young men were enjoying a week-end swim and wash down, where the Otonabee laps the shore of the old Kennedy farm. No one disturbed them as the floundered and splashed in the anvigorating coolness of the spring flood. They had built a big fire on the shore and in its welcome heat were drying off prior to returning home.

Treed by Bull

While still clad only in the garments that were seen on Broadway during the ante-apple days of old Adam, there was a rushing and roaring up the shore, and turning the four saw a bull coming toward them and fully intent upon routing them. In a second the men climbed into the trees two in each. They were comparatively small but yet tall and strong enough to put them out of the reach of the long curved horns. Thwarted in this manner, the bull raced from tree to tree, hurling his body vainly against them. He finally stopped in front of the fire and sniffed at the clothes which formed four piles close together. The rest of the story is pitiable and is best told as the Examiner heard it from a young man who was paddling up the river at the time.

Tore Their Clothes

"I heard a kind af bawling on the east shore, and a voice said, 'Here it comes again, lookout.' I noticed the fire but could not see any person. I was at a loss to understand the situation until I saw a bull stop at the fire which was then pretty well spread about. He snorted at the coals and pawed them around. He caught up a coat or shirt, (I could not see which), and shook it on his horns, then pawed it with one foot and I heard a rending sound which was explained by a voice saying, 'there goes my shirt fellows.' By this time I had grasped the situation. The bull besported himself in grand style. The ripping continued and another of the party said, 'That's the finish of my $15.00 raincoat.' Another who was apparently an Englishman said, 'If I only had a bloomin' shot-gun I'd might soon fix that fellow.' The four were chilled through and could not help themselves. I afterwards learned that they were in the tree from half past seven. It was then after nine o'clock. The bull finally tired of his sport for the second time and joined a herd of cattle up the shore. It had got about 100 yards away, when the four men dropped from the trees, and although cramped and numbed, they gathered the clothes together and made for a fence. I watched their white bodies disappearing in the faint light of the rising moon and left them to make the best of the trouble the bull had caused them."

MORE BENCHES ARE NEEDED IN THE PARKS OF THE CITY

Complaints are being made that there is a scarcity of benches in the city parks, especially in Central Park, where there are only a few seats. The park is a favourite spot with people who wait for a car there or for those who have the time to spend an hour or two in the shade of the trees, and a few more benches there would be appreciated by the citizens. At the same time the authorities should see that a cup is placed at the drinking fountain. Thirsty wayfarers, lured by the sound of drippling water, turn aside to the fountain only to find no means of slaking their thirst. These little points should be attended to at once.

Mr. Kingscote Says The Bill Of J. J. Turner And Sons Is Not Valid

Mr. Alf. Kingscote, through his counsel, O'Connell & Gordon, informed the Council last night that J. J. Turner & Sons' bill for decorating the streets on May 23 and 24 is void. The letter received from Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon was as follows:

Dear Sirs,—Mr. A. Kingscote, of this city, has given us instructions to advise you that the contract you made with Messrs. J. J. Turner & Son, for the decoration of the streets of Peterborough on the 23rd and 24th days of May is void, and Mr. Kingscote submits as a ratepayer that Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons' bill should not be paid.

Our client's contention is that it is contrary to the policy of fair dealing that Mr. J. J. Turner, he being a member of the Council and also a member of the partnership of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, should sit in the Council while his partnership is receiving benefits and profits of a contract with the city.

MAKE IT UNANIMOUS

The Ottawa Free Press favours the suggestion that Sir Wilfrid Laurier should invite Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative Opposition in Canada, to join the representation of this country at the Imperial Defence Conference in London next month. Our contemporary takes a liberal view. The subject under discussion is an imperial one, and cannot have any party significance. The Canadian House of Commons was a unit—regardless of party—in adopting resolutions, committing this country to a scheme of naval equipment, as a contribution to imperial naval defence, and it would add to the force of Canada's representation in the conference if the presence of the leader of the Opposition were added to the government representatives. It would show that the people of Canada, irrespective of party consideration were at one in regard to the naval defence of the Empire. By all means include Mr. Borden in the representation of Canada at the Imperial Defence Conference. It would b a politic as wll as graceful act and Sir Wilfrid Laurier is capable of acting in deference to both of such considerations.

FRENCH LIBEL OF CANADA.

Strange things are written about Canada, the strangest and one of the most recent is by one J. E. Vignes and published in a Paris paper, known as "Grande Revue." Among other things this writer says:

> "Capital is absolutely unknown in Canada. The people are new and crude, and have done nothing so far in building up the country. Most of their territory is uninhabitated. More than half of it is even unexplored and under no government administration. Its mines, its forests, its coal beds are in a great measure unexploited. Its roads and methods of transport and communication are primitive and utterly inadequate. Its commerce and industry are merely in their infancy."

The writer of the above must have been inspired from Conservative sources, or taken his cue from Tory speeches in the House. For a country in which capital is absolutely unknown, it might surprise the writer of the "Grande Revue" article to know that Canada has $2,200,000,000 invested in agriculture, and $700,000,000 in manufacturing industries. Nearly 25,000 miles of railways represent the primitive character of our transportation facilities, and a new transcontinental being constructed from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to say nothing of a canal system in which $90,000,000 of money has been expended. A total trade of $650,000,000 a year represents this infantile branch of commerce. In our savings banks there reposes a little nest egg of $650,000,000 of cash.

The fact that a large proportion of the country is unexplored is only evidence of Canada's greatness. Canada is about eighteen times the size of France, and has a coast line equal to half the circumference of the earth. There is room to grow for the three northern districts of MacKenzie, Ungava and Franklin are larger than China.

Those who write of Canada seem to know little of the subject and of our resources, and even the best informed Canadians know too little of them. We have mines, forests, coal areas, and other sources of wealth yet in reserve. All these will contribute to the wealth of future generations. No other country on earth can boast of natural resources of the extent of those possessed by Canada. The country is filling up as rapidly as is consistent with a proper assimiliation of the new arrivals, and the present Government is making wise provision for the accommodation of the commerce of the future.

The article quoted is glaring in its inconsistencies. Upon the subject of transportation alone Canada stands first among the nations of the world in transportation facilities in proportion to her population. Canada's Railway mileage per head is greater than that of any other country. France has one mile of railway for every 1,590 persons, Canada has one mile for every 300 persons. Canada has nearly as much railway mileage as Great Britain, a greater mileage than Australia, and more than Italy and Spain combined. The writer in "Grande Revue" might digest these facts and then revise his statement as to our inadequate and primitive methods of communication.

The "Revue" article says also that the account of Canada's wealth in mines, fishes, forests and agricultural products is fictitious.

In answer to this Canada has produced over 800 millions worth in minerals the last 24 years. The fisheries of Canada are the most extensive in the world, including 12,750 miles of sea coast line, and innumerable lakes and streams. The fishery production in 1908 was $25,500,000. Fishing equipment alone is worth $15,000,000. Since 1869 Canada has produced 677 millions from fisheries; nothing very fictitious about this. The field crops for 1908 were valued at 438 millions. Farm animals are valued at 531 millions.

One might give other figures, but the above will be sufficient to rebut the astonishing statement published in the "Grande Revue." The difficulty is that a grave injustice has been done to Canada and there appears no way of giving the same circulation to these facts as was given to the libellous article on this country. The strangest feature about the article is that the writer concludes by stating that he has sought to tell the truth in order to keep the intending emigrant from France meeting with the "cruel disappointments of this so-called Eden," to save the merchant from investing in a trade community where "fraud is held in high honour, to defend capitalists from "the unbridled speculation and the American bluff" which would induce them to put out their money in a country which can not support its inhabitants, more than a million of whom have emigrated to the United States.

The press of Canada without regard to party, should meet this article and combat it. Facts and figures are obtainable in abundance to utterly refute every allegation made in it. There seems to be no reason for it, and it can only be explained upon the ground of ignorance. No man having any knowldege of the facts or the conditions in Canada would be responsible for such ridiculous statements, and no periodical exercising any care whatever over its columns would publish such balderdash as that which Mr. Vignes has contributed to the "Grande Revue" of Paris, France.

Canada has provided homes for thousands who have bettered themselves by leaving the congested districts of Europe. These are the men, happily settled upon farms in the west living in contentment and comfort with their families who are the evidence to disprove the silly assertions contained in the "Revue" article.

There are millions of acres yet unoccupied in Western Canada which are the future homes of countless thousands now living in the very district where the writer of the "Revue" article would have them stay. Canada with its present progressive Government is a desirable place in which to live, and Europeans are finding this out very rapidly.

PETERBORO'S BRILLIANT PROSPECTS

There was never in the history of Peterboro a time when prospects were brighter than they are now. The city officials state that there has been double the number of building permits issued already this year more than the best previous year and that the prospects are that this percentage will go up even higher.

Think what it will mean when the new factories begin working, simply this, more families will of necessity, move to the city, employment will be given to others in the city that need it and thus create a demand for homes either to rent or purchase, in either case property is bound to advance more or less in every portion of the city.

People who are contemplating purchasing a house will do well to see J. T. O'Connell's list and get terms. We have a choice selection of properties at moderate prices and easy terms. If you have not time to call during the day, come any evening and we will show you any property on our list. We're always at your service.

Cheerful Home Insurance

In a climate like ours, where six to eight months of the year our buildings require artificial heat, the cheerfulness of the home depends to a large extent on its heating system.

If you would have your home healthfully and evenly warmed, free from draughts and cold corners, no matter how it storms and blows outside—then be sure you install the

Daisy Hot Water Boiler & King Radiators

The Daisy Hot Water Boiler was placed on the market twenty-three years ago. Many of those first boilers are still giving excellent service, and in no case has one of them, through any fault of the boiler, been replaced by a different make.

In one instance a Daisy Boiler which had been in use for twenty years was replaced by a Daisy of a larger size, to accommodate an addition to the building. The old Daisy was sold again and guaranteed—and it is living up to that guarantee.

One of the strong features of the Daisy Hot Water Boiler is its exceptional endurance. Two other points which particularly appeal to the householder are its efficiency in operation and its economy of fuel.

These excellent qualities are, in part, secured by the construction of the fire-pot section. The fire chamber has been made deep enough so that perfect combustion of the gases is accomplished, and the highest temperature obtained on a minimum consumption of fuel. The entire chamber is jacketed with water, so that none of the direct heat generated is radiated into the cellar.

The inside of the fire-pot section is vertically ribbed, permitting air to rise through the coal at the outer edge of the fire, insuring complete combustion, and preventing the accumulation of dead ashes.

The Daisy grate is of the interlocking knife pattern, connected by a bar, so that they lock together. In the morning, after the fire has been banked all night, a slight turn of the handle brings these knife edges up so they cut off the dead ashes; and the fire responds quickly.

These are but a few of the features which have made the Daisy the standard of hot water boilers and made it the one in use in seventy per cent. of the hot water systems installed in Canada.

King Radiators are manufactured to make complete the most perfect heating system in the world.

King Radiators are designed to give the greatest radiating surface and yet be compact and unobtrusive. Their style and ornamentation will blend perfectly with any scheme of decoration.

The perfect sections that have passed this severe test are connected by right-and-left screw nipples, making an absolutely non-leakable joint.

After the radiator is completed, each one is again subjected to the test of one hundred pounds' pressure before it is finally passed. When it is remembered that no radiator, when in use, is under a higher pressure than ten pounds, the amplitude of the King test will be realized.

We want to give you more facts about the Daisy Hot Water Boilers and King Radiators. We have prepared a little booklet, "Comfortable Homes," which goes more fully into the subject. We will be pleased to send you a copy on request.

Benson Street Sidewalk May Be Laid Outside Trees As Desired--Not Yet! But Soon!

Question is Sent Back to the Board of Works—Mr. R. J. Kidd Questions Engineer Hay's Work in the Matter—Council Tangled for a Time With Motion and Amendments.

RESIDENTS HOPE TO WIN OUT

The Benson Ave. granolithic sidewalk question was sent back to the Board of Works for further consideration by the City Council at the regular meeting last night, and the whole matter is now practically where it started. Mr. R. J. Kidd and his cohort of fellow residents were present in a body and the question received the attention of the Council for nearly an hour. The faithful Benson street citizens who have loyally stood by their contentions regarding the construction of the walk were apparently pleased with the outcome of their efforts and one was heard to remark as he left the Council Chambers with the others: "Well that's fair enough," and they all seem confident that they will finally gain their end and that the sidewalk will be laid outside the tree line.

Mr. Kidd was the only spokesman for the delegation. He had a plan of the walk as was desired by the citizens living on the street. "There has been a lot said about our proposal providing for a walk that will be according to the Engineer's plans, be three times as dangerous as ours." Mr. Kidd represented with a six-foot stick the slope from the top of the bank to the outside of the pavement.

After the Chairman.

Mr. Kidd claimed that Chairman Phelan had not treated the Benson street people properly. He waited until Friday afternoon last to bring the members of the Board to see the walk for themselves and to talk it over with the residents. "We believe we have been hastily and wrongly dealt with," Mr. Kidd remarked. The chairman at the Friday night meeting had not heard the full statement of the residents and the claims they put forward. Mr. Kidd also referred to Engineer Hay. "You acted upon his advice, but it was bad." Mr. Kidd stated that he knew of various errors which he claimed the engineer had made, and which, he said, he need not enumerate. He was continuing to give a specific example regarding a sewer in the north end of the city, but Ald. Phelan, who was acting Mayor asked him to confine his remarks to the sidewalk in question.

I was just going to point out to you that the engineer had made mistakes, but if you wish I will go no further."

Ald. Phelan stated that he had not acted with any want of courtesy. He had given the question his close attention and was thoroughly acquainted with the matter.

Motions Tangled.

When the report of the Board of Works was read by Ald Duncan, he moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn that it be adopted. Ald. McIntyre thought clause two, which stated that the walk be built inside the trees be amended, and moved to that effect, seconded by Ald. Morgan.

Ald. Phelan at this stage explained his position. He had nothing to hide and nothing to gain one way or the other. He had accepted Engineer Hay's report. He was engaged to investigate these questions and was paid by th city for his services, similarly as Mr. E. H. D. Hall was engaged as the City Solicitor. He had acted upon the engineer's report. Mr. Henderson, Mr. Bartlett and Mr. Duncan Walker had expressed themselves in the same tenor as the engineer in his report.

Another Amendment.

Ald. Gillespie and Ald. Buller moved an amendment to the amendment that the question be referred back to the Board of Works for further consideration. Ald. Gillespie thought that it would be hardly fair to the residents to put the walk inside the line if it could be satisfactorily built according to their wishes.

The voting commenced on the different propositions. There was a tie in the vote on the amendment to the amendment and it was defeated. Likewise the amendment was lost and it was beginning to look as if the residents of Benson street would be walking inside the line of trees in spite of their objections when the aldermen discovered that they were somewhat at sea. Ald. Gillespie thought that his amendment would carry if it were voted on again as the aldermen seemed to be inclined that way, although they had not sufficiently supported it. His request was granted and the Board of Works will once more deal with the matter probably to the satisfaction of the ratepayers.

THE BOATING SEASON NOW IN FULL SWING

The warm weather of the past few weeks has resulted in the boating season setting in with a rush, and the river and lake every evening are dotted with small craft of every kind. Launch owners are in their glory just now and every night sees a score or more of the trim little craft "puff-puffing" up and down the river, while literally hundreds of canoes add to the gayety of the scene. The Otonabee River promises to be more popular than ever this season, as the people of Peterborough seem to have at least realised that they have at their very doors as delightful a stream for boating as can be found anywhere in this land of beautiful rivers and lakes.

MR. W. A. BAILEY WRITES TO THE CITY COUNCIL

Our public spirited citizen, W. A. Bailey, Esq., has been communicating with the City Fathers. The following letter was received at last night's meeting:

Worshipful Sirs and Gentlemen:

I beg to draw your attention to the dog tax notice poster up in the streets. It is an excitement to murder the dogs and in fact is altogether murderous, and surely it is not the duty of the city clerk or the police to punish citizens. There is enough rumanism without encouragement from the authorities who ought to protect the citizens and their property by every means in their power.

Yours obediently,
W. A. BAILEY.

PRESENTATION OF "TOYS AWAKE" GIVEN A GRAND RECEPTION

Opening Production Here of This Beautiful Play Last Evening Greeted With a Large Audience —Given Enthusiastic Applause —A Magnificent Spectacle.

BE REPEATED TO-NIGHT

The presentation of "The Toys Awake," the great spectacular children's play was greeted with a large and appreciative audience at the Grand Opera House last night, and it was most deserving of the patronage of every citizen of Peterborough, not only on account of the worthy object for which it was given, but it is as pleasing and as interesting as a production as has ever been given by local artists. The splendid manner and the exactness with which the little ones performed their parts was an evidence of the effective training they had received at the hands of Miss Bertha Adams, the directress, and she and Mr. Ford are to be congratulated on the success attending their efforts.

"The Toys Awake" is very pretty fairyesque, the gorgeous costumes of varied hues, and the magnificent scenery that gives a fairyland setting, make an exceedingly beautiful picture. Thus the environments for the action of the play are all that could be desired and the story is enacted amid beauty and splendor. It is a fairy story and one that readily appeals to the old and young like. It tells of a little son of the toymaker of Nurenberg, who has a strong desire to see the toys become alive and is told by his father that they will. Through the agency of the Fairy Queen and her fairies, the boy's wish is realized and on the anniversary of the Queen's birthday the toys are brought to life.

The curtain went up with the arrival of the fairies in Toyland. This was followed by a drill of the fairies and the Fairy Queen's song. The awakening of the toys and the arrival of the court then took place, after which the court was entertained by the toys.

The programme presented was particularly good and judging from the hearty reception each number recived the audience was thoroughly pleased. In many instances encores were demanded and were most graciously responded to by the entertainers. Space would not permit to specialize on the work of each one, there being such a larg number. Suffice it to say that all are equally deserving of unstinted praise. Whether it was the singing of a song, the telling of a story, the performance of a drill or dance, all were given faultlessly. The songs were of the tuneful, catchy variety and the drills were perfect executions of the most difficult movements. The chorus of over two hundred voices sang excellently. The comedy element of the production was supplied by the ridiculously funny characters of Humpty Dumpty, Happy Hooligan and Topsy. They kept the audience in continues laughter by their amusing antics.

The accompaniments for the evening were played in a most creditable manner by Miss Mabel McCaw, of the Conservatory staff.

Wonderful Bargains Greet You at this Great Stock Reduction Sale

¶ The crowds are with us. That fact shows which way the bargain wind is blowing. It also proves that our offerings are recognized as unmatchable and appreciated as decidedly worth while.

"Stock Reduction" at this time has a triple meaning.

¶ It means unprecedented savings in high-class merchandise to our patrons. It means a sacrifice of our regular profits and, in cases, an underselling of cost prices on desirable goods.

¶ It means clean decks and a perfect preparedness for the purchases of new goods by our European buyer on his trip abroad---and it means the cash needed to discount bills for these purchases. The last is the reason for this $50,000 Stock Reduction Sale. It is the cause of such economies as we are offering in every Department.

Board Of Works Waited Upon By A Number Of Delegations

Busy Half Hour Last Night Before the Council Met—Mr. Z. Blodgett "On the Carpet" Regarding His Street Watering Contract—Princess Street is Not Open for Use by Property Holders.

OTHER IMPORTANT ITEMS

Prior to the Council meeting last night the Board of Works held a meeting with Alderman Phelan in the chair. There was a number of deputations who wished to be heard and the work was reeled off as quickly as the petitioners were ushered in by Alderman Hicks.

Mr. Allan McCarthy said that two years ago he sent a petition to the Council for a sidewalk in front of his residence on Concession street. It was promised him but was not carried out; last year it was the same story and it seemed that again this summer he was going to be overlooked. Alderman Phelan stated that it had been decided to build a walk on the street, but there was first a report to be received from the city engineer as to th straightening out the line in order to avoid a jog in front of Mrs. Erskine's property. When this was received the walk would be constructed.

Refuse at the Bay

Alderman Turner called attention to a condition which he stated existed at Spalding's Bay. A great deal of refuse had been dumped there and a disagreeable odour emanated from it. Alderman Bradburn stated that a bill for $7.00 was on file for removing the rubbish and had been certified to by the Chief of Police.

Commissioner Evans remarked that dead dogs, etc., had been taken out but refuse kept gathering there.

Mr. B. Paquette had a list of demands to be attended to. He had asked for a permit for a sewer connection to Mrs. Legrandeur's new house on Perry street.

Mr. Hay had told him to see the Board regarding the matter. This is a connection to the outfall sewer and the charge is $25.00, which Mr. Paquette was informed would have to be paid.

He next asked about a cement walk on Patterson street in front of his residence and was told that it was on the list for this year.

"What about grading that street," Mr. Chairman, he asked as a last request. "You know we want that street to look decent when we get the sidewalk." Alderman Phelan stated that owing to the shortage of funds there was but little likelihood of the grading being done at present.

Want a Walk

Messrs. Brotherson and J. T. O'Connell asked for a sidewalk on Concession street north of the gully which is located on the street. Mr. O'Connell stated that it should also be laid south of the gully. The chairmen remarked that this was being considered but the gully presented a difficulty.

Mr. T. Moore asked for a sidewalk on Bethune street, north of McDonel street. The new houses on the street where the sidewalk was not built, were at a great disadvantage. No favours were wanted, but the sidewalk was greatly needed. The walk had been promised several years ago but nothing as yet has been done. A pile of stones, owned by the city had been left on the street but they had mysteriously disappeared during the night. Moved by Aldermen Bradburn and McIntyre that the engineer report on the matter and that an investigation be made into the disappearance of the stones. Carried.

Messrs. Buller and Hubble, propery owners on Princess street, one of the new streets off the extended part of Aylmer street, south, wanted the street opened up. Mr. Hubble stated that he wanted to move into a house on that property on the 17th inst., and at present the road was blocked. It was stated that Mayor Rush was trying to arrange with ex-Mayor Best a satisfactory agreement regarding the affair. Alderman Buller stated that as there was no money at hand the street could not very well be opened up at present.

Mr. Z. Blodgett, one of the men in charge of the street watering in the West Ward, was present and was told that there had been many complaints about the manner in which he was doing the work. In reply he said he had done all he could and had not refused to water Charlotte street from St. Joseph to the boundary. Aldermen Bradburn, Buller and Turner, expressed themselves as dissatisfied with the complaints that were received and thought the contract should be taken from Mr. Blodgett. On motion he was allowed to continue until the end of the month, and if there are any complaints in the meantime that the contract be transferred.

Mark Southern Tells How They Raised Him From a Bed of Sickness, Cured His Kidney Disease and Made Him a Well Man.

Skipton, Duck Lake, Sask., June 7. —Special.—After thirteen years suffering from Kidney Disease brought on by an accident, Mark Southern, of Helaker Farm near here, is a well man and he is not slow to state that he owes his cure to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

It began with pains in my back," Mr. Southern says, "and across my loins, and of late years I became very weak and for days I had to keep to my bed. I had all kinds of advice and tried a great many medicines, but all to no purpose.

Reading an advertisement induced me to give Dodd's Kideny Pills a trial and I wrote for six boxes. After taking the first box I began to feel relief, and after using five boxes I felt quite well again. I am now able to get about my work and feel no effects whatever from the old complaint."

Dodd's Kidney Pills clean all Kidney Diseases and all diseases resulting from disordered Kidneys right out of the system. That's how they cure Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Rheumatism and Backache. They do it by putting the Kidneys in good working order and they always do it.

The Funeral Of The Late Wm. Fowler Most Impressive

Impressive services were held yesterday in connection with the funeral of the late William Fowler, who for many years was an elder in St. Andrew's church.

The service at the house, 273 Rubidge St., was led by the pastor, Rev. J. G. Potter, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Fee. After this the friends and mourners proceeded to the church, where public service was conducted. In this service the minister was assisted by the Rev. Messrs. H. J. Keith, J. J. Wright and Mr. Fee. Mrs. McClellan, organist, played in very tender strain "Home, Sweet Home," as the cortege neared and entered the church and on retirement "The Dead March." The readings and hymns were all very appropriate, and Mr. Potter's text and address were practical, suggestive and helpful. Mr. Fowler had been for so many years intensely interested in St. Andrew's as his church home that the text Ps. 92:13, seemed most fitting." Those that be planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the Courts of our God."

Mr. Potter referred to the deceased as one who had been so deeply interested in the work for which the church stood, that nothing that had ever happened in the eventful history of his church could possibly move or shake and like the oak tree, Al lthe experiences and discipline of life had only tended to make him a stronger man, and as a result, he had been a useful and influential member of the church courts, in his church and in the community. He was faithful, devoted, devout, loyal and true; and his memory would always carry fragrance. He urged upon his hearers the importance of men being planted in the house of the Lord, that their lives might mean so much more for the sake of God and humanity.

Not Changed But Glorified.

we, beholding the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory. II. Cor. III., 18.

Not changed but glorified! Oh, beauteous language.
For those who weep,
Mourning the loss of some dear face departed—
Fallen asleep.
Hushed into silence, never more to comfort
The hearts of men.
Gone like the sunshine of another country,
Beyond our ken.

O, dearest dead, we saw thy white soul shining,
Behind the face,
Bright with the beauty and celestial glory,
Of an immortal grace.
What wonder we stumble, faint and weeping,
And sick with fears,
Since thou has left us—all alone in sorrow,
And blind with tears.

Can it be possible no words shall welcome
Our coming feet?
How will it look, that face that we have cherished,
When next we meet?
Will it be changed, so glorified and saintly
That we shall know it not?
Will there be nothing that will say:
I love Thee
And I have not forgot?

O, faithless heart, the same loved face transfigured,
Shall meet me thre.
Less sad, less wistful in immortal beauty,
Divinely fair.
The mortal veil, washed pure with many weepings,
Is rent away;
And the great soul that sat within its prison
Hath found the day.

In the clear morning of that other country,
In paradise,
With the same face, that we have loved and cherished.
He shall arise!
Let us be patient, we who mourn with weeping,
Some vanished face;
The Lord has taken, but to add more beauty,
And a Divine grace.

And we shall find once more, beyond earth's sorrows,
Beyond these skies,
In the fair city of the "sure foundations,"
Those heavenly eyes,
With the same welcome, shining through their sweetness,
That met us here;
Eyes, from whose beauty God has banished weeping,
And wiped away the tear.

Think of us, dearest one, while o'er life's waters
We seek the land,
Missing thy voice, thy touch, and the true helping
Of thy pure hand.
Till through the storm and tempest safely anchored,
Just on the other side,
We find thy dear face looking through death's shadows;
Not changed, but glorified.

The floral tributes were many and were conveyed in a special carriage. The esteem of his church was expressed in appropriate designs from each of the different departments—the Session, the Board of Managers, the Ladies' Aid Society, and the Young Men's Class. The Board of Managers followed the mourners in a special carriage, while the Elders, accompanied the remains of their brother to the last resting place.

HYDRO POWER WAS CHOSEN

Cataract Power Company Loses the Fight in Hamilton.

VOTES ON TWO BYLAWS

Ordinance For Acceptance of Whitney-Beck Power Scheme Is Supported by Majority of 613, and Third and Last Offer of Cataract Co. Is Defeated by a Majority of One Hundred and Seventy.

Hamilton, June 8.—The Whitney-Beck power project scored a notable victory yesterday when the ratepayers voted down the Cataract Power Co.'s bylaw by a majority of 170 and passed the Hydro-Electric bylaw by the handsome majority of 613.

The cause of the Government scheme has been championed by Hon. J. S. Hendrie, ex-Mayor Stewart, M.P., Allan Studholme, M.P.P., and others in a series of public meetings during the past fortnight.

This is the third time that the people of Hamilton have declared by large majority that they are in favor of entering the Government's power scheme, and although two alleged hydro councils have succumbed to the potent influence of the Cataract company, it is not thought that the council will have the temerity to balk the will of the people longer.

The Cataract contract that the people voted upon yesterday was much better than the one passed by the council last July, and which was set aside by the courts.

The new contract offered to give Hamilton power for civic purposes at $16 a horse-power or ten per cent. lower than the hydro, and also offered to supply power and light to citizens at ten per cent. less than charged by the hydro in any place. In spite of that the people refused to accept the contract.

Only freeholders and tenants with long leases were allowed to vote.

Two bylaws were submitted on the question, one asking the ratepayers if they approved of a contract with the Cataract Power Co., and the other submitted in the form of a plebiscite, the question being asked if they were in favor of entering into a contract with the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Exertion Was Fatal.

Kingston, June 8.—David Ross of Pittsburg Township suffered from peritonitis and a doctor told him not to ride his bicycle. Friday he went nine miles on the wheel to have the doctor examine him, and was found on the roadway, and died in Hotel Dieu. He was 26 years old and came from Scotland only two months ago.

The two-year-old son of Philip Kennedy, Baker's Point, was probably fatally scalded by pulling a kettle of boiling water off the stove.

Guards Boy From Mother.

Windsor, June 8.—William Taylor, a dredge engineer, living in Amherstburg, is guarding his home with rifle and says he will kill any person trying to enter his premises without his consent. The precautions are to guard his nephey, Percy Ulch, for whom a court order was issued in Detroit that he be returned to his mother.

Father Shot Lover.

Deadwood, June 8.—I. W. Green, a respectable Indian from the Mohawk Reservation, about a mile from town, is in jail for shooting at H. Fish of Belleville, who had come courting his stepdaughter.

DOCTORS ADVISE MEDICATED AIR

It Cures Catarrh, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Throat Troubles, Hoarseness.

For diseases of the lungs, throat and nasal passages mountain air has always been deemed salutary because of its pureness and freedom from disease germs. The air of pine forests, laden with minute particles of volatile germ-destroying principles, has enjoyed an almost unexampled reputation in these diseases also.

A MARVELLOUS DISCOVERY.

After years of exhaustive study a chemist devised a means of supplying right at home a healing balsamic remedy that is even more effective in catarrhal diseases than the air of the pine woods. Of course, this remedy was copyrighted in every civilized country and was at once offered to the public under the name of "Catarrhozone." Its success has been phenomenal.

Just think of it! A healing, soothing substance capable of destroying these noxious organisms which excite and maintain disease. Capable, also, of allaying congestion and of stimulating the healing processes of nature, which are combined in that invaluable compound so well and so favorably known to the medical world as "Catarrhozone."

CATARRHOZONE CURES.

Catarrhozone is simply the concentrated qualities of the air of pine woods. If you breathe it you will derive more benefit in one hour than you could possibly get from the woods in a year.

This great advantage arises from the fact that, in addition to those healing emanations from pine, other ingredients distilled from the vegetable kingdom are so united as to give results that could not possibly be derived in the simple form in which nature supplies medicated air.

20,000 PHYSICIANS ENDORSE IT.

For all diseases of the nose, ear, throat, bronchial tubes and air passages—for catarrh in every form—cure is certain with Catarrhozone, which is not a nostrum, but a high-class scientific treatment. Large size, sufficient for two months' use (guaranteed), price $1.00; smaller size 50c, at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

From also every section of surrounding country forest fires are reported, and yesterday this city was enveloped in heavy clouds of smoke.

Warden Abraham also urged the council to memoralize the Legislature regarding asylum authorities refusing patients.

Fort William, June 8.—Definite announcement was made yesterday that the new Ogilvie elevator will be commenced immediately. DEBATE ON THE CHURCH UNION

Presbyterian Assembly Hears Pros and Cons of Matter.

MACKAY OPPOSES SCHEME

Principal Patrick Presents a Motion Favoring the Report of Committee and Proposing Referendal Plebiscite of Congregations in Time For the Report of Methodists and Anglicans Hold Back.

Hamilton, June 8.—Principal Patrick's speech yesterday afternoon in presenting to the Presbyterian General Assembly the report of the committee on union with Methodists and Congregationalists was a masterpiece of convincing statement, unanswerable argument, earnest but very temperate appeal, and directed throughout with consummate skill to the higher reason and the illuminined inspiration. It will take rank with the best of the great speeches delivered on the subject during the past five years.

He was listened to with close attention, but he made almost no appeal to sentiment and aroused little applause. In this he differed from Principal MacKay, the leader of the Canadian "Wee Frees," who had a vociferous following, which responded loudly to every sledge strokes of the disputing federationist. Dr. MacKay took it upon him to deny the truth or validity of practically all of Principal Patrick's statements, and threw down the gage in the threat that there was no more hopeful thing for the church about the movement than that there were men on both sides who could feel strongly, speak strongly, and who would "act strongly when the time came to act."

The motion presented by Principal Patrick was to receive the report with deep gratification that in the judgment of the committee the organic union of the churches — Methodist, Congregationalist and Presbyterian—is practicable, to recommend a Sunday in October next for bringing the question before the congregations; deferring a vote until after the Methodist general conference in September, 1910, and, in detail, committing the question to the whole church.

Principal MacKay's amendment thanked the committee for its diligence in preparing one plan of negotiation with the sister churches, but requiring another committee to be appointed to prepare a plan of federation to be reported to the assembly, and sent down along with the plan of union already proposed, and asking the other churches to appoint similar committees; while at the same time a pastoral letter be sent to all the congregations assuring them that nothing had so far been done to bind the churches to union.

The new features of the report of the committee were embraced in the correspondence with the Bishop of Quebec, representing the general synod of the Church of England, in which the resolution of the Lambeth conference, later adopted by the Anglican Synod, is quoted, demanding that any basis of union "respect the convictions of those who had not received Episcopal orders, without involving any surrender on our part of the principle of church order laid down in the Preface to the Ordinal attached to the Book of Common Prayer."

This resolution, the bishop says in his letter, must be a condition of the negotiations with the other churches, and the joint committee has come to the conclusion that the enforcement of this would be an insurmountable bar to union.

In the evening Revs. Dr. Forrest, Dr. Morton, Trinidad, and Dr. J. W. Duncan, Toronto, supported the motion, and J. O. Rolston Pendennis, Man., Rev. Dr. Campbell, Montreal, and A. L. Fortune, Enderby, B.C., the amendment.

Adjournment was taken at 10 o'clock until to-day, when the debate will be resumed.

Goes to China.

Ottawa, June 8.—J. E. Campbell of Hespeler, Ont., has been appointed Canadian trade commissioner at Leeds, to succeed J. B. Jackson, who has been transferred to Shanghai, China.

Mr. Pugsley's Desk Burns.

Ottawa, June 8.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the desk, chair and quantity of correspondence in the room of the Minister of Public Works at 12.30 yesterday. Mr. Pugsley was in an adjoining room.

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP.

There is many a man and woman tossing night after night upon a sleepless bed. Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right. Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system, that it cannot be quieted.

Or again, you have, a sinking sensation, a feeling you are going to die; or perhaps, you wake in your sleep feeling as though you were about to smoke or smother, and rapid leaves you for the night. If you allow these conditions to continue for a short period even, you will begin to feel your health declining. It is the nerves and heart not acting rightly, and they can only be set right by the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They soon induce healthful, refreshing sleep, not by deadening the nerves, but by restoring them to healthy action.

Mrs. E. Nutt, St. Mary's, Ont., writes—"I can gladly recommend your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as I was greatly troubled with my nerves. I was so bad I could not sleep at night without the lamp burning, but after taking four boxes of the pills I became all right again."

Price, 50 cents per box; 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

WAGNER, WONDER OF BASEBALL, IS IN A CLASS ALL BY HIMSELF

WAGNER IN ACTION.

(By Tip Wright.)

I've just seen the world's greatest ball player—this goes as it lays—Hans Wagner, in action, and I want to tell the readers of the Examiner about him.

Imagine a Dreadnought, powerful, majestic, all compelling—a leviathan of the sea, with the latent power of uncounted volcanoes behind her steel sides—frisking at 30 knots, starting, stopping, turning, darting, dodging like a destroyer, and you have an idea of the "Flying Dutchman' in action.

I saw Wagner at his best, playing against Chicago. To win meant to clinch first place for the Pirates. Brown, Tinker and Evers were in the game. It was the Cubs' best lineup.

Wagner lost no time. In the first, with one Cub out and men on first and second, Hoffman hit the ball a mile-a-minute over second, seemingly for a hit. But Wagner interfered with the plan.

With a 10-foot leap, crouching close to the ground, he tore across the diamond and fairly hurled himself on the ball as it was passing.. With one movement seemingly, he tossed the ball to second, where Miller received and whipped it to first, turning back Hoffman and completing as dazzling a double play as I ever saw.

I have often wondered how Wagner accomplished his startling feats in the field, but the explanation is simple. He has the largest hands in base ball, and once he grasps a ball it is lost in his palm. He is a marvel of muscular strength and activity. About five feet 10 inches tall, he carries his 200 odd pounds as lightly as a featherweight. His bow legs give him an awkward appearance, yet he turns the most startling plays with astonishing ease.

When fielding, or running the bases, he runs close to the earth, and he runs as fast in this position as a sprinter. I saw him go to first on an infield hit in 3 2-5 seconds, which is tall travelling.

Quiet, unassuming, obliging, the big fellow is not given to talking of his performances. Playing each batter with a sixth sense, he is always on top of a ball hit in his direction, fairly smothering it. Because he plays so close to the ground it makes no difference to him how suddenly or poorly the ball hops; he grabs it, and, with his wonderful right arm, fairly shoots it across the diamond.

I saw Wagner make a play that I never would have believed possible. Stainfeldt hit the ball along the third base line past Barbeau, so fast that player didn't get a look at it. But Wagner made a couple of jack rabbit jumps, speared the ball with his right hand way back of third, and, without straightening up, whizzed it to first, turning back the runner by a step. It was simply marvelous.

And he made it look easy. That's what makes him such a wonder. Built like a scow, for slow and easy motion, he moves like a flash and thinks faster than a lightning calculator.

And at bat. Ah, that's where Honus really shines. They all fear him. Even the great Mordecai Brown. In the first inning, with two down and Clark on first, the hit and run was signaled for and Wagner came through. He smashed a fast breaking hook against the centerfield fence with such ease that it looked easy.

In the seventh with the bases full and a run needed to tie the score, Wagner drove the ball to Steinfeldt so hard that the great third baseman could not handle it, and Barbeau crossed the plate. Thus, in two emergencies, he delivered the goods called for.

Wagner stands in the far corner of the box when batting. He swings his bat in a small circle until the pitcher starts his delivery, then, if he likes the ball, he steps forward, swinging his bat at the same time, and when he hits it square that ball has an engagement somewhere else.

I was impressed chiefly with Wagner's earnestness. He played ball every minute, seeming to think that winning the game depended upon his every movement. Yet he played not for himself, but for the team. He is a great inside ball player.

Compared to other stars Wagner is the base ball marvel of the day, and the Lajoies, Tinkers, Bresnahans, Hoffmans and all the others may as well take off their caps to him. He has something on every one of them.

Barney Dreyfuss knows a good thing, and John Peter Wagner at $10,000 a season, is far cheaper than a lot of other high class players would be at $1,500.

MANAGER OF GREAT FIGHTERS, "PARSON DAVIES," IS DYING

"PARSON" DAVIES.

About six weeks ago Davies was in New Orleans. Men who had known him for years watched him hobble about the corridors of the St. Charles in a hopeless sort of a way and signed, remembering what he had been.

In his day Davies managed John L. Sullivan, Jake Kilrain, Peter Jackson, Jack Dempsey, Jack Burke and Jim Hall, who fought Bob Fitzsimmons for the largest sum ever battled for in a ring, $45,000. Davies managed others, but they were not great, simply because they didn't have greatness in them. If it had been there he would have brought it out.

Davies was one of the first to recognise Jeffries. Before the big fellow was champion the "Parson" said: Jeffries is the greatest fighting machine the world has ever known."

Davies never told his age, but he is about 69. He was born in Ireland and saw his first fight in Kilarney. With $25 of his father's money he bet on the man who won, and from that day he was a figure in the ring game.

Leading a life of stirring adventures, Davies loved the game and played it well. He loved the thrill of changing pulse and heart beats.

To publishers who wanted to market the story of his life the "Parson" invariably said: "After I'm dead you can write that. It will be time enough then. My story is not concluded while I am living."

CITY LEAGUE TEAMS HARD AT WORK TO GET IN SHAPE FOR SATURDAY'S BALL GAMES

There will be two fine games in the Senior City Baseball League on Saturday if present indications count for anything. With all four teams hard at work practising this week will be in the best of shape Saturday and the games should be faster and marked by more classy baseball than last article dished out last Saturday pleased the fans.

The Park Street A. C. will make their first appearance on Saturday, when they clash with the Stratheonas. The Southerners have rounded up a splendid team and will take a lot of beating, while the Straths, spurred on by their defeat at the hands of the West Ends in the first game, will put on their strongest line-up in the hope of heading off the Baptist s.It should be a great game all through and from here it is a pretty hard task to pick a winner.

The same is true of the West End -T. A. S. game, which will be the second fixture of the double-header. The two teams seem very well matched judging by the form displayed on Saturday, and they will make an interesting afternoon for themselves and the fans. With Quinlan pitching the Abstainers are a very awkward proposition, but the West Ends rely on their excellent staff of twirlers and their good fielding to pull down the big end of the score.

The greens are getting in good shape and the officers ask that the balance of games of president vs. vice-presidents be played as quickly as possible.

The new lighting when completed will be very much superior to the old, and players will be able to see to do their best.

Get into the games boys, as they started off last evening with a dash, a large number of players being out.

NOTICE

During the summer months the office of the Peterborough Light and Power Co. will close at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Baseball

Torontos got an awful walloping at the hands of Montreal yesterday, being beaten 17 runs to 2, which is a record for the season. Carl Lundgren, the Chicago Cubs' castoff, occupied the box for the first innings and was touched up for eight runs. Moffitt was substituted and the Royals added eight more in four innigs, while Elmer aeroplaned. Duggleby finished out and succeeded in holding the Royals down a little better. The Caseyites divided a score of hits between them.

COUNCIL EXPRESSES SYMPATHY TO FAMILY

At the Council meeting last night reference was made to the death of Judge Weller and the following resolution of sympathy was passed and carried by a standing vote:

Moved by Alderman Morrow and Alderman McIntyre, that this Council place on record an expression of the deep loss this city and county have sustained in the death of His Honour C. A. Weller, county judge of the County Court of Peterborough. Judge Weller was recognised to be an able judge, who combined with a wide learning in the law of sound judgment and a complete impartiality that caused his decisions to be accepted without question as from one whose learning, judgment and character commanded respect. He loved justice and his administration of the law was always just, but tempered at the same time with a full measure of mercy that the circumstances would permit him to exercise. His death is a loss to the judiciary and to the community, and especially to his family, to whom we wish to tender our sincere sympathy and in doing so we are voicing the regret and sympathy of the whole community and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the bereaved family.

DON'T FORGET

June Sessions Of County Court To-day Were Adjourned

Owing To The Death of His Honour Judge Weller—To Be Held On Tuesday June 20th—Will Await Instructions From Ottawa.

GRAND JURORS CALLED

Owing to the death of His Honour Judge Weller, and in the absence of the Dominion Government having yet appointed another it was impossible to proceed with the jury and non-jury sittings of the County Court which were to have been held this afternoon at one o'clock. The members of the bar, the jurors and persons interested in the cases were present but after a delay of about three-quarters of an hour, the court was opened and the names of the grand jury were called as follows: Messrs. Jas. Little (foreman), Hugh Bertram, J. Browne, George Curtis, Robt. Deyell, R. Fowler, J. M. Greene, Wm. Henry, J. J. Howden, Eugene Maloney, Robt. Tanner and F. Wilds.

Sheriff Hall then made the above announcement. The court, he said, would be adjourned from day to day, until the twenty-second of June. The jurors and witnesses would not be required to come until that day.

There are two criminal cases to come up for hearing, one being the charge against Bert Craig and Chapman for assaulting Assistant Chief Grange, at the fire hall last February, and the other being a charge of theft against E. Sothern, alleged to have been committed on the way to Burleigh early in March.

Mr. H. C. Duff, B.S.A., Will Speak At Meeting of Farmers' Institute

The County of Peterborough has been most fortunate in securing one of the three new district branches of the Ontario Department of Agriculture to be established this year. Mr. H. C. Duff, B.S.A., has been appointed the representative. Mr. Duff was in the city last evening while on his way to visit the Branch Department of Agriculture at Lindsay, and called on Farm and Dairy to renew his acquaintance with the editor of that paper.

It is hoped that a class in agriculture will be started in connection with the High School at Norwood next September. Although the office of the Department is located in the Eastern Riding, at Norwood, the work of the Department will cover the whole of Peterborough County. It will be their own fault if the farmers of the West Riding of this county do not profit as they should from the establishment of this comparatively recent departure in secondary education that has now been introduced into our bounds. Mr. Duff will be only too glad to do all in his power to assist the farmers of Peterborough County in any way possible. The new representative will make his first appearance before the farmers of the West Riding on Saturday, when he will address the annual meeting of the Farmers' Institute to be held in the Council Chamber.

Young Italian Was Fined For Peddling Without a License

A young Italian was fined five dollars and costs, amounting to $9.35, at the police court this morning. He was charged with peddling without a license, this morning being the third time that Chief Roszel has found him going about the streets selling fruit, unable to show the required paper. It appears that he works for Frank Marino, who has two licenses. He was under the impression that his employee could peddle on one of these and no objection was raised to this arrangement, but the accused persisted in not carrying one with him after having been told to do so on two occasions.

The prisoner also used considerable bad language towards the Chief, and it was largely for his impertinent and insulting manner, his Worship said, that such a heavy fine was imposed.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. Walter J. Francis, of Montreal, was in the city this morning.

William Stevens left this morning for London to attend the High Court meeting of the C. O. F.

Misses Margaret and Gertrude Brooks of Syracuse, N.Y., are home on a visit to their parents, Dalhousie street.

Mrs. Bliss, of Buffalo, arrived in the city Saturday on her way to her summer home at Stony Lake, leaving for the lake yesterday.

Mr. Perry Alexander, the new proprietor of "Islanda," Buckhorn Lake, left yesterday to open that beautiful resort for the season.

Mr. G. Perry Jenkins, F.R.A.S., of Hamilton, president of the Royal Astronomical Society of that city, is the guest of Rev. Dr. Marsh, at the Manse, Springville.

Mr. A. B. Cutting left to-day for Toronto, where he will attend the annual meeting of The Co-operative Fruit Growers of Ontario. This association was organised three years ago by The Canadian Horticulturist, and is doing valuable work for the local associations in the province that are handling and selling fruit on the co-operative plan.

ISSUED EQUIPMENT TO THE 3RD DRAGOONS

Major P. A. Davie was accompanied by Mr. Will Denoon to Millbrook on Saturday, issuing equipment, etc., for B. Squadron, 3rd Dragoons, and reports there will be no difficulty in recruiting full strength.

It may be seen that the 3rd Dragoons will be placed upon a war footing for their annual camp.

SACRED CONCERTS FOR SUNDAYS IS PROPOSED

The Salvation Army Band will be asked if they will give a sacred concert on Sunday evenings in the future instead of on Thursday as last year. Alderman Turner, who suggested the change thinks that the people would appreciate a sacred concert beginning about half-past eight o'clock.

The boys of the Presbyterian Church have organized a baseball team with Rev. D. A. Thomson honorary president, H. McClelland, president, and F. Dodd, captain.

TAFT WILL SEE U. S. WARSHIPS AS BACKGROUND SCENE EFFECT IN GLOUCESTER OPEN AIR SHOW

Gloucester, Mass., June 9.—President Taft, Governor Draper and a host of other dignitaries are to see here on Aug. 19 a remarkable theatrical production with the greatest display of scenic effects ever attempted outside the Passion Play at Oberamergau.

Off Stage Fork park when this entertainment will be given will be Gloucester harbour full of warships and government craft, among them the presidential yacht Mayflower, and all ablaze with lights, a startling background of the production which will be given as evening falls.

According to Eric Pape, the artist in charge of the scenic effects, an amphitheater will be erected in the park facing Gloucester harbour. This will accommodate at least 15,000 people. Outside the circle of seats and towards the water front will be erected the stage, 150 feet in width.

For the natural stage setting—the pageant is an open air event—the committee plans to have trees planted in the acre of ground back of the stage and toward the harbour front.

"The Canterbury Pilgrims" is the theme of the production, and the various characters will require the services of more than 100 actors. The players will be under the direction of Chas. Coburn, and these will be strengthened on the night of the performance by the addition of the entire Harvard Dramatic club.

Others to take part will be 800 school children, a male chorus of 100 voices, an orchestra of 70 musicians under the direction of Chas. Safford, and also Scotch bagpipes and a set of chimes.

All the music for the chants, solos and the grand opening march which will usher in the pageant is being written by Walter Damrosch, while Percy Walter MacKaye, the dramatist and poet, will manage the staging and dramatic work.

At the close of the first act of the play, and with all the actors yet on the stage, fire will be applied to a point on the big arch framing the stage. At once a stream of fire will shoot out from this arch, running up and around the entire circle of the frame work until it reaches from top to bottom of the arched space.

The streams of fire will shoot out from the archway until the flames hide the actors from view. This will continue for a quarter of an hour. At the end of that time the fire will burn out again disclosing the stage and actors to view, and the next scene will begin.

The curtain of fire will be used during each intermission.

Fire will be used in one more situation. Prioress" will be as realistic as expert fireworks manufacturers can make it.

Suspended among the dark tops of the trees an angel will appear in a cloud of smoke and fire and hang above the stage, finally disappearing in the darkness.

Arrangements have been made by which, at the moment the "vision" disappears, the bells of the churches in Gloucester, some of them a mile away from the park, will toll softly, thus heightening the effect of the scene.

SICK SKINS IN SUMMER.

Summer is the hardest time for the human skin. Its delicate tiny pores, if worked under the best conditions, would have a rough time because of the heat. How when they have to work when impaired or damaged by sunburn and heat spots? No wonder one has rough patches, freckles, etc.

Zam-Buk heals sick skins. When a patch of skin on face, neck, or arms is blistered by the sun, apply Zam-Buk at once. It will cool and soothe beautifully, and new skin will be quickly formed. When you are footsore, or have some chafed places, Zam-Buk will give you ease. When the mosquitoes raise lumps on you, Zam-Buk will stop that terrible itching and smarting. Keep Zam-Buk handy, use it freely, and this will be the happiest summer you have ever spent, viewed from the skin health standpoint. All druggists and stores.

A SERMON ON GALILEE

PASTOR RUSSELL ON WAY HOME FROM LONDON.

Apostles, Says the Preacher, Should Have Realized That the Father Would Care For Them In the Tempest—Lord's People Are a Peculiar People—On a Tempestuous Sea—"Peace Be Still! Be Still."

Mid Ocean, S.S. Mauretania, June 6.—Pastor C. T. Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle and associates are on board returning from London Bible Students' Convention.

Text, "Master, carest thou not that we perish?" (Mark iv, 38.)

In our text we have the despairing cry of the apostles to the Lord, in the midst of what must have been a remarkably severe storm on the Sea of Galilee. Some of the disciples, at least, were experienced fishermen, accustomed to the sudden squalls for which that sea is noted. For such courageous men as Peter, James and John to appeal to Jesus for superhuman aid implies that the conditions were critical. It seems rather astonishing indeed that our Lord could have slept under such strenuous conditions, but he was extremely exhausted from speaking to large multitudes and the journey was made in considerable measure to get away from the people, in order that he might have necessary rest. But again, it is possible that our Lord feigned sleep for the very purpose of permitting his disciples to reach the point of extremity which led them to call for his aid; because man's extremity is God's opportunity. The Master arose and rebuked the wind, saying, "Peace, be still." And there was a great calm. And he said to the disciples, Why are ye so fearful? Have ye not yet faith?

This expression constitutes one of the great lessons of the Master to his pupils, his disciples, and it has come ringing down the centuries, speaking peace to his followers ever since. The message it brings is that he who is able to control the storms and the sea is likewise able to govern all the affairs of life in the interests of those who are his consecrated followers, his disciples. Whether we have had so remarkable an escape from a storm at sea or not, I am sure that some of us have had the Master's supervision and intervention for our protection from the storms of life. To some of our hearts he has spoken these same words, "Peace, be still. Have ye not yet faith?" And with the message came a great calm, a great serenity, a great rest in the Lord and his superabundant care. If for a time the Master seemed unconscious of our condition and asleep to the dangers about us, it was only seemingly so. His care and his power were equally with us, and none could really harm our interests as New Creatures. He whose eye never slumbers nor sleeps, keeps watch over the interests of those who are truly his; and he is pledged that all things shall work together for good to them; because they love him; because they have been called according to his purpose; because they are seeking to make that calling and election sure by loving, self sacrificing obedience.

In our judgment the Lord was not specially condemning the apostles for fearing the storm and awakening him to question it. Indeed, their action manifestates that they had faith; that they believed that the Master had the power which could save them. The Lord would have them exercise a still broader faith than this. He would have them realize the Father's care as he had taught them, saying, "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing, and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father? . . . Fear ye not, therefore; ye are of more value than many sparrows" (Matthew x, 29-31). The lesson sought to be inculcated was this: "The Father has called you to be his disciples and colaborers. You with myself, therefore, are specially under Divine guidance and supervision. And he who has begun the good work in you, and who purposes to use you as his mouthpieces in the proclaiming of his message and grace, is able to care for all your interests, both temporal and spiritual. Do you suppose that, after calling you to the ministry of his grace, he would permit you to perish? To no fear, implies that you do not realize your calling to have been of God, or do not realize the Divine power, or that you doubt Divine wisdom and supervision—being of insufficient faith."

Shall we not similarly judge ourselves, scrutinize our own hearts, inquire within, if in the midst of the storms and tempests of life we become terrified? Would not this imply that we doubt the Divine providences in our own cases in the past and that we are uncertain as respects our calling of the Lord to be followers of the Lamb, sharers in the sufferings of Christ now and heirs of the glory that shall follow? Or would it mean that we lacked faith, lacked confidence in God? Perhaps no other lesson is more important for God's children to learn in the present time than this—to have absolute confidence in their Father's Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power.

The Apostle remarks of the Church of this age, "We walk by faith and not by sight." In this respect the Gospel Church is different from the Jewish Church of the preceding age and different from the Millennial Church of the oncoming age. The latter will walk by sight. The Sun of Righteousness will shine forth, we are assured, and scatter all the darkness of ignorance, superstition and prejudice, and flood the world with the "light of the knowledge of the glory of God." There will be no more walking by the light of the lamp, the Bible, so precious to us now; so necessary to us now as a lamp to our feet and as a light to our footsteps to assist us in walking in the "narrow way" by faith and not by sight.

The Jewish church of the preceding age was privileged to walk considerably by sight, not so clear and distinct a light as that which will illuminate the world in the Millennium, but, nevertheless, they walked by sight, because the Divine terms were that if they obeyed God's Word and walked in his statutes he would bless them in basket and store and flock and herd and in their families and in their hearts. And the assurance was that if there was any calamity it would be because of their departure from the Lord and would mark his disfavor.

But during this Gospel Age how different! Whoever would be God's child, a follower of Jesus, in the present time must walk by faith and not by sight. He must believe what he cannot see. He must learn that the cost of discipleship in this age, the cost of sonship in the Divine family in this present time means self-sacrifice, a narrow way, opposition and persecution. "Yea, whoever will live godly in this present world will suffer persecution." Instead of being blessed above other men in their temporal affairs the consecrated, the sanctified, have the Scriptural assurance that they must expect the reverse. Instead of being kept in perfect health many of the Lord's followers have had sad experiences on beds of sickness and pain. Instead of being wealthy it was foretold that there would be not many rich amongst them, not many great, not many wise according to the course of this world, but that the riches they must esteem are the riches of God's grace associated with the exceeding great and precious promises of God's Word. Instead of being surrounded by conditions of affluence, wealth and ease their circumstances are generally the reverse of these. And why is this so? Because the Lord is now choosing or selecting from amongst mankind a little flock of "peculiar people" who he designs shall eventually be joint-heirs with his Son in the Heavenly Kingdom.

The Lord's people are peculiar in their dress—not as respects their outward clothing, but as respects their robe of Christ's Righteousness—theirs by imputation, because of faith in the blood of Christ, faith in his sacrifice for sins. They are peculiar also in that they have a "wedding garment" which they wear continually and which they seek to keep "unspotted from the world" and which they trust by and by will admit their entrance with their Lord to the great Marriage Supper when they, as members of the Bride-Elect, shall become the Queen of Glory, Joint-Heirs with the Bridegroom.

These are peculiar also in that they love Righteousness and hate iniquity, whereas the majority of people love iniquity and are ready to indulge in it to the extent that they would not be caught or seriously injured. These, on the contrary, love Righteousness because they have come to esteem it as the character of their Heavenly Father and his will respecting them, and they have come to hate iniquity because they have learned of its injuriousness and that the Heavenly Father is not pleased with inequity, injustice, wrong in any form. These peculiar people are so desirous of pleasing the Heavenly Father that they are quite willing to be thought peculiar or strange to the world in general that they may hear by and by the words: "Well done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things" (Matthew xxv, 23).

All the circumstances and affairs of life, its storms and its calms, its joys and its sorrows, its ups and its downs, its pleasures and its pains, are so ordered of the Father's providence as to give these "peculiar people" the lessons they most need, primarily to develop in them this quality of faith, and secondarily the various graces of the Lord's spirit, which can be built only upon this faith, this trust, this confidence. And as the members of this class learn to take the proper view of the Lord's dealings, learn to have faith in him, learn to note his providences and to trust his promises, proportionately it is their privilege to have peace and rest in every time of storm and distress. As the Master declares, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid" (John xiv, 27). Whoever, therefore, would be most pleasing to the Lord; whoever would be most ready for the graduating exercises at the end of the age; whoever hopes to hear the Master's "Well done, good and faithful servant," must give diligence to the cultivation of this quality of faith, a "faith which firmly trusts him come what may."

What we have applied individually to the Lord's people may also be applied to them as a whole. Looking back over the nearly nineteen centuries since the institution of this Church by our Lord at his First Advent, particularly since Pentecost, and marking the varied experiences of these centuries, we perceive that the Church has passed over a tempestuous route in her journey to the heavenly home. Storms and calms mark the entire course, and the evidences are thickening all about us that the severest and darkest hour, the most stormy period of her entire career, is just ahead of her—just upon her, we might say. The sea, the world, is all about her and seeking to enter into her, seeking to swamp her, seeking to swallow her up.

Many of the Lord's followers already are crying to him in terror, "Master, carest thou not that we perish? Seest thou not how agnosticism, under a new name of Higher Criticism, is seeking to capsize us, to overwhelm us, to break the cable of faith by which we are anchored to the sure promises of thy Word? Master, seest thou not that the very mention of thy precious blood as the Ransom Price for sinners, the purchase price of our release from sin and death, is reviled, is belittled, is esteemed a common thing, is repudiated by those who name Thy Name! Master, carest thou not that thy Word has been so misrepresented during the dark ages of the past that to-day the intellectuals of the world disdain it as the teaching of doctrines unworthy of a noble intellect! Master, carest thou not that these have no reverence for thy Book and for thine own Holy Name? Master, carest thou not that thy people, thy saintly ones, are perishing in infidelity, in agnosticism; that they are losing their faith in the precious blood and in all the wonderful promises of the Word, because they see not, neither do they understand the height and length, the breadth and depth of the love of God which passeth all understanding!"

To all such appeals the Master's reply is, "Have ye not yet faith?" Do ye not know that the Word that goeth from my mouth shall prosper in the thing whereto it was sent? Do you not realize that he who began the work of selecting the Church will accomplish it? Do you not know that naught could come to pass without your Father's knowledge and permission? Do you not remember the words of the Lord, "Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above," except it were permitted thee of my Father (John xix, 11). Our difficulty has been to some extent the same that our Lord mentioned to the Sadducees saying, "Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God" (Matthew xxii, 29).

But what say the Scriptures on the subject? We answer that they foretell the present condition of things and give us an outlook future. They call our attention to the fact that there is a nominal Church, as well as the real one, an outward class of considerable numbers which have a form of godliness, but without the power, and a "little flock" which has the Truth and is in heart relationship with the Lord, begotten of the holy Spirit. They tell us that we have been mistaken in the past in supposing that it is a part of the Heavenly Father's plan to convert the world during this present Gospel Age; that that part of his plan belongs to the next age; that his present work is the gathering of the "elect," the "little flock," to be associated with the Redeemer as his Bride in the glorious Kingdom, for which we pray, "Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." They assure us that the storm of Higher Criticism, infidelity and Evolution and general godlessness and faithlessness which we see coming, which is already upon us, will indeed be a terrible storm, the like of which was permitted in the time of trouble which closed the Jewish Age, and again in the close of the eighteenth century in the French Revolution. The Scriptures show us that the Lord intends to make a separation between merely nominal Christians and the saints—the pure in heart, the full of faith, the full of zeal, the lovers of Righteousness, the haters of iniquity. And his testing and sifting of the true wheat and its separation from the tares will be a thorough and complete work.

But we say, if the Church goes down, if the storm shall wreck the Church of Christ, will not the entire social fabric be wrecked? Shall not we all perish? But the Lord answers, "Nay verily, 'a thousand shall fall at thy side, ten thousand at thy right hand, but it shall not come nigh thee'." (to injure thee). The shaking of the social, political and financial fabric, which is closely interwoven with the religious, will be something awful, according to the Scriptural pictures, "A time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation, nor ever shall be afterward," said our Lord (Daniel xii, 1). For a time fierce anarchy will follow the destruction of faith in God and in his Word—quite contrary to the expectations of the Higher Critics. Then, in due time to save the world from itself, our Lord will stand forth in power, majesty and great glory and will say to the raging waves of human passion in that tempestuous storm, "Peace, be still!" And there will be a great calm, and that calm will extend throughout the Millennial period and give favorable opportunity for the living nations to see, to comprehend, and to accept the Lord's righteous arrangements and, if they will, his gracious provisions. And it will give opportunity also for all mankind, including those who have gone down into the great prison house of death, to come under those gracious provisions.

Circulation and warmth will be restored, and pleurisy, inflammation, or congestion prevented. Equally good for colds, breaks up their beginnings at once. If you only knew what a great remedy Nerviline is, that it is five times stronger than other liniments, more penetrating, more pain subduing, you would not be without it.

Ninety-nine sicknesses out of a hundred can be prevented at the very beginning by the use of Nerviline. Saves doctors' bills—the great pain saver of the age—in use 50 years. Large 25c bottles sold everywhere.

LUCKY MR. BROWN.

If it had not been for "Fruit-a-tives," Mr. Leonel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., would still be living on stale bread and porridge, and suffering tortures with Indigestion.

His stomach was so weak that he had to give up all kinds of meats, potatoes and other vegetables, and even deny himself the comforts of a cup of tea. Fortunately, Mr. Brown read about "Fruit-a-tives," bought a box and was so much improved by taking the tablets, that he used four boxes altogether. "I have been a great sufferer from Indigestion for fifteen years. About two years ago, I read about Fruit-a-tives and concluded to give them a trial. I used nearly four boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and they have made me feel like a new man. I can eat all kinds of hearty foods and enjoy tea and coffee." This is not a rare case, but the regular experience of everyone who uses "Fruit-a-tives" for Weak Stomach, Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Try them. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Very Grand Opera.

During the grand opera season, Covent Garden, London, is the most expensive theatre in the world. There is, of course, the half-crown gallery, but the rest of the house is charged for at rates that are clearly intended for the very rich, especially as boxes and seats are let for the entire season.

A box at Covent Garden costs from $1,250 to $2,500 for the season, the price varying according to the number of performances per week it is taken for. For a single night the charge is $42 to $12.50, but these are practically unprocurable on the best nights of the season. It is the custom for the leaders of society to book up all the boxes, and most of the stalls, for the whole of the period during which opera is being performed, and when they are not able to be there they lend their boxes to their poorer relations.

Railways and Real Estate.

All over the West, writes the Winnipeg correspondent of The Standard of Empire, there is a distinct movement in real estate. With the increased railway facilities over last year an enormous amount of development is promised. The news from the West tells of towns springing up all along the new lines of railways. In nearly every town there are at least a dozen new business buildings in course of erection, and large sums are being spent throughout on improvements. The land along the Grand Trunk Pacific line is filling in rapidly, and the great influx of settlers is performing miracles in the small villages, which are taking on the appearance of towns with amazing rapidity.

Radium and Plants.

Up to a certain point exposure to radium rays stimulates the germination of seeds, but if that point is passed the growth is stopped.

The Beginner's Troubles.

"The caddie," said the beginner at golf, telling his troubles, "was so sarcastic and impudent I felt like cracking him over the head."

"Why didn't you?" asked his friend.

"Well—er—you see, I wasn't sure which would be the proper club to use for that purpose."—Catholic Standard and Times.

'Tis a fact you cannot queer.
'Tis beyond all peradventure or suppose.
That the frost won't come again
You feel fairly certain when
Your glasses get to slipping from your nose.

The Likeness.

"Would you call Senator Smugg a grafter?"

"No. I should prefer to say that he bears a marked resemblance to a Russian grand duke, except in the matters of uniform and whiskers."—Puck.

ACCURACY NEEDED

Earl Crewe Addresses Imperial Press Conference.

MUST HAVE CHEAP CABLES

Great Care Must Be Exercised in Reporting Speeches of Public Men and Transmitting Them to Outlying Parts of Empire — Easy Communication Is Essential to the Welfare of the Nation.

London, June 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At the Imperial Press Conference meeting yesterday, at the Foreign Office, Earl Crewe took the chair. In his opinion the Empire would not be completely united until time comes when the western provinces of Canada, say, are in a position to learn and understand what are the problems facing the India Government. The Empire would not be complete until the aboriginal in Australia was in the position, if he cared to, to learn all about the development of our great protectorate state.

It was extremely difficult now for every speech to be reported all over the Empire. Only last week his office suffered from a difficulty of this kind. Col. Seely made a statement in the House. There was nothing in the speech to cause uneasiness, but the form in which the speech was cabled to South Africa caused very real uneasiness.

"Towards the question of cable development the attitude of the Government is of a thoroughly sympathetic character, and we shall look forward to your business discussions in the hope to find a solution of the question," said Earl Crewe. The great development of wireless telegraphy they must also bear in mind.

What the Empire needed above all other things was easy communication between the Mother Country and the dominions over the seas. Intercommunication between the dominions was every bit as important.

Referring to the accuracy in cabling reports of speeches, Lord Crewe said it was very important when reporting speeches of Ministers, which almost entirely consisted of qualification; it took almost immense genius not to avoid being misleading in sending reports of this kind by cable, and when there was added to this, the other fact that the man at the end of the wire might represent someone with purposes on one side or other, which may be used to garble the message, it stood to reason that anything like perfect accuracy was exceedingly hard to maintain.

They were constantly receiving suggestions in regard to wireless developments, the latest being one with relation to Western Pacific. Sir Sanford Fleming of Ottawa, and Henniker Heaton, Lord Crewe referred to as the two evangelists of intercommunication.

Stanley Reed of India moved the following resolution:

"That this conference regards it as of paramount importance that telegraphic facilities with the various parts of the Empire be cheapened and improved, so as to ensure fuller intercommunication than exists at present, and appoints a committee to report to the conference at its re-assembling on June 25, as to the best means to attain this object, the committee to consist of Messrs. Thomas Ward, Temperley, Fenwick, Coker, Brierley, Ross, Nelson, Phillipson, Stowkingswell Crosby, Boles and Hover."

Postmaster-General Buxton followed. The postoffice, he said, would have to consider the whole question from the point of view of business. They would do what they could to assist the committee by providing them with information.

Sir Hugh Graham, Montreal, believed in the agitation for state-owned cables, and proposed the organization of a permanent commission to enquire into the subject.

Postmaster-General Buxton assured the delegates of the sympathy of the Government, which, he said, would try to co-operate.

P. D. Ross, Ottawa, moved an amendment advocating an all-red cable route by the Government cable to Canada and Government control of wires across Canada. Canada was almost unanimous in favor of bringing in the state to improve the cable service with Britain. He believed the Canadian Government had information to the effect that with a state cable the cost of commercial messages could be reduced without loss to the service.

Austin Chamberlain said the problem they had to consider that day was one of the greatest possible importance to the development of the Empire. It needed co-operation alike of the nation's Governments and cable companies. (Applause.)

Crosbie-Boles of India, Temperley, Fenwick and Ross spoke in favor of cheaper rates.

Sir Hugh Graham said the only basis for an improved service was cheaper rates. If they could get cheapened rates of transmission from the old cable companies, good and well, but if they did not they must lay their own cables, and money would be forthcoming for that purpose. Referring to the all-red route he declared that whether it came in six months or a year, or whether they

ROSEBERY CALLED FIREBRAND.

German Press Is Excited by Speech to the Pressmen.

Berlin, June 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Lord Rosebery's speech at the banquet to the overseas press delegates, while universally condemned, formed the most prominent feature in the German papers yesterday, and has produced a profound impression.

The Vossische Zeitung, in a leading articles, states that the spectacle of Lord Rosebery, as the mouthpiece of a once proud country, bewailing to representatives of the colonial press that Europe exercises such a pressure on the "Little Island" is pitiful. "The day on which the boundless panic set in in England," the journal adds, "was the day when the triple entente against Germany and Austria-Hungary was wrecked on the central European bloc. It is untrue that weapons with which Europe is studded are directed against England. It remains, however, true that without such weapons, Europe would long ago have been the football of England."

The Local Anzeiger expresses the opinion that Lord Rosebery's speech will result in a strong revival of the agitation which has kept Europe in breathless suspense.

The Morgen Post, in an article entitled "English Mischief-making and Hopes," says Lord Rosebery made an agitator's speech before 600 people, in which almost every word conveyed an untruth.

The Ideal Drink for Run Down Conditions.

Good beer, stout and porter are excellent tonics when taken in moderation.

The difficulty with these products of hops and barley malt is that they are in constant process of fermentation and are not easily assimilated by invalids.

This fermenting process has an irritating effect on the digestive organs when they are weakened by illness or a run down condition.

Bass' Barley Wine is made from the same materials as beer, stout and porter but with fermentation removed.

In order to remove fermentation, this wine is matured in casks for years before it is bottled.

Barley is rich in proteids and grape sugar, but, when malted, these proteids are converted into peptones and parapeptones.

To make our meaning plainer, these proteids by going through the malting process are partly digested.

When barley malt, in the shape of Bass' Barley Wine is taken into the system, it is easily assimilated by the most delicate stomach.

This is due to the fact that the malting process has converted the bulk of the barley into pure grape sugar.

Grape sugar can be digested by the most delicate stomach.

Hops are tonic, useful in dyspepsia, nervous tremors and wakefulness.

The barley malt combined with the hops, with fermentation removed, makes Bass' Barley Wine the ideal tonic for all run down conditions of the system.

For nursing mothers, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, insomnia and tubercular troubles, it has no equal.

Bass' Barley Wine costs 30 cents a bottle

STEAMER CONVENIENCES for the YOUNG GIRL TOURIST

UNDER the best possible conditions one is generally much cramped for space to keep one's belongings in travelling on an ocean steamship, and anything that will help to relieve the congestion is a great boon to the traveller.

The oftener one crosses the more one learns of how to condense things and adapt them to the space and conditions of a stateroom. But even the novice making a first voyage can so arrange things as to make a great difference in her own comfort and that of her fellow traveller. And some of the most desirable of conveniences may be unknown to the most experienced of travellers.

There are many things that any clever girl can make herself which she will find an immense comfort in crossing the ocean. Or, if she wants to make them for a friend, she will earn a large amount of gratitude when the friend has discovered the difference they have made in the wear and tear on her nerves and temper during the voyage.

Among the most useful of these conveniences are a dressing apron, a group of wall pockets for toilet articles, a holder for the little things that may be needed at a moment's notice, which fastens to the inside of the cover of a trunk; a folding pincushion and a deck pillow with a pocket for a book.

THE dressing apron is made of a heavy linen in any desired color, the most useful being the ordinary brown linen, though of course that is not quite as dainty and pretty as the more delicate colors. Cut a piece of the linen eighteen inches by sixteen and a half, for the apron itself, and a piece twenty-one inches by six for the pockets, and a little piece three by three and a half inches for the outside pocket for hairpins. The large pockets are for the hair brush, comb, hand glass and an extra pocket for side combs or anything else used in arranging the hair. This pocket can also be used for pins, collar buttons, belt or any little thing needed in dressing.

The small piece of linen must first be bound with tape and sewed on the larger pocket strip, so that it will come on the outside of one pocket. Then the upper edge of the pockets must also be bound with tape. Next this piece must be basted on the apron, the lower edges coming exactly together. The lower edge of the apron measures eighteen inches and the pocket strip twenty-one inches; these three extra inches are taken up by making a pleat on each side of the pocket for the brush; the others do not need extra thickness. When these are basted together the apron is bound all around with tape, except across the top, and the pocket strip is stitched to the apron in three places, forming the four pockets. That for the brush should be four inches wide, that for the hand glass six and a half inches, for the comb two and a half inches, and the last pocket four and a half inches. The top of the apron must be turned over in a hem a little over an inch wide, and through this hem is run a ribbon to tie the apron around the waist.

THE wall pockets are made either of linen, like the apron, or of flowered cretonne, and each pocket and the back are bound with tape. The back is a piece thirty inches long and twenty inches wide. Across the bottom runs a strip ten inches deep, which forms two pockets, one seven inches wide for slippers and the other for the nightdress. Near the top is a pocket for a manicure set, which measures eighteen inches across and three inches deep. Between these, in the middle, is a pocket for the tooth brush, seven inches long and two wide. On one side of this there is a pocket for the sponge and one for cold cream (which is sure to be needed on a steamer if one is much on deck), and each of these, as well as the pocket for slippers, should have a pleat of one and half inches on each side to make room for the thickness of the articles.

On the other side of the tooth brush there are two pockets for soap at the top and underneath them a strip of strong elastic, covered with shirred ribbon, is sewed to the back at intervals, leaving small spaces in which to put a buttonhook, shoehorn or anything one wants ready to use at any time. The pockets for sponge, toothbrush and soap must be lined with rubber. At the middle of the top and at each upper corner must be sewed a loop to hang the case to the wall.

THE holder to be fastened in the top of the steamer trunk is similar to the wall pockets. It is just the size of the trunk and is made with a large pocket on one side for a hot water bag. Across the bottom, from that to the other side, are two pockets, one for handkerchiefs and one for collars and stocks. Above these are four pockets, one for paper, one for pencils, one for a flask and the other for the ever useful Baedeker. All these can be measured by the articles to be put in them and can easily be made by the same directions as the apron and wall pockets. When the trunk is opened these things are ready to be taken out whenever needed.

The folding pincushion is made of a piece of broad ribbon about half a yard long. At one end four inches of this is turned over and sewed to the under piece, the space between them stuffed with wool wadding and the edges sewed together, forming a flat pincushion. The rest of the ribbon has eiderdown flannel catstitched to the wrong side and the other end is hemmed on to the flannel. In the middle of the back is sewed a yard of narrow ribbon to tie it when rolled up, and along one side three little metal rings by which it can be hung up when in use.

FOR the deck pillow one can buy or make a hair pillow eighteen inches square. This must be covered with colored linen, and on one side is sewed a flat pocket large enough to hold a magazine, with a small pocket on each side. In these little pockets can be carried a bottle of smelling salts or cologne or a flask. At the top is a loop by which to carry the pillow. For this loop cut a strip of linen eighteen inches long and six wide, hem each edge of it and turn it over in the middle. Holding the edges together, measure off three inches at each end on the hemmed side and from this point cut diagonally to the other side, making a point at the fold. These diagonal edges must be sewed into the upper seam of the pillow cover, and then when the pillow is hung on the arm this linen band will spread out, making the pillow hang down evenly so that the book and salts bottle will not slide out. This little pillow will be found a great comfort in a steamer chair, as it can be fitted in any angle of the back or shoulders.

Tools for Amateur Gardeners.

EVERY girl should have a garden. She can well consider her summer wasted if she has not herself planted some tiny seeds early in the summer which throughout the long idle vacation months she can watch over, care for and eventually see spring up into some gorgeous flower or luscious vegetable. Gardening is indeed great fun, and nowadays there are so many fascinating implements to work with and so many labor saving devices have been invented that there is little if any fatigue left for the amateur.

But a girl gardener should have her tools to work with—for to the amateur proper tools are great economizers of fatigue and time combined.

The outfit of the average girl gardener is therefore necessarily large, but each tool and cleverly thought contrivance for comfort helps in the enjoyment of the work, and for a girl the tools should naturally be lighter and daintier than are the ordinary tools of the husky paid gardener; for seeds can be planted just as well, weeds uprooted every bit as successfully, flowers watered quite as thoroughly with small tools easy to work with as with the heavy, ungainly trowel, rake and watering pot of the hired man.

For planting seeds and bulbs attractive little sets are to be had consisting of trowel, hoe, rake and spade, all light and easy to work with. For weeding long forklike rakes are now to be had which will save the back wonderfully. For pruning there is a knife that is really ladylike in weight and appearance, and will do its work just as well as a heavier, more dangerous looking implement.

The normal, sensible girl with a garden on her country place will always pick the flowers herself and will see to it, too, that the house is always a veritable bower during the summer months. But even picking flowers may become somewhat of a task without the correct implements to work with. First she should have one of the wicker baskets which, while light and as easy as possible to carry over the arm, are attached to a long prong, which can be driven into the ground and hold the basket erect beside each bush or shrub. Into this the flowers are dropped as they are picked, and the annoyance of constant stooping and fatigue is thus eliminated. There should be a pair of flower scissors also for this work, these holding the stem of the flower firmly after it has been cut from its branch. There is a new kind of flower scissor which is even better for holding the flower than that first invented.

Delightful gardening baskets are now to be had which, while sufficiently light to be carried on the arm, are completely fitted out in separate partitions with trowel, scissors, cord, hammer and nails for fastening vines and climbing flowers.

Small fertilizers, easy to manipulate, are now also to be had for the girl gardener and also tiny sprinklers which, attached to the hose, will give a small patch of grass or flower bed plenty of water to drink. There is also a novel kind of watering pot with an exceptionally long nozzle which will make its way through the thickest cluster of leaves and water thoroughly the roots of the plant otherwise completely sheltered.

But there is small pleasure in gardening if one is not properly dressed for the task, if the sun is burning countless freckles, if the soil is playing havoc with white hands and if the pretty gown is being soiled and ruined forever by the clay. As a guard against Old Sol a girl should wear either a pretty sunbonnet or else the widest brimmed sailor hat to be found. The latter is perhaps best, as it will act somewhat as a sunshade and protect the neck as well as the head, besides being exceedingly becoming, trimmed only with a soft chiffon or with a scarf or large bowknot of ribbon. To protect the hands rubber gloves may be worn or else large canvas gloves, which with wide sleeves attached, protect the gown as well as the hands from soil. For weeding and planting a wide linen apron should be worn, and this should have several pockets to hold the different smaller tools when not in use. With such an apron one can kneel on the earth in ease and comfort. With the heavy washable gloves of coarse crash or linen, with sleeves attached of plain brown Holland, protecting at once hands and dainty waist, and with immense shade hat with pretty flopping brim no girl need hesitate to venture forth each day for a happy hour of work in her garden.

Restoring Rejected Manuscripts.

A GIRL who is bent on literary fame and who has achieved no small success for a beginner has hit on an ingenious way of restoring to their original freshness the rejected manuscripts which come back to her somewhat crumpled from editorial handling. Instead of feeling they must be typewritten all over again, which is no small expense, she separates the sheets and carefully irons them one by one with a hot flatiron. This makes them beautifully fresh, and off goes the story again to a new editor who from the manuscript's condition will never suspect it has been read and rejected by a predecessor. It is a well established fact that persistence in sending manuscripts on from one editor to another is half the battle in placing them, for editorial tastes and needs differ, and though nine editors may reject a story the tenth may be delighted to get it.

The Three Wise Monkeys.

FROM Japan come groups of three small, elderly monkeys who mutely teach a valuable lesson to Occidentals. The serious looking, kimono garbed animals are seated in a row and joined together by means of their interlocking elbows and knees. "Say No Evil" clasps his hands firmly over his lips, "See No Evil" conceals his eyes with his fingers and "Hear No Evil" keeps his palms over his ears.

"The Three Wise Monkeys," developed in exquisitely carved ivory, in mother-of-pearl, in painted china, plaster or teak, in lacquer, silver, bronze or jade are used as paper weights or desk ornaments. They also decorate porcelain, cake plates and vases and occasionally are seen on the inner side of a china teacup.

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL

NOW that the season for being out of doors is at hand one may well give a little thought to one's al fresco manners, for without the valuable curb of restraint the tendency is to become rather boyishish. Madame Grundy permits far more freedom to-day than she did in the girlhood of our mothers, but having granted so much license she does not allow infringement, and frowns most disapprovingly on those who overstep the bounds of what she decrees as good form to-day.

It is natural that girls should be more or less with young men out of doors, particularly in the country at the week end, with very jolly times as the result; but while indulging in all sorts of attractive sports do not allow yourself to become a "sport."

A "sport" is a distressingly vulgar person, whether young or old. She talks atrocious slang in a loud, strident voice, smokes cigarettes, drinks cocktails and otherwise emulates the ways of men, laboring under the delusion that she is making herself attractive, whereas no one admires her, not even her male companions with whom she does these things either surreptitiously or openly.

Nice girls do not indulge in the cigarette habit nor do they allow young men to coax them into trying "just once." It is not only bad form from the point of manners for girls to smoke, but detrimental to their health and disastrous to their teeth, the nicotine turning the enamel a horrid yellow.

It is quite proper for girls to allow young men to smoke when they are with them out of doors, but not in all circumstances, and if the men are thoughtless or indifferent about it the girls should exact from them the conduct which etiquette prescribes. A girl should never permit a young man to smoke when he is driving with her, nor when he is walking in town or in a country village. But on a country tramp away from the conventional highways it is permissable, though it is far more complimentary to the girl when he does not smoke, for it indicates that her society is so agreeable that he requires no other distraction. Such country tramps are taken in parties, the young people pairing off as they wish, but never straying away from the others. It is not good form for a girl to go off with a young man on a tête-à-tête expedition to remote places.

Many girls now drive their own automobiles, whereby a whole new field opens up in which to show politeness and consideration. As the seat beside the driver is recognised as the most comfortable, it always should be offered to any older woman you are taking out, though she may decline it, preferring the tonneau, you, of course, giving her her choice and not urging her to sit beside you when her preference seems to be otherwise. When you call to take your girl friends out in your car you do not leave your seat unless you wish to do so, but when your guests are older people you show them deference by leaving your seat and assisting them into the car, opening the door of the tonneau, helping them in and closing the door when they are comfortably settled. You repeat this when you bring them home again.

As people are not always equipped with motor garments, it is most thoughtful to carry an extra long coat or two in the car for the convenience of your guests, who will greatly appreciate this attention. A couple of footstools in the tonneau also contribute to comfort, as many persons find it impossible to sit back as they would like, owing to the fact that their feet dangle unpleasantly.

Much as they may wish to give them pleasure, girls should never pick up children and take them driving in a carriage or a motor without asking permission of the parents. The responsibility of taking children along is so great that young people would do well for the most part not to assume it, and they should never take offence when parents decline to let the children go.

New Handkerchiefs.

THE idea of having two handkerchiefs to precisely match each shirt waist is rapidly gaining vogue among college girls. For morning use solely many of the new handkerchiefs, of white lawn crossed with colored hair lines, have white embroidery bordered edgings. Other colored novelties are of delicately corded linen with solid color hemstitched edge of pastel, green, gray, blue or rose.

Among the linen handkerchiefs lately brought over from Paris are many showing figure embroideries of elephants, chickens, eagles, storks, crows, owls, dogs and cats in combination with a good sized initial letter. They are in both white and colors, but the odd designs lose much of their character when developed of all white.

Some of the color bordered handkerchiefs show attractive letterings in color surrounded by an embroidery design somewhat similar to an illuminated signet. In these there is a use of variegated tints, including a predominating tone in harmony with the colored border.

An attractive type of shirt waist handkerchief, printed and hemstitched, has a cluster of leaves design embroidered in each corner. Another has naturally colored violets embroidered within two scalloped lines of a matching tint, and a third shows a border of lilies of the valley embroidered on pale green bordering a white centre.

The latest finishing for a girl's party handkerchief is the Brussels net frill. It is set upon the edge of an exceedingly fine linen square, the hem of which is first turned back to form a pointed outline. Similarly made handkerchiefs are bordered with genuine Valenciennes, Brussels and rose point or duchesse lace.

Fitted Bags for Week End Visits.

AT this season of constant week end visits and unexpected pleasure trips taken on the spur of the moment a girl should have her little fitted travelling bag always packed and ready for an hour's start. There is nothing which so simplifies short visits quickly planned and carried out as a fitted hand bag, small, light and of convenient shape to carry about easily. The square bags opening flat back at the top are most generally popular, but the old narrow bags are once more to be seen among the cases of glazed leather with smart brass or nickel trimmings.

Fittings of gold or silver are, of course, extremely nice to possess, but the girl who cannot attain to such luxury as this will find many advantages in the bag fitted out with brush, comb, bottles, &c., of wood, celluloid and metal instead of the more costly articles. To commence, both silver and gold are necessarily heavier than the celluloid and are moreover somewhat of a care in travelling, whereas, save for what of value may be placed in the little bag, there is no need for worry about the plain ebony brush and glass bottles.

The number and size of the fittings naturally depend upon the shape and size of bag, but the average bag of this description contains only brush and comb, mirror, case with button hook and file and from two to four flasks for soap, tooth powder, cold cream, &c. In the larger bags only is there to be found a manicure set or a sufficient number of bottles for all the various kinds of powder and creams that the average girl considers a necessary part of her toilet. As soon as the bag becomes at all large it is at once inconveniently heavy, and it is far the best plan to buy one that is really small and put in the few extra things in the centre space.

Most attractive for travelling is a new manicure set complete as regards sandpaper, file, powder and paste for polishing, a small case for cream to soften the nails and one or two orange wood sticks, and all contained within an excellent chamois nail polisher. The handle of the polisher is of wood or celluloid of ordinary kind, save that it can be opened and in the hollow space within are all the requirements of a manicure set sufficient to last a week at least.

By writing to the manufacturers sample bottles of all kinds of powder, cologne and cakes of soap can be obtained at small cost (paid in postage stamps), and in this way there can always be taken along a sufficient quantity of the favorite toilet water, powder or soap to last over a short visit. Often one is quite inconvenienced by being forced to do without some such trifling luxury owing to the awkward size and shape of the bottle or case in which the article is ordinarily contained.

For the smaller fitted hand bags even the tooth and nail brushes are frequently smaller, or at any rate shorter, than the ordinary and have generally to be cut down in order to fit into the flask provided for them. It is, therefore, far the most sensible plan to keep all these things always in the bag in the cases in which they belong, so that there will not be the necessity of having constantly to go to the trouble of procuring new articles which are not so easily found as these things which are of regulation stock kind.

Instead of buying a bag already furnished a bag of convenient size may be procured and this fitted with straps of the right size to fit one's own toilet silver. This is really an excellent plan. For visits one can thus have the silver, tortoiseshell or ivory toilet articles, as the case may be, to which she is accustomed, while for travelling brushes, combs, flasks, &c., of plain wood and celluloid can always be found to fit in the straps made for the most costly silver pieces.

In travelling abroad a fitted bag, just large enough to hold besides a night dress, négligé, pair of slippers and an extra bodice and collar, will be found indispensable. It is astonishing how many things even the smallest bag will hold, and the square with the fittings held on the flat top will contain even more than those of oblong shape.

In purchasing a bag a canvas cover should be bought at the same time, for while a good leather will wear for years, scratches and rain spots are inevitable, and it is a pity for this smart little bag to be at once defaced.

Perfectly Equipped Vanity Bags.

A SILK vanity bag of such compact proportions that it may easily be concealed among the drapings of a blouse is of the familiar crushable, drawstring closing type. The bottom of the receptacle is boning stiffened on the inside, and to this is attached a chamois powder pocket. A short ribbon strap partially attaches to the chamois pocket a powder puff that is backed by a metal framed mirror of two inch diameter.

In addition to a pin and needle cushion and two tiny rolls holding black and white sewing silk, the bag holds a unique receptacle for a complete manicuring equipment. This consists of a gilt, nickel, silver or oxidised copper case containing a short and slender hollow padded nail buffer fitted with a spring fastening which, when pressed, reveals a small orangewood stick, a nail file, tiny scissors, a package of emery boards, enamelling and polishing preparations.

There is also a device of metal, one-half by one and a half inches in diameter, for holding perfumery, medicine or salts, to the limit of about a teaspoonful. These receptacles for liquids have a daintily chased, cork lined gold or silver top equipped with a thread which mates with the top of a tiny glass bottle having a screw collar.

Useful and Practical Hints Every One Should Know

ENAMEL and gilt picture frames are once more in vogue, and at the seashore, where dampness plays havoc with all brocade and chintz frames that are put together in part with paste or glue, these painted frames are altogether best. All kinds of fancy gilt and wooden picture frames are easily renovated at small cost, while for a room of delicate shade, as pale pink, blue, yellow or gray, it is a good plan to buy a number of plain wooden picture frames and enamel them one's self all in the one color. In a white room white frames, bordered perhaps with a narrow line of gold, will be found to be extremely pretty.

It is a mistake to take handsome silver picture frames to the seashore, where the dampness renders it well-nigh impossible to keep them bright, and in a country house, which is planned on a more or less simple scale, the less costly though almost as effective frames will be the more in keeping.

IN warm weather, especially at the seashore, it is impossible to keep postage stamps save between sheets of oiled paper. The economical girl will, however, grudge losing a whole stamp on each of the 25 cent books she may purchase, besides being annoyed by the fact that the stamp book is itself such an ugly ornament on her desk. Both objections can be done away with by simply pasting on each side of one stamp book a pretty piece of wall paper that tones in with the color decoration of her room, and by buying her stamps thereafter separately and placing them in this little book.

The covers of the books, which can now be purchased containing room for from twelve to fifty stamps, are also sufficiently firm to make a foundation for a little slip cover of silk or chintz, and these, of course, can be readily removed and washed. Besides being attractive for her own desk, these covered stamp books make excellent articles for summer fairs and will be found useful as well for prizes at the informal card and game parties which a girl gives so often during the summer time.

EUCHRE is a game which seems to be coming into favor again, and for six or seven persons there is no other card game so good.

Euchre should, of course, be played with the regular markers designed especially for this game—blue, red and white counters, with larger ones to designate the partners, which are each time selected by the player making the highest bid. Since, therefore, euchre is once more popular, every girl should keep apart one euchre pack of cards and a complete set of counters. For these counters nothing is so attractive as ribbon bags—one large one holding all counters to commence with and a small one of the same ribbon for each individual player.

The individual bags should be about three by four inches, the large one double that size. If an effective flowered brocade or plain colored satin ribbon is selected with running strings of baby ribbon or silken cord these bags will themselves prove an inducement to one's friends to join in the game. For a euchre party no prize could be more appropriate nor acceptable than one of these sets of bags—a large and seven small ones of pretty ribbon neatly sewed and finished.

IT is not the thing this summer to have the parasol match the frock. Instead it must match the hat, and nothing could be prettier than the colored chiffons, muslins, linens and laces that are precisely of the same fabric as the hat when possible, and when not they match in color. Girls with left over parasols can utilise them by having their hats made to match instead of buying the sunshade to match the hat, and so be in the very latest fashion.

Some Aids in Arranging Flowers.

IT is an excellent plan to have for every large bowl and jardiniere a papier maché vase which, fitting inside the wider bowl, is not visible and besides holds the flowers stiffly and well. These vases are delightfully light, even when filled with water, and are especially good when it is desired to arrange long stemmed flowers or branches of shrubs. Frequently, too, in many country houses one sees these papier maché vases used in place of the more costly and more perishable glass and valuable china vases. Painted a dark green or brown, whichever harmonises best with the coloring of the room, they are far from ugly—preferable, in fact, to any badly shaped or inharmoniously toned vase.

To simplify the arranging of the flowers after they are brought into the house there are to be had most serviceable sets of pail and water pitcher in attractive coloring, both of the light, easily portable papier maché. The flowers may be placed in the pail of water until a convenient time to sort and arrange them in their separate vases, and the pitcher should be filled by the maid or man servant and placed beside the pail of flowers. It will then be an easy task to separate the varied assortment as picked and sent in by the gardener, and by clipping the ends directly into the pail considerable work will be saved in cleaning up afterward. When the vases to be used have been decided upon they can be filled with ease from the pitcher, which has been placed close at hand.

A flat wicker basket standing on a tripod some three feet from the ground will also be found a convenience in arranging flowers that have been brought in fresh from the garden. Instead of having to clear off a large table for the purpose, which often causes no little untidiness in a room, all stray leaves, stems, &c., will be left in the basket, which is so light that it can be easily taken from the room to be cleared up and made ready for the next day.

Zodiac Jewelry.

THERE is a craze for jewelry designed to represent the signs of the Zodiac, and the beautifully wrought symbols are said to bring the owners thereof marvellous good fortune. Probably, in a vague way, every girl knows about the signs, but it behooves her now to brush up her knowledge, that she may be conversant with the exact significance of the popular jewelry which bears these quaint designs.

He, She and the Imp.

By A. C. ROWSEY.

He went to breakfast fully prepared and determined to speak about it. When half through the meal he compromised with himself—he would just hint.

Yet the evening came—with it his laundry and the landlady, and the hint was not yet given.

Mrs. Halstead was the landlady, or "the mother of two, the relict of three," as the cheerful idiot in the hall room epitomized her. "He was only a counter jumper," the landlady scornfully remarked before she [illegible] him.

Mrs. Halstead had watched the old man all day. In her mind he had been construed and reconstrued into a possible fourth in the "also ran" class, whereby she should change her name—and later wear crape. For three months at one time she had flutterings around the heart because of an air of embarrassment about him when he looked at her. Finally he told her about some mice that had invaded his closet. In her eyes it was evidently only a hasty excuse when his courage failed him.

The "old chump," as she called him, had recently assumed mourning and remained in his room all day. These two things urged Mrs. Halstead to encourage him to speak his mind, arguing quite accurately that some one had died and he had inherited.

So she plumped herself in a chair after laying the laundry on the bed. Grimly she waited.

Mr. Peters was rejoiced at her lingering.

The lean old man paced the floor, favoring her at every turn with a look of indecision.

"Mrs. Halstead," he began hesitatingly—he seemed to be talking to the rosebuds on the carpet—"I have—hem—wanted to speak to you about"— He flushed, closed his thin lips obstinately and continued his walk irresolutely.

"Was there ever such an old fool?" she said to herself under cover of her apron. Her face had a habit of perspiring under mental pressure. "About?" she queried in her smoothest tone. Her supplemental toilet was finished.

"Yes, about"— His heart forsook him. "Well, I guess another time will do, Mrs. Halstead." He sat down, trembling.

In the glare that she threw at the back of his bald head the orange blossoms were drooping, drooping and going.

"Now, Mr. Peters," she coaxed, "hadn't you better get it off your mind once and for all? I knowed you wanted to say—something"—oh, the coy ways of forty-five years and 180 pounds—"and—and couldn't jest get the hang of it—how to say it, I mean."

Her words were very grateful to him.

"Perhaps you are right. Only I thought—it might—be considered—er—eccentric—er—imbecilic—senile"—

"I'd like to see any one say so, sir."

R. HICKS Manager

she practised like a porcupine, or as only a landlady can. "They would not stay in this house and say it. Besides, I think every—every one"—shyly—"rather expects it."

"Oh, indeed! Well, I am sure—still, it is very gratifying—very, very," said the old man. "You see, the newspapers say there are 300 of them to choose from. Do you think you could get a nice, pretty one—for me?"

She was bewildered, but not entirely nonplused. From experience she knew the old man had a habit of speaking "adjacent thoughts" aloud.

"You won't mind the children?" endeavoring to bring him around to the main chance and at the same time ascertain the future status of her two little darlings.

"Why, bless you, no!" he exclaimed. "I love children—always have—er—good ones. Now that I feel financially able to care for one I want to indulge myself. It has been the dream of my life." The old man was talking to himself. "I have lived a lonesome life. I never had a hobby, like other men, except this." Then he turned to her. "I prefer a boy, not too old—two or three years, I trust, would be old enough; also, while I think of it, I will pay you for any trouble he may cause you." Mr. Peters drew forth his wallet. His face was full of a tremulous excitement.

Mrs. Halstead mentally heard a dull thud as the bottom fell out of her hopes. But she did not show it when the old man placed a bill and a newspaper clipping in her palm and dismissed her with: "Please get him tomorrow, poor little chap! I suppose they feed them on bread and water. He must be hungry." For, if the truth be known, the old man had in his early youth been an item of public expense owing to the bibulous habits of his male progenitor.

A forlorn hope presented itself to her. "Why, Mr. Peters, why don't you get married and"— Her modesty would not allow her to proceed.

"Bless my soul!" And he scratched his bald head dubiously, then meditatively. Presently he gazed at her attentively. "I don't know—I—never thought of it." She fluttered with the quiet agitation of her weight, age and experience. "Hem! Well, I'll—it won't make any difference. I'll try the boy first."

It was a month later. He sat with his knees wide spread and his elbows resting on their bony knobs. His heels were hooked in the rung of his chair, and his careworn old face rested in the palms of his upturned hands. In front of him, on another chair, was the youngster Robbie, crying.

"What is the matter with him—now?" the old man asked himself wearily. The child yelled. The foster father clawed his ears with his wrinkled hands and hoped in a despairing fashion that Mrs. Halstead would come to the rescue. Then he dreaded her look of disapproval at the mess around the child. Toys of every description—pictures and picture books, his watch, fancy bottle stoppers, about everything not nailed was there. Still the imp cried: "Mamma! Mamma! Yobbie wants mamma!" Yell! Yell! Y-e-l-l!

The little spinster dressmaker who lived in the hall room passed the door just as Robbie achieved a brilliant chef d'oeuvre of yells. She skipped by in a scared manner, hurriedly inserted the key in her door and vanished. Peters and she had never exchanged a word, although he had occupied his room ten years and she had been in hers a year before. He was prejudiced against her in those early days because she ran a sewing machine sometimes at night. The cause had ceased to exist, but the prejudice still clung to him, although he never protested against her. She on her part had grown to regard him as a gruff old ogre, past whose door she always hastened.

This afternoon he actually yearned for her or Mrs. Halstead or any woman to soothe the youngster. He sat there wondering if she knew anything about children. He hesitated. Robbie began to take in air for another outburst. Peters darted into the hall and knocked timidly at her door.

A few minutes later the child was sobbing on her breast, pouring out his tale of woe in indistinguishable syllables, while the distrusted Peters walked the floor, eying the imp apprehensively. Miss Robinson held the child tenderly, absorbed in her office. The foster father was entirely out of the picture. The little woman loved children dearly.

* * * * * * *

Mr. Peters read the letter and heaved a sigh of relief. It was from his niece and contained an invitation to make his home with her. He had never seen his niece until the executor of the estate introduced her at a meeting of the heirs.

Mrs. Halstead came in person to make his bed. The signs displayed at the breakfast table had actually made her blush and the boarders stare. Such looks, such smiles!

"Mrs. Halstead," he began briskly—her portly form was bent with tucking in the clothes—"I am thinking of making a change in my life—a great change." He paused for encouragement.

"Yes?" sweetly.

"Now—you see—Robbie and this woman next door—Miss Robinson—she—I supposed women have—hem—great ways with children." War clouds gathered on the widow's face. "And I"—

"Not Miss Robinson?" exclaimed the landlady.

"Bless me, yes!" He looked at her in astonishment.

"Well, I declare!" Out of the door she flounced, with blood in her eye.

"Now, what is the matter with her?" he asked himself, rubbing his glasses and peering down the hall. "What strange creatures women are!"

He had intended telling her that from the way Robbie took to the spinster it seemed best to provide female care for him in the person of his niece.

"Papa," called Robbie. The old man started. The boy had kicked the covers from his cot. Mr. Peters looked gravely down at him.

"You—you little imp!" commented Peters, with a smile. "Do you know?"

* * * * * * *

His niece went out of the room with her nose held high in air. He shook his fist with latent rage at her vanishing form. The idea! Send the boy back because, forsooth, she didn't like children!

The muffled sound of sobs came to his ears from Miss Robinson's room. He felt the hush of "the great idea."

"I—Mrs. Halstead—ordered me—to move!" the spinster explained tearfully when she answered his knock. "It—seems so like—like home."

Then he managed to get out "the great idea." She? Oh—well—for love—of the—boy—yes.

Curious Chinese Prejudice.

A curious illustration of oriental prejudice was recently afforded in the experience of London banks having occasion to forward large sums of gold coin to China. It was ascertained that the Chinese would accept no sovereigns bearing the famous St. George and the dragon on the reverse side, as the dragon plays an important role in matters religious in the Flowery Kingdom, and its representation on the English coins is abhorrent to the Celestial mind. The London consignees were therefore obliged to select older coins, bearing on the reverse side a shield instead of the aforementioned dragon. A queer result of this is that the older coins are now quite scarce in Great Britain, only about 5,000 remaining in general circulation. Thus it may be that at some future time the British government may have to mint a special variety of sovereign for shipment to the orientals, a variety that shall in nowise offend the susceptibilities of those desirable patrons.—New York Tribune.

Kubelik's Most Treasured Gifts.

Two of the most treasured possessions of the violinist Kubelik are a cross of the Gregory order and a rosary, both of which were presented to him by the late Pope Leo XIII.

"The cross I give you," said the pope on that occasion, "because you are a master of your art, the rosary to remind you that there are things more precious than fame."

WHEN WOMEN REGISTER.

A Hotel Clerk Explains Why a Blotter is Necessary.

"Hotel clerks get to be great observers of human nature," said an old hotel "lobbyist." "During the many hours out of each day that I spend warming this chair I have learned many tricks of their trade which go to prove my statement.

"In fact, this clerk here has a peculiar trick of his own which shows how keen an observer he is. If you watch him at work you will find whenever a woman is registering he holds a blotter so as to hide the other names on the page. At first when I noticed it I thought that he was merely holding the blotter in readiness to use it on the newly written name, but when I found that he did it only when a woman was registering my curiosity got the better of me, and I asked the reason.

"'Why,' said he, 'women are the most nervous creatures in the world. I hold that blotter up to show that I am not watching them write their names and at the same time to keep them from trying to excel the other handwriting on the page. If they noticed that I was watching them closely it is a safe bet that they would get nervous and make an awful botch of their signatures trying to be fancy. On the other hand, if they saw a particularly pretty signature on the next line the chances are that they would try to improve theirs with a flourish or two, which generally means a choice blot to be scratched out by yours truly.'

"I decided to test his theory by looking over a woman's shoulder while she registered. The result was just what he said it would be."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

LEPROSY.

After One Ravage the Disease May Lie Dormant For Years.

The leper in the settlement at Molokai is far better off than the leper who lies in hiding outside. Such a leper is a lonely outcast, living in constant fear of discovery and slowly and surely rotting away. The action of leprosy is not steady. It lays hold of its victim, commits a ravage and then lies dormant for an indeterminate period. It may not commit another ravage for five years or ten years or forty years, and the patient may enjoy uninterrupted good health. Rarely, however, do these first ravages cease of themselves. The skilled surgeon is required, and the skilled surgeon cannot be called in for the leper who is in hiding. For instance, the first ravage may take the form of a perforating ulcer in the sole of the foot. When the bone is reached necrosis sets in. If the leper is in hiding he cannot be operated upon, the necrosis will continue to eat its way up the bone of the leg, and in a brief and horrible time that leper will die of gangrene or some other terrible complication. On the other hand, if that same leper is in Molokai the surgeon will operate upon the foot, remove the ulcer, cleanse the bone and put a complete stop to that particular ravage of the disease. A month after the operation the leper will be out riding on horseback, running foot races, swimming in the breakers or climbing the giddy sides of the valleys for mountain apples. And, as has been stated before, the disease, lying dormant, may not again attack him for five, ten or forty years.—Jack London in Contemporary Review.

Queer Cases of Jilt.

A well known novelist was once jilted by a girl who took exception to the inadequate punishment meted out to one of his fictitious villains. She declared that as he regarded vice with so lenient an eye he must himself be at heart a reprobate and unworthy of true love and that she must request that their acquaintance cease.

An eminent lawyer in his younger days met with a similar mishap. The lady to whom he was engaged, chancing to hear that he had delivered a most skillful though futile speech in defense of an arrant rogue, wrote, saying that she must decline to know one who could thus strive to speciously excuse crime. In return he pleaded the exigencies of the profession, but in vain. The lady was obdurate and soon afterward, by the strange irony of fate, married a man who was ultimately convicted of gross fraud, mainly through the forensic eloquence of her former lover.

Everything She Ate SEEMED A BURDEN TO CARRY.

BAD STOMACH TROUBLE FOUR YEARS.

When your food has not been properly digested, your body has not received the benefit it should. The exertions of the gastric juice have been confined entirely to removing the unmasticated undigested portions of food which they cannot properly digest as speedily as possible from the body, thereby only giving the blood a small percentage of nourishment with which to feed the tissues. Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the bowels, promotes perfect digestion, makes pure blood, tones the stomach, and thus restores perfect health and strength to the debilitated system.

Mrs. D. A. Francisco, Rossland, B.C., writes: "I was suffering from stomach trouble of the worst kind for about four years. Everything I ate seemed a burden to carry. I always arose in the morning with a sickening and feverish taste in my mouth and was also troubled with swellings in my hands and feet, which my physician said was due to the disordered state of my stomach. I tried everything that was purchasable, and also consulted two or three physicians, but could find no relief until one of my neighbors told me of a wonderful cure by Burdock Blood Bitters. I used altogether ten bottles and am now perfectly cured. I wish to recommend B.B.B. to anyone who may be as unfortunate as I was."

Our success in fitting Trusses is phenomenal. Yet it is not to be wondered at. For 40 years, we have studied, tested, examined, invented. To-day, we guarantee to fit every ruptured person with a truss, that is not only easy and comfortable, but also a truss that will retain the rupture.

Our Artificial Limbs enable those — who have lost one or both legs — to walk, ride bicycle, and even skate.

Other helps for Spinal Curvature, Ununited Fractures, and other deformities, are made to order. If you are afflicted in any way, write us for the appliance to help you.

When you buy Paint, get the real thing

It is extravagant and foolish to buy and pay for paint, and instead of paint, get a mixture containing cheap adulterants.

Pure paint—the real thing—spreads easier, covers more surface (and covers it better) and wears longer than adulterated paint. Pure paint is far more economical to use. Pure paint gives the handsomest finish.

Pure paint insures you against paint "troubles", the cracking, the peeling, scaling, etc. that comes from the use of impurities.

"English" Liquid Paint is pure paint—made from 70% pure white lead (Brandram's B.B. Genuine) 30% pure zinc white, pure linseed oil, pure turpentine and dryer. It will give you the greatest satisfaction and save you money on your paint bill.

Made by Brandram-Henderson Limited, in 45 shades in addition to black and white. Come in for a color card. 3

FIRES GAIN GROUND.

Flames Are Causing Heavy Damage In Interior of N.B.

St. John, N.B., June 9.—A rising wind yesterday gave new impetus to the forest fires which are scourging the interior of New Brunswick. In Carelton, Madawaska and Victoria Counties the situation is particularly serious. Over 2,000 men in these districts are fighting the flames, but in spite of their efforts great destruction is being wrought in valuable timber limits and several small mills and outlying farms have been destroyed. The fire is so close to the C.P.R. branch railway in this district that the paint was scorched on cars passing through there yesterday.

Fredericton Junction, a village on the main C.P.R. line, about 40 miles from here, narrowly escaped extinction yesterday. A fire supposed to be extinct since nearly a fortnight ago was fanned into fury by the high wind and from the burning brush the flames leaped to the mill house and stables of John Scott, consuming them. From there the flames spread to other dwelling houses; several caught fire, but by great efforts all were saved, though about a dozen barns, being more inflammable, were burned. The men lost all their live stock. This fire at present seems under control, as the wind last night has died down, but the residents are awake and watchful.

Will Be Contest In Waterloo.

Berlin, June 9.—The writ has been issued for the North Waterloo bye-election. Nominations will be on Monday, June 21, and polling a week later.

The Conservative executive meets this afternoon to decide whether or not to nominate a candidate to oppose Mackenzie King, but the likelihood is they will not do so. Sentiment among Berlin Conservatives is against such action, although in Waterloo there is considerable feeling in favor of making King fight for the seat and there is talk of trying to induce one of the Seagrams to run.

In any event there will be an election, for ex-Mayor Allen Huber announces that he will again contest the riding. In the last election he also ran, with a total of 153 votes.

Lady Aberdeen In Boston.

Boston, June 9.—While Lady Aberdeen was being feted by prominent people of the city and state in Boston yesterday, members of the Boston Gaelic School were circulating a statement that her ladyship was not in America for the sole purpose of assisting in the battle against tuberculosis; but that she had a sinister motive, a motive unfriendly to Ireland and Irish interests.

When the facts were brought to the attention of Lady Aberdeen last night she expressed great surprise.

"It is absurd," she declared, "I am doing everything I possibly can to help Irish industries, and nothing could be further from my mind than any plan inimicable to Irish interests."

AN IMPERIAL NAVY IS ADVOCATED

Lord Lyttleton Addresses Imperial Press Conference.

ASK FOR NO CONTRIBUTIONS

British Statesmen Declares That People of Motherland Would Prefer to Have the Colonies Provide Warships Manned With Their Own People—Must Avoid Publishing Harmful News in War.

London, June 9.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Imperial Press Conference discussed "The Press and the Empire" yesterday. Right Hon. Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty, presided. Lord Cromer, Sir Edward Grey and Lord Lyttleton were among those present.

The following was the resolution:

"That it is the duty of the press to do everything in its power to co-operate with the naval and military authorities in organising the defences of the Empire, and to take all possible precautions to avoid injury to the public interest in publishing news in time of war;

"That it is desirable that the press of the British colonies should act in concert in the wise direction of emigration."

Mr. McKenna anticipated that as a result of the conference ideas would be cleared and the way be opened. He dealt exclusively with naval supremacy and admitted the diversity of local naval problems to British naval defence, which covered the whole globe.

"We cannot," he said, "force our strategic ideas upon you. We should fail if we attempted it. If you come and ask us we shall be ready to answer you, but we should not necessarily expect you to accept that answer. It is only by working out your problems yourselves that you can gain the experience we have gained.

"We will assist by every method in our power, no matter what is the method by which we are asked to assist. Out of this process of self-development in every dominion we will all come to the same idea, namely, the maintenance of supremacy at sea, which means the maintenance of supremacy on all seas alike."

Mr. McKenna concluded with an appeal to the press to maintain the navy above party discussions.

Sir Edward Grey outlined with humorous vagrancies the British foreign policy. It was "to keep all we have got; to consolidate and develop, and to quarrel as little as possible with other peoples, and to uphold in the councils of the world the ideals of Great Britain. With so much at stake, the maintenance of the navy must be the first consideration, not only for the Home Government, but for all the self-governing dominions of the Empire. "If the navy fails," declared the Foreign Secretary, "it will be useless to discuss any other subject."

He concluded by endorsing all that Lord Rosebery said in respect to the European situation. "Excessive expenditure on armaments made the weather very sultry," he observed.

Sir Edward deprecated the idea that the Foreign Office was more prone to compromise where the interests of the self-governing colonies were concerned than in cases where they were not directly affected. Rather the opposite was the case. (Applause.)

Lord Cromer also spoke, and Sir Joseph Ward of Sydney vigorously urged overseas assistance to the Imperial navy.

Mr. Gwynne of The London Standard deprecated any happy-go-lucky naval policy. He advocated an Imperial navy.

Mr. Park of The Cape Town Times anticipated that when union was completed in South Africa it would do more for the navy.

Lord Lyttleton deprecated the plan of annual contributions to the Imperial navy. He reiterated that Great Britain would spend her last shilling in the construction of Dreadnoughts in defence of the Empire, but times and circumstances had changed since Trafalgar.

The time might come for overseas assistance in some tremendous struggle, and the future of the Empire might depend upon its units and its consolidation for defence. He thought monetary contributions should take the form of the cost of a warship, and the contributors' ideal should be ultimately to man it with natives, so that it should form a nucleus for its naval aspirations.

The discussion was then adjourned.

CLING TO HOPE FOR UNION OF CHURCHES

Church Union Now In Hands of Presbyterian Congregations.

TO VOTE SIMULTANEOUSLY

Intention Is That the Three Churches Take Expression of Opinion on the Matter at the Same Time—Principal Patrick's Resolution Is Passed After Hard Fight by a Big Majority Yesterday.

Hamilton, June 9.—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church declined yesterday to turn its back on the negotiations for union. By an overwhelming majority, the vote being 189 to 42, it accepted the declaration of the joint committee that a practical basis of union had been arrived at, and decided to send down the report of the committee embodying that basis to the Presbyteries, Sessions and congregations for their information. Thus for the time being the question, so far as the Presbyterian Church is concerned, passes from the sphere of negotiation and the hands of dosters of divinity to the people of the Church, and another forward step in the movement has been taken. The resolution carried does not mean that the people will be asked to vote upon the issue in the immediate future. The view of the joint committee is that the voting should take place simultaneously in the three Churches, and as the General Conference of the Methodist Church will not meet until September, 1910, the judgment of the Church at large will not be sought before that date. The whole question will come up again at next year's General Assembly, the Presbyteries, Sessions and congregations in the interval being given an opportunity to be fully seized with the doctrine, polity and scheme of administration adopted by the joint committee. The closing stages of the debate yesterday were marked by forcible speeches by Rev. Dr. Sedgwick, Rev. Dr. J. Pringle, and Mr. Edward Brown, the former Liberal leader in Manitoba, and by an able summing up on the part of Principal Patrick. In the afternoon and evening excellent progress was made with the business on the agenda, the reports of a number of committees being disposed of.

A Glimpse of Mrs. Eddy.

Boston, Mass., June 9.—Because of assertions that Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy "is either dead or a helpless, mindless puppet in the hands of conscienceless men," leaders of the Christian Science Church invited a delegation of twelve newspaper men to see the founder of the church.

WOUNDS ARE HEALING

William Reid, the young C. P. R. fireman, who was injured a week ago Monday night at Myrtle station, is still in a precarious condition. It will be remembered that he met with an accident while coming east on the local on which he was fireman, and was brought on to Peterborough. He has been under Dr. Gray's care at the Nicholls Hospital and is doing as well as could be expected, but is by no means past the danger zone. He is suffering from concussion of the brain and is still delirious, not having gained consciousness. His wounds are healing satisfactorily, and great hope is held out for his complete recovery, although it will not be for many weeks yet. A nurse is constantly with him to guard him in his delirium.

RAILROAD KING TAKES WIFE ON LONG JAUNT IN EUROPE

E. H. HARRIMAN AND WIFE, JUST BEFORE SAILING.

New York, June 9.—"I'm going away for a jaunt through Europe. It isn't a rest and it isn't a search for health. It's just a pleasure trip."

So E. H. Harriman, as he stood with Mrs. Harriman on the deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm II, described the trip which he is to make with his wife.

This photograph was taken after he told a great crowd of reporters that times were getting very much better.

Eight New Cottages Have Been Erected At Stony Lake This Spring

The season at Stony Lake so far this summer has been busier than up ot this time in any previous year. That is what the steamboat men say and the lakes promise to be more popular than ever before. The number of new cottages that have been erected or are at present in the course of erection, is large. A young man who spent Sunday at the lakes, stated to an Examiner reporter last night that he had counted eight new cottages between Sandy Point and "Kiluna," the home of Hon. Mr. Graham, of Porto Rico. Mr. and Mrs. Graham and family are at present at the lakes. Mr. T. H. G. Denne will have about as fine a summer residence as any at Stony Lake, when his new one is completed. It is built on the island formerly owned by Dr. Morrison, but which was purchased by Mr. Denne at the close of last season.

Bay Of Quinte Conference Discusses Horse Racing

Belleville, June 9th—On the closing day of the Bay of Quinte Conference considerable business was transacted.

In the morning the report of the Temeprance and Moral Reform Committee was presented. The report recomended these changes in the law:

That there be shorter hours for the sale of liquor in licensed places, and that the Government grant local option on this question.

To empower the Province to make use of the intermediate sentence, and the probation system for crime.

To prohibit race track gambling.

To make more stringent the law for printing and circulating indecent and immoral pictures.

To prohibit the manufacture and sale of cigarettes.

Rev. W. Down and R. Knox, of Orono, were appointed representatives on the General Board of Temperance and Moral Reform.

In the afternoon there was an impressive memorial service, in which a number of the ministers took part. During the year six members of the Conference had passed away, namely Rev. Dr. Gardner, Rev. Dr. Galbraith, Revs. E. L. Bowerman, D. O. Crossley, W. Coombe and W. H. Cook. Eulogies of these departed brethren were given.

EAST CITY MAN WANTS SOME PROTECTION AGAINST INFECTION

Peterborough, June 9, 1909.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would ask space in your paper to call the attention of the authorities to the glaring laxity of the officials in enforcing the law in connection with contagious diseases in East iCty and I suppose in other portions of the city.

I know of cases of scarlet fever for instance where there is absolutely no restriction on those connected therewith, and children are allowed to pass in and out of thise houses freely, are to be seen playing with others and indeed I understand some of them are attending school.

Parents in those homes are also guilty of gross carelessness and indifference for the welfare of others, because it does not suit their convenience to carry out the requirements of the law.

I say that those parties should be severely dealt with and some of them given the full penalty of the law in order to bring them to their senses.

Why are the officials not looking after those cases or are there any officials whose duty it is to attend to those parties? We are told that there is a penalty if the law is not observed, but of what avail is the penalty or fine if the law is constantly broken without any action being taken and our children daily in danger from those diseases.

The penalty might just as well be $1,000 as $25.00 for the reason that the law is not carried out. The whole thing is simply becoming intolerable for those who have little ones, and those people should be given to understand that they must observe the law.

It seems that so far as the officials are concerned their duty is done after they tack up a red placard on the houses effected.

How I hope the Board of Health will immediately waken up and take some vigorous action in order to stamp out those diseases which are now prevalent and endeavour to prevent their becoming widespread.

At present there are no precautions taken, there is no restriction on those connected with the homes affected and so far as the enforcement of the law is concerned the whole thing is a farce.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

Yours truly,

EAST CITY.

Body May Not Be That of Armstrong—Dr. Gray Receives Communications From Brantford And Ottawa Regarding Missing Men.

INQUEST ON FRIDAY.

Was the body that was found in the river last week that of a man named Armstrong? This question has not been definitely settled, although there are a number who have seen it and have expressed themselves as certain that their identification is correct.

Dr. Grey has received several communications from out of town in which information is asked regarding the body. Those who have gone to that trouble state that the description answers to that of men they know. A man by he name of Miracle, of Brantford, called up Dr. Gray to the effect that the description tallied with that of his brother who had gone away suddenly in the winter and had not been since heard from.

Ottawa Communication.

Mr. R. G. Eddy, of Ottawa, has written Dr. Gray, stating that he had read the description in the Ottawa Free Press, and it closely corresponded with that of Peter Robison, of that city, who had disappeared about four months ago, and had not been heard from since. He was 5 ft. 8 in. high, 54 years of age, bald, wore an overcoat, had small hands and feet, and had a "sandy" moustache. All of these details are similar to those of the man found in the river.

Dr. Gray is inclined to think that the Armstrong identification is correct, although he is not at all decided. The question will be carefully considered on Friday evening at the inquest to be held at the Orange Hall, Fraserville. The body has not yet been interred, it is understood, in order that those wishing to see it, for identification purposes may do so.

CAMPBELLFORD'S TOLL FROM LIQUOR CASES

$355 in Fines and Costs Since the Opening of the New Year.

Two more cases of illegal sale of liquor have been disposed of during the past week. On the evidence of one Dunn charges were laid by Constable Linn against the Queen's and Windsor Hotels for selling intoxicants.

The cases did not go to court as the parties pleaded guilty and Magistrate Payne imposed a fine of $105 each and costs. This makes four cases of this kind which have come before our police magistrate since the new year, and the aggregate fines amount to $355, and costs. This fact should cause others to reflect before putting themselves in a similar position.

The fines for this offence are set by the statute and now the maximum is $200. All the cases so far have been brought up by our local police, to whom much credit is due for his vigilence.—Campbellford Herald.

Ford Cars Make Fine Showing In Trials Of Long Road Race

Ald. J. J. Duffus has received the following letter from the Ford Motor Co., of Walkerville:

Dear Sir,—As you are probably aware the Transcontinental Trip for the Guggenheim Trophy started June 1st.

The only cars starting were two Fords, an Itala 45 h.p., an Acme, 50 h.p., and a Shawmut. Some fifteen odd cars entered but owing to bad weather and the fact that the pathfinder was unable to get through the mountains and had to be shipped back, several of them withdrew, using as an excuse the fact that the manufacturers were opposed to any such contest, with the result that only five started.

These cars ran together as far as Buffalo where they ran into a very heavy rainstorm, and the two Fords reached Toledo from Buffalo about five hours in advance. Sunday they reached Chicago, about seven hours in advance of the other cars. The Ford cars in each case have been ahead of schedule, notwithstanding very bad road conditions.

This morning we are in receipt of the following telegram, viz:

"Arrived St. Louis one two. 23 hours from Chicago. No news from other cars. Roads the limit. Cars and drivers stood it fine. Now for Seattle."

We will advise you from day to day as to the progress fo the trip.

From reports which have already been sent out in the "Ford Times" you will understand that from New York to St. Louis the cars were only allowed to go a certain distance each day, but from St. Louis to Seattle it will be constant driving to see how soon cars can reach there.

Eight New Cottages Have Been Erected At Stony Lake This Spring

The season at Stony Lake so far this summer has been busier than up ot this time in any previous year. That is what the steamboat men say and the lakes promise to be more popular than ever before. The number of new cottages that have been erected or are at present in the course of erection, is large. A young man who spent Sunday at the lakes, stated to an Examiner reporter last night that he had counted eight new cottages between Sandy Point and "Kilauna," the home of Hon. Mr. Graham, of Porto Rico. Mr. and Mrs. Graham and family are at present at the lakes. Mr. T. H. G. Denne will have about as fine a summer residence as any at Stony Lake, when his new one is completed. It is built on the island formerly owned by Dr. Morrison, but which was purchased by Mr. Denne at the close of last season.

To prohibit race track gambling.

To make more stringent the law for printing and circulating indecent and immoral pictures.

To prohibit the manufacture and sale of cigarettes.

Rev. W. Down and R. Knox, of Orono, were appointed representatives on the General Board of Temperance and Moral Reform.

In the afternoon there was an impressive memorial service, in which a number of the ministers took part. During the year six members of the Conference had passed away, namely Rev. Dr. Gardiner, Rev. Dr. Galbraith, Revs. E. L. Bowerman, D. O. Crossley, W. Coombe and W. H. Cook. Eulogies of these departed brethren were given.

EAST CITY MAN WANTS SOME PROTECTION AGAINST INFECTION

Peterborough, June 9, 1909.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would ask space in your paper to call the attention of the authorities to the glaring laxity of the officials in enforcing the law in connection with contagious diseases in East iCty and I suppose in other portions of the city.

I know of cases of scarlet fever for instance where there is absolutely no restriction on those connected therewith, and children are allowed to pass in and out of thise houses freely, are to be seen playing with others and indeed I understand some of them are attending school.

Parents in those homes are also guilty of gross carelessness and indifference for the welfare of others, because it does not suit their convenience to carry out the requirements of the law.

I say that those parties should be severely dealt with and some of them given the full penalty of the law in order to bring them to their senses.

Why are the officials not looking after those cases or are there any officials whose duty it is to attend to those parties? We are told that there is a penalty if the law is not observed, but of what avail is the penalty or fine if the law is constantly broken without any action being taken and our children daily in danger from those diseases.

The penalty might just as well be $1,000 as $25.00 for the reason that the law is not carried out. The whole thing is simply becoming intolerable for those who have little ones, and those people should be given to understand that they must observe the law.

It seems that so far as the officials are concerned their duty is done after they tack up a red placard on the houses effected.

How I hope the Board of Health will immediately waken up and take some vigorous action in order to stamp out those diseases which are now prevalent and endeavour to prevent their becoming widespread.

At present there are no precautions taken, there is no restriction on those connected with the homes affected and so far as the enforcement of the law is concerned the whole thing is a farce.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

Yours truly,

EAST CITY.

PICTURE FOR CITY LEAGUE SLUGGERS

Belleghem Furniture Company Will Give Handsome One to Batter Who First Makes Three Two-Baggers.

The Senior City League heavy hitters will have another stimulus to slug the ball just now, as in addition to the box of cigars offered by Mr. W. A. Talbot for the first home run, the Belleghem Furniture Company will give a handsome picture for the first batter who gets three two-baggers. This will give the boys something to get after and the pitchers' troubles will be redoubled. Four batters, Kirn and Minorgan of the West Ends, and Kendry and Craig, of the Strathconas, got away to a good start on Saturday, by getting a two-bagger each, and they are leading in the race just now.

IMBECILE PATRIOTISM.

Loyalt yof the flamboyant and pyrotechnic kind may not do much in building up a nation, but our American cousins are quite willing to lay themselves as sacrifices on its altar. The glorious fourth—the gory fourth would be an apter title—is coming around again and will doubtless contribute a big tally of killed, wounded and missing. It will be interesting to recall, by the help of the Journal of the American Medical Association, the fatalities and accidents for a few years. For the years from 1903 to 1908, inclusive, 1,316 were killed or died of teanic sequelae, and 27,198 were maimed and wounded equal to the population of a city of 30,000. The loyalty that expresses itself in creditable performance of the duties of citizenship is much more sane than that which is demonstrated by indiscriminate slaughter. The man or boy that blows himself up with giant squibs or other deadly detonators is not one whit more loyal than the man or boy that tends to his plough-[illegible] or goes fishing on the Fourth of July.

COBALT BLIND PIGS.

The Cobalt Citizen tells how the "blind pigs" in Cobalt circumvent the promise of the Whitney Government that no liquor should be allowed to be sold in New Ontario. It says:

"Beyond the raising of Provincial revenue, the muleting and penalizing of those engaged in the business of satisfying a legitimate want on the part of a large section of people has accomplished nothing. There are as many blind pigs in Cobalt to-day as there were before the raid. I have it on the best of authority that there were forty-two underground "joints" selling spirituous liquors and sixty-four refreshment houses dispensing alleged two per cent. beer, or one-hunderd and six virtual blind pigs in active operation in Cobalt on Friday of last week, ten days after the raid had taken place. Think of it—over one hundred dives in a town of the size of Cobalt ,each violating the law, outwitting the police, and pumping hundreds of gallons of slop, the product of unbridled poison mixers, into the stomachs of thousands of respectable men!"

EDITORIAL NOTES.

On Monday night a campaign began in Montreal ot raise $300,000 to double the capacity and improve the Y. M. C. A. building, Dominion Square, Montreal.

Lord Roseberry says "that the Old Country is right at heart, that there is no failing or weakness in her, and that she rejoices in renewing her youth in her giant dominions beyond the seas." This, doubtless, represents the conditions and also the sentiment of nine-tenths of the people of Great Britain, of all except a few political extremists who seem to have been smitten with the hysteria of the suffragettes.

The Montreal Gazette in its news columns mentions as a proof of the excellent manner in which the St. Lawrence channel is now lighted that the C. P. R. steamer Lake Champlain was able to enter the port of Montreal at 10.30 p.m., the other evening. But when the Gazette's political friends "get after" Hon. L. P. Brodeur for the alleged extravagance of his department, that journal is always ready to aid them, though it knows that the St. Lawrence route has been revolutionized since 1896.

PUBLIC DEBT FALLACY

The opponents of the Liberal Government, having its seat at Ottawa, are always alert to find cause of criticism against the Government, with more or less reason, generally less. One thing used to confuse the public mind and to endeavour to discredit the Government is the fallacy of the per capita public debt.

The public debt of sCnada amounts to $331,900,859—or $45.72 per capita—Incidentally it may be observed that the per capita debt in 1896, when the present Government assumed office, was $90.89—but that is not the point under consideration. The Conservative party, following the lead of Mr. Foster, has made much of this per capita debt subject. Mr. Foster states it to be so much per head and Mr. Borden varies it by making it so much per family, about $200 he says.

The per capita debt of Canada has no practical meaning. The absurdity of the idea grows the more one considers it Examine the subject; a debt presupposes a payment at some time in the future. It is indicative of an obligation that must be discharged at some period. This view leads to a consideration of assets. If it be admitted that every person in Canada is liable for a proportion of the public debt, it must be acknowledged that every person in Canada has a vested interest in the assets of Canada.

Apply Practical Test

Apply the practical test of every day commercial life, and examine the Dominion balance sheet. The public debt of Canada is $323,000,000 or $45 per head of the population. So far so good. Now the question is, what assets do the people possess with which to discharge this liability?

This is the broad question. Inasmuch as the Conservative party advance the argument that the people are burdened with a debt of inordinate size, it would be satisfactory to arrive at certain results by scrutinizing the balance sheets of 1896, when the present Government came into power and make a comparison with the balance sheet of March 1909. This can only be done approximately, but it will serve to illustrate the contention advanced here.

The impression sought to be conveyed by the Conservative leaders is that the Liberal Government have been imprudent and extravagant, with the the result that a heavy per capita burden has been placed upon the shoulders of the people.

Suppose We Pay Debt

To make this per capita liability a real thing, and not a purely sentimental one, let us face the situation and assume that the time has come to discharge the debt. What is the first step? As the debt was contracted by the State on behalf of the people of the State, the first thing is to discover what assets the State possesses. If the State does not possess assets sufficient to discharge the liability, then would there be a personal liability? But assuming that the State has ample assets to meet all obligations then there could be no personal liability, and the idea of a per capita debt becomes meaningless.

Would Share in Equity

If it be admitted that the people are individually liable for the debts of the State, then they are equally entitled to share in the equity after all obligations are discharged Regarding it therefore, as a simple commercial question, what is the position of the people? The fact of the existence of a debt, does not imply insolvency. An individual, a corporation, a nation may have heavy obligations but the solvency of each in determined by the value of the assets each possesses. The correct financial standing of each is found in the difference between the assets and the liabilitis.

The questions to be considered are:

What was the per capita indebtedness in 1896, when Liberals assumed power?

What were the National assets in 1896?

What is the per capita indebtedness in 1909?

What are the national assets in 1909?

In discussing this subject no account is taken of individual assets or liabilities, but only such assets as belong to the State.

Comparison With 1896

In 1896 the per capita indebtedness was $50.92. The public debt was $258,497,432.

To arrive at the national assets in 1896 is somewhat difficult in consequence of the fact that the great west was not opened up and land west of the great lakes was of little value, and unsaleable for more than would pay the taxes. In public buildings, in harbours and rivers there had been expended since Confederation approximately $42,000,000. Upon canals, approximately, $75,000,000, and upon the Intercolonial Railway, approximately, $75,000,000. This would total up under $200,000,000 ,or an amount less than the public debt of that date. What value one would place upon the known agricultural land of the west in 1896 is purely conjectural. The whole of the territories were purchased for $1,500,000 some years previously and land had no recognized value because the country was uninhabited.

The condition then in 1896 was that the debt of Canada about equalled the known and recognized assets.

Comparison With 1909

In 1909 the per capita indebtedness is $45.72 and the public debt $323,960,859.

While it is somewhat easier to arrive at the visible assets in 1909 the figures must of course be approximate. Here are some of the main items:

Some Visible Assets

Surveyed lands known to be agricultural and of good quality, 50,000,000 acres at $5	$250,000,000
Unsurveyed lands known to be of equal value with above, 50,000,000 acres at $5	250,000,000
Unsurveyed land to the north of the western provinces, $150,000,000 acres at $2	300,000,000
Canals am't invented	90,000,000
Intercolonial Railway, do.	90,000,000
Public buildings, cost	33,000,000
Harbours and rivers, cost	40,000,000
Yukon gold gravels	150,000,000

The above willtotal over $1,000,000,000 or more than treble the public debt. To this may be added many other sums if it came to a question of determining the financial condition of Canada. The undeveloped mineral resources of the north, the immense timber and coal areas, and in addition Canada is a concern with an income of $90,000,000 a year, which, capitalized at 10 per cent., would represent $900,000,000 to be added to the above, making the total assets of Canada 2,000 million, or six times the total of the present public debt.

When one considers these figures and then reflects upon the per capita public debt it will be seen that after paying the per capita debt there remains a per capita equity of $900 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

Nothing But a Bugaboo

There is no such thing as per capita debt for which any person is liable. No man can be capiased if he seeks to leave the country on account of owing any proportion of the public debt. Neither can he raise money upon his interest in the quity of the State after all national liabilities are discharged. It is a misleading argument and one that may be placed in its proper place by a consideration of the figures given here. The Conservatives would have the people believe that they are made liable for $45 a head in consquence of the public debt, but they are not told that the national assets would discharge this debt six times over.

What Loan Is For

Conservative papers would make it appear that the Government is raising a loan of $50,000,000 which will be added to the public debt. These papers know better, but a political point may be gained by influencing the mind of those people who accept the statements without examination.

It was stated in the House that the Government sought authority to raise $50,000,000. What was the money intended for? Is this new money? Will the public debt be increased by this amount? Will the people be called upon to provide interest upon this additional sum? Nothing of the kind.

Outside of some $11,000,000 of temporary loans, the remainder of the $50,000,000 goes to take up two loans made by the former Conservative Government. One of $29,874,000, and the other of $17,750,000. So that about $78,000,000 of this proposed new loan is made up of debts contracted by the Conservative Government, which the present Government must provide for. This feature of the case is conveniently overlooked by the Conservative press when criticizing the financial policy of the present Government.

Catholic Foresters In Session.

Berlin, June 9.—The ninth annual session of the Catholic Order of Foresters opened yesterday, with Provincial Chief Ranger L. V. McBrady of Toronto presiding. Over 200 delegates are in attendance from all parts of the province and the Northwest, which is included in the jurisdiction of this court. Mr. McBrady is again candidate for the office he holds, but has a strong opponent in J. G. Foley, clerk of crown in chancery at Ottawa. Secretary Webb of Otiawa is also having opposition, the other candidate being Trustee Noonan of Perth. The organization includes 126 courts and 9,030 members, an increase of 658 since last meeting.

McGill Gets Fine Property.

Montreal, June 9.—The Joseph property at Sherbrooke and MacTavish streets, which was bought recently for $142,000 for a high-class hotel site, has been turned over to Sir William Macdonald, in the interests of McGill University, at cost price, by the promoters of the hotel. McGill long wished to secure the Joseph estate, which adjoins the college campus, but could not raise the funds. The hotel people will now seek another site.

Fought Duel With Swords.

Lisbon, June 9.—Domengo Canteno and Count Arseno, a former Minister, fought a fierce duel with swords in a local park yesterday. Canteno finally ran his sword through his opponent's thigh.

Great Iron Mill Burned.

Springfield, Ill., June 9.—The plant of the Decatur Cereal Co. at Decatur, Ill., one of the largest corn mills in the world, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is $650.000.

Compulsion.

Little five-year-old Bessie was telling about some medicine she had taken while ill. "Yes," she said, "I took some compulsion of cod liver oil, and"—

"You mean 'emulsion,' don't you, dear, not compulsion?" said the visitor.

"Well," rejoined Bessie, "there was a good deal of compulsion about it."—Chicago News.

Tips Costlier Than Treats.

They were going out of the Waldorf when he saw her look so longingly in at the big, beautiful roomful of white tables laden with roses that he said, "Will you go in and have a cup of tea or something?"

She assented willingly.

"Your hat and overcoat, sir," said the waiter firmly. "You are not allowed to sit in here with your overcoat on."

"But," objected he, "I shall stay only a few minutes."

"No matter, sir," said the waiter and took his hat and overcoat with an air of determination and disappeared.

"That's the third time," sighed he, "that I have started to go home, met somebody and parted from my hat and coat to treat them. If it happens again the tips to the waiters for keeping my hat and coat will amount to more than the sum I have paid for the treats."—New York Press.

A Bad Mixup.

"What's the trouble?" queried g. c. No. 2.

"I got two medical certificates from two different doctors yesterday," explained the party of the first part. "One was a certificate of health for a life insurance company, and the other was a certificate of illness to be sent to my chief with a petition for two weeks' leave of absence."

"Oh, that's nothing," rejoined his fellow clerk, "I've done that myself."

"Yes," continued the other, "but I mixed the certificates in mailing. The ill health certificate went to the insurance company and the certificate of good health went to my chief. See?"—Chicago News.

A Compositor's Blunder.

"In our last number, as we discovered unfortunately too late for correction, we announced that Mr. John Stuart Mill's inaugural address lately delivered before the University of St. Andrews had since been republished by him 'in the form of a five shilling elephant.' Even the most ardent believers in Mr. Mill's powers among our readers will probably have received this announcement with some incredulity. The fact is that by an error of the press the word 'elephant' was substituted for 'pamphlet,' and the mistake, although the proof was read and reread, unluckily escaped the corrector's eye."

Gretna Green.

Gretna Green is a parish in Scotland, just "over the border," where marriages used to be performed according to the law of Scotland. The ceremony was binding performed by a layman in the simplest form, when, being registered, the parties, in the presence of witnesses, were declared man and wife. The first person who officiated at these strange unions was George Scott, who began "his unlicensed ministry" about the year 1756.

Our Neighbors.

"We simply must move," said his wife positively. "I can't stand this place any longer."

"All right," replied her husband. "I know a flat we can get that is $5 cheaper than this one."

"Well, I should say not. If we move into that the neighbors would think we couldn't afford to stay where we are."—Detroit Free Press.

Paid It Himself.

A policeman in an English village were "cases" were rare one day came across his landlord in an incapable state. The chance was too good to be missed, so the landlord was summoned and fined to the amount of $3.50.

The fine was paid, but the policeman's feelings can be better imagined than described when, on reaching his home, he found his rent had been raised sixpence per week, and so it continued for twenty-nine weeks, when the landlord cooly informed him that "he had paid the fine, and could have his house at the former rent."

A WORLDLY MOTIVE IN CHURCH UNION

Bishop Mills Says United Church Will Come With Millennium.

IS A MATTER OF ECONOMY

Well-Known Anglican Clergyman Speaking at Ontario Diocesan Synod Declares That Most Persons Want United Church to Save Money—Signs of Division Are Rife at the Present Time.

Kingston, June 9.—Startling references to higher criticism and a plain spoken prophecy that church union is not probable this side of the millennium, were contained in the charge of Bishop Mills, delivered at the opening of the synod of the Diocese of Ontario yesterday afternoon. Said his lordship:

"Attacks are now constantly being made, not merely from without, but within the fold, not merely by open enemies, but by avowed friends, not merely against the Old Testament, but against the New; not merely against revelation, but against God. The miraculous is sneered at; even the resurrection is ridiculed as an impossibility — as the outcome of excitement and feverish imagination on the part of Christ's disciples, who had undergone such a trial and disappointment by His death. And yet there is no fact of history more clearly established, or which rests on more reliable testimony. The incarnation and the atonement are written off, and placed by not a few, in the same category in which they have placed the earlier chapters of Genesis, as belonging to myths and fables."

Of church union, Bishop Mills said: "The hungering for union, generally, is widespread in the church, and concessions to secure it, are sometimes unwisely offered. In the church in Canada, there are many even so-called High Churchmen, who think union so desirable, and so absolutely in accordance with the mind of Christ, that they are ready to make sacrifices, to which I, for one, could never consent, and I think the majority of churchmen would agree with me.

"It must be admitted that the longing for union, on the part of a great many people, rests upon a merely utilitarian basis—that is, that it would cost less to do the church's work, if all were united, than it does now. It is not so much from zeal for the glory of God, as from a desire to ease men, the removal from them of burdens which they now have to bear, and so it is a question whether to the minds of all its advocates, it is prompted by the spirit of God, and is a manifestation of the mind of Christ. The motive, with many, is undoubtedly worldly.

"Then, as regards the possibilities of union between us, and the various Protestant communions, I think there is no ground for hope. Individuals may be desirous of uniting with us, but as bodies, they are perfectly satisfied with their conditions. They regard their success as an evidence of Divine approval, and a seal of the Divine favor, proof that they are legitimate parts of the Church of Christ, though lacking, perhaps, in regular form, and historic continuity. They feel that an apostolic ministry is all very well for those who have it, but that it is not worth making sacrifices for; that it is not absolutely necessary, as their successes show; that validity may exist apart from outward form, and that visible success is the only proof of reality, and of God's favor; and, therefore some one has said, they want apostolic success, rather than apostolic succession.

"While believing that with God all things are possible, and that if He wished it, He could bring about union by a mighty miracle, I do not believe that union will ever take place before the second coming of Christ, when all things will be made new, and men shall become of one mind. Our Lord prayed for union, and His prayer was granted, but through sin that union was lost.

"The teaching of Holy Scripture is that the church, at the second coming of Christ, will be found outwardly divided. The outward framework of the church militant is to suffer shipwreck; the bone of the mystical body are to be out of joint. As it was in the days of Noah, and in the days of the destruction of the cities of the plain, so shall it be in the days immediately preceding the coming of the Son of Man. In those days the question can anxiously be asked, 'Shall He find faith on the earth, when he comes?' Unbelief will be rife and rampant; the very existence of God will be denied, the revelation He has made will be ignored. There will be no united Christendom to witness to the truth; men will be lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, and will take the old Epicurean motto as their rule of life. 'Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die.' Such is the picture which the Scriptures prophetically set before us."

Toward this condition we are fast drifting.

Rev. Canon Grout was re-elected clerical secretary; Francis King, lay secretary, and R. J. Carson, treasurer. Rev. J. O. Crisp, Col. S. C. McGill, Dr. R. V. Rogers were appointed on committee, audits and accounts. The dean and chancellor, with Dr. R. V. Rogers, were appointed delegates to the church congress at Halifax.

The treasurer's report was adopted. The consolidated fund was placed at $401,643.83, a decrease of $929.25. There was shown a gross income of nearly 4 3-4 per cent., out of which, after deducting expenses and transfer to rest account of $965 a dividend of 4 per cent. was declared, leaving a balance of $003.70. Gross income showed an increase of $494 over the previous year.

At St. George's Cathedral last night a stained glass window in memory of the late Archdeacon Patton was dedicated by Bishop Mills.

Do not neglect any of these symptoms, for, if neglected they will eventually lead to Bright's Disease, Dropsy and Diabetes.

On the first sign of anything wrong Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go to the seat of trouble, strengthen the kidneys and help them to filter the blood properly and flush off all the impurities which cause kidney trouble.

Miss Albertha B. Clarke, Stony Creek, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with kidney trouble for several years; my back was weak, I had such terrible headaches, and was so restless I could not sleep at night and tried everything without any benefit. Meantime a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got four boxes and they completely cured me. I now feel as well as I ever did—and would advise everyone suffering from Kidney Disease to try them."

Price 50 cts. per box, or 3 for $1.25, all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering specify "Doan's."

ENJOYABLE RECITAL BY THE PUPILS OF MISS GUMPRICHT

The piano recital given by the pupils of Miss Wilhelmina Gumpricht, in the Y. W. C. A. parlours last night was not only a striking testimonial to the excellence of the teaching methods so successfully adopted by the talented young teacher, but was also a most enjoyable musical event, every number of which was heartily appreciated by the large audience present. The young musicians did justice to themselves and their instructor, and acquitted themselves speindidly, their playing throughout being uniformly excellent. Miss Gumpricht was assisted by Miss Frances Manning, and Mr. Kenneth Shook, both of whom are great favourites with local audiences, and who were given a hearty reception. Miss Manning sang a delightful little song, "Love in Springtime," by Arditi, in which the splendid qualities of her rich soprano voice were artistically exhibited. Miss Manning, who was also presented with a beautiful bouquet pf flowers, was heartily encored.

Mr. Shook's solo, "The Palms," with a violoin obligato skilfully provided by Miss Hope Miller, was a splendid piece of vocalism, and an encore had to be given in response to the applause, Mr. Shook singing in a most epjoyable manner, "Because".

The audience had also an opportunity of hearing Miss Gumpricht herself in a double piano number (a) "The Two Larks" and (b) "La Gazelle Polka," in which she demonstrated most successfully her splendid ability as a pianist. Miss Gumpricht was presented with a magnificent bouquet of flowers from her pupils. Miss Gumpricht was assisted in the reception by Mrs. B. Shortly, Mrs. H. Foote, Miss Coventry and Miss McCalla.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MISS VIVIAN CLANCY

Held Yesterday Afternoon to St. Peter's Cathedral—Was Largely Attended.

The funeral of the late Miss Vivian Clancy, who passed away at her residence, Rubidge street, on Sunday afternoon, took place yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery. The funeral cortege was one of the longest that has been seen for some time, many persons turning out to pay their last respect to the memory of one who during her life time endeared herself by her acts of love and kindness.

At the Cathedral the service for the burial of the dead was said by Rev. Father McCall and Rev. Father McFadden. The members of the Sodality with which the deceased was identified were present at the Cathedral. At the grave Rev. Father Kelly and Rev. Father McFadden officiated. The pall bearers were the deceased's four brothers, Messrs. Leo, Hector, Clare and Ray, and her two cousins, Fred and Wm. Clancy. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, the late Miss Clancy being one of the city's most popular young ladies and held in the highest esteem by all. The sincerest sympathy of a host of citizens is extended to the parents and brothers in their sad bereavement.

DOWN AT THE CEMETERY NOTES OF A VISITOR

The Beautifying of Graves and Grounds Engaging the Superintendent's Chief Attention.

There is very much to interest the visitor who can spend a half hour in the Little Lake cemetery at present. The work of improving and brightening the grounds is already well advanced, and shows the results of a large amount of labour having been bestowed upon it thus far this season.

Superintendent Wise has made remarkable progress also in the preparation of the large decorative beds and in the skillful setting out of flower and foliage plants in numerous artistic designs. The pretty and ingenious combination of colourings and shades of foliage plants, in many instances, present floral effects of a distinctively symmetrical and unique character.

There is also a great deal of the work accomplished of preparing and planting the private flower beds round the graves. This work is being done by the superintendent and his men this season, with a few exceptions, and the result is that more uniform good taste is displayed in the selection of the bedding plants, and in the practical skill of laying them out.

The clean, cut grass wears a fine green shade, and is strong and healthy, while the walks have been carefully raked and put in a smooth condition.

It is expected that Decoration Day will not take place this year until some date near the beginning of July. This will be an improvement on former years, when the date was fixed too early for flowers to be plentiful.

The handsome brick residence and office of the Superintendent has been treated to a fresh coat of paint, the two being in very pleasing and harmonious colours.

The chapel is also undergoing some needed repairs and improvements, which will be much appreciated by visitors.

CELEBRATED THEIR WOODEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Young At Home to Their Friends Last Night.

A very enjoyable time was spent last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Young, 473 King street, being the fifth anniversary of their marriage. A number of their relatives and friends enjoyed themselves at progressive euchre and dancing. A dainty luncheon was served and a very pleasant evening was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Young received many happy returns of the occasion.

WEDDING BELLS

CHRISTIE—WILSON

An exceedingly pretty house wedding took place at one o'clock this afternoon at the residence of Mr. James Wilson, in Otonabee, when his youngest daughter, Miss Kathleen Mabel, was united in marriage to Dr. John Christie, of Webbwood. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., rector of St. Luke's Church in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by an excellent orchestra, the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away, entered the drawing room which was beautifully and tastefully decorated with cut flowers. The bride looked charming in a Princesse lace gown, over taffeta. She wore a bridal veil and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Violet Christie, of Duntroon, sister of the groom, was prettily attired in white organdie. She carried pink roses. Miss Helen Davidson, niece of the bride, acted as maid of honour and little Grace Wilson and Kathleen Munroe, also nieces of the bride made sweet little flower girls. The maid of honour and flower girls wore dresses of white organdie and carried baskets of flowers. The groom was supported by Dr. Leonard Simpson, of Stroud.

After the ceremony and congratulations had been bestowed upon the happy young couple, a most sumptuous wedding repast was served on the lawn. Many beautiful and costly presents were received.

Dr. and Mrs. Christie left on the 4:38 train for Toronto, where they will visit bfore going to Webbwood, where they will in future reside. Mrs. Christie travelled in a suit of raw silk with hat to match.

WESSELLS—FAUX

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the George St. Methodist parsonage at 11 o'clock this morning, when Miss Nellie May Faux, of the Township of Asphodel, was united in marriage to Mr. Herb. Wessells, of Murray Township. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson.

HAMILTON—FREDENBERG.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning at a quarter past nine, when Miss Eva May Fredenberg, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tobias Fredenberg, 473 Queen street, was united in marriage to Mr. Bert Hamilton, youngest son of Mr. Robert Hamilton, Ashburnham. The ceremony was pereformed by Rev. Father McFadden, in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride looked charming in a travelling suit of Alice blue, with a black hat.

Following the ceremony at the Cathedral, a sumptuous wedding repast was served at the residence of the bride's father ond hearty congratulations were bestowed upon the young couple.

A large number of beautiful and costly presents were received, testifying to the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton left on the 11.45 G. T. R. train for a trip to Toronto, Hamilton, and Rochester. On their return they will reside at 473 Queen street.

Largest Family on Record.

In the Harleian manuscript, No. 78 and 980, in the library of the British museum mention is made of the most extraordinary family that has ever been known in the world's history. The parties were a Scotch weaver and his wife (not wives), who were the father and mother of sixty-two children. The majority of the offspring of this prolific pair were boys—exactly how many is not known, for the record mentions the fact that forty-six of the male children lived to reach manhood's estate and only four of the daughters lived to be grownup women. Thirty-nine of the sons were still living in the year 1630, the majority of them then residing in and about Newcastle-on-Tyne. It is recorded in one of the old histories of Newcastle that "a certyne gentleman of large estaytes" rode "thirty and three miles beyond the Tyne to prove this wonderful story." It is further related that Sir J. Bowers adopted ten of the sons and three other "landed gentlemen" took ten each. The remaining members of the extraordinary family were brought up by the parents.

Mascagni's Royal Critic.

Mascagni, the famous composer, was once asked to entertain the royal court in Rome. He did so and delighted his audience. When he finished playing he started a conversation with a little princess who had stood near the piano during the recital and had shown every sign of deep interest. As a matter of fact, she had been instructed by her mother to say, if any question should be asked, that "Mascagni was the greatest musician in Italy."

The composer asked her which of the great living masters she liked best, and the proud mother turned toward the child to hear the pretty little speech which had been taught her. Instead of the compliment came the withering remark:

"There are no great masters living. They are all dead."

The musician gave a little start and then said:

"Your excellency, permit me to congratulate you. You are the most truthful critic in Europe."

'ROUND THE STORES

Peterborough means Progress. Whatever views may have been held regarding the conditions of trade during the early spring months, certain it is that both May and June have brought a buoyancy and optimism which are as apparent as the forces of nature everywhere just now. Instead of the croaker, come enterprise and confidnce, and courage to buoy up successful business and civic enterprise. People are talking cheerfully, and believing that things are coming all right, as may be evidenced by the amount of business being done in both cercantile and manufacturing circles.

The weather calls imperatively for summer clothing, and the stores have made preparations on a scale that shows no lack of confidence in the ability of the purchasing public to buy. In men's and boys' wear, an exceptional opportunity is presented just now by the summer sale in progress at Messrs. H. LeBrun & Co.'s. This firm is making a number of important changes in their business, principally in giving up the ordered tailoring branch and the further necessity for refitting and remodelling, the store. This leaves great piles of clothes to be sold, which have all been reduced in price to secure a speedy clearance. The ready-mades and furnishings are also being cut in price in order to make room for the changes necessary in the remodelling of the store. This, therefore, would be a favourable chance for saving money in men's and boys' clothing.

June is being made a busy month at Richard Hall and Sons. Their European buyer is soon to start on his annual trip to the foreign markets, and, in order that he should take with him a free hand to fully restock the store with the latest matters for fall, every effort is being put forth to reduce the present stock to its lowest minimum. The sale affects every department of their immense store; and no sale ever held before by this firm seems to hold a greater attention of the buying public than this one. Let the women anticipate as much as they wish of the pleasure of sharing in this sale, there will be no disappointment.

June brides, who are looking forward to making their future homes beautiful, could wish for nothing that will contribute more to their social pleasures than the gift of a piano. The Nelson Music Co., of Simcoe street, make some tempting offers elsewhere in this issue in Knabe and other high-class instruments. A reference to our advertising columns will be of interest to those looking forward to the pleasure of conferring such a gift.

The housewife will have to figure closely this summer. Beef, lamb, pork and poultry still incline upwards, and it would not be surprising if meats might reach the prohibitive stage for some housekeepers during the next few months. It should be some advantage to our citizens to have a resident cattle dealer of the resourcefulness of H. P. Kennedy in our midst. His extensive dealings in the cattle markets of Montreal and Toronto may save Peterborough meat eaters some long meat bills this summer. Those who control the meat situation attribute the prospect for an advance in wholesale prices to the increase in the cost of feeding and to the scarcity of cattle. Retail butchers know of no reason for any present increase, although they say they are paying more for meat than ever before.

Eggs and butter, which have been dearer than ever before, are now loosening somewhat in price. Quotations in some of the grocers advertisements will be found worth reading. Mr. W J. Routley, on Charlotte street, quotes creamery butter at 25c per lb. and dairy at 23c. Other prices in Mr. Routley's announcement are worth the close attention of housekespers. Newly laid eggs are selling freely at Dutton's for 18c per dozen, and dairy butter at 23c, with colouring, at 25c. Dutton also offers a canned goods combination at a close figure. The E. F. Mason Co. have been handling quite a lot of oranges recently. This firm quotes finest California navels at 25c per dozen, which have proved a special trade-puller all week.

SIMCOE ST., PETERBOROUGH

The J. M. Greene Music Co. are winding up a most successful sale of pianos and other musical instruments, which has been one of the leading sale events of the season. Mr. Greene reports the sales much beyond his expectations, although the prices were calculated to afford inducements of the unusual kind and his advertisements most effective. To-morrow will be the last day of this sale, and whoever desires to purchase a piano, organ, violin, mandolin, or band instrument ought not to miss the bonafide opportunity.

Warm weather footwear is having a good run at McWhinnie's—Oxfords, and White Canvas shoes are good sellers. Very snappy models of Oxfords are shown by J. T. Stenson & Son. Other new shapes and leathers out this season are also shown strongly at this store, a specialty being made of young men's and women's shoes.

Some of the jewellery stores are making a specialty this month of wedding gifts. Frank Clarke Q Son show some rich cut glass in vases, fruit bowls, and silver butter plates. Some good offerings are also made by Warne, the jeweller, in cut glass, and silverware gifts, special prices for the month being made on knives and forks, cake baskets, bread trays, berry spoons, etc. Schneider has a display of new wedding gifts, which are ticketed in the window at prices which seem very moderate. This store also carries a wide range of Souvenir Spoons with Peterborough Court of Arms and other designs, and local views.

Future of Flying Machines.

The very cleverest engineer in France recently assured me that they are practically certain that within considerably less than a year from the present time they will have machines in Paris with 100 horsepower motors that will travel at the rate of fifty-five miles an hour and will keep in the air four hours at a stretch. They will carry a load of half a ton over and above the weight of the petrol, the water and the driver. They say that certainly within a year they will have machines that will fly easily from Boulogne to London and return without stopping.—London Standard.

Boycotting a Witch.

KING COTTON'S THRONE.

Is It Here or in Those Lands Where He Is Only a Visitor?

In all discussion regarding cotton two facts are paramount—first, that cotton controls the world, and, second, that the nations that reap a prodigal harvest from the sale of cotton goods depend upon America for the raw supply.

The American people have begun to realize the significance in the fact that alien nations that never saw a cotton plant have long since entered the kingdom of cotton and now divide dominion among themselves, excluding the United States, where the cotton is grown.

The contest among the powers today is for trade, and cotton in some form is the chief commodity carried. It is inconceivable that other nations can go on at the expense of America, winning trade triumphs with a commodity which they do not naturally possess, which they cannot obtain in sufficient quantities outside of the United States and which they could not manufacture at a profit but for the fact that we sell the product near and at times even below the cost of raising it.

An analysis of this trade in cotton goods reveals that of our exports more than $6,000,000 worth consists of unbleached cloths, while of our imports more than $22,000,000 worth consists of finer fabrics, including embroideries, laces and curtains.

Altogether the figures show that while we exported in the ten months ended with October, 1908, $22,000,000 worth of the output of our cotton mills the nations sold to us almost 100 per cent more than we sold them.

It is a grotesque and almost unbelievable item in the commerce of this age that a resourceful nation like America, the producer of the world's cotton, should buy back $2 worth of cotton goods for every dollar's worth it ships abroad. Now is the time for American statesmen, American genius, to awaken. The dawn of the cotton century is here.—Daniel Sully in Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Public Lands.

Within the borders of the United States there are still 754,898,296 acres of unappropriated public land, not including the large areas held by the state of Texas. The meaning of these figures can be gleaned by comparison with the size of Illinois, which contains 35,840,000 acres. The unappropriated area, according to figures issued by the government, is more than twenty times as large as Illinois. It should be remembered, however, that mountains and other regions that are not even surveyed are included, along with 368,021,600 acres in Alaska that probably never will be occupied. There is so much waste land included in the above estimate of unappropriated ground that the figures are deceiving. The fact is that good public lands are becoming scarce. Only a few years ago the settlers could drive until they found a place that suited them and there make their homes, but that was before the value of such ground was understood and before the present attack of "land fever" seized the general public.—New York Post.

Autos With Dog Kennels.

The dog trotting contentedly along between or just back of the rear wheels of a carriage is one of the pleasant remembrances of the time when the horse was supreme, but horse and dog were both rudely disturbed by the advent of the automobile. Automobiles run too fast for a dog to trot along beside, and as there is not room within the automobile for anything larger than a lapdog the coach dog had to go. One English automobile firm is now manufacturing an automobile body that opens at the back, disclosing a roomy kennel for dogs, but it is probable that, although better than nothing at all, this arrangement will not be completely satisfactory to either dog or master.—Popular Mechanics.

"May I—may I kiss you, dear?" said he.

"First I want one thing made clear," said she.

"Have you ever kissed maid before Or tried?"

"No," he answered. She was sure He lied.

Then, with willing lips, she whispered, "Well,

Yes, you may since you don't kiss And tell."

ANSWERED THE LETTER.

The Way a Brooklyn Politician Once Won a Bet.

There is, or was a few years ago, a neatly framed letter hanging in the consulting room of a Brooklyn doctor which he found in his mail one winter morning. It ran as follows:

Princeton, Jan. 12, 1880.

Dear Sir—I cheerfully accede to your request and acknowledge the compliment paid to my wife and daughter by bestowing their names upon your own twin daughters, and I hope these children may be spared to be of constant comfort to their parents. Sincerely yours,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

The young doctor's brain whirled. Being a bachelor and having no acquaintance with the former president, he could not understand it at all.

The mystery was solved when a friend of the doctor's, a Brooklyn politician, met him. The politician had made a bet with a cynical acquaintance that any American statesman would personally reply to a courteous letter from the humblest of his countrymen. The cynic took him up and named Grover Cleveland. The terms of the bet were that the answer to a letter mailed on Jan. 3 must be received before Jan. 25. Signing the young doctor's name, the politician wrote of how his marriage had been blessed by twin daughters. Would it be asking too much for an autograph letter to frame which the sweet twins could look upon and read when they grew up and cherish ever afterward?

Mr. Cleveland courteously and promptly answered the letter, and the politician won his bet.—New York Tribune.

CORRECT SPELLING.

There Was a Time When It Was Not Considered Important.

The art of spelling words correctly is of comparatively recent repute. Time was when men and women did not care, but wrote ahead without regard to strict orthography. Mme. de Sevigne, for instance, never learned the proper way to write her name, while it was remarked by Mme. de Maintenon that at the College of St. Cyr much precious time was wasted in learning how to spell.

It remained, however, for the Empress Eugenie in 1858 at Compiegne to put to a practical test the spelling standard which obtained even among the highest literary authorities. Thus under the pretext of a theme proposed to them for an examination a number of French academicians took down from dictation a composition by Prosper Merimee. Not one "immortal" wrote without mistake.

As to the empress, she could not understand so many faults being made until it was conveyed to her that she herself from the same dictation was responsible for no less than ninety. The emperor, again, made sixty. It is but fair to add, however, that the dictation was compiled expressly with a view to focusing the difficulties not only of spelling, but grammar.—Harper's Weekly.

A Versatile Parisian.

A quaint Parisian character was Mlle. Montansier, an actress, who, while on the stage one night, heard Marie Antoinette say, "How good that cabbage soup they are eating smells!" The actress took a bowl round to the royal box and that night supped with Marie Antoinette, an honor to which the highest nobles in France dared not aspire, thence in due course becoming manager of the fetes at Versailles. Later she was a sort of queen of the Palais Royal and sent to the war a band of actors who performed farces between two battles. She obtained 3,000,000 francs from the revolutionary government, almost married Napoleon—or so Barras said—and had her last love affair when she was eighty-five. When she died she bequeathed all her creditors to the king of France.

Doubtless.

Voice (in the house)—Bessie, what is keeping you out there on the porch so long? Bessie—I am looking for the comet, mamma. Voice—You'll take your death of cold. Bessie—Not at all, mamma. I'm—I'm well wrapped.—Chicago Tribune.

No Case on Record.

"Brooks," asked Rivera, "do you know what will cure a wart?"

"I never heard of a wart being sick," said Brooks, without looking up from his writing.

Only twice in organized baseball has this record been approached. July 18, 1891, at Grand Forks, S. D., Forgs and Grand Forks played a 26-inning game, neither scoring, while on Sept. 1, 1906, at Boston, the Athletics and Bostons played their memorable 24-inning game.

Decatur ,Ill., June 9.—"Otto Burns" isn't a pretentious name, but its owner is the hero of Illinois just now. If President Taft and Burns were introduced in Decatur, the latter would get the noisest reception, for he's the lad who pitched and won the 26 inning game for Decatur against Bloomington, breaking the world's long-distance record.

Opposed on the mound by Pitcher Clark, one of the best in the Three-I League, Burns held up his end and was fresher at the finish than his more experienced opponent.

What makes Burns' feat the more noteworthy is the fact that it was his first game this season. Found pitching independent ball at Greenville, O., last year, he was signed by Decatur as an outfielder, because he could hit. Then he was used in the infield, and when the team needed a pitcher he volunteered. Having shown something in practice, he was picked to pitch Decoration day.

It was the intention to play a double-header, and 1,200 Bloomington fans turned out for the bargain. At 2 o'clock the game began, and at 7:05 it ended, when Purtell smashed a three-base hit against the fence in right scoring Fisher.

Bloomington scored a run in the first inning on an error, a steal and a hit. Decatur tied the score in the third, and from this point to the twenty-sixth not a glimmer of a run was to be seen.

Burns is not puffed up over his performance and the attention paid to him. He is modest and rarely speaks unless spoken to. Tall and well built, he is but 23, and apparently has a bright base ball future.

SOME METHODS TO INCREASE HITTING IN BALL GAMES

(By Tip Wright.)

Has any reader a plan to increase batting? If so let him come up in front and tell about it. Maybe some one can show the baseball rulemakers something they will consider.

I don't think there is any doubt that lack of hitting is the weak point in baseball. The pitchers, with the assistance of the foul strike and spit ball, have the batters in the air so far that something must be done to equalise the matter.

Beyond question the ring of the base hits is the most interesting feature of the game to the fans. They rather see the ball hit safe than witness the best stop ever made on a diamond or the greatest pitching feat on record duplicated.

Many suggestions have been made to improve batting, but none of them seem to fill the bill. Perhaps you have an idea that the magnates will be glad to consider, Mr. Fan. Try it on.

Among the plans submitted are to abolish the spit ball, do away with the foul strike, run foul lines from the plate on an angle with the base lines, to give more fair territory in right and left field, to use a livelier ball, to increase the size of the bats, to permit four strikes instead of three, to do away with the mound upon which the pitcher stand, to force the outfielders to do away with gloves.

All these plans seem to have some fault. The suggestion that a lively ball be used, would not increase batting, although it would result in more extra base hits. The plan to enlarge the field would entail harder work upon the outfielders, the rule to give four strikes is not logical—objection has been made to every plan submitted.

Still there must be some plan whereby the hitting can be increased without making the game drag. It was to hurry the game the foul strike was originated. It served the purpose, but has given the pitcher too much advantage.

As a suggestion, I offer this: Let the foul strike rule stand for one strike, instead of for two. This is not much of a change, but it would bring the batter a trifle nearer even terms with the pitcher than he is at present.

BLATCHFORD PRESENTED WITH PURSE BY OTONABEE FRIENDS

Mr. John Blatchford's gameness in staying with the long six-day grind at Brock Street recently was appreciated by his neighbours in Otonabee. John made many friends by his showing in the walk. He stayed right with the game, although unable to follow the pace set by the leaders. A few nights ago a number of the residents of the sporty township to the south showed that they were pleased with the manner in which Blatchford had conducted himself in the walk, and presented him with a tidy sum of money, which had been raised by subscription. It was no paltry sum, but was characteristic of the generosity of the people who live along the river road, leading from the locks.

Mr. Blatchford expressed his thanks for their kindness and is probably not sorry that he did not realise as much as he expected from the gate, as his neighbours certainly helped him out in a splendid manner.

SELLEN AND SHRUBB TO RUN 12 MILES

The Toronto Star says: Well! it's Percy Sellen and Alfred Shrubb; the distance is twelve miles; and the place Hanlan's Point.

Tom Longboat refused to meet the speedy Englishman at twenty miles on Saturday night, so the speedy little ex-I. C. A. C. man took up the task of trimming the peerless one.

The Redskin says that Shrubb can await his convenience now for that twenty-five race.

Sellen is in rare form for this race. He has devoted his time the last two weeks to working up early speed. He says if he can stay within 300 yards of Shrubb at seven miles he can beat him at twelve miles. He expects Shrubb to go away with one of those 4.40 miles of his, but says that he won't take him along with him as he did Longboat in Montreal and cook him first crack out of the box. "A 5.05 is plenty fast enough for me," says Sellen, "and 26.30 will do me for five miles. After that I'll go after Mr. Man and I'll know which one of us can step the last seven miles the fastest."

NORWOOD JUNIORS WON FROM WARSAW

The Norwood Junior Football Club again demonstrated their superiority over Warsaw on Monday evening, by defeating them on their own grounds, by the score of 1-0.

The score indicates the play, both teams being evenly matched. The game was one of the fastest played this year, both teams being out to win, the locals, however, doing the trick.

The first half was very even, end to end rushes very seldom passing Doherty and Kempt at back. The rest were all taken in by Hawthorne, who played a steady, cool game in goal. Several shots, which looked like scores were successfully turned aside by him.

The forwards also played a dashing, steady game and held their position in fine form. The half ended with no score.

When play again opened it took 15 minutes of fast combination to break the stillness. Then, in front of goal, Hendren succeeded in notching the only goal scored.

The Warsaw boys tried hard to win but the dashing forwards, with a regular stone-wall defence behind them, kept the play in mid-field, full time being called with Norwood the victors. This now gives them the league.

W. Bell of Warsaw made an impartial Referee.

The standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost
Norwood	3	0
Warsaw	1	0
Havelock	0	3

The locals meet Havelock next week here and another victory is expected.

ARE ENTERTAINING COBALT CITIZENS

Our old hippodrome friends Messrs. Frits Mohl, Hassan Abdallah, the Candy Kid, and W. B. Naylor, are entertaining the good people of the Cobalt just now in a few of their wrestling specialties. With Mr. Naylor refereeing the contestants would, no doubt, get an even break, and, of course, that is all that they are looking for? The Cobalt Citizen says of the doings of the mat artists:

The wrestling bout of Friday night last was won by Frits Mohl, the German giant, he getting two falls out of three. Abdullah Hassan the "Terrible Turk," taking the first and Mohl the succeeding two.

The attendance was not so large as the gathering of Monday, but was withal well attended.

Mr. W. B. Naylor acted as referee and his decisions were e vvoularppr and his decisions were ever popular and fair.

The exhibition was clean in every way, with no displays of temper or meanness, and a fair display of a manly art, much superior in that respect to even the most circumspect boxing.

It is expected that several giants of reputation will visit Cobalt shortly, including Yankee Rogers, Hackensmith and others.

The sport is to be encouraged and the fact that Chief Caldbeck and Mr. T. C. Have acted as timekeepers is sufficient warrant that no rowdyism could result. During the next few days we hope to hear of importations to continue the series.

All Saints defeated the South Enders in an interesting seven-innings game at Nicholls' Oval last night by 11 runs to 8. The game was close and hard fought throughout. * * *

The A. Y. P. A. Tennis Club is in full swing. Last night the first match in the ladies' singles was played. This evening the second match in the Inter-Club City contest will be played. Cossey and Richardson, of St. John's, play Burrett and Kerr, of the Golf Club courts, and Chandler and Coleman, of St. John's, play Medd and Sheean on the Oval Courts.

Both games commence at 6.30 p.m.

CITY LEAGUE NOTES.

The Strathconas have signed a new star in the baseball firmament, in the person of Nelson J. Wettlaufer, who will be seen in action against the Park street team on Saturday afternoon. He is a former team mate of Fred Anderson, the big infielder who played second base for Peterborough in the Midland League last season and the year before, and like Fred, is some ball player. He will be in the outfield for the High Commissioners on Saturday.

The Y. M. C. A. intermediate city league teams and the Strathconas Senior League outfit had a practise game at Nicholls Oval last night, which proved very beneficial to both teams. The batteries were, for the Y, Armstrong and Dobbin, and for the Strathconas, Hickey, Patterson, and Wilson, and Parnell.

The practice hours at the Oval for the ball teams have been arranged as follows: Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, the Strathconas, Tuesdays and Fridays, the Y. M. C. A.

The West Ends are practising at Riverside Park this week. Ladies should remember that there is no charge for admission in their case at the Senior League games, and that they are cordially invited to be the guests of the clubs at any and all of the games. Seats will be reserved in the grandstand for them.

The small boy is "tickled to death" over the fact that the League has decided to let the youngsters in for five cents.

"HOMING PIGEONS"

An interesting event will take place at Midland, Ont., on June 19th, when it is proposed by The Atlantic Combine, an up-to-date organization for racing pigeons for pools and prizes, to release about 2,000 to 3,000 birds at that point. These comprises 300 to 400 lofts that will compete in the contest and the birds will be shipped from Portland, Maine; Boston, Mass.; New York, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and other points in the United States. The liberation will be effected betwee 5 and 6 a.m. on June 19th, as near the earlier hour as possible, so as to give all birds an opportunity to reach their lofts by night (in some cases 500 miles distant). In the event of unfavourable day. Unfavourable weather would be rain or fog, brisk south, southeast or southwest winds.

There will be considerable prize money divided among the sections that will compete. It is the intention of the Combine to fly about two races yearly if this one should prove successful. The idea of the Combine race is new to America and was taken from England, where it has been in operation for many years with ever increasing popularity. Last year's entries in England ran over 7,000 birds, and many thousands of dollars were paid in pools and prizes. This flight will be of interest to the people of Ontario and as the birds will fly direct to their several homes, it is possible that many will be seen by those who watch for them.

CRICKET PRACTICE.

There will be a practice of the Cricket Club at the Oval to-night, when all the members are expected to turn out. Standing members are also invited to participate in the game.

The "Hecla" Furnace

And The Steel Ribbed Firepots

The greater the radiating surface of the firepot, the greater the heat obtained from the fuel.

In most furnaces, the firepots are made with castiron flanges or points, to increase the radiating surface. Being castiron, these flanges take up so much space that only a few can be used.

In the "Hecla" Furnace, we use steel ribs instead of castiron flanges. By applying our Patented Fused Joint Idea, we are able to fuse 97 steel ribs into the Firepot in the same space where before we were able to cast only 17 iron ones.

This gives the "Hecla" three times the radiating surface of any other firepot—and effects a saving of from ¼ to ⅓ in fuel, as proved by a three year's test.

This is only one of the many features that are exclusive with "Hecla" Furnaces. They are all described in our new catalogue which we send free on request. Write for a copy.

STREET RAILWAY PARK AT THE GROVE IS ASSURED GOING AHEAD WITH PLANS

Mr. Edwards of the Crystal Theatorium Will be in Charge of the Amusement Features at the New Breathing Spot on the Otonabee.—Will Open in a Short Time.

The Street Railway Park at Crawford's Grove, on the Otonabee River, is now an assured fact, and it is likely that Peterborough's new amusement resort will be opened in a short time. Mr. Edwards, proprietor of the Crystal Theatorium will be in charge of the amusement features at the park, which is a guarantee that the entertainment will be quite up to the mark in every way. The programme as contemplated just now will include moving pictures and a first class vaudeville bill by well known performers, the bill being changed frequently.

The new park will, without doubt, be most popular. It is charmingly situated on the bank of the river and consists of a most beautiful grove of pine trees. There is splendid facilities for boating and the park will be in high favour with those who go down to the sea in skips. It is only a short run from the city, and during the summer months, will be thronged nightly with people anxious to escape the heat and dust of Peterborough.

To extend the Radial Railway Company's road to the park will require a mile of new line from the present terminus, and this work can be done in a short time. In the interval arrangements have been made with the steamboat companies for a steamer service to and from the park every night, the boats leaving the Street Railway wharf at frequent intervals during the evening.

Reorganization Of The Board Of Health

Dr. Bingham Resigns and Dr. A. W. Macpherson Appointed to Succeed.—City Council Co-operates in Vigorous Measures to Deal With the Problem of Contagious Disease.

The resignation of Dr. Bingham, Medical Health officer, who retires after ten years' faithful discharge of the duties of that office, made it necessary to appoint his successor, and at the city clerk's office last night, at a special meeting, initiated by the Board of Education in the sanitary interests of the schools, the City Council appointed Dr. A. W. MacPherson, as Medical Health Officer. Dr. MacPherson should make an excellent official. He is young, alert, vigorous and having recently graduated, will have the advantage of fresh knowledge of the sanitary problems and measures which have of recent years engaged the attention of medical and sanitary research.

At the same time the City Council has taken advantage of the occasion to thoroughly reorganize the Health Department and to this end had present at the special meeting last night, Dr. R. W. Bell, Toronto, Medical Inspector of the Provincial Board of Health.

As a result of a full discussion of the sanitary conditions of the city and the best means of dealing with contagious disease, it was decided to inaugurate energetic action, regardless of any other consideration than the adoption of the most effective methods of dealing with and checking the progress of contagious disease.

The Mayor has been given large authority, and in conjunction with the Board of Health, and the newly elected Medical Health Officer, who will have an excellent opportunity to show his mettle and win his spurs, there is no doubt that effective measures will be adopted to protect the health and insure the sanitary safety of the citizens.

GETS $12,000 FOR INJURY THAT DOOMED HER TO SPINSTERHOOD

St. Louis, June 10.—On her counsel's plea that because of her lameness she would not have an equal chance with other girls to win man's love, a jury in Judge Hitchcock's court has awarded $12,000 to Miss Leona Castanie, of No. 1916 Glendale avenue, because of injuries received in a street car accident Sept. 29, 1907.

Miss Castanie, who is eighteen years old, sued the United Railways Co. for $20,000, alleging permanent lameness through injury to her hip when she was thrown from a Broadway car, which started while she was transferring at Market street.

In his address to the jury, Attorney Arthur G. Moseley said:

"Young peoples build their hopes in the future. There dwell for them ordinarily the enchantments and rewards of life. But the grim spectre of pain and decrepitude alone await this plaintiff as welcoming hosts in the future's open door. Deprived, as she will be, of the fruits of labour, what other compensation can she claim? Her misfortune destroys alike the power to labour or to charm.

Man's love is of man's life a thing apart—
'Tis woman's whole existence.

"What chance of successful competition in this fairy field of industry does she, the lame girl, stand with such a girl as she formerly was? Left thus by her misfortune without the power to earn her support, and without the hope of attracting to herself the reward and happiness of love, she looks to you, gentlemen of the jury, for such compensation as now alone is possible."

Miss Elliott Will Be New Matron At Margaret Cox Home

She has occupied several important posts under the Ontario Government and brings to her new position wide experience in th management of girls and the direction of institutional affairs.

Self Cooler Motor Fan Is First Of Its Kind In The City

Mr. M. Pappas, proprietor of the Royal Theatre, has just had installed a device that will tend to make his theatorium more popular during the hot summer months. It is a self-cooler electric motor fan, which works like a charm, exhausting all the warm air in the building in a few seconds. At the end of each entertainment the fan is turned on and for a short time and every particle of warm air in the hall instantly disappears and a delightful fresh and cool atmosphere is created. When the ordinary fans are turned on again the temperature inside will be found just comfortably cool, no matter how hot it may be outside. The size of the crowd inside makes no difference to the new fan, which does its work perfectly. It is the first of its kind used in Peterborough and was installed yesterday for Mr. Pappas by Mr. T. D. McGregor.

Canoeists Complain That The Launches Show No Lights

Canoeists are complaining that many of the people who own gasoline launches and operate on the Otonabee River are very careless about displaying lights at night, and state that unless this matter is attended to a serious accident is liable to occur. Every evening the river is crowded with canoes, as well as with launches, and the majority of the latter, it is stated, have no lights. Some of them run with almost no noise, and they are nearly on top of canoes before the occupants of the latter are aware of their danger. There have been several narrow escapes all round and launch owners should carry out the law by seeing that their lights are burning before starting out at night. There is a fine for the offence and some of the canoeists state that if the owners do not obey the law they will make a complaint to the authorities.

STILL THEY COME

There is a falling off in Canadian immigration across the Atlantic and Pacific, but the influx continues across the 49th parallel. Our Yankee neighbours still continue their pacific invasion. It is estimated that the present year that the figures of United States farmers settling in the Canadian West will reach between 75,000 and 100,000—figures that indicate—if they are all heads of families—an addition to our poulation of between 300,000 and 500,000. This expectation is based upon figures for the past six years, which show that a total of nearly 400,000 agriculturalists, chiefly from the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Arkansas, and Oregon, have in the years between 1903 and 1908, become farmers in the Canadian West. As to the inducements which Canada is able to offer to American farmers to cross the line, a recent consular report states that there are still available for homsteads in Manitoba 17,- acres; in Saskatchewan, 104,- acres ; in Alberta, 117,300,000 acres. Since 1903, these provinces have made an increase of nearly 100,- bushels in their wheat crop. In the same period the Dominion has gained over a million in population and $178,000,000 in trade.

AS OTHERS SEE US

It is only within the past fifteen years that Canada discovered herself—that is realized her possibilities and saw what the future held for her. It is not surprising then that good John Bull only recently discovered this country and it is only within the past dozen years that Uncle Sam has wakened to the fact that we are "some." Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, has been recently talking about Canada and what he has said is good enough to repeat. The Buffalo Courier thus repeats Senator McCumber's remarks:

"The agricultural possibilities of Canada were under discussion in Washington the other day, and Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, who has travelled extensively through the Canadian Northwest, indicated upon a large map some surprising facts. He drew a line on the east side of North Dakota parallel with Red River of the north, and continued it down to the Gulf of Mexico on the south, and north to the Arctic Ocean.

"He asserted that west of that line lies nearly two-thirds of the whole territory of the United States, and that west of that line in Canada are more acres which will produce grain and cereals of all kinds than can possibly be found in the United States west of the line. He said that the Canadian tract thus indicated is about 1,200 miles by 800 miles, interpersed with lakes, rivers and small bodies of timber, and nearly every acre of which, outside of the small mountainous portion, is capable of producing all kinds of cereals, except corn, and in some parts corn can be raised.

"Senator McCumber is quite positive that this Canadian region has a better rainfall than has the corresponding region of the United States, and is strongly convinced that in less than twenty years it will be "the wheat granary of the world.'

"Representing a state bordering on this promising territory, Senator McCumber may have information justifying his rosy prediction; but he himself says that at present only 8,000,000 of the 120,-000,000 acres are at present under cultivation. The future development must be very rapid in order to produce the granary of the world.

"Probably this development will be rapid because the region in question is traversed by the great Canadian transcontinental lines, on both sides of which spurs are run out for hundreds of miles. The Canadian Pacific, the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern are all there."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A dispatch states that it is probable that the Conservatives of East Waterloo will not nominate a candidate to oppose Hon. Mackenzie King, the newly sworn Minister of Labour, who returns to his constituency for re-election. An abstention from Opposition on such an occasion would be a graceful attitude to adopt under the circumstances, and a tribute of respect to the cause of Labour when the first Minister of Labour in any country appeals for a renewal of confidence to his constituents.

Mr. Goldwin Smith, as Bystander in the Weekly Sun, thus gently chastises the Whitney Government confiscation policy:

"Our Ontario Government is putting stock on the market, no doubt so far as the present members of that Government are concerned, withe the most perfectly respectable intentions. But would the stock hereafter be quite beyond the range of their doctrine, which seems to be that of unlimited power of invalidating bargains and shutting the courts against appeal? The question will surely some day present itself to the stock market."

SHOWS TWO THINGS

The Weekly (Farmers') Sun has the following in its last issue:

An illustration of how the farmer is hit in his household is afforded in the case of enamelled ware, for use in the kitchen. The tariff against imports of this nature from the United States is 35 per cent.; against Germany the duty works out at nearly 50 per cent. Under cover of this protection a combine is believed to have been formed among domestic manufacturers for the purpose of compelling the Canadian housewife to pay the very highest price for granite kitchen utensils, which the tariff will permit the combine to fix.

This paragraph furnishes two kinds of information. It indicates that a factory manufacturing enamelled ware has sufficient protection to prevent foreign competition, based on cheap labour from interfering with its commercial success; and it moreover explains why certain outside interested interests, so to speak, were so anxious to kill the Purity Ware Limited, by-law.

THE ANTI-KING CRUSADE

(Brantford Expositor.)

The crusade of The Mail and Empire, and certain other Conservative newspapers, against the appointment of William Lyon Mackenzie King as Minister of Labour continues. In one quarter it is urged that he should have remained a deputy minister and permitted some smoke-begrimed son of toil to take charge of the cabinet portfolio; in others that he has thus far made for himself a maximum amount of capital for a limited amount of real ability, and may not make good in the larger sphere of action into which he has entered. As to the latter, it is sufficient to say Mr. King has made good in everything he has undertaken, and that this is the best assurance that can be given of his capacity for larger things.

It is noticeable that the efforts to sow tares among the good Liberal wheat in the Labour field have met with no success. Not a single organization representing Labour has made complaint of the government's action in appointing Mr. King. There are three reasons for this, as follows: First, the tactics of the Conservative organs are very apparent, and the past record of that party on Labour questions is well understood; second, it is recognized that no man in Canada has established as good a claim to pose as the friend of Labour as that of the new Minister; third, that while this is true, it is also true that the Minister of Labour must often hold the balances as between Capital and Labour, and cannot be actively identified either with the one class or the other.

The workingmen of North Waterloo, at least, know all these things, and they also know Mr. King. And the latter has no reason to fear their verdict.

THE GILLIES LIMIT

The Cobalt Citizen which writes, it is assumed, with the knowledge of the man on the spot says:

Are you bidding for a slice of the Gillies Limit?

Why not?

The question of the hour in Cobalt business circles, in view of the approaching sale on the fifteenth of the month, is that of the disposition of the Government's bonanza "silver holdings, and the answers to queries such as the above made by men who have the money for big speculation are the best of indications as to the actual situation.

There are some in Cobalt and district who intend taking a somewhat half-hearted shot at the target displayed by the Toronto Department of Lands and Mines, but the great majority of the best informed and shrewdest mining business men in this country will not.

Why?

Simply because good gamblers don't ante when they suspect the deal. The public of the country in the immediate vicinity of the property, where the details of the situation are probably best known, are firmly convinced that the cards have been stacked against them. The offer of the Limit for sale is received with general mistrust.

The circumstances surrounding the throwing on the market of this much discussed Government property are most significant. For the past three years the outside public has been carefully excluded from the Government's happy hunting grounds. The Limit has been guarded by a cordon of police and those who have attempted to spy out the forbidden silver Eden have been arrested and sent to North Bay. For two years or more, the confidential agents of the Department of Lands and Mines have roamed at will over the hundred square miles of territory included within its bounderies. For two years, the Department's prospectors have rooted and trenched over the more likely portions of the silver district. The outsiders have been kept off and the insiders have been the only ones on.

Though the cost of prospecting has been paid with Government funds, no detailed report of the work has ever been made public. Whole pages of write-up and explanation are published year by year of the doings of interest of private mining concerns, but in the annual publication of the Department itself, the people's own mine is passed with a paragraph, and nothing whatever is said of the likely leads no doubt uncovered by the people's prospectors. The regulations requiring the directors of mining companies to report at least once a year to their shareholders has been completely ignored so far as the elector-stockholders of the Provincial Mine are concerned. Beyond the reports given out of the discovery of the vein, which now forms the excuse for the so-called "Provincial Mine," the possible finds of the expensive Provincial prospecting editions are a profound mystery. As to what the limit contains the general public knows nothing. As to what the Limit does or does not contain, so far as costly prospecting and expert engineering can tell, the Department's officials and friends know everything.

* * *

And under these conditions the Government suddenly launches a short term call for tenders.

Not a word of the proposed important change in Government policy was whispered in the Session of the House just closed. Not a breath or a line reached the ears of the press representatives when the discussion was in progress in Cabinet circles. The silence of those in the know was unbroken, until one morning the Department of Lands and Mines gave the information to the papers that a sell-out by tender would be made in the course of seven weeks' time. The call for tenders is dated on April 23rd, and the sale is to take place on the 15th of June. So short is the notice given prospective purchasers that more than a mere glance at the properties is impossible. The snow has even now only just disappeared from the bush and the sale is a few days hence.

The completion of a mining deal in private affairs is usually a matter of months. The careful examination of a mining property by experts is the work of weeks of time, and, in addition to that, come the delays of organization and finance . The preliminaries of getting a charter could be completed in the period intervening between the dates whn information as to the sale was made public and the tenders are to be opened. Were it the intention of the Department to give the whole public an equal chance so, important a sale announced in April should not have been completed until fall. Had the property been thrown open all summer, the fact would have become known and the small investor would have had an opportunity to compete in syndicates and companies with the individuals of large financial resources. But the small investor has been excluded and men of means have been called on to jump in the dark by a snap call for catch-as-catch-can tenders.

Why the haste?

The arrangements announced preclude the slightest possibility of the outside mining public becoming in the least familiar with the facts which the insiders have taken over two years and much public money to learn. Is that the answer?

The outside public is in the dark, and the precautions taken to ensure that the bidding shall remain blindfold, except in the cases where the bandage is pricked, can have but one of two explanations. Either the Limit is barren and the Government is unloading, or else it is rich and the juicy spots are being reserved for the officers' mess.

Were the first assumption correct, the Government is working a skin-game hoax on the investing public. It is wild cat boosting. The Province of Ontario has descended to a fleecing conspiracy as flagrant and as culpable as that which sent Frank Law to jail.

If, on the other hand, the Limit is rich and the carcase is being thrown to the wolves, the scheme of plunder is one of the blackest conceived since the Pacific Scandal. When it is recalled that the Government has refused two offers, one for $10,000,000.00 and the other for $20,000,000.00 for this Gillies Limit property, is there not justification for the suspicion that track is being laid for the grandest lift that has ever disgraced the statute books of a Canadian Province?

Is it any wonder that the investors of Cobalt have received the call for tenders with out-spoken distrust? And is it any wonder that, smelling a jug-handled arrangement whereby they are deliberately placed at a disadvantage in favour of the Department's hangers-on, they should also mistrust the honesty with which the game itself will be played? It is a widespread impression that should the outsider by chance bid for a lemon he will certainly get it, but should his tender apply to a good location some slick fingered insider will be discovered the winner.

"If I bid low," said one, "I will lose the location I want, while of I name a pretty good price, they'll suspect that there must be something there, and they'll guess that it's good enough for cousin Bill."

"What is the use of our spending money in trying to prospect the Limit at a day's notice, when it is almost certain that we would have no chance to get the good things anyway," was the way another business man summed up the situation.

The prohibition against private prospecting in the Limit has been removed. Though the Department has not thought this fact of sufficient importance in view of the coming sale to mention the trifling point in the official announcements, the information has been extracted from the Minister by word of mouth. It was unknown for some time after the call for tenders had been made whether or not the cordon of police had been withdrawn, though it was assumed that the Department would scarcely possess the hardihood to send anyone to jail for attempting to inspect property which they had been invited to buy. The ban has, however, been removed, and the Limit is free.

That the view of the speaker, who declined to waste money on an attempt to beat the insiders at their own game, is a general impression is evidenced in the fact that the Oklahoma rush of prospectors, which has always been predicted should the limit be thrown open, has not materialized. Some few of those who have information already in hand and certain others particularly interested have been looking the country over see no rush into the Limit, such as is going up the Montreal River.

PETERBORO'S BRILLIANT PROSPECTS

There was never in the history of Peterboro a time when prospects were brighter than they are now. The city officials state that there has been double the number of building permits issued already this year more than the best previous year and that the prospects are that this percentage will go up even higher.

Think what it will mean when the new factories begin working, simply this, more families will of necessity, move to the city, employment will be given to others in the city that need it and thus create a demand for homes either to rent or purchase, in either case property is bound to advance more or less in every portion of the city. ¶ People who are contemplating purchasing a house will do well to see J. T. O'Connell's list and get terms. We have a choice selection of properties at moderate prices and easy terms. THE PAY VERY INADEQUATE

Assembly Discusses Salaries o Northwest Missionaries.

SITUATION IS DEPLORABLE

Home Mission Committee Will Consider Matter of Guaranteeing Salaries of Workers in Canadian Fields — Dr. McQueen Charges Extravagance Against Young Ministers of the Northwest.

Hamilton, June 10.—"I hear these things with shame and indignation beyond control. I have heard such things before and could not believe them to be true. If these things were known in Montreal you would very soon find the funds would suffer. We must set aside these things at once." Thus spoke Rev. F. M. Dewey, D.D., in the course of the discussion on the payment of home missionary salaries in the Northwest.

An overture from Alberta asking for the whole matter of guaranteeing salaries of home missionaries in full, to be taken into consideration brought the matter up. Rev. J. S. Shortt moved the adoption.

G. M. Macdonnell K.C., moved that the assembly instruct the home mission committee to change the system of paying salaries, for one similar to that of Knox College Mission Society.

Rev. A. McLaren of Medicine Hat made a strong appeal for a new method of collecting money in the Northwest for home missions. He had been found fault with for writing to the papers saying that the missionaries received just $250 less than the minimum salary. This was simply the downright, solid rockbottom fact. One of the cleverest men they had, who debited with $550 for his district, received exactly $83 in the year, and was enabled to attend the synod by the generosity of a Baptist. Another man debited with $275 got $23 in ten months from his field.

Rev. Mr. Chisholm endorsed this and declared that young men were driven to taking up homesteads, canvassing for insurance and other expedients to eke out a living.

Dr. McQueen thought the difficulty was due to a lack of proper spirit in the missionaries. It was too bad, he said, that such extravagant and practically untrue statements should be made. It would injure the church and the funds. The fault lay with those who complained. They should go back to their congregation and collect funds to pay the missionaries.

Principal MacKay supported the cause of the missionary. The matter should not be allowed to pass from the assembly till a better system was adopted. He knew an excellent man in his own college who had to drive a stage to pay for his course. He did not get enough from the mission board to pay for the keep of his horse and himself. This view was supported by a number of speakers.

Rev. Dr. McTavish and Rev. E. D. McLaren demurred to the position taken. It was the duty of the Presbyteries to look after such cases. Very often it depended on the man who was sent into a field.

The moderator stated that he could make similar statements about augmentation in the east, and he thought from his own experience the presbyteries in the west were very much to blame.

Rev. E. D. McLaren suggested that presbyteries be instructed to make more particular enquiries as to salaries paid within their bounds, and to report to the home mission committee. The amendments were withdrawn and the overture passed.

Rev. W. M. Rochester, on motion of Rev. Dr. McQueen, was accepted as the choice of the synod of Alberta for the position of superintendent of home missions for that synod.

Principal MacKay presented the report on application to receive ministers. Among twenty names passed was one of a member of the Society of Friends, who desired with his congregation, which had representatives of 12 different denominations, to join the Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Dr. McLeod believed young ministers should be encouraged to join the aged and infirm ministers' fund. They were now driven to invest in stocks and trade horses in order to provide for the future, and then they were turned out of the congregations for being worldly minded.

A committee was appointed to which several questions were referred relating to the status of licensed students. The permission to administer the sacrament and to solemnize marriage it was held should only be given by presbyteries when inevitable. Some in the Northwest were given permission without limitation.

G.T..P Not Disgruntled..

Ottawa, June 10.—Hon. Mr. Parent, chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission, denies that the cost of the Port Arthur to Winnipeg section has tripled the estimate, as reported, but there has been an extra $5,000 per mile spent.

The G.T.P. officials at Montreal also absolutely deny the Winnipeg story of dissatisfaction on their part.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 9.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning, the offerings were 225 steers, 125 cows, 50 bulls, 200 sheep, 150 lambs, 800 hogs and 1000 calves. A feature of the trade to-day was the strong undertone to the market for cattle, and prices scored a further advance of ¼c to ½c per pound, which was due to another small run and the scarcity of good to choice beeves. The demand was good from local buyers, as they all wanted some beef to carry them thru for the balance of the week, and a fairly active trade was done. A few extra choice steers sold at 7c to 7¼c per pound, making a new high record price, and the indications are that, unless supplies increase materially in the near future, they will go still higher, as the number of cattle coming forward just now is not sufficient to fill the requirements of the trade. Choice steers sold at 6¾c to 6¾c; good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5¼c, and common at 4c to 4¾c; good cows at 5c to 5½c, and lower grades at 3c to 4¾c, and bulls ranged at from 3c to 5¼c per pound. Owing to the increased offerings of sheep and lambs, a weaker feeling developed in the market, and prices declined. At the reduction the demand was good, and sales of sheep were made at 4c per lb., and lambs at $3.25 to $5 each. The supply of calves was also large, and prices ruled lower, with a fair demand at $2.50 to $8 each, as to quality. Supplies of hogs were small, and the tone of the market was firm, with sales of selected lots at $8.25 to $8.60 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

Suspicious Revive Massacres.

Berlin, June 10.—The Tageblatt's Aleppo correspondent states that the Turkish authorities last week executed twelve of the ringleaders, including six Armenians, concerned in the Adana massacres.

Reforestry Demanded.

Cobourg, June 10.—A meeting of the counties council of Northumberland and Durham to discuss reforestry of sand lands was largely attended. Conditions were shown to be becoming rapidly worse for agriculture in the area. Resolutions were passed endorsing reforestry for the area, appointing a committee to deal with the situation and arranging a series of meetings next fall.

The speakers included Dr. Fernow, Toronto University; Thomas Southworth, president Canadian Forestry Association; James Lawler, secretary; Prof. Zavitz of Guelph, Thornton and Owens, members of Parliament; Sam Clarke, J. J. Preston and Nesbitt, members of the Legislature; William Richard and Warden Powers, Col. J. Hughes presided.

Halifax Fireman Killed.

Halifax, N.S., June 10.—James Tynan lost his life and ten other firemen were injured by the collapse of a roof while fighting flames which completely destroyed the upholstering and packing building of the Nova Scotia Furnishing Co. yesterday.

Tynan, with twenty other firemen, was stationed in the building when the roof suddenly gave way. Suffering from terrible burns and other injuries they were all rescued with the exception of Tynan, who was pinned down by a 10-inch beam, which pressed across his chest. The fire loss was $10,000 insured.

$100,000 Fire in Berlin.

Berlin, June 10.—There was a $100,000 fire last evening when J. Y. Shantz & Co.'s large button factory was totally destroyed. Night Watchman Ziehm sent in an alarm by sounding his whistle, while a passer-by ran several blocks to the nearest alarm box.

It is one of Berlin's oldest establishments, being founded over 40 years ago by Jacob L. Shantz. Insurance will amount to about $50,000.

Secret Service men, at the instance of and closely co-operating with diplomatic representatives of Venezuela, are exerting every effort to apprehend the directing heads of an extensive filibustering project to smuggle 21,000 rifles into the South American republic, with the evident intention of arming as many men there for an uprising in the interests of Cipriano Castro, the former President.

Another Alderman Accused.

Martin, M.P., of using his position as alderman and member of the police committee to increase the sale of cigars, of which he is manufacturer, by promising saloonkeepers who purchased them he would use his influence to see the police were not too zealous in watching them. The charge will be investigated.

THE PAY VERY INADEQUATE

Assembly Discusses Salaries a Northwest Missionaries.

SITUATION IS DEPLORABLE

Home Mission Committee Will Consider Matter of Guaranteeing Salaries of Workers in Canadian Fields — Dr. McQueen Charges Extravagance Against Young Ministers of the Northwest.

Hamilton, June 10.—"I hear these things with shame and indignation beyond control. I have heard such things before and could not believe them to be true. If these things were known in Montreal you would very soon find the funds would suffer. We must set aside these things at once." Thus spoke Rev. F. M. Dewey, D.D., in the course of the discussion on the payment of home missionary salaries in the Northwest.

An overture from Alberta asking for the whole matter of guaranteeing salaries of home missionaries in full, to be taken into consideration brought the matter up. Rev. J. S. Shortt moved the adoption.

G. M. Macdonnell K.C., moved that the assembly instruct the home mission committee to change the system of paying salaries, for one similar to that of Knox College Mission Society.

Rev. A. McLaren of Medicine Hat made a strong appeal for a new method of collecting money in the Northwest for home missions. He had been found fault with for writing to the papers saying that the missionaries received just $250 less than the minimum salary. This was simply the downright, solid rockbottom fact. One of the cleverest men they had, who debited with $550 for his district, received exactly $283 in the year, and was enabled to attend the synod by the generosity of a Baptist. Another man debited with $575 got $23 in ten months from his field.

Rev. Mr. Chisholm endorsed this and declared that young men were driven to taking up homesteads, canvassing for insurance and other expedients to eke out a living.

Dr. McQueen thought the difficulty was due to a lack of proper spirit in the missionaries. It was too bad, he said, that such extravagant and practically untrue statements should be made. It would injure the church and the funds. The fault lay with those who complained. They should go back to their congregation and collect funds to pay the missionaries.

Principal MacKay supported the cause of the missionary. The matter should not be allowed to pass from the assembly till a better system was adopted. He knew an excellent man in his own college who had to drive a stage to pay for the keep of his horse and himself. This view was supported by a number of speakers.

Rev. Dr. McTavish and Rev. E. D. McLaren demurred to the position taken. It was the duty of the Presbyteries to look after such cases. Very often it depended on the man who was sent into a field.

The moderator stated that he could make similar statements about augmentation in the east, and he thought from his own experience the presbyteries in the west were very much to blame.

Rev. E. D. McLaren suggested that presbyteries be instructed to make more particular enquiries as to salaries paid within their bounds, and to report to the home mission committee. The amendments were withdrawn and the overture passed.

Rev. W. M. Rochester, on motion of Rev. Dr. McQueen, was accepted as the choice of the synod of Alberta for the position of superintendent of home missions for that synod.

Principal MacKay presented the report on application to receive ministers. Among twenty names passed was one of a member of the Society of Friends, who desired with his congregation, which had representatives of 12 different denominations, to join the Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Dr. McLeod believed young ministers should be encouraged to join the aged and infirm ministers' fund. They were now driven to invest in stocks and trade horses in order to provide for the future, and then they were turned out of the congregations for being worldly minded.

A committee was appointed to which several questions were referred relating to the status of licensed students. The permission to administer the sacrament and to solemnize marriage it was held should only be given by presbyteries when inevitable. Some in the Northwest were given permission without limitation.

G.T.P. Not Disgruntled.

Ottawa, June 10.—Hon. Mr. Parent, chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission, denies that the cost of the Port Arthur to Winnipeg section has tripled the estimate, as reported, but there has been an extra $6,000 per mile spent.

The G.T.P. officials at Montreal also absolutely deny the Winnipeg story of dissatisfaction on their part.

LONDON, June 9.—London cables for cattle are steady, at 13c to 13½c per lb. for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10½c to 10¾c per lb.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 9.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific Hoys stock market this morning, the offerings were 225 steers, 125 cows, 50 bulls, 250 sheep, 150 lambs, 800 hogs and 1200 calves. A feature of the trade to-day was the strong undertone to the market for cattle, and prices scored a further advance of ¼c to ½c per pound, which was due to another small run and the scarcity of good to choice beeves. The demand was good from local buyers, as they all wanted some beef to carry them thru for the balance of the week, and a fairly active trade was done. A few extra choice steers sold at 7c to 7½c per pound, making a new high record price, and the indications are that, unless supplies increase materially in the near future, they will go still higher, as the number of cattle coming forward just now is not sufficient to fill the requirements of the trade. Choice steers sold at 6¾c to 6¾c; good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5½c, and common at 4c to 4½c; good cows at 4c to 5½c, and lower grades at 3c to 4½c, and bulls ranged at from 3c to 5½c per pound. Owing to the increased offerings of sheep and lambs, a weaker feeling developed in the market, and prices declined. At the reduction the demand was good, and sales of sheep were made at 4c per lb., and lambs at $3.25 to $5 each. The supply of calves was also large, and prices ruled lower, with a fair demand at $2.50 to $8 each, as to quality. Supplies of hogs were small, and the tone of the market was firm, with sales of selected lots at $8.50 to $8.60 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

Calves—Receipts, 4733; market slow and lower; veals, $5 to $8.75; general sales, $7.50 to $8.50; buttermilks, $4 to $4.50; culi veals, $5 to $5.50; dressed calves slow and weak; city dressed veals, 8½c to 11c; country dressed calves, 7c to 11c.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 4261; sheep 25c to 50c lower; lambs steady to 25c lower; sheep, $4 to $5.50; culls, $3 to $3.50; quality fair; few choice, $5.75 to $6; lambs, $6 to $8; yearlings, $6.75 to $7; lambs, $8 to $8.50; yearlings, $8 to $8.25; dressed lambs, 14c to 15c; dressed sheep, 9c to 10c.

Suspicious Revive Massacres.

Berlin, June 10.—The Tageblatt's Aleppo correspondent states that the Turkish authorities last week executed twelve of the ringleaders, including six Armenians, concerned in the Adana massacres.

The energetic course of the Government, the correspondent adds, caused the panic-fear in the region between Alexandretta and the mountains to start a new massacre, in which about 160 persons were slain.

Reforestry Demanded.

Cobourg, June 10.—A meeting of the counties council of Northumberland and Durham to discuss reforestry of sand lands was largely attended. Conditions were shown to be becoming rapidly worse for agriculture in the area. Resolutions were passed endorsing reforestry for the area, appointing a committee to deal with the situation and arranging a series of meetings next fall.

The speakers included Dr. Fernow, Toronto University; Thomas Southworth, president Canadian Forestry Association; James Lawler, secretary; Prof. Zavitz of Guelph, Thornton and Owens, members of Parliament; Sam Clarke, J. J. Preston and Nesbitt, members of the Legislature; William Richard and Warden Powers, Col. J. Hughes presided.

Halifax Fireman Killed.

Halifax, N.S., June 10.—James Tynan lost his life and ten other firemen were injured by the collapse of a roof while fighting flames which completely destroyed the upholstering and packing building of the Nova Scotia Furnishing Co. yesterday.

Tynan, with twenty other firemen, was stationed in the building when the roof suddenly gave way. Suffering from terrible burns and other injuries they were all rescued with the exception of Tynan, who was pinned down by a 10-inch beam, which pressed across his chest. The fire loss was $10,000 insured.

$100,000 Fire in Berlin.

Berlin, June 10.—There was a $100,000 fire last evening when J. Y. Shantz & Co.'s large button factory was totally destroyed. It is supposed the fire started in the drying-room, where a farming machine is in operation all night. Night Watchman Ziehm sent in an alarm by sounding his whistle, while a passer-by ran several blocks to the nearest alarm box.

It is one of Berlin's oldest establishments, being founded over 60 years ago by Jacob L. Shantz. Insurance will amount to about $50,000.

Castro Plots a Rebellion.

New York, June 10.—It is learned that U.S. Secret Service men, at the instance of and closely co-operating with diplomatic representatives of Venezuela, are exerting every effort to apprehend the directing heads of an extensive filibustering project to smuggle 31,000 rifles into the South American republic, with the evident intention of arming as many men there for an uprising in the interests of Cipriano Castro, the former President.

Another Alderman Accused.

Montreal, June 10.—Formal complaint was made yesterday at the royal commission charging Ald. M. Martin, M.P., of using his position as alderman and member of the police committee to increase the sale of cigars, of which he is manufacturer, by promising saloonkeepers who purchased them he would use his influence to see the police were not too zealous in watching them. The charge will be investigated.

Montreal, June 10.—A number of the Norwegian and German delegates to the Congress of the International Council of Women, to be held in Toronto, June 14-20, have arrived in New York, and are visiting in that city, Boston and other places, before coming to Canada. Those across-seas delegates who reach Canada before the day of rendezvous at Montreal to-morrow, will spend the time before that day in visiting Quebec. Great preparations are being made there by the Quebec Local Council of Women to receive and entertain them.

The delegates from abroad and from the United States, 200 in number, meet in Montreal to-morrow, and in the afternoon a garden party and reception will be held. The program for the next day includes an executive meeting in the Royal Victoria College, a luncheon, drive, a garden party, and in the evening, a reception by the governors, principal and fellows of McGill University, in the Royal Victoria College. On Sunday there will be a special service and sermon in Christ Church Cathedral, and probably in some of the other churches also. On June 14 there will be a visit to the Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, a luncheon, given by Principal and Mrs. Robertson at the college, the return to Montreal by boat, in the afternoon, and and in the evening a reception by the Canadian Handicrafts Guild in the Art Gallery.

The next morning, June 15, a special train will convey the distinguished party to Ottawa, and upon their arrival they will be taken to the Experimental Farm, where luncheon will be given by the mayor and city. In the afternoon Her Excellency the Countess Grey will receive the officers and delegates at a garden party at Rideau Hall, and afterwards the Ottawa Local Council will entertain them at high tea in the parlors of St. Andrew's Church. The next day, June 16th, the party will arrive in Toronto, and that evening a public meeting will be held at which the president, Her Excellency, the Countess of Aberdeen, will be in the chair, and greetings will be received from the twenty-three national councils represented in the federation. The sessions open to the public begin on June 22nd.

Decide Not To Ask Merchants To Donate Prizes For Pic-nic

Excursion Committee of St. Peter's T. A. S. Met Last Night and Dealt With This Question—Consider it an Imposition and Will Not Solicit—Will Receive Donations, However, From Friends of Society.

ARRANGING FOR THE PICNIC

The members of St. Peter's T. A. S. excursion committee arrived at a very important decision last night when they met to make arrangements for their big annual outing on Dominion Day. The question of prizes was thoroughly considered, and it was decided not to ask any of the retail merchants to donate them as in former years. The response has always been a most generous one, and sufficient prizes were received for a long list of athletic events. For various reasons the Society has made a change. There are many friends who will probably wish to give something and their donations will be gratefully acknowledged. Anything of this nature may be left with Mr. Kane at the rooms or be called up over the 'phone regarding it. The committee are preparing a good list of sports, and there will be the same if not better races and other events. It is felt that the friends of the Society will appreciate the work it has done, and the change in the securing of prizes will not make any difference in the number that are received.

Burleigh Falls Power At $7.50 Per H.P. Agreeable To Committee

Central Ontario Power Co.'s Offer at This Price Will be Accepted—Have Emphasized its Cheapness in Their Meetings With Council—Other Matters Were Settled.

LOCAL CO.'S FRANCHISE

The Special Power Committee of the City Council commenced to wrestle with the power problem at a meeting last night, and the preliminary steps were entered upon. Ald. McIntyre was in the chair and the other members were Ald. Gillespie, Hicks, Bradburn and Phelan. The committee was a unit upon the presen being an opportune time for dealing with the power question. There were two or three offers recently received and have been already discussed at some length.

The Burleigh Falls proposition was given most attention last night. Three different sets of engineers' reports were gone over by the committee and compared.

Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., representing the Central Ontario Power Co., had stated that the Company would transmit power and deliver it at Peterborough for $7.60 a h.p.

It was finally moved by Ald. Hicks and Gillespie that this offer be accepted for as much power as the Company can deliver. Mr. Culverwell emphasized on the occasion of his meeting the Council that this would give Peterborough cheaper power than could be secured anywhere else in the province. His alternative proposal to sell Bureligh Falls at $125,-000 has been considered, but the committee considers that the first mentioned proposition is the better from a local standpoint. Other matters were dealt with, but nothing in regard to them is yet ready for publication.

A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY

Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair, no Matter What Color.

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the head is crowned with scant hair. Scant and falling hair, it is now known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the germ throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ, and, of course, stops the falling hair, and prevents baldness. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by McDermid & Jury, Druggists; also Payne's Drug Store. One Dollar bottles guaranteed.

"OUTDOOR CANADA."

The June iss of Outdoor Canada, just from the press is a splendid specimen of the sort of literature that should go into the hands of Canadians, young and old, at this season of the year. It is an Outing number and the forty-eight pages with handsome coloured cover are laden with articles and illustrations that have in them the lure of the open and the spirit of the great outdoors. You cannot read this month's issue of Outdoor Canada without feeling that not only is Canada a good country to live in, but that every Canadian owes it to himself to live, not exist. Holiday trips are suggested, the experiences of others who have travelled the great, green wood ways and the sparkling water routes, are given and the illustrations used simply make one hunger to go and do likewise. The regular departments of the magazine are as usual up to the mark, not the least interesting article being the last of the series from the pen of Prof. D. M. Barton, on athletics. The magazine is on sale at newsdealers everywhere or may be secured from the office of publication. Spectator Building, Hamilton. It is a big ten cents' worth.

"SUBURBANITE" WRITES STRONGLY COMPLAINING OF DUST TROUBLE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As a citizen who takes an interest in the City Council I must say that some one is neglecting or at least does not realize the nuisance of the dust evil. In winter the snow is plowed off practically every bit of sidewalk within the city's limits, but in summer the only relief in the outtlying and even close to central parts of the city is an occasional shower. I must say that I do not feel like broaching this question now as I know it is too late for any action this summer. However, I must say that the aldermen do not realize the feeling of a large number of the people in regard to the dust nuisance. There are many streets in the city that never see a water carts from the time the snow disappears in the Spring until the first flurries announce the approach of winter.

The leaves of the trees are dust laden and yellow before the summer is half over, the sidewalks are covered with dust until a rain washes them clean, the grass is dusty, verandahs show little heaps after every fresh wind, windows and doors fail to keep it out of the houses. It is everywhere. Our clothes have to be brushed every time we return from a trip up town. Snow and rain are easily eluded compared with the dust. You cannot escape it and with a river flowing through the centre of the city there are only four or five carts to sprinkle the streets. Supposing the people would have to pay a little extra for the luxury of a decent watering system I do not think there is any expense they would more willingly meet. Is the Board of Works going to wait and keep on waiting until some one wakes up and finally realizes that something should be done; that a more comprehensive plan should be prepared and every street in the city receive attention. We will be dusty enough when we have flitted off this earthly stage without the share many are now receiving. There are city streets that are positively deeper in dust than the worst that could be found in the country.

In winter you leave the cold and snow behind you, but this dust affair possesses satanic qualities—it is with you all the time. It clings to your clothes, gets under your collar and into your shoes—but what's the use of going any further with this matter? If the members of the Council want to give the city a feature that will appeal to visitors, not to mention the enduring natives, let them do something to keep the dust in its place—on the street. The present watering of the streets is not much better than an excuse. Of course some of he highways get good attention. But that's not fair enough. Let's all share in them and I will guarantee that not a single resident will grumble at any reasonable increased expense.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

SUBURBANITE.

REGULAR MEETING OF OTONABEE COUNCIL

Otonabee Council met on May 27.

John Hanbidge was present asking leave to commute his statute labour for 2 years to improve the road between Lots 18, Con. 15. Request granted. A large and representative deputation from the Keene Street Improvement Association was present, asking for sufficient 12-inch tile to drain the east side of Main street from Wedlocks shop to the north of the town hall, stating amongst other reasons why they should be allowed this grant, that for the past eight years the association had raised for the streets over $100 a year by free labour, local contributions, concerts, excursions, etc., but alas for their hopes the city fathers hardened their hearts and would sell them the tile for 50 cents each, granting sufficient tile free for the front of the hall and the two streets running east and west. It is remarked by visitors that Keene is the prettiest, cleanest, most progressive village in the county, all due to the tireless free work of the above association. Enquiry is made from many places in the province as to how the work is carried on and other places are adopting it. A special grant of $50 was made to each of the five wards for the improvement of the roads. R. A. and H. Deyell were present, asking for a special grant to improve what is known as the Bensfort road through Otonabee. $30 was granted, also an additional grant of $30 to ward No. 4, as this road is chiefly used by the people of South Monaghan. Reeve Fife, Deputy Reeve Stewart and R. A. Deyell were appointed a committee to interview the Monaghan Council with the object of getting a grant for the road. A petition was presented, signed by 45 ratepayers, requesting that a polling place be established at Allandale, the majority of the voters would be taken from the Keene division, it being over the 200 limit, as fixed by law. The request was granted as follows: To be composed of the west half of Con. 4, all of 5, 6, 7, east half of 8, north of Lot 16 and south of Lot 25, all 8 between Lots 16 and 22, and the following changes were made in the polling divisons: The 5th and the west half of the 4th Concession, south of the base line is detached from No. 1, Villiers, and attached to No. 3, Keene, the west half of 7, the east half of 8, between Lots 21 and 25 are taken from No. 4, Girvins, and put in Allandale. The clerk was instructed to ask for tenders for the making of 12, 15 and 24 cement tile. The following accounts pere passed: W. Drummond $1.00, being P. Crowley's 1907 dog tax, which he as collector was unable to collect; Scott & Hogg, coal for crusher $1.73; J. Hanbidge, drawing timber for bridge $2.14; Joseph Steel, repairing Duck Pond ditch $4.00; Melville Stewart, cedar $4.00; freight on grade repairs 70 cents. Council adjourned to June 21.

A carpenter appealed to be assessed as tenant for part of Lot 30, Con. 10, John Bell owner. Granted.

John Monogue to be jointly assessed for tenant with his sons, Patrick and John, for the west half of Lot 31, Con. 9. Thos. Fitzgerald owner. Granted.

Michael Torpey, over-assessed, ordered that he be assessed for $3,000 instead of $3,500.

Joseph Gillespie, over-assessment, on east half Lot 8, Con. 11, ordered he be assessed $2,000 instead of $2,350.

SIMCOE ST., PETERBOROUGH

No Action Was Taken In Matter Of The Peterborough Canoe Co.

The Manufacturers' Committee last night considered the application of the Peterborough Light and Power Co. for a thirty-year franchise of the city's streets. Ald Gillespie presided with Ald. Duffus, Metheral, Hicks, Morrow, and Mayor Rush present. City Clerk Armstrong had written to other cities for information regarding the prices of electric power as delivered to citizens and it was learned that the charge in Peterborough were cheaper than in the majority of cities, and only two were lower. The committee is not yet prepared to settle the question, as they intend to go into it thoroughly in order to arrange a satisfactory bargain. The result of their deliberations last night were the following notes, which were filed, to be placed with others as they are suggested:

That this franchise will not in any way interfere with the city going in for lighting its own streets.

That in case the city does go in for street lighting that the Peterborough Power Co.'s poles will be available.

There was also considerable discussion about the city owning the pole lines and renting them to the power companies, also about the city owning the conduits.

It was also moved by Ald. Metheral and Duffus that when the Manufacturers Comittee is called to consider the question of the Peterborough Light & Power Co.'s franchise any three members may be authorized to take the matter up, the matter not to be finally dealt with by the Committee until a quorum is present.—Carried.

Canoe Company's Request.

The committee considered the application of the Peterborough Canoe Co. for a grant of land behind their present property and a fixed assessment. The committee was practically unanimous that no steps should be taken until the Company presents a definite proposition as to what they offer.

It was finally moved Ald. Hicks and Duffus that the committee report in regard to the application of Peterborough Canoe Co. for land asked for by them and a fixed assessment that this committee does not see its way clear to making any recommendation until the company makes some proposition to increase the capacity of its factory, or in some other way offers some compensation to the city for the land.

June Number Of The "Echoes" Is A Credit To Its Editors

"The Collegiate Echoes," the official organ of the local Collegiate Institute, makes its last appearance for the present term with the best edition yet issued by the students. Thirty-two pages in all with new cover design of light green embossed in gold, the June number reflects the greatest credit on its editors. It contains many features of interest including a splendid article by Mr. Frank Yeigh, of Toronto, "Five Famous Empty Chairs," profusely illustrated and published by permission of the Canadian Magazine. Other articles are "The Gas Engine," Stewart Anderson; "Fourth Form Prophecy," by Harold McGill; "The Wild Black Rice," by Stella Shearer; "A French Village," by Stanley Fife, and "Twins," by Maisie Armstrong. "Current Events" are cleverly treated by Kathryn Burnett in French, Gertrude Yenney in German, and Harold Brown in Latin, while the other departments have been well looked after. The edition is especially well illustrated and is a bright newsy number that friends of the school will read from cover to cover with relish.

Dr. R. W. Bell Contradicts Sensational Despatch

Dr. Bell, Medical Inspector of the Provincial Health Department is in the city and called on the Examiner to contradict a despatch received from Toronto, and published in the Examiner yesterday, to the effect that he was driven out of the Severn district by those opposed to vaccination. He says the facts are grossly exaggerated. He has been in the Severn district eighteen days combatting an outbreak of small pox. In only one case was there any trouble over vaccination, and that ws when a wedding party, primed with a little too much drink, resented the introduction of vaccine into the hymeneal festivities. Dr. Bell and his assistants retired for the moment, but went back in a day or two and completed their work.

He was not only not driven out, but has practicall driven out the small-pox. There were about forty cases, owing to the disease not having been promptly dealt with. Under Dr. Bell and his assistants every person in the district has been vaccinated, and it is expected that before the end of the month every trace of the disease will have disappeared. Vaccination and isolation have done the work.

THE CANADIANS MAKE PROTEST

Mr Macdonald Has Sweeping Resolution Withdrawn.

PRESS MEN HEAR BALFOUR

British Statesman Says European Situation is Good Cause For Anxiety —Editor of The Globe Opposes Resolution Calling For Imperial Military Training on Ground That It is Unfair to Canada.

London, June 10.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Imperial Press Congress resumed its discussion on imperial defence yesterday morning. Hon. A. J. Balfour presided, and Lord Roberts and Hon. R. Haldane were present.

A grave note was again emphasized in the speeches of the home statesmen. Mr. Balfour declared all local defence, though it was necessary, was subordinate to imperial defence and subordinate from the viewpoint of the particular localities themselves, not from the viewpoint of the Empire only.

Dealing first with the military aspect of the question he laid down two propositions; first, all forces of the overseas states should be under the control of those states; second, they should be organized on a common basis. Respecting the navy he would not regard as useless any local attempt at naval defence, but anything in the nature of coastal protection should be rigidly subordinate to fleet action. The fate of the Empire would be dependent upon fleet superiority, and that superiority must be shown in home waters.

If there were to be an Armageddon, it would take place in the German

HON. A. J. BALFOUR.

"Anybody who reads the signs of the times will, I think, agree with the weighty words of Lord Rosebery and Sir Edward Grey, and will recognize that no man can now speak of imperial defence without some note of anxiety — not panic; there is no question of panic, but we have to look round at the gathering forces and armaments of possible foes and the strategic import of possible combinations, and everyone will recognize that the language of the Foreign Secretary is language unusual in the mouths of foreign secretaries, and does not go beyond the necessity of the situation."

Mr. Balfour next humorously remarked that the British nation was fond of saying about itself that it was not a nation it used to be. In this regard, however, he looked forward, not perhaps without anxiety, but with high, cheerful courage towards the dangers which might menace the Empire, but he urged that responsibility lay upon all.

J. S. Brierly of Montreal assured the conference that Canada was willing to take her share in imperial defence consistent with the maintenance of her autonomy. These two elements were not inconsistent. He expressed pleasure at the full recognition of the home statesmen that the oversea states must be allowed full control of their own affairs. Briefly combatted the idea that Canada had been lacking on the matter of imperial defence.

Mr. Haldane addressed himself particularly to the necessity for homogeneity in the military forces of the Empire with due regard to local needs and local control, and said the next twenty years would be critical years in the history of the Empire.

Lord Roberts thought the next 20 months, not years, would be an important time for the Empire, and the situation demanded the closest attention of all patriotic men. The question is whether we had the spirit and foresight to maintain our Empire. The growth of the oversea states in wealth made them objects of the envy of other nations. We must be prepared for a common effort and common sacrifice.

He desired to correct one idea prevalent overseas, namely, that preparation for defence meant the inculcation of the spirit of militarism. His long soldier's life had made him a man of peace, but the discipline which made a man a competent defender of his country equipped him best for rival duties.

Delegate Fink moved and Mark Cohen seconded a resolution, considering it essential that in each self-governing dominion a systematic universal training of the male population should be strenuously advocated. J. St. Loe Strachey and Leopold Amery of The Times proposed an amendment to include Britain in the scope of the resolution, which produced a warm protest from J. A. Macdonald of Toronto.

He said it was a subject with which the conference had nothing to do. Let each dominion decide what was best for it. For Canadians to advocate what was urged upon them would hurt imperial interests in Canada. Canada need not say it was loyal; it offended him to hear men ask that. There was enough loyalty in Toronto alone to stock a whole dominion.

Let them urge upon their people the importance of the militia and the importance of the fleet. The navy to be one, the fleets to be as many as the Empire would provide. There need be no doubt once it was made plain that a crisis had arrived. Laurier, a French-Canadian Roman Catholic, had declared he would stump Quebec in defence of the Empire if necessary. In saying that he voiced the sentiment of the Dominion. Mr. Macdonald also hinted that some British journalists might refrain from scares.

Concluding, and speaking for himself and other Canadians, he begged that they be not asked to vote on the resolution.

Mr. Balfour intimated that the resolution be withdrawn, which was done with the unanimous assent of the conference.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The town of Korinchi, Sumatra, was devastated by an earthquake and 250 persons killed.

Mrs. Peter Lants of Berlin, Ont., committed suicide by cutting her throat with a razor.

The perjury charge against James Farrell, the Streetsville hotelkeeper, was dismissed on a technicality.

Mr. John E. Redmond has notified the British Government that the Nationalist party intends to vote against the budget.

The Russian Douma has accused Dr. Dubrovin, president of the League of Russian People, of organizing political murders.

Thomas Marshall of St. Andrew's, N.B., committed suicide by throwing himself into a well, although his wife tried to hold him back.

At a special meeting of the shareholders of the Lake Superior Corporation at Camden, N.J., two new directors were elected to represent London interests.

At the General Sessions at Hamilton Mrs. Whitehorn lost a suit on a policy against the Canadian Guardian Co. because ten cents of the premium was unpaid.

Telegraphers Lose.

Toronto, June 10.—The board of arbitrators, before whom the dispute between the Canadian Pacific Railway and the company's telegraphers was argued in Montreal last week, has completed its finding. It is understood that both cases were decided in favor of the company.

The telegraphers wanted an operator, who had failed to notify a station which a train was soon due to pass, and who had given the trainmen their orders to proceed, the result of which was a collision, reinstated.

They also wanted a man who had been promoted from the position of chief despatcher to the position of trainmaster and who had been injured and then put back in the despatchers' office, removed, because his return necessitated the stepping down of the men who had been promoted.

The New Potentate.

Louisville, Ky., June 10.—George L. Street of Richmond, Pa., was yesterday advanced from deputy imperial potentate to imperial potentate at the business meeting of the Knights of Mystic Shrine. He succeeds Edwin I. Alderman of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Didn't Prove the Magistrate.

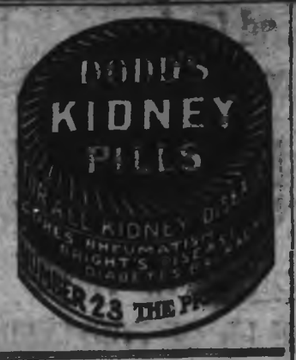
Brampton, June 10.—Farrell, the Streetsville hotelkeeper, was discharged yesterday on a perjury charge because the crown failed to prove that Magistrate Crawford, before whom the offence was committed, was a duly accredited officer.

Palpitation of the Heart.

One of the first danger signals that announce something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or again, there may be a most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visible pulsations of the arteries. The person may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief that no one need suffer.

Mr. Sylvester Smith, Hampton, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and tried doctor's medicines, but they only gave me temporary relief. I heard of your Heart and Nerve Pills and bought two boxes and before I had used them I was completely cured and would recommend them to all similarly affected."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.



BAD DISASTER AT THE SOO

Locks Are Wrecked and Two Vessels Badly Damaged.

SERIOUS TIE-UP IS FEARED

S.S. Crescent Has Sunk, S.S. Walker is Stove In and Water is Flooding Through the Gates—Heavy Loss of Property is Threatened If Movable Dam Fails to Work—Passengers Escaped Injury.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 10.—The Canadian Soo locks were practically put out of commission yesterday afternoon by one of the worst accidents that ever happened in marine circles in the Soo or vicinity.

At the present time, water from Lake Superior is pouring through the locks in a torrent, and it will probably be a month before the locks are again available for the marine trade. The overflow water threatens to wash out the piers at the foot of the locks.

These boats, the Assiniboia of the C.P.R. line, the Percy G. Walker of the Gilchrist fleet, and the Crescent City, all figured in the accident.

At two yesterday afternoon the Assiniboia was in the locks, bound down, followed by the Crescent City, which had not yet entered the upper gate. The Walker was coming up the river, presumably to lock through on an up trip.

Just as the Crescent was entering the canal, and before the gates could be closed at the upper end, the Walker crashed into the lower gates, breaking them and allowing the Assiniboia and Crescent to rush down with the overflow of water.

The Assiniboia missed the Walker, barely grazing her side, but the Crescent dashed into her and received a hole in her side six feet square. The Walker also was considerably damaged.

The Crescent and Assiniboia proceeded to the Michigan side. The Assiniboia seems to have suffered minor injuries, while the Crescent is now lying on bottom. The Walker reached the centre of the river and grounded, and was later towed to the Michigan side by two tugs.

The entire town was excited last evening over the accident, and hundreds have visited the canal. Water is pouring through in a torrent, and unless the flow is stopped soon property below the canal will suffer.

When the boats came down after the accident they traveled at 15 miles per hour through the lock and it is a miracle that they escaped as easily as they did. Had the Assiniboia turned turtle in the locks not a passenger would have escaped.

A movable dam at the head of the locks is being placed in position in an endeavor to have the locks repaired but since it has not yet been tried there is some doubt as to its effectiveness. The four large gates have been swept away, and there remain only the frail emergency gates, which are not of much use, providing the dam refuses to work.

Bad Fire In Quebec.

Quebec, June 10.—Fire yesterday did $100,000 damage in St. Roch's district. The heaviest losers are the Belland & Gignac lumber mills, Parisian Corset Co., both practically destroyed. Twenty or thirty houses were burned. All the houses on Lallemant street, from Dorchester to Pion, and the leather factory at Caron street, were burned.

AIR CARRIES HEALING MEDICINE

That Cures Colds, Catarrh and Diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Bronchial Tubes.

About the healing power of the air of the pine woods everybody knows, but to supply it in the form of medicine seemed almost beyond realization. After many years of careful study a scientific remedy, now known as Catarrhozone, has been produced, which enables the sufferer to breathe into his lungs all the healing properties of the balsamic pine woods air. This marvellous remedy has conquered catarrh. It unquestionably does cure it permanently.

CURE IS GUARANTEED.

You cannot fail to be cured by Catarrhozone, because it reaches and destroys the cause of the disease. You simply inhale the antiseptic vapor. It instantly spreads to every part of the breathing organs. The micro-organisms infecting the diseased tissues of your nose, throat, and lungs die instantly. There is nothing left to cause inflammation. Any spots that are raw and sore are quickly healed by Catarrhozone, and you soon are completely cured.

IT RELIEVES INSTANTLY!

It is impossible to breathe through a Catarrhozone inhaler without at once feeling better. Your head is cured of mucous discharge, your nostrils are cleansed of all putrid matter, the phlegm is removed from your throat. Every trace of catarrh is searched out of the system by Catarrhozone, which thoroughly disinfects and purifies every organ of the body.

Catarrhozone is the only natural remedy for catarrh. It cures by cleansing and purifying all diseased tissues, not by deadening the stomach with drugs.

MINISTERS AND DOCTORS USE "CATARRHOZONE."

It is a clean, simple, and satisfactory remedy that is endorsed by the clergy, and universally prescribed by the medical profession because it is scientific and absolutely certain to effect lasting cures.

Don't be misled into accepting a substitute for Catarrhozone, which alone can cure thoroughly. It is so powerfully healing that colds disappear in an hour, coughs in two hours, and even bronchitis, asthma, and chronic catarrh in a comparatively short time. Two months' treatment, $1.00. Small size, 50c.; all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ontario.

It consumes the coal, but through leaks and cracks wastes the heat.

It is not economy to have such a furnace in your own home, or in your tenant's home.

If you are thinking of building you should be interested in Sunshine Furnace. It adds 100 per cent. to home comforts.

As soon as you let the contract for your house decide on your furnace. The "Sunshine" man will be pleased to tell you just how the rooms ought to be laid out with an eye to securing greatest heat from the smallest consumption of coal.

If you want to experiment with the question don't specify "Sunshine."

If you want to settle the question specify "Sunshine."

STANLEY KETCHELL STOPPED JACK O'BRIEN IN THREE ROUNDS

Philadelphia, June 9.— Stanley Ketchell, the middleweight champion, to-night defeated Jack O'Brien in the third round, thus accomplishing a feat that Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, failed to accomplish in six rounds some three weeks ago. The fight was stopped in the second minute of the third round, after O'Brien had been knocked down twice in the second and once in the third, and was almost unable to raise his hands to defend himself.

The fight was a whirlwind affair from the start to the finish. Ketchell went after O'Brien from the tap of the gong, and showed that he was determined to catch him and achieve a knockout. He devoted his attention to O'Brien's body until he had drawn the latter's guard down, and then he sent in a crashing right in the second round that scored the first knockdown. O'Brien got up gamely, but went down flat on his back a few minutes later from a right and left on the jaw.

In the second round another terrific right put O'Brien on his back for five seconds.

The third round was a desperate attempt by Ketchell to end the fight quickly. He went after the tired O'Brien, and in his anxiety to land a knockout was wild. He pinned O'Brien to the ropes and sent in a shortarm left-hand blow to chin that put O'Brien against the ropes hopeless. O'Brien kept his head, however, and clinched and hung on to save himself. Ketchell fought himself loose from O'Brien's clasp and swung right and left on the almost helpless O'Brien. He staggered about groggily and Referee Jack McGuigan, evidently fearing that O'Brien might be seriously injured, stopped the contest. O'Brien was disposed to protest this action, but thought better of it and left the ring.

The men both weighed less than 160 pounds.

BIRDS WILL PASS OVER THE CITY

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

The two or three thousand homing pigeons that are to be released at Midland, Ont., on the 19th inst., between 5 and 6 a.m., will be of interest to Peterborough as those comprising the Boston lofts will probably fly over our heads, Peterborough being in a direct line between these points. They ought to pass here in about two hours after being liberated.

Yours truly,
SPORT.

CAMPBELLFORD'S POWER HOUSE

Stone Work to be Torn Down and Reinforcements Erected.

Campbellford, June 10.—The citizens have at last learned that something is going to be done and undone in the erection of the power house here. This now famous case is a heartache to the citizens. It has been decided to tear down the stone work and build that over again. The concrete piers and abutments below the stone work and under water are to be reinforced by an eight inch wall on each side of them.

Messrs. Brown and Aylmer have the contract and Walter J. Francis, of Montreal is the engineer in charge. The townspeople are looking ahead to a satisfactory completion of the work which has been the subject of no end of discussion.

NO PLAYGROUND IN THE CENTRAL PART OF CITY, SAYS A WRITER

To the Editor of The Examiner:

It is a wonder that the school authorities, who, one would think, would be in favour of play grounds for children, are doing apparently everything in their power to take away from the youngsters the only available play grounds there are in the central portion of the city. This Spring, thanks to Mr. Dumble and others, the Central Park, which had been used for years as a play ground, was closed up for this purpose and consequently the boys had to look for other grounds upon which to play ball. The only other suitable place in the neighbourhood was the Central School yard, and, after being banished from the park the boys got into the habit of playing their games there. Now, this ground has been closed up and the boys forbidden to play there. As soon as school is dismissed the gates are locked and the few boys who have had the nerve to climb over the fence have been banished. There is surely no grass to be hurt in the Central School yard, nor have the boys done any damage there. Why this blind action on the part of the School Board? Do they want to drive the boys to something worse than baseball?

Yours once more,
"A Friend of the Boy."

WATCHING THE WHEAT GROW

Winnipeg, June 9.—(Special.)—The ninth crop bulletin issued by the C. P. R. this morning is even more optimistic than any of those which have preceded it. Summed up, it states that the weather has been ideal for growing purposes, with plenty of rain and warmth. It states that all the wheat has been sown and that there remains only a small acreage of coarse grains to be seeded. At Strassburg, in Last Mountain section, wheat is up twelve inches; at Burnside, Man., it is from ten to twelve inches above ground; at Otterbourne, on the Emerson branch, it is one foot high; at Emerson it is up from seven to ten inches; on the Lenore branch from eight to ten inches; Wetaskiwin four to seven; Lacombe branch seven inches, and Crow's Nest branch eight inches in height.

All over the three Provinces conditions are ideal, and there is every prospect of a bountiful harvest in from 90 to 90 days.

BUILT NEW BRIDGE NEAR PROTESTANT HOME

Mr. A. Brown, bridge constructor for the Grand Trunk Railway has been in the city for the past week, superintending the building of a new bridge near the Protestant Home, and the placing of a new flooring in one at Bethune street. The work is practically finished and certainly is a great improvement.

FLOATING ISLANDS IN THE RIVER

Hastings, June 10.—Although the floating islands may add a distinctly picturesque appearance to the river above the dam, a large number of residents of town would just as leave they had stayed up around the Keene River, as they had brought with them a horde of mosquitos as well as a pest of black snakes. One can hardly even go around the shores above the dam without meeting one of the latter.

STANLEY KETCHELL STOPPED JACK O'BRIEN IN THREE ROUNDS

Philadelphia, June 9.— Stanley Ketchell, the middleweight champion, to-night defeated Jack O'Brien in the third round, thus accomplishing a feat that Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, failed to accomplish in six rounds some three weeks ago. The fight was stopped in the second minute of the third round, after O'Brien had been knocked down twice in the second and once in the third, and was almost unable to raise his hands to defend himself.

The fight was a whirlwind affair from the start to the finish. Ketchell went after O'Brien from the tap of the gong, and showed that he was determined to catch him and achieve a knockout. He devoted his attention to O'Brien's body until he had drawn the latter's guard down, and then he sent in a crashing right in the second round that scored the first knockdown. O'Brien got up gamely, but went down flat on his back a few minutes later from a right and left on the jaw.

In the second round another terrific right put O'Brien on his back for five seconds.

The third round was a desperate attempt by Ketchell to end the fight quickly. He went after the tired O'Brien, and in his anxiety to land a knockout was wild. He pinned O'Brien to the ropes and sent in a shortarm left-hand blow to chin that put O'Brien against the ropes hopeless. O'Brien kept his head, however, and clinched and hung on to save himself. Ketchell fought himself loose from O'Brien's clasp and swung right and left on the almost helpless O'Brien. He staggered about groggily and Referee Jack McGuigan, evidently fearing that O'Brien might be seriously injured, stopped the contest. O'Brien was disposed to protest this action, but thought better of it and left the ring.

The men both weighed less than 160 pounds.

BIRDS WILL PASS OVER THE CITY

Sporting Editor of The Examiner:

The two or three thousand homing pigeons that are to be released at Midland, Ont., on the 19th inst., between 5 and 6 a.m., will be of interest to Peterborough as those comprising the Boston lofts will probably fly over our heads, Peterborough being in a direct line between these points. They ought to pass here in about two hours after being liberated.

Yours truly,
SPORT.

CAMPBELLFORD'S POWER HOUSE

Stone Work to be Torn Down and Reinforcements Erected.

Campbellford, June 10.—The citizens have at last learned that something is going to be done and undone in the erection of the power house here. This now famous case is a heartache to the citizens. It has been decided to tear down the stone work and build that over again. The concrete piers and abutments below the stone work and under water are to be reinforced by an eight inch wall on each side of them.

Messrs. Brown and Aylmer have the contract and Walter J. Francis, of Montreal is the engineer in charge. The townspeople are looking ahead to a satisfactory completion of the work which has been the subject of no end of discussion.

NO PLAYGROUND IN THE CENTRAL PART OF CITY, SAYS A WRITER

To the Editor of The Examiner:

It is a wonder that the school authorities, who, one would think, would be in favour of play grounds for children, are doing apparently everything in their power to take away from the youngsters the only available play grounds there are in the central portion of the city. This Spring, thanks to Mr. Dumble and others, the Central Park, which had been used for years as a play ground, was closed up for this purpose and consequently the boys had to look for other grounds upon which to play ball. The only other suitable place in the neighbourhood was the Central School yard, and, after being banished from the park the boys got into the habit of playing their games there. Now, this ground has been closed up and the boys forbidden to play there. As soon as school is dismissed the gates are locked and the few boys who have had the nerve to climb over the fence have been banished. There is surely no grass to be hurt in the Central School yard, nor have the boys done any damage there. Why this blind action on the part of the School Board? Do they want to drive the boys to something worse than baseball?

Yours once more,
"A Friend of the Boy."

WATCHING THE WHEAT GROW

Winnipeg, June 9.—(Special.)—The ninth crop bulletin issued by the C. P. R. this morning is even more optimistic than any of those which have preceded it. Summed up, it states that the weather has been ideal for growing purposes, with plenty of rain and warmth. It states that all the wheat has been sown and that there remains only a small acreage of coarse grains to be seeded. At Strassburg, in Last Mountain section, wheat is up twelve inches; at Burnside, Man., it is from ten to twelve inches above ground; at Otterbourne, on the Emerson branch, it is one foot high; at Emerson it is up from seven to ten inches; on the Lenore branch from eight to ten inches; Wetaskiwin four to seven; Lacombe branch seven inches, and Crow's Nest branch eight inches in height.

All over the three Provinces conditions are ideal, and there is every prospect of a bountiful harvest in from 90 to 90 days.

Mr. A. The work is practically finished and certainly is a great improvement.

FLOATING ISLANDS IN THE RIVER

Hastings, June 10.—Although the floating islands may add a distinctly picturesque appearance to the river above the dam, a large number of residents of town would just as leave they had stayed up around the Keene River, as they had brought with them a horde of mosquitos as well as a pest of black snakes. One can hardly even go around the shores above the dam without meeting one of the latter.

Dr. Vaschalde, also of St. Michael's College, sailed from New York Wednesday, June 9th, for Naples. They intend visiting Rome, Lucerne, Paris, London and Dublin, and will probably spend three months in Europe.

Miss Maud E. C. Bradley, Brockville who is well known in Peterborough, having had the management of several concert companies, has the exclusive management of Mr. Harold Jarvis, the celebrated Canadian tenor, of Detroit, for his tour to the Pacific Coast this season, through the Canadian West. Mr. Jarvis will give, with the assistance of Helen Wyrick Shafer, dramatic entertainer, of Detroit, the entire programme. He will be available for local engagement about the last of September, or first of October. Any one desirous of securing his services may communicate with Miss Maude C. Bradley, Brockville.

HALL'S BRIDGE

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Examiner Special.

Hall's Bridge, June 8th—The Lakehurst boys drove down to Wesley on Saturday last and played a friendly game of football with the Wesley lads. The result was a tie game.

Mr. H. Latimer, pastor of Wesley Circuit, left last week to attend the Methodist Conference, and on account of his absence the Lakehurst and Wesley pulpits were vacant.

Mr. A. McConkey must have forgotten to make his trip on Sunday last. Maybe the wind is too high. Hold to your "Cady" Austin.

Mr. Ross Allin was the guest at Mr. D. W. Blewett's on Sunday last.

Master Wilbert and Miss Josie Northey were to Mr. John Pearson's for tea Sunday evening.

Miss Olive Pearson was the guest of Miss Vera Harris on Sunday evening.

U. S. Wool Duties.

Washington, June 10.—By a vote of 43 to 39 the Senate yesterday adopted the finance committee's amendment restoring the Dingley rate of 30 cents a pound on wool top waste and other wastes. The House rate was 20 cents. This vote is regarded as a test vote on all amendments to that schedule.

Weds Five Couples at Once.

Bristol, Tenn., June 10.—Rev. Alfred H. Hurroughs of this city yesterday with a single ceremony joined in marriage five young couples who eloped to Bristol from points in Virginia.

Blackhand to Be Exposed.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 10.—Operations in nearly every large city in the United States and the ramifications of the secret service in Italy will be laid bare, it is expected, when the blackhand cases, which was rounded up on Tuesday in Columbus and Massieville, Ohio, by postoffice inspectors of Cincinnati, are brought to trial.

They show, the officers assert, that hundreds of Italian business men have been paying tribute to the blackhand to secure immunity from death or torture at the hands of members of the society. The names of many active members of the blackhand, together with the names of hundreds of their victims, are in possession of the officers.

To Ban Licenseholders.

Edmonton, Alta., June 10.—The report of the temperance and moral reform committee was adopted by the Methodist Conference yesterday. It set forth that prohibition is the only solution of the liquor traffic and members will do their utmost to elect temperance men to the next Legislature. A request will be made to the Government for a local option law and abolition of intemperate at clubs. An effort will be made to prohibit licenseholders securing a seat in municipal councils or in the Legislature.

McMaster Man Appointed.

Saskatoon, Sask., June 10.—At a meeting of the board of governors of the University of Saskatchewan, Dr. Edmund H. Oliver, formerly of Toronto University, now lecturer of history at McMaster University, was appointed to the chair of history and economics.

Dr. George L. Ling, also formerly of Toronto, now adjunct professor of mathematics in Columbia University, was appointed professor of mathematics.

Killed by Upsetting of Buggy.

Delhi, June 10.—Tuesday night, while John Ferguson of Delhi and Mr. Ellison of Langton were returning home from Walsingham Centre, the horse shied while turning a corner on the road and upset the buggy, throwing the occupants out. Ferguson was instantly killed, but Ellison escaped without injury. Ferguson was in the fire and life insurance business for many years.

Object to Sunday Trains.

Kingston, June 10.—In the Synod of Ontario Diocese, observance of the Lord's Day was discussed, and the fact deplored that people are not giving man Sunday rest. The Lord's Day Alliance and the chairman of the railway committee will be complained to. Clergymen will urge people not to use Sunday trains.

Town Surrounded by Fire.

St. John, N.B., June 10.—At midnight last night word reached St. John that the village of Bath is surrounded by flames and will be utterly wiped out. This place contains about 1,600 inhabitants. Fire engines are being rushed to the scene from Woodstock, Perth and Andover, but it is feared the town is doomed.

Sues Chief Justice.

Toronto, June 10.—Because Sir William Ralph Meredith refused a writ of habeas corpus to Frank Miller, a prisoner in the jail, J. B. Mackenzie, Miller's lawyer, yesterday issued a writ against the chief justice, claiming $500 penalty under an imperial statute of Charles the Second.

A Heroic Slave.

There was a humble slave in the palace of the Caliph Haroun al Raschid. The caliph had in his audience chamber twenty rare vases, and it was written in the laws of Bagdad that he who should have the misfortune to break one of these would pay the penalty with his life. This slave one day broke a vase. He was instantly seized, tried and condemned to death. But the caliph had no sooner pronounced sentence on him than the slave turned, and, walking calmly to the other nineteen vases, with one sweep of the arm destroyed them all.

"Wretch," the caliph thundered, "why have you done that barbarous deed?"

"To save the lives of nineteen of my fellow countrymen," the doomed slave replied.

Munich an Artistic Leader.

Munich is in great part a creation of the nineteenth century. Yet when one sees how artfully and lovingly she has woven the new about whatever remains of the old it is easy to understand why she has been Germany's artistic leader for the last hundred years and why such geniuses as Lenbach, Von Uhde, Schwanthaler, Orlando di Lasso and Richard Strauss have felt at home there.—Robert Haven Schauffler in Century.

The Desire For Appearance.

The Village Grocer (heavily)—Look here, Aaron! What makes you put the big apples in the top of the bar'l? The Honest Farmer (cheerily)—What makes you comb that long scalp lock over your bald spot?—Puck.

Paid.

Miss Belle (warningly)—Sally, they used to tell me when I was a little girl that if I did not let coffee alone it would make me foolish. Sally (who owns her one)—Well, why didn't you? —Life.

Mouth Easier.

"The women at our church all wear the very biggest hats."

"Well?"

"Two weeks ago the pastor said they must remove them."

"Remove the hats! Did the women obey?"

"No. They found it much easier to remove the pastor."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Thrifty Wife.

A careful, prudent wife is a blessing to a man, especially to a poor man; but some wives are a little too careful. Lord Eldon's wife was somewhat "near," as they say in England. His lordship was very fond of hunting and retired to the country for a few weeks toward the end of the season, where he was in the habit of riding a little Welsh pony, for which he gave 30 shillings. One morning his lordship, intending to enjoy a few hours' sport, ordered Bob to be saddled. Lady Eldon objected, but as company was present gave no reason. In a few moments, however, the servant opened the door and announced that Bob was ready.

"Why, bless me," exclaimed her ladyship, "you can't ride him, Lord Eldon! He has no shoes on."

"Yes, my lady, he was shod this week," said the servant.

"Shameful!" exclaimed her ladyship. "How dare any one have him shod without orders? John," she continued, addressing her husband, "you know you rode the pony only a few times last year, so I had the shoes taken off and have kept them ever since in my bureau. They are as good as new, and these people have shod him again. We shall be ruined at this rate."

First of the Swifts.

Gustavus Franklin Swift, the first of this commercial dynasty, was a Cape Cod Yankee, who bought a steer now and then and peddled the meat from the back of a certain gosart which has since become famous. He moved to Albany and went deeper into meats, discarding one after another partners who had not the foresight and daring which he possessed. He located in Chicago at the beginning of those days of great possibilities in bringing into touch the new west and the older east. It was he who invented the first refrigerator cars. This was the one revolutionary act which put his sons and a few other sons in very fair control of half of the meat of America. He saw the market for dressed beef extended only after the hardest of fights. All great revolutions are fought against. All the rest, all England, all Europe, fought the idea of dressed beef and then accepted it. I doubt if we could do without it now.—Cosmopolitan Magazine.

A Voice From the "Gods."

In a certain theater which makes a specialty of melodrama there is a large following of gallery "gods," and very naturally the "sky" assemblage is composed of knowing critics, who are loud in their demands to be pleased. Woe unto the actor who is unfortunate enough to incur their displeasure!

Recently a play with a hair raising plot was put on the boards. The hero was evidently new to his part, for he fumbled his lines badly and spoke in a faltering tone. Perhaps it was for this reason that he did not meet with the sympathy of the gallery.

Just before the crisis of the play the hero clasped his sweetheart in his arms and said:

"Keep a brave heart, my darling. The worst is yet to come."

Whereupon a voice that had no doubt received its training in crying "Extry!" on the street yelled out:

"What are y' goin' t' do, mistering?"—London Tit-Bits.

There Was Something Doing.

In a barber's shop the other day I saw a man for whom I felt sorry—not that he needed my sympathy from the standpoint of charity, for he was a well to do man, having many business affairs, but I felt sorry for him because of what he was doing. A barber was cutting his hair. He was having his left hand manicured. In his right hand he held a newspaper. He was smoking a cigar, and a porter was shining his shoes. There he sat reading a newspaper. Three persons were busy waiting on him, doing their best to please him, and he was oblivious to the joy which his opportunity afforded him.—Fort Worth Star.

What's In a Name.

Talking of names, what's in them? A good lot sometimes. We knew a girl named Rose once. She was a daughter of old Rose, and he, being a little romantic, christened her Wild. Certainly Wild Rose is a pretty name. But, alas, the old man was not farseeing! She married a man named Bull.

Then, again, we happen to know a carpenter named Pierrotzkie Zrchsizowzkiewski. Now, whenever a fellow workman saws down on a nail this chap always sings out, "What is it?" He thinks they are calling him.

Yes, there's a good deal in a name.—London Scraps.

Knowing.

"Does he know much?"

"Well, he not only knows that he doesn't know much, but he knows enough to keep others from knowing it."—Judge.

The Unfeeling World.

"Did you ever feel that the world was against you?"

"Sure. I felt it this morning when I slipped on the sidewalk."—Pittsburg Observer.

One of Edison's Jokes.

Edison was always a great joke player. Those ones he seemed to enjoy most were like the one he worked on one of the laziest operators in the office where he was once employed. One night, when this fellow thought his day's work was over and was getting ready to go home, Edison slipped around to the office switchboard, made a connection with the lazy fellow's telegraph key, called him down to the table and, supplied with an old newspaper, proceeded to send Mr. Lazy a long lot of presumably Associated Press stuff from New York. Edison was a lightning sender (as well as receiver) from almost the beginning of his career, and the way he made that fellow work for two solid hours was a joy. After wearing him completely out, making him receive and copy the equivalent of about three or four newspaper columns, Edison suddenly came from behind the switchboard, explained the joke to the poor fellow and wound up by patting him on the back with the newspaper he had been sending from.—Pearson's.

A Feminine Reason.

"But," asked the first co-ed, "why did you elect to take up the study of German instead of French?"

"Oh," replied the other, "the German professor was so awfully handsome, you know"—Chicago Standard.

HORRIBLE MURDER

New York Painter's Body Cut into Pieces and Tied in Parcels—Head Found Under Brooklyn Bridge — Over Hundred Detectives at Work.

WAS WOMAN IN THE CASE?

Examiner Special.

New York, N.Y., June 11.—Samuel Bersin, a painter of No. 221 East 98th street, was the man whose dismembered and headless body was found in a bundle at the corner of Oliver and Henry streets last night. The head was found to-day under an arch of the Brooklyn Bridge by a policeman shortly after the body had been identified by Bersin's brother and sister. While a number of arrests have been made in the case the police do not say they have the actual criminal and are working on the theory that a woman was at the bottom of the slaying. One hundred picked detectives are working on the case.

UNITING TO FIGHT THE ENCROACHING SAND

Forestry Officials Advise People of United Counties in Reforestation Project.

Cobourg, June 11.—The meeting under the auspices of the United Counties Council of Northumberland and Durham, to discuss the reforestation of the fifteen thousand acres of sand lands between Burketon and Rice Lake, held in Victoria Hall here recently, was very successful, and the fact was impressed upon all who attended that something must be done forthwith to check the spread of the sand area.

Once Grew Good Pine

Local speakers pointed out that it once grew fine pine, and doubtless would again if given a chance. They also told how since the wood had been cut off the "blow" sand had been covering up fences, fields and roads, and driving farmers off their lands. It was said the evils and dangers of the conditions on the ridges could not be exaggerated.

Col. John Hughes presided, and among the local men who spoke were Warden A. A. Powers, ex-Warden John Miller, C. J. Thornton, M.P., C. L. Owens, M.P., Sam Clarke, M.P.P., J. J. Preston, M.P.P., Sam Nesbitt, M.P.P., Wm. Rickard, ex-M.P.P., C. E. Nixon and A. C. G. Huycke, K.C. These dealt locally with the situation. Then Professor Zavitz, of Guelph, told what had been done in holding the sand by planting trees.

Ways and Means

Mr. Thomas Southworth, president of the Canadian Forestry Association, showed how municipalities might undertake this work, provided permissive legislation were secured, and what its financial aspects were. Dr. Fernow, Dean of the Faculty of Forestry, University of Toronto, gave at length examples of the planting of such waste land areas and the profits that had accrued. Mr. James Lawler, secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association, dealt with the need of agitation and organization.

Some of the local speakers thought the municipality should own the land, others that the Provincial Government should purchase, but generally it was felt it should be worked out through co-operation. Resolutions were passed urging action, appointing a committee of Council to go to work and arranging for a series of meetings through the counties next autumn and winter.

WEDDING MIXED UP WITH A CEMETERY

Examiner Special.

Toronto, June 11.—Yesterday afternoon, at one o'clock, Miss Rosa Siddell was married to H. W. Waters, of Elmer Ave., at St. John's Church, Norway, by Rev. W. L. Baynes Reed. As the happy couple were leaving the church the throwing of rice and confetti frightened the horses attached to their carriage, and they ran away. The horses ran through the cemetery and on the Kingston road, being brought to a halt by straddling a telegraph pole. No one was hurt, the bridal party, fortunately, not having entered the carriage. The cab itself was smashed.

Go with the crowd to the city of Toronto, Saturday, June 12th '09 by special train which leaves C. P. R. station 7:30 sharp and only stops once. Tickets good to return by any train up to Monday night.

Special goes out before the local train.

FOUND SIX LITTLE CHILDREN IN VERY UNFIT SURROUNDINGS

Children's Aid Society Case in the Police Court This Morning—Family of Alex. Windover Taken From Him—Officers Visited His Home Yesterday.

RESERVED JUDGMENT

Mr. George Cochrane and P. C. Newhall yesterday found a family of six small children, the oldest one eleven, living in a house which as P. C. Newhall described it in the police court this morning, was more filthy than any pig pen in the city.

It was the home of Alex. Windover, who appeared before Magistrate Dumble, charged with the neglect and improper care of children. He asked to be given another chance and he would have his house cleaned. He assured His Worship that no further complaints would be heard. But the magistrate gave the children over to the Children's Aid for a week. In the meantime he hoped that a few women of some of the churches would go to the house and endeavour to teach the mother some ideas of cleanliness. Mr. E. L. Goodwill appeared on behalf of the Children's Aid.

The Evidence

P. C. Newhall stated that he and Mr. Cochrane visited the Windover home on Edinburgh street yesterday. The mother was out working, as she is every day, from seven in the morning until eight at night. The baby, thirteen months old, is left in charge of a little girl seven years of age and sometimes in the care of a little girl three years old. The house, the officer said, was in an extremely filthy condition, it being impossible for one to remain long in the place the stench was so bad. He certainly believed that the environments were unfit for the proper physical and moral development of little children.

Mr. Cochrane corroborated P. C. Newhall's evidence and stated that it was not at all exaggerated. He had visited the home on four different occasions and things were in a very unsatisfactory condition. The eleven-year-old boy would not go to school and seemed incorrigible. One little girl went to school regularly and was doing well.

The father of the children went into the witness box. He did not want his children taken away. He had been away for some time and had only got home this morning. He said that he had contributed regularly to their support and promised that no further complaints would be heard.

Tilley, of St. John, by even a larger majority in the run for High Vice-Chief Ranger. The other results are: High Secretary, Bro. G. W. Faulkner, Brantford; High Treasurer, Bro. Robert Elliott, Brantford; Chairman Medical Board, Bro. U. M. Stanley, Brantford; High Auditor, Bro. W. L. Roberts, Brantford; High Registrar, Bro. Wm. Walker, Montreal; High Chaplain, Bro. W. J. The High Court will meet next year in Montreal.

NOTHING NEW EXPECTED TO BE RECEIVED AT TO-NIGHT'S INQUEST

The authorities are of the opinion that Armstrong is the name of the man whose body was found in the Otonabee last week. His son is said to be in the city and has identified the body and will be hear det the inquest to-night. It has been learned that the body was buried and to-night it is not expected that anything but the commonplace will be brought out. There are a number of witnesses to be heard. Dr. Young will present a report, and those who found the body will give testimony.

Mr. Dela Fosse's Letter Will Be Feature Of Saturday Issue

Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse's interesting series of letters upon "Glimpses of Life and Conditions in England" will be continued in to-morrow's issue of the Examiner, his contribution this week touching upon a number of subjects that will be read with interest not only by the many Englishmen residing in Peterborough, but by the Canadians who are naturally interested in England as well. The play, "An Englishman's Home," the use of Peterborough canoes on the Avon, and many other subjects of a like interesting character are treated in Mr. Dela Fosse's letter which will be a feature of to-morrow's issue.

Many other special articles will make the Saturday edition of the Examiner a bright, newsy, sixteen page paper, crammed full of literary good things.

BEAR AT 'CAYGEON

Brain Makes Things Lively in Neighbourhood of Northern Village.

Life at Bobcaygeon must still be pretty close to nature. It isn't every village that allows its zoo to range around the outskirts. The other day a couple of the village children were sent out for the cows and when near a slaughter house which is situated to the southeast were badly frightened by a large she-bear with a young cub. Needless to say they did their best to put space between themselves and the animals. The presence of the bear has been suspected for some days.

REVIVED GHOST STORY.

The newspapers of the Conservative persuasion are continuing the campaign against the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. They are now printing wind-upholstered despatches to make the assertion that the Grand Trunk Pacific Company declines or will decline to take over the Government section of the Eastern Division immediately west of Winnipeg—to the vicinity of Fort William. The conditions are that the Company is to take over this section line as well as the rest of the Eastern division and operate it, paying three per cent. to the Government on the cost of the line. It is alleged by the "knockers" of the Transcontinental that the Company will make no end of trouble on account of the excessive cost of the line and the payments of interest on an improperly enhanced value. This is evidently the silly season revival of the exploded and the discredited Major Hodgins charges which "had nothing to them," being abandoned by the very man who made them when the hand of party manipulator was withdrawn. The grounds of objection to the National Transcontinental must be discouragingly absent when warmed-over ghost stories have to be pressed into the service of the disloyal element of Conservative journalism.

THE SANE ATTITUDE

The man who maintains his presence of mind in the face of danger is generally the man who escapes it. We can keep our wits about us in national were made a basis of appeal to the jingo-tormented war scare in England, Canada has kept cool, and sanely considered her duty to the Empire of which she is the most important outpost. New Zealand rather frantically offered a Dreadnought, not knowing that it would be the best way to help, and Lord Beresford says it would not help. Australia's premier has offered the price of a Dreadnought but it is possible that he has offered something he cannot supply, for it is stated that popular opinion will not sustain his offer and if Premier Deakins' proposal yere made a basis of appeal to the electors he would be defeatd upon it. Canada has taken the sane and reasonable course. In proposing to provide for its own naval defence it will contribute to the strengthening of the Imperial forces of naval defence, and her help in case of emergency would be forthcoming as her military strength was made available by the Mother Country in the South African war. We are willing to take up our share of imparial naval defence and we have done so an principle and not on impulse; without being unduly influenced by the rather hysterical agitation that has racked the Mother Land. If Great Britain is in immediate danger she is able to cope with it, come from whatever quarter it may, for she still maintains her naval supremacy which is not yet eclipsed and only vaguely threatened. Germany's overweening ambition has not won for her European allies, and she still has the need of maintaining an immense military establishment. With all her resources she will not be able to find the financial means to apply the same lavish expenditure to her navy. To do things of this kind money is necessary and there is a limit to the resources of taxation of any country. The people of Germany, of England, of any other country would pay to the last stiver to maintain the independence and protect the interest of the country. But to forward the interests of ambition to help an attack upon a friendly power, the cradle of liberty and free institution, the line will be drawn and in parliamentary language supplies withheld. We can all afford to keep sane, in regard to these matters.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The editor of the Globe told the Imperial Press conference that Toronto had enough loyalty to stock a Dominion—yes of the atmospheric kind.

It is true that the Grand Trunk Pacific is getting more than was anticipated; but it will be better built than was anticipated—probably the best built railway system in the world—with the added advantage of costing less for maintenance.

If the Hazen Government of New Brunswick had devoted less attention to the attempt to "roast" Hon. Mr. Pugsley and had given more to devising efficient fire ranging, the province would not have suffered as greatly as it is regrettable to state it has done by forest fires.

Canadian securities are becoming, says the Saskatoon Phoenix, exceedingly popular with the British investor. There seems to be no dearth of money for any legitimate purpose. Railway construction, municipal improvements or development projects all seem to inspire confidence, and a continual stream of the money which begets money pours into the country.

RESTRICTION IN QUEBEC.

(Pulp and Paper Magazine.)

As stated in the references by our Montreal correspondent to the speech of Premier Gouin in that city, highly important legislation is under way in the Province of Quebec for the prohibition of export of pulp-wood from Crown lands. The announcement of this policy does not come before it was needed, but the pulp and paper makers who took part in the recent deputation must be congratulated on the quick response to the cogent arguments they so ably presented to the Ministers a month ago. This step following so closely to the lines of the policy which has been in force in Ontario for years, will serve to show the United States that we are in thorough earnest to protect our own interests in the matter of pulp manufacture. The United States Senate seems disposed to tear into pieces the suggestions of the proposed Payne tariff bill, and there is still an absolutelack of certainty as to what the new American tariff on pulp and paper products will be. But it is altogether likely that the action of the Quebec Government in raising stumpage fees and in prohibiting the sale of pulpwood except when manufactured in the Province will lead to negotiations emanating from Washington. Whatever the American Government may do, however, whether in the direction of placing pulp-wood on the free-list or not, it looks as if the Americans will either have to buy pulp from Canadian mills or set up pulp mills in Quebec. At present New York State mills get 80 per cent. of their supplies of pulp-wood from this side, and the great Crown timber limits on the St. Maurice River, largely in the hands of Americans, are sending logs to pulp mills in the United States, for which no appreciable return comes to this country.

So far, so well. The prohibition of pulp-wood exports from Crown lands in Ontario and Quebec does much to relieve the situation so far as conserving Canada's natural resources are concerned. But it does not relieve the Federal Government from its national duty along the same line. A high export duty or absolute prohibition by the Dominion Government would prevent shipping wood away, not only from Crown lands but private lands as well, and would be of that much more complete benefit for the saving of our forests. There is this compensation, however, in obtaining relief thus gradually. The great obstacle to action by the Dominion Government is the opposition of Quebec farmers on the supposed ground that their profits from the cutting of pulpwood would be diminished if shipments out of the country had to cease. The new Quebec policy of stopping exports from Crown Lands will tend to actually enhance the price of wood from private lands, as there will be smaller supplies to compete with one another. This, with the chances of new pulp mills being built to meet the new conditions will prove educational to the farmers who believe their market will be cut off, and will show them they have nothing to fear in the end from Dominion prohibition.

PROSPEROUS TIMES.

(Ottawa Citizen.)

Everything points to the return of a most satisfactory state of prosperity in Canada. The government revenue and customs returns are steadily increasing, while the public deposits in Canadian banks have increased to the enormous extent of $106,000,000 as compared with last year. In the United States less rapid but steady progress is being made towards normal conditions. Harriman, the railway king, on the eve of his departure for Europe, threw out a word of caution which may well be considered by the people of Canada as well as of the United States. He pointed out that the time is ripe for the proper employment of idle money, but that the people should be careful not to invest it in the supposed development of fake projects. In this connection it may be pointed out that it is not generally appreciated that it is almost as difficult to invest money properly as to make it originally. There is an old banking axiom that the higher the interest the greater the risk. If people would be content with reasonable returns on safe investments, they might not get rich so quickly, but they would not run the risk of becoming poor even more suddenly.

Here is one Conservative newspaper which has the courage of its opinions. Its statements and the sentiment that inspire their recognition of the facts they express is refreshing in view of the course of many Conservative papers which would consider it party treason to exploit the prosperity of the country for fear that admission of the fact that the country can be prosperous under a Liberal Government is party disloyalty. The pessimist, party or otherwise, is never your true patriot.

THE CARE OF THE FOREIGNER.

(Brantford Expositor.)

The Brantford plan of solving the problem of how to deal with "the stranger within the gates" received very cordial endorsation from the Hamilton Conference of the Methodist Church, after its working had been very ably presented by Mr. E. Sweet. This plan includes not only the work of the Evangelical Union, and the efforts of other organizations of a directly religious character, but also the methods employed by Chief Slemin and his associates in visiting the foreigners in their homes and enlightening them as to what is required of them in this country. Similar methods employed elsewhere ought to be productive of similar results in securing respect for law and order from the new-comers, as well as a feeling of confidence that they will be fairly dealt with.

These things are capital so far as they go, but do they go far enough? Should not such work as we have outlined be supplemented by systematic, state-controlled and state-aided efforts to provide adequate schooling for these people? It is not right that such work should be left to voluntary effort. Our day schools should make special provision for children who have to learn, in addition to other things, the very rudiments of the English language, and night schools should be provided in which the adult foreigner may not only be taught English, but also our laws and customs and such other studies as it may be possible for him to pursue.

The advent of so many strangers has given the churches a new problem to grapple with, and they are doing so heroically. It has also given the state a new problem to grapple with which thus far it had almost entirely ignored.

These things sustain the Examiner's oft-repeated contention that it is the duty of the churches to concentrate their energies on home missions so that the assimilation of the foreigners into Christian Canadian citizenship may remove the possibility of menace to national morality.

FARMERS ARE SHOWING INTEREST IN DAIRYING

Marked Improvement in This Respect Over Other Years.

The dairy business among the farmers of this district is, according to Mr. George A. Gillespie being taken up with greater interest than ever, and the people are going into the work as if they meant to make their methods better and thereby improve all the departments connected with the cheese business. The factories are better equipped than ever before, and the farmers are buying new utensils, etc. The number of separators is a criterion of the development of the business, and a large number of them have gone out from Peterborough this year. It is expected that with good weather from now on this district will surpass itself in the quality and quantity of the cheese manufactured.

Boy Drowned at Toronto.

Toronto, June 11.—While throwing stones into the water from the Queen's Wharf, six-year-old Tommy Patterson of 18 Portland street fell into the bay yesterday morning and was drowned.

He had gone to the wharf with Eddie Brown, who rushed to a coal yard nearby and gave the alarm. A number of men went to the spot and Matt Ackroyd was sent for, but before he arrived the body was recovered. The boy was quite dead when he was taken from the water.

People who are contemplating purchasing a house will do well to see J. T. O'Connell's list and get terms. We have a choice selection of properties at moderate prices and easy terms. SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bellevier, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Bellevier, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided.

Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from female troubles, and my doctor said an operation was my only chance, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me without an operation."—LIZZIE V. HESTER, P.M. 2.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases.

Montreal Druggists' Troubles.

Montreal, June 11.—As the result of an action taken by the Pharmaceutical Association against Hanfield, the druggist, a thousand actions are entered. Hanfield was charged with selling cocaine, and his brothers, lawyers, have entered eight actions against 150 druggists for selling calomel illegally. These failed on a technicality. They are bound to get their revange, and have entered a test case, to be followed by 150 others for selling liquor illegally. The practice is general by all the druggists, and the only defence can be that the offence is technical. The penalty is $50 or $100, of which the informer gets a quarter.

Boston, June 11.—Wednesday night a special train on the Boston & Maine Railroad, carrying Lady Aberdeen and party, took 63 minutes to reach Manchester, N.H., 59 miles distant from Boston. The first 26 miles of the trip was made in 26 minutes. Lady Aberdeen and her party missed the regular train to Montreal, en route to Quebec, and a special train of a combination car and the Grand Trunk private car Violet was chartered at the regular rate of $3 a mile for the special for the trip to Concord, 74 miles away. Here the regular train was caught. Lady Aberdeen will arrive in Toronto Tuesday.

Nicholl had a few minutes before obtained leave to go on his holidays to-day.

ARCHBISHOP BURIED.

Many Notables Attend Funeral of the Rev. Father Duhamel.

Ottawa, June 11.—The funeral of the late Archbishop Duhamel yesterday morning was the most notable ceremony of the kind witnessed in Canada since the funeral of Cardinal Taschereau. Sbarretti, the Papal allegate, the French sermon was preached by Archbishop Bruchesi, of Montreal, while the English sermon was delivered by Archbishop McEvay of Toronto.

Federal Ministers present were: Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Hon. Chas. Murphy, while Hon. R. W. Scott was also present. The Quebec Government was represented by Hon. J. A. Decarie and Hon. C. R. Devlin.

Ate Beer Glass.

New York, June 11.—The World says: James Shea, laborer, 28 years old, who lived with his wife and six small children at 23 Huntington street, Brooklyn, died Wednesday afternoon, at his home as a result of eating a beer glass on Feb. 10 last. On that date he was in a saloon in Brooklyn and made a small bet that he could break a beer glass and eat it. He did so.

Ever since then Shea has been suffering pains in all parts of his body, and pieces of glass have been coming out of his chest, back, arms, legs, hands and feet. He had glass all through his system, and many doctors in the hospitals told him he would die if he did not undergo an operation. He refused, and Wednesday the end came.

Suffragette Talks at Ottawa.

Ottawa, June 11.—Miss Keegan, a Canadian girl who suffered imprisonment in London along with other English suffragettes, addressed an open air meeting at the residence of George Holland last evening. She is an excellent speaker and fairly captured her audience, which included as many men as women.

A feature was the heckling to which Miss Keegan was subjected to by some old country men in the audience. So skilfully did she handle them that they left before the meeting was over.

PILES FOR FOUR YEARS

Only those who suffer from Piles can know the agony, the burning, the itching, the intolerable misery which the ailment causes, and the way it wrecks the sufferer's life.

Zam-Buk is blessed by thousands who used to suffer from piles, but whom it has cured. One such grateful person is Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, of Greenwood Avenue, Toronto. She says:—"For four long years I suffered acutely from bleeding piles. During that time I spent an immense amount of money on 'remedies' and doctor's prescriptions but got no ease. Zam-Buk was different to everything else I had tried, and it cured me. I am grateful for the cure, and as I have never had piles once since, I know the cure is permanent."

Another thankful woman is Mrs. E. A. Gardiner, of Catalina, Trinity Bay. She says:—"In my case Zam-Buk effected a wonderful cure. For twelve years I had been troubled with blind, bleeding, and protruding piles. I had been using various kinds of ointments, etc., but never came across anything to do me good until I tried Zam-Buk, which cured me. That this may be the means of helping some sufferers from piles to try Zam-Buk, is the wish of one who has found great relief."

Zam-Buk is a purely herbal balm and should be in every home. Cures cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, ulcers, blood-poisoning, prairie itch, sunburn, blisters, sore feet, summer sores, and all diseased and injuries of the skin, etc. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

Capital May Flee to Canada.

London, June 11.—In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Arthur J. Balfour, attacking the budget, said there were two great portions of the empire which were in no fear of the income tax—Canada and India. High authorities had told him that as a result of that kind of legislation capital would find its natural use in those countries. He was afraid that was so.

WORK AS ORGANIST IS APPRECIATED

Mrs. T. J. Mowat at Trinity Methodist Church, Berlin.

An interesting feature of the services at Trinity Methodist Church yesterday was the fine organ work of Mrs. T. J. Mowat, the newly appointed organist of the church. Mrs. Mowat has been much sought after since her arrival in Berlin last year as organist for a number of churches in town, but for many reasons was unable to comply with these requests, flattering as some of them were. Mrs. Mowat has had wide experience as organist, having filled positions in the most important churches of Peterborough, London, Brockville, and Lindsay, and the congregation of Trinity church are to be congratulated.—Berlin Telegraph.

OLYMPICS HAD MOST ENJOYABLE OUTING

The annual Olympic Club excursion held yesterday around the lakes was the most successful of any that has ever been held. About seventy-five took in the outing, leaving Lakefield on the arrival of the morning train, on the steamer Stoney Lake. The sail was made to Mount Julian, where a stop was made for dinner which was partaken of, at the Mount Julian Hotel. After dinner a trip was made to the head of the Lake, afterwards going to Burleigh Falls, returning to Mount Julian for tea. The lakes are looking exceedingly beautiful at this season of the year and nothing more enjoyable and delightful could be had than a sail around them. The party returned to Peterborough about ten o'clock.

WEDDING BELLS

McGOWAN—McCARTHY

A very pretty June wedding was that of Miss Catharine McCarthy, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCarthy, to Mr. M. Lewis McGowan, of Toronto. The ceremony took place in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, at 9:30 o'clock, Tuesday morning, the Rev. Father Conway, officiating.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was attired in her wedding gown of white Eolienne with Oriental lace trimmings, wearing a large white hat trimmed with lillies of the valley, rose buds, and foliage, and carried a beautiful shower of white roses, and maiden hair fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss May McCarthy, sister of the bride, wore a natural colour Rajah silk Empire gown, with touches of old rose and gold, and large tuscan hat trimmed with moss roses and velvet ribbon, carrying a shower of orchids.

Mr. Frederick McGowan, of Brechin, Ontario, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pendant set with pearls and diamonds, to the bridesmaid a pearl crescent, and to the groomsman, initialed cuff links.

The bridal party and guests drove to the home of the bride's father, when the bride and groom received congratulations, and a dainty wedding breakfast was served. The bride received numerous beautiful gifts, including a handsome cheque from her father.

Mr. and Mrs. McGowan left on the afternoon train, amid showers of confetti, to spend their honeymoon across the border, Mrs. McKowan wearing a tailored taupe broadcloth suit, with smart black hat.—Norwood Register.

Launch Owner Says That Canoes Must Carry Lights

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I noticed an article in your paper yesterday to the effect that the canoeists are complaining about launch owners not carrying lights and stating that there is danger of an accident. It seems to me that the canoeists are not aware of the fact that the new navigation laws compel canoes to carry and display a white light and that the penalty for failure to do so is seizure of their canoe. By the new laws all crafts must show lights after dark so that the canoe me who have been complaining should see that their own lights are trimmed and burning before they enter a kick against owners of larger craft.

Yours, etc.,
"LAUNCH OWNER."

Some Choice Numbers In Band's Programme To-night

The band concert to be given by the 57th Regimental Band, under the direction of Mr. Gliddon includes some very choice numbers, which are being given for the first time here. One of the gems is the "Stradella" overture, by Flowtow, a beautiful selection, the spirit of which the band has thoroughly mastered, and which is well worth hearing. Another grand number is Godfrey's "Reminiscences of England," into which are pleasingly woven a number of the favourite old English songs. The selection gives splendid opportunities for solo work, and is one of the most enjoyable in the repertoire of the band. The announcement that Sergt. Hughes is to give a cornet solo has been received with delight. He has chosen as his offering "The Columbia Polka," a splendid selection. There will doubtless be an enormous crowd at Victoria Park to-night.

COMPLAINS ABOUT NOISY CROWDS IN THE PARK

"Is there not some way in which to prevent the children from kicking up such an unearthly row at the band concerts?" remarked a citizen to the Examiner this morning in regard to the concert to be given by the 57th Regimental Band in Victoria Park this evening. "People who go to the park for the purpose of hearing the fine playing of the band," he continued, "find that they are the centre of amuselstrom of noisy children, who persist in playing tag and throwing grass while the band is in the midst of one of their best selections. The small boys do acrobatic feats on the railings of the band stand and one of these nights there will be a tragedy for one of them is bound to fall into the tunnel-like mouth of the brass horns, or else be blown higher than a kite by a mighty blast from Bandsman Cronk's euphonium. Joking aside,, however, the youngsters are a nuisance, and something should be done to stop them. Bandmaster Peel, of the St. Catharines band, informed me when he was here on the 24th, that there is no trouble in St. Catharines from that source as the authorities see that the band is protected."

Report Says That 'Lunge Will Be Plentiful In Little Lake

The opening of the fishing season is being looked forward to as the 15th draws near with great interest, and many are the speculations as to the "luck" that will be enjoyed. Those who are acquainted with the water in the neighbourhood of the city are confident that in the river and the lake the 'lunge will be more plentiful than in former years. They have been able to get up over the dam at the locks and even plentiful without an addition from the lower waters. There are those who make it their business to find out the situation, and during the close season they keep an eye on the fish and are ready for action with the first legal day. An enthusiast told the Examiner that he was watching in front of his boat house last night and was surprised to see the fish frequantly jumping out of the water. He believes that the season is going to be a good one, and the lovers of the game will find plenty of sport when the season opens.

IMPROVEMENTS TO EAST CITY SCHOOL

During the past few weeks the grounds surrounding the East City School have been considerably beautified. Several flower beds have been made in front of the school and an attractiveness has been added to the general appearance of the building. The flowers when given proper care and attention will make the grounds exceedingly pretty.

CENTRAL SCHOOL GROUNDS TOO SMALL FOR BASEBALL

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Regarding your correspondent's complaint re. the closing of Central School grounds, I may say that these grounds are not closed to children attending the school. It is the wish of the committee having charge of the school property that the school children continue to use the grounds for recreation purposes, but the committee was forced to exclude the young men who were playing base ball in the school yard as the residents of the vicinity threatened to take action as their windows were being broken and they found it unsafe to sit on their verandahs.

The grounds are too small for large boys to use for base ball purposes. Last summer they broke over thirty window panes in the school buildings and the same thing had started again this season.

If the grounds were sufficiently large there would be no objection to their use for recreation purposes, but as they are, they are fit only for school children, who are still free to use them.

OFFICIAL.

IT WOULD TAKE EARTHQUAKE TO WAKE COUNCIL, SAYS "PURE AIR"

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice a long and sensible letter in your issue of yesterday, of which you say "Suburbanite" writes strongly complaining of dust trouble. He may write until dooms day, and he will find that our Council is as obdurate to a sense of duty as was the heart of Pharoah of old. Nothing short of an earthquake will ever shake them up. Their one and only thought is how they will be able to secure their re-election and cover up their sins of omission and commission. One needs only to go down George street, past the C. P. R. station at train time for evidence of violat ion of their oath of office. The station grounds are covered with fine coal dust which are never watered and when the busses and other vehicles are going and coming, the place becomes a veritable nuisance, which the Council has power to prevent. With dust on one side and stench on the other, he will be a lucky pedestrian if he reaches his destination without any physical ailment.

Yours truly,

PURE AIR.

Ratepayer Considers Benson St. Sidewalk Should Be Inside

In the first place the tree line is 8 feet out from the street line and the street passes over a hill with a deep cut through it and the intention is to lower the bill and make the cut deeper.

The cut being deep and in an exposed place makes traffic difficult in winter due to snow piling in, being driven with the west wind. I am informed, the city intend buying ten feet on the west side of Benson street, over the hill, with a view to combating the impediment of drifted snow, and I am under the impression they would be justified in doing so. If snow drifts now, and it certainly does, to the detriment of the pedestrian with the walk on the extreme east side of the street, by moving the sidewalk outside of the tree line it will intensify the difficulty that now exists. If moved out a slope of 10 or 12 feet will run from the street line to sidewalk, greatly increased with snow in winter, all to thaw and run on sidewalk, keeping it in water in daytime, freezing at night, and being on a hill making it very dangerous. An evidence of that can be seen on George and Water streets, where due to local conditions it could not be averted, but on Benson street, where under the existing conditions, the sidewalk should be kept as far east as possible, to avert snowdrifts, and have little or no slope between it and the street line, the slope would then be outside of the sidewalk and into the water table kept for the purpose.

It has been generally conceded that the ratepayers on the street are paying for the sidewalk and should have it where they choose.

I think if you look into the matter your mind will be disabused of that idea. The paying for the sidewalks is done by the ratepayers of the city, although to meet the cost of that or any particular sidewalk 60 per cent. is charged as frontage tax and the balance to general tax, yet if the ratepayers are directly paying 60 per cent. on that street other ratepayers are paying 60 per cent. on their respective streets, making it after all pretty nearly a general tax and that being the case the interests of the general ratepayers must be considered. If you pay 60 per cent. on one street, I pay 60 per cent. on another, not for you or I, but for you and I.

The Government has been pleased to build and equip and maintain a Normal School in our city and selected a site on Benson street, necessitating the expenditure of 75 and 80 thousand dollars to establish, and an annual expenditure of 25 or 30 thousand dollars, and I think that the Government, and the principal and staff of the Normal School should be consulted as well as the other general ratepayers of the city.

There is now a row of trees inside of the street line, and as stated another row about 5 feet from the street line, running along both sides of the sidewalk, where it now is and if moved out the midday shade especially, is all taken away, and the pedestrian must travel on the face of the hill, in the sun, over a granolithic sidewalk or else take the grass between the trees which they will certainly do in hot weather (and winter time due to snow) and no person can hinder them.

We are in sympathy with the property holders on Benson street, but we are in the majority and think difficulty and are of the opinion if the said ratepayers on Benson street will kindly consider the convenience and safety of the general travelling public they will offer no further objection to the sidewalk being placed where it now is according to grade on street after being lowered

ERECTING COTTAGES AT STONY LAKE

Mr. Chas. Shannon Among the Number Who are Building the New Summer Residences.

Mr. Chas. Shannon will have a busy season at Stony Lake this year. He has just completed a handsome little cottage at Sandy Point, for Mrs. Graham, of Peterborough, and this week will begin operations on a summer residence for Mr. C. B. Hughes of Jersey City, N. Y. INTENDS TO START PICTURE SHOW

Prof. Green to Open One Here in Large Tent on Property Next to Customs House.

It is understood that Professor Green, the moving picture man, intends opening up a picture show in a large tent on the Bradburn property, immediately to the south of the Customs House. The tent will be forty by fifty feet, with a seating capacity of five hundred. It will be kept comfortable during the hott summer days by means of an air dome which device of ventilation has been adopted by all the big circus companies. Professor Green always puts on a high class moving picture show and he no doubt will be extended a large patronage by the people of Peterborough.

MR. RICHARD LEES TO SPEAK IN HAVELOCK

Address Ratepayers on Important School Question.

A public meeting of the ratepayers has been called by the School Board to discuss the advisability of placing the Continuation School under the new Schol Act. The meeting will be held in the town hall this evening at 8 o'clock, and Mr. Richard Lees, P. S. I., will be present and deliver an address on educational matters. Under the new School Act, continuation classes require the services of two qualified teachers, solely devoted to continuation work.

WINDOW OF STRAW HATS IS ATTRACTION

H. E. McWilliams Has Catchy Display of New Styles.

A catchy hat display is to be seen at McWilliams'. It is a straw hat array, and all the new styles are to be found. The straw sheaves suggest the idea of the raw material and the finished product is shown to advantage on the stacks, and in and around them. "Mac," the hat man, certainly has a splendid window and the dressy young men will find all the ideas of the hour in the various styles.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES.

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend, of Toronto, is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of any face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at the Oriental Hotel, Peterborough, Friday, June 18.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY CONCLUDES SESSION

Work Winds Up With Satisfactory Reports of Funds.

REV. DR. PRINGLE ON VICE

Famous Presbyterian Delivers Harangue on the Political State of Affairs in the Dominion and Slashes Right and Left—Could Have Made Big Money Campaigning During the Last Election, He Says.

Hamilton, June 11.—The Presbyterian General Assembly closed yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Somerville reported for the finance committee, eastern section, which had a balance of $32,286. Rev. J. S. Sutherland, Halifax, reported for the western section, an increase of $11,761 in receipts.

The committee named to offer Rev. W. Rochester the position of mission superintendent of Alberta reported that he had declined the offer, as he is receiving $400 a year more now as secretary of the western section of the Lord's Day Alliance.

J. C. James, Charlottetown, reported for the eastern section of the widows' and orphans' fund, which had receipts of $11,517 and disbursements of $5,032; capital account now amounts to $171,700. Rev. Dr. Campbell, Winnipeg, reported for the western section receipts of $26,266, and a balance left of only $1,087.

Moral and social reform came up yesterday morning in such portentous shape that the assembly could do nothing but sit still and listen. There was no word of protest or question of fact.

"That this assembly deplores and condemns the evils which are found in our political life to-day, which are rapidly lowering the moral sense of our people; urges upon its ministers and people the duty of earnestly and courageously combating these evils by voice and vote whenever they manifest themselves."

Such was the amendment moved by Rev. Dr. Pringle — of Yukon fame—and which was later carried unanimously. His statements were received in general with silence.

Dr. Pringle began by asserting that the assembly expected some reference in the report to the evils apparent in political life.

"They exist — unless all men are liars. Unless the papers on both sides of politics are edited by men who are writing what they know to be untrue.

"I think I have some right to speak. For a year I was a notorious storm centre in the Presbyterian Church. It has been said, 'John writes his letter for the purpose of advertising himself.' The Government had been giving church sites and other favors in the Yukon, and the objectors said, 'What business had a home missioner causing the Government to withdraw support?'"

"I am not talking politics. I do not want to make an attack on any Government, but simply to illustrate my notion that there is corruption in the political life of Canada," he continued "You can hear that men can be bought for $5. I can go down to Nova Scotia any day and trot you out half a dozen men who can be bought for $5

Bishop Mills Holds On.

Kingston, June 11.—At the closing session of the synod of Ontario, a resolution was offered to change the patronage system, as held to be detrimental to the clergy, but the bishop said that as long as he was in office he would not surrender the canon, and the resolution was withdrawn. A Sunday school commission was elected as follows: Canon Starr, Rev. H. H. Bedford Jones, Chancellor Judge McDonald and Dudley Hill. Nov. 17 was set for missionary day.

Douma Invited to England.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—The news of the invitation extended by English politicians to representatives of the Douma to visit England has produced an excellent effect. M. Khomiakoff, president of the Douma, and twenty members of the Council of the Empire leave for England, June 15.

BLAMES PRESS FOR MILITARY SPIRIT

Lord Morley Says Newspapers Can Prevent International War.

RE-BARBARISM IS NONSENSE

So Declares Lord Milner in a Speech Before the Imperial Press Conference at London—Day Is Given Up to Literature and Lord Morley Makes an Appeal for Simplicity — Bereaford to Travel.

London, June 11.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At the Imperial Press Conference yesterday Lord Morley presided. Mr. Birrell, Lord Milner, and Winston Churchill were present. The subject was "Literature and the Press."

Lord Morley asked the editors to strive for two moderate aims—simplicity and directness.

"I know of no more stupendous and overwhelming fact," said Lord Morley, "than the supreme dominance of the English tongue over the millions in the new worlds in the west and the ancient worlds in the east."

Referring to what he called the "rebarbarism of Europe—the rattling back into arms and the preparation to use arms," of which so much had been heard in the course of the conference, Lord Morley said he thought the press was more answerable for this than all the Ministers, officials and diplomatists taken together, and he pleaded for a systematic and persevering work on the part of newspapers on behalf of peace among the nations.

Winston Churchill reminded the pressmen that confidence bred confidence between nations, and hatred and suspicion bred the very dangers wherefrom they originated.

Lord Milner said they had heard much about the re-barbarization of Europe. He thought it dreadful nonsense. If they reflected they would remember that disputes between nations now were settled less by war than ever before. One of the most powerful reasons was that nations were organized on the system of national armies, and it was the citizen armies which made for peace.

Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, presiding at a lunch at the Constitutional Club to the press delegates, said: "We are all parochial in our instincts. Unless we can cultivate amongst the populations of the Empire the imaginative, sympathetic insight, based upon knowledge, which is the only solid bond of unity, we shall deprive ourselves of the greatest of all aids to unifying the Empire into an organic whole."

He was sure the press would preach that local security must fundamentally depend on imperial security: in the Government of the Empire the parental stage was over. We now had reached the stage of formal equality. No one desired to disturb it. He was proud to belong to an Empire, the parts whereof found absolute independence no bar to higher unity.

Lord Charles Beresford has intimated that he will visit Canada in the autumn.

Dr. E. E. Hale Dead.

Boston, June 11.—Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale died in his home yesterday, aged 87.

News of the death of this distinguished clergyman and chaplain of the United States Senate shocked Boston, as comparatively few knew that Dr. Hale was ill. He was born in Boston and graduated from Harvard in 1839.

Australia Wants High Commissioner.

Melbourne, June 11.—Premier Deakin will introduce into Parliament a bill to constitute the office of high commissioner for the Commonwealth in London. Col. J. F. G. Fexton, who holds the rank of honorary Minister in the Deakin Cabinet, will represent the Commonwealth as the Imperial conference on defence.

New York, June 11.—Over 100,000 Sunday school children marched through the streets of Brooklyn in a parade yesterday. They were reviewed by Vice-President Sherman, Governer Hughes and other notables. The occasion was the eightieth anniversary celebration of the Brooklyn Sunday School Union.

Drowns In Shallow Water.

New York, June 11.—The Spanish steamer, Antonio Lopez, with 536 passengers and a crew of 136 men ran ashore on the sand beach at Fire Island Wednesday night and lay on the beach all night pounded by heavy seas.

Halifax, N.S., June 11.—R. L. Borden arrived here yesterday from Grand Pre, where he has been visiting his mother at the old homestead. He leaves on Saturday for Ottawa, and sails from Quebec June 18, for England.

Mr. Borden accepted an invitation by cable last night to attend the July 1 banquet in London.

MORE NEWS OF THE SOO ACCIDENT

Hon. G. P. Graham Starts Off For Scene of Trouble.

MAY RESUME ON MONDAY

Chance Is That Damage May Be Repaired to Start Traffic Again In a Few Days—Iron Ore May Have to Be Dumped to Stem Heavy Current of Water—Accident Was a Thrilling One, It Is Said.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 11.—The loading of hundreds of tons of pig iron on cars at the Algoma Iron Works and dumping it into the canal from the swing bridge appeared the only method of stopping the torrent which continues to sweep through the Canadian lock. At noon all the wickets except one had been placed. This concentrated the current on the narrow space where the wicket was to fall. After much labor the wicket was lowered a short distance only to find a huge boulder impeding it. In the effort to raise the wicket again the frame work was bent so that it cannot be raised or lowered. The crucial test is now on; the entire nineteen-foot fall is concentrated in the small place to be occupied by this wicket. A question arises, too, whether the other wickets will be able to hold, as the last one is lowered and the strain is put upon them as well.

Those who witnessed the accident claim that the boats escaped by a miracle. The Walker came into the lower gates at great speed, and the high wall of water held behind the gate came down with tremendous velocity. The lines of the Assiniboia were snapped like a rope, and she barely missed the Walker as she came out of the chamber. The Crescent City followed, and marine men cannot understand how she escaped the sill of the lock. She stuck there for a short time and teetered like a seesaw until she finally tore loose and came down, crashing into the Assiniboia and later into the Walker. Had the Walker crossed the channel and the two boats pitched into her a record wreck in the history of North American marine would have occurred. The Assiniboia was crowded with passengers, and there is no doubt that hardly a soul would have escaped.

Outside of the damage to the canal the disaster had no bearing on the other industries in the Soo. The water in the power canal, which feeds the pulp mill and the dynamo rooms, lowered nearly a foot just as the accident occurred, and after that regained its level.

Hon. Mr. Graham returned yesterday afternoon from New York, where he was for several days conferring with the commission of expert engineers which has in hand the preparations of plans for the Quebec bridge.

Mr. Graham left at midnight for Sault Ste. Marie, to personally inspect the damage to the locks on Wednesday. Experts of the Department at Toronto will meet him here.

A telegram was received from J. W. Ross, superintending engineer of the canal; that the locks might be in shape to accommodate traffic as early as Monday night, though the work might require a longer time.

Skin Diseases.
A diseased or disfigured skin will always leave its stamp on the mind of the individual. Many people suffering from disfiguring skin diseases avoid society and lose all pride in their personal appearance. When the skin breaks out in eruptions and sores it is due entirely to an impure condition of the blood.
In all such cases Burdock Blood Bitters will quickly purify the blood and drive all the impurities out of the system.

SPRINGER CREEK, ONT.
Mrs. J. J. Magee, Jr., Kinmount, Ont., writes: "In the spring of 1908 I was troubled with a flush that broke out all over me. It was the worst of any face and head, had a dry, scaly top, and when I would get warm it would become very itchy. I tried the doctor's medicine but it did me no good, so I then got one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and before it was all used the flush was entirely gone."

SOURIS CITY, MAN.
Mrs. Harvey Barthouse, Gold River, N.S., writes: "I was greatly troubled with Sores on my face and finally became so bad I had to go to the doctor about it, but he could do nothing to help me.
"I thought about Burdock Blood Bitters and decided to try a bottle. I cannot recommend B.B.B. enough, as I had not taken all this bottle before my face was cured."

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE CITY LEAGUE TEAMS HAVE STRONG LINE-UP FOR TO-MORROW'S GAMES AT RIVERSIDE PARK

Two Lively Battles are Expected in the Senior Organization ---All Four Teams Have Been Practising Faithfully and Will be in Good Shape for the Games---Fans Will All Be There.

To-morrow's bill in the Senior City League at Riverside Park gives promise of being the most interesting and exciting of the season. With two big battles on, the fans will surely get their money's worth of fast ball as the teams are well balanced and have had lots of practice. The two o'clock game will bring together the Strathconas and the Park St. Athletic Clubs' teams and much interest is being taken in the appearance of the latter, who will make their debut for the season to-morrow. Manager Jack Pilling has collected a number of well known baseball stars, nearly all of whom have had Midland League experience and they are bound to make a big bid for the championship. The Strathconas will have a somewhat changed lineup from the team that represented them last week, and will be in the game from the first ball pitched, as they have put in a week of solid practice and will be in much better shape than on their first appearance. It is hard to pick the winner, but the contest will be well worth seeing.

The T.A.S. and West Ends will clash in the second game and, while the T.A.S. are logical favourites on account of their greater experience and the fact that Quinlan will do the box work for them, yet there are many who fancy the West Ends on account of their fielding and heady playing. The "Babies" as someone has christened the West Ends are a good bunch of youngsters, and the Abstainers will not be able to take any chances with them to-morrow.

Dan. McCabe will umpire both games which is a guarantee that there will be no delay and that the players will have to play ball all the time. It will be a snappy bill all the way.

The line-ups for to-morrow are announced as follows:

Strathconas.

Curtis cf, Shaw lf, Capt.; Weatherstone 2b, F. Craig 3b, Parnall c, Wettlaufer ss, Heaslip 1b, Guerin rf, Patterson p, Hickey p.

T. A. S.

Doherty 3b, Callaghan lf, Derocher cf, W. O'Brien rf, Quinlan p, M. O'Brien 1b, Cahill ss, Flaherty 2b, McFadden c, V. Corkery.

West Ends

Unless his arm is better before to-morrow it is likely that the Strathconas will be without the services of Shortstop Kendry, whose place in case he is unable to play, will be taken by Wettlaufer, the recruit from the West.

Peterborough backstop is leading his team at the bat by a wide margin.

• • •

The Senior and Intermediate teams of St. Peter's T. A. S. will practise at Boswell's Field at 7 o'clock to-night. All the players are requested to be present.

• • •

The following represents the baseball team who will play at the C. G. E. Angling Club's excursion to Jubilee to-morrow afternoon.

A REQUEST.

Kind maid, if it's the same to you, I do not care to get a view of every blooming little play that happens on the field to-day —of runners stealing second base, or fielders madly in the chase of hard-hit balls that fly afar, until they loom up like a star— for these details I do not care, but through the big rat in your hair, or underneath your nine-foot hat, could you arrange it some way that at intervals by hook or crook I might slip in a stingy look, and say, through every other inning, get some faint line on who is winning? Kind Maid, I do not hope to spot each play that happens in the lot—such small details as three-base hits that threw some rooters into fits, or mayhap some exciting slide that comes just as the score it tied, or fancy stop the shortstop makes, or even the pitcher's puzzling "breaks — I do not care for such as these, but there, won't you please arrange your "lid" some way that I might once or twice upon the sly peer outward from this crowded den and see the ball field now and then?

TURF CLUB WILL HOLD MATINEE

Usual Programme on Saturday at the Driving Park.

To-morrow afternoon the Turf Club will conduct another matinee similar to that of a week ago Thursday. There will be three horse races and a five-mile foot race. The horse races are a green race, free-for-all, and 2:50 class. In the five-mile foot race, Parker, the Hiawatha Indian, will meet all comers and it is possible that Hanlon Howard will run against him.

The track is in good shape and with fast entries there should be a good list of events.

SENIOR LEAGUERS ARE FIGHTING FOR PRIZES

Mr. Talbot and W. T. Bellegham Have Given Incentives to Hard Hitting.

The Senior City League teams are all looking forward to landing Mr. A. Talbot's good cigars. The heavy hitters on each team are promising that they will crack one that will be good enough for two home runs, and will straight away share the cigars with their team mates. Last Saturday these promises were not fulfilled, and it is very probable that the box will remain down in Talbot's show case. The picture offered by Mr. Walter T. Bellegham may be picked up on Saturday. Craig, Minorgan and Kirn have a two-bagger each to their credit, and it will be a nice little race between the fellows for the necessary number.

Jerry Edmunds is doing so much execution with the bat for the Maroons that he is being kept in the game every day, playing centre field when he is not catching. The ex-

SOCIAL EVENING AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

A pleasant evening was spent last night at St. Andrew's Hall. Among those taking part were Miss Greta Lebar, who delighted the audience with several splendid recitations. Mr. Coleman, who has been heard in vocal solos, and Mr. Roy Rankin, who played a violin solo, in a creditable manner. The affair was thoroughly enjoyable.

St. Louis-Gulf Canal Project Bumped.

Washington, June 11.—The proposed fourteen foot deep waterway project from St. Louis to the Gulf received a blow yesterday, when the board of engineers reported to Congress, that such a waterway is not desirable. The waterway would cost $128,000,000 for construction and $8,000,000 annually for maintenance.

Couple Under Arrest.

Sackville, N.B., June 11.—William Boyles, aged 35, and Mrs. Nesbetta, a widow, living in the same house, are under arrest in connection with the finding of a babe's body buried in the cellar of a house they vacated. A fishing line was drawn around the child's throat and it mouth stuffed with cotton wool.

Woman Charged With Usury.

Winnipeg, June 11.—Magistrate Daly yesterday committed Miss Mary A. Glynn for trial on one general and six specific charges of usury, and subsequently allowed bail from herself and two others at $500 each. In one case the interest demanded was at a rate of 300 per cent.

Guilty of Perjury.

Belleville, June 11.—Thomas Smart, the young Indian a short time since acquitted of the murder of his uncle, was yesterday found guilty of perjury in having sworn one thing at the inquest and another at the trial. The jury recommended mercy.

THE SPRING OF ALL COMFORT.

The Spring of all comfort is the season with a new suit that fits and pleases every way.

A suit that hangs well and stays in shape, not only becomes the wearer, but gives that contentment of mind that is a continual feast.

There is such a difference between a suit that is just right and one that is near right.

Fault in a garment annoys almost as much as a cinder in the eye.

You are always conscious of it, and feel sure that others must notice it.

For Spring clothes that will give you ease of form and comfort of mind, try Fashion-Craft.

Theatrical Censors.

The censorship of the theater was brought about in England through the audacity of Fielding, who wrote a play which satirised Sir Robert Walpole, who was prime minister of England and who introduced the famous act of 1737 licensing the theater.

Glacier Streams.

The water produced by the melting of glacier ice in summer flows down through crevasses to the bottom of the glacier and, forming a channel by erosion, emerges often as a large stream.

Dickens and His Bed.

Charles Dickens refused to lie down unless his bed was placed due north and south. He gave notice of the rule before arriving at a friend's house or a hotel, but a compass was always handy in his baggage to make sure.

Long Friday.

Good Friday was called "Long Friday" by the Saxons on account of the length of the offices and fastings enjoined on this day.

Roman Warships.

The men-of-war of the ancient Romans had a crew of about 225 men, of whom 174 were oarsmen working on three decks. The speed of these vessels was about 6 knots an hour in fair weather.

Stale Nuts.

When nuts have become too dry to be good remove the shells, let stand overnight in equal parts of milk and water, then dry them in the oven and they will be fresh and good.

Servia.

Servia retains many memories of Turkish rule. The women are kept in the background. The men marry for the qualities of the housewife rather than for romantic love. It is often that young men marry women much older than themselves.

A Chinese Punishment.

In some parts of China the punishment for murder is sleeplessness. The culprit is kept awake until he dies. Under this treatment a person lives nine or ten days.

AROUND THE STORES

"Peterborough minus progress!" Let this be the motto of every good Peterborough citizen. The pressure of progress, as it is known nowadays, goes to "make all things new." A store is "made anew" every few months. Sometimes, as at this season of trade activities, a store is, practically "renewed" — over-night. This means that no matter how well you may think you know the stores of this city, there is a lot of practically new store fixtures in the ready for your inspection every day. New things, new models, new fabrics—some higher, but many lower than you are accustomed to paying—all these things make to-day's stores new to you, and worthy of a visit. And the store advts. reflect the new store-spirit. They convey some of the new store-enthusiasm, which has attracted the merchants. Just as the stores are worth a visit, so are the store-advts. worth a reading.

* * *

The talk about meters is a natural one; for, according to some storekeepers and householders, they need to be checked occasionally. Would it not be a wise move on the part of the municipality to secure independent tests, to keep a check on the work of the gas and electric meters. At best, they are only a contrivance which pretends to act as a referee between the producer and the user of light. It is but fair to say that the companies need to be aided in their efforts to give the people all the gas and all the electric light that they pay for. Those who manage these companies are dependent upon machinery for the measurement of the amount of light supplied to customers, and close observers have noted that when such machines err, they nearly always err in favour of corporations as against individuals.

* * *

It has been noticed that not many of our Peterborough ladies have gone in for the "Coalscuttle," "Beehive" and "Mushroom" types of hats. Our millinery stores have been wise, in some instances, in resisting the temptation to stock up with what one lady has designated as 'monstrosities which only become women who want to hide their faces," and calls them "waste paper baskets turned upside down." Many of our ladies have preferred wearing the less extreme styles, which are much better adapted for the particular requirements of face and costume. Creasman's millinery has been remarked for its moderate tendency—their designers, apparently, having been wise enough to have been studying to avoid the ultra styles, so pronounced this season.
